

Modern German Grammar A PRACTICAL GUIDE

SECOND EDITION

Bill Dodd, Christine Eckhard-Black, John Klapper,
and Ruth Whittle

Also available as a printed book see title verso for ISBN details

Modern GERMAN Grammar
Second Edition

Routledge Modern Grammars

Series concept and development – Sarah Butler

Other books in the series:

Modern French Grammar

Modern Italian Grammar

Modern Spanish Grammar, Second Edition

Modern French Grammar Workbook

Modern Italian Grammar Workbook

Modern Spanish Grammar Workbook, Second Edition

Modern GERMAN Grammar

A practical guide

Second Edition

Bill Dodd, Christine Eckhard-Black, John Klapper,
Ruth Whittle

First published in 1996

by Routledge

Second edition first published in 2003

by Routledge

11 New Fetter Lane, London EC4P 4EE

Simultaneously published in the USA and Canada

by Routledge

29 West 35th Street, New York, NY 10001

Routledge is an imprint of the Taylor & Francis Group

This edition published in the Taylor & Francis e-Library, 2005.

“To purchase your own copy of this or any of Taylor & Francis or Routledge’s collection of thousands of eBooks please go to www.eBookstore.tandf.co.uk.”

© 1996, 2003 Ruth Whittle, Christine Eckhard-Black, John Klapper, Bill Dodd

All rights reserved. No part of this book may be reprinted or reproduced or utilized in any form or by any electronic, mechanical, or other means, now known or hereafter invented, including photocopying and recording, or in any information storage or retrieval system, without permission in writing from the publishers.

British Library Cataloguing in Publication Data

A catalogue record for this book is available from the British Library

Library of Congress Cataloging in Publication Data

Modern German grammar : a practical guide / Bill Dodd . . . [et al.]. – 2nd ed.

p. cm. – (Routledge modern grammars)

Includes index.

1. German language – Grammar. 2. German language – Textbooks for foreign speakers – English. I. Dodd, Bill (Bill J.), 1950– . II. Series.

PF3112.M55 2003

438.2’421 – dc21

2002155517

ISBN 0-203-42829-3 Master e-book ISBN

ISBN 0-203-44053-6 (Adobe eReader format)

ISBN 0-415-27299-8 (hbk)

ISBN 0-415-27300-5 (pbk)

Contents

Introduction	ix
How to use this book	xi
Glossary	xiii

PART A Structures

I Letters and sounds	3
1 Vowels	3
2 Diphthongs	4
3 Consonants	4
4 Stress	5
II Word order	7
5 Simple sentences and main clauses	7
6 Two main clauses	9
7 Direct questions and commands	10
8 Subordinate clauses	11
9 Indirect questions	14
10 Relative clauses	14
11 Order of adverbials	16
12 Noun and pronoun objects	17
13 Position of nicht	18
14 Position of reflexive pronouns	19
15 Flexible word order and emphasis	20
III The case system	23
16 The cases	23
17 The nominative	23
18 The accusative	24
19 The dative	26
20 The genitive	31
21 Apposition	33
IV Nouns	36
22 The article	36
23 Use of the articles	37
24 Determiners	41
25 Gender	43
26 Compound nouns and acronyms	47

CONTENTS

27	Gender variations	47
28	Noun declensions	48
29	Plurals	50
V	Pronouns	54
30	Pronoun reference and forms	54
31	Other forms used as pronouns	57
32	Pronouns used after prepositions	58
VI	Verbs	59
33	Verb forms	59
34	Use of tenses	71
35	Modal verbs	74
36	Separable and inseparable verbs	81
37	Reflexive verbs	87
38	Prepositional verbs	90
39	The subjunctive	93
40	The passive	102
41	Imperatives	105
42	Basic sentence patterns: verbs and their completion	107
VII	Adjectives and adverbs	118
43	Predicative and attributive adjectives	118
44	Declension following der etc.	118
45	Declension following ein etc.	120
46	'Zero' declension	121
47	Other adjective types	123
48	Comparison of adjectives	125
49	Extended adjectival phrases	129
50	Adverbs	129
51	Comparison of adverbs	132
VIII	Word structure and word formation	134
52	Principles of word formation	134
53	Forming verbs	135
54	Forming nouns	135
55	Forming adjectives	139
56	Forming adverbs	141
57	The meaning of verbal prefixes	142
IX	Style and orthography	146
58	Formal and informal style	146
59	Spelling and punctuation	148

Part B Functions

X Social contact	159
60 Greeting	159
61 Making introductions	165
62 Taking leave	175
63 Eating and drinking	180
64 Giving and receiving compliments	188
65 Expressing commiseration	191
66 Expressing good wishes	195
67 Giving and receiving thanks, expressing appreciation	201
68 Expressing apologies and regret	206
 XI Giving and seeking factual information	 211
69 Talking and enquiring about existence	211
70 Talking and enquiring about absence and non-existence	215
71 Expressing and enquiring about availability	221
72 Talking about non-availability	224
73 Identifying and seeking identification	227
74 Describing people	231
75 Describing objects	241
76 Describing actions and processes	252
77 Avoiding describing the agent of processes and actions	267
78 Describing origins and provenance	269
 XII Putting events into a wider context	 274
79 Giving reasons and purpose	274
80 Providing spatial context	281
81 Providing temporal context	286
82 Talking about cause and effect	296
83 Drawing conclusions with reference to sources	300
84 Referring to sources of information	303
85 Reporting other people's words and claims	307
86 Expressing necessity	309
87 Expressing ability to do something	317
88 Conveying doubt and certainty	319
89 Expressing assumptions, discussing possibility, probability and conditions	322
 XIII Transactions: getting things done	 325
90 Attracting attention	325
91 Helping and advising	328
92 Asking for something to be done	333
93 Expressing needs, wishes and desires	336

CONTENTS

94	Expressing objections and complaints	339
95	Giving and seeking promises and assurances	346
96	Issuing, accepting and declining invitations and offers	349
97	Seeking, granting and denying permission	353
98	Making, accepting and declining suggestions	356
99	Issuing and responding to warnings	358
XIV	Conveying attitudes and mental states	362
100	Asserting and denying the truth of something	362
101	Expressing knowledge	364
102	Remembering and forgetting	366
103	Expressing future intentions	368
104	Expressing likes and dislikes: people, things and situations	369
105	Indicating preferences	371
106	Expressing indifference	373
107	Voicing opinion	373
108	Expressing firm convictions	375
109	Expressing agreement and disagreement	376
110	Talking about physical well being	381
111	Expressing happiness, fear and sadness	393
112	Expressing satisfaction and dissatisfaction	401
113	Expressing hopes, wishes and disappointment	404
114	Expressing surprise	409
115	Expressing enjoyment and pleasure	412
XV	Communication strategies	416
116	Using fillers	416
117	Keeping the channel open	418
118	Asking for spoken linguistic cues	425
119	Shaping the course of a conversation	427
120	Turn-taking in conversations	432
121	Delivering monologues (formal speaking)	435
	Index	441

Introduction

Modern German Grammar. A Practical Guide is an innovative reference grammar designed to be used with modern approaches to teaching and learning German as a foreign language. The book addresses learners' practical needs by combining a detailed description of the grammatical structures of German with a 'functional' approach to language. By functions we mean the specific uses to which we can put language in order to communicate effectively in particular situations: e.g. apologizing, accepting or declining an invitation, expressing regret, voicing an opinion or casting doubt on something.

The book is intended for all those who have a basic knowledge of German, including undergraduates taking German as a major or minor part of their studies, as well as intermediate and advanced students in both schools and adult education. It will also prove an invaluable resource for teachers seeking back-up to syllabuses organized around functions, or designers of German language courses and syllabuses in all sectors of education.

Before using the book the reader is advised to refer to pp. xi–xii on 'How to use this book'. There are two main parts. Part A (sections 1–59) provides a detailed description of the structures of modern German, and is in this respect quite close to being a 'traditional' grammar. The explanations given in Part A are supported by a detailed glossary of grammatical terms which assumes no previous grammatical training. In contrast, the larger Part B (sections 60–121) focuses on functions, explaining and illustrating the appropriate use of German in particular contexts, the specific ideas the learner wishes to express and the concrete situations in which he or she is likely to wish to use them.

There is a comprehensive index at the back of the book. This is a very important section as the detailed entries on functions, structures and grammatical terminology allow the reader to approach the language in more than one way: he or she can either look up how to express a particular function or seek information on how a certain aspect of the language works. Having located the required function (e.g. 'Attracting attention in a dangerous situation' 90.1), the learner is referred to relevant structures in Part A (e.g. 'Use of Subjunctive II'). This approach avoids the difficulties learners have with traditional grammars, where, faced with expressing something in German, they frequently do not know which structure(s) they need to look up. In this book, the grammatical structures needed to perform the function successfully are highlighted in Part B and can be checked more fully in Part A. An extensive system of cross-references within and between the two major parts of the book provides further information which the user may find helpful, especially when consulting individual functions.

INTRODUCTION

A key factor in a book of this kind is the description of register. The term register denotes the relationship between a speaker or writer and the person he or she is speaking or writing to. The degree of formality or informality which characterizes their communication is determined by their respective ages, by how intimately they are acquainted and by their status, i.e. their respective professional or social standing. While there are numerous gradations on the register scale between the two extremes of formality and informality, in this book it is assumed that, unless otherwise stated, the language being described belongs to a standard, neutral, educated and polite register which is neither excessively formal nor excessively informal. Only those expressions which clearly stand out from this general polite usage have been marked for register. Expressions marked as 'informal' are examples of casual or colloquial usage; this can include slang or vulgar terms, but the latter are always indicated separately. Language marked as 'formal' denotes official or literary language which may have an archaic ring to it or may be restricted to use in written German.

This second edition incorporates all the recent changes made to German spelling and punctuation. See 59.7 for further details.

We have adopted the following conventions:

- within an English sentence bold type is used for German text, and single speech marks for English translations, e.g. ein*laden 'to invite'
- as the above example shows, an asterisk indicates a separable prefix to a verb
- the slash symbol (/) indicates an alternative word or expression
- -r, -e, -s denote der, die, das, respectively; noun plurals are indicated via brackets, e.g. (e) or (en).

The following abbreviations are used:

etw. = etwas

jmd. = jemand

jmdn. = jemanden

jmdm. = jemandem

jmds. = jemandes

nom. = nominative

acc. = accusative

dat. = dative

gen. = genitive

sg. = singular

pl. = plural

sb. = somebody

sth. = something

adj. = adjective

adv. = adverb

usw. = undsoweiter

How to use this book

Functional heading		XIII Transactions: getting things done
General function	90	Attracting attention
Cross-reference to related function		See also 61.1 (p. 166) on 'Making initial contact'.
Specific function	90.1	Attracting attention in a dangerous situation
German illustrations with English translations		Hilfe! Help! Feuer! Fire! Vorsicht! Be careful! Hallo! Hello!
Note on meaning/usage		(Hallo! is not necessarily understood as a request for rescue but as a casual greeting. Only when shouted out with a prolonged [a:] does it mean a call for help in dire circumstances.)
Cross-reference to grammatical explanation in Part B		See also 60.2a (p. 160).
	90.2	Attracting attention when a person is busy
		Darf ich mal kurz stören. (polite) May I interrupt you for a moment. Entschuldigen Sie bitte. (polite) Excuse me, please. Hallo, Sie da!/He, Sie da! (rude) Heh, you there! Sie, hören Sie mal! (rude) You, listen!
		325

Information on register

accepting 72.3b, 79.1b acknowledging apologizing 68b, 61.1b, 82.3b arguing 102b, 106.4b asking 62.3b, 95.8b

Index shows where to find various functions

Box summarizes main expressions and structure presented in this section

Indicates dative of person

Shows case

Indicates dative of thing

Indicates accusative of person

Sub-division of specific function

Information on register

Notes on cultural aspects

Indicates alternative forms

Bold italic to highlight feature under discussion

Cross-reference to related function

SOCIAL CONTACT

68

On the other hand, to be more abrupt and peremptory one could use:

Halten Sie sich da (ganz) raus.
Keep (well) out of it.

(c) Note that a simple Danke in response to an offer of some sort will mean 'No, thank you'. In order to accept the offer, say either Ja, bitte 'Yes, please' or Ja, gerne 'Yes, gladly/Yes, I would'.

68

Expressing apologies and regret

The most common expressions include:

jmdm. Leid tun 'to be sorry' sich (= acc.) bei jmdm. entschuldigen 'to apologize to sb.'
etw. mit etw. (= dat.) entschuldigen 'to excuse sth. with sth.'
sich bei jmdm. entschuldigen lassen 'to send one's apologies to sb.'
jmdn. bei jmdm. entschuldigen 'to convey sb.'s apologies to sb.'
sich (= dat.)/jmdm. verzeihen 'to forgive oneself/sb.'
jmdn. um Verzeihung bitten 'to ask sb. for forgiveness/apologize'
jmdm. etw. vergeben 'to forgive sb. sth.'

68.1

Apologizing and seeking forgiveness

(a) To say sorry for a slight mishap or some minor misdemeanour, a simple Verzeihung! or Entschuldigung! 'sorry' will suffice:

Entschuldigung, falsch verbunden.
I'm sorry, I've got the wrong number. (on the telephone)

Verzeihung, ich habe mich verwählt.
I'm sorry, I've dialled the wrong number.

Tut mir Leid, short for es tut mir Leid (see 68.1b), is also used in this sense. In German border regions with France, in particular, the form Pardon (pronounced as in French) may well be heard, while in informal spoken German Sorry! is now frequently heard, although it tends to be a lot more superficial than in English and it should not be used for a genuine apology.

(b) The expression Leid tun is very commonly used to convey apologies and regret, often with an adverb for reinforcement. Note that the verb is always used impersonally (see 19.7 for impersonal verbs):

Es tut mir furchtbar/aufrichtig Leid, dass ich das Buch schon wieder vergessen habe.
I am terribly/sincerely sorry for having forgotten the book again.

Es tut uns sehr/wirklich Leid, dass ihr nicht mitkommen könnt.
We are very/really sorry that you can't come with us.

See also 113.3 (p. 406) on 'Disappointment'.

206

Glossary

NOTE * indicates cross-reference to another entry in the Glossary accusative object also known as the direct object, denotes the person or thing the action of the verb* is being done to, and is in the accusative case in German: Sie kaufte den Rock 'She bought the skirt'.

active also called the active voice: a grammatical construction in which the subject* of a sentence performs the action of the verb*; the action usually affects a following accusative object*: Er hat den Brief geschrieben 'He has written the letter'. See also passive*.

adjective describes a noun*. It can be a simple description such as rot 'red', langweilig 'boring', or it can be a possessive such as mein 'my', unser 'our', Ihr 'your': Das ist ein schöner Anzug 'That's a nice suit'. Hast du meine Jacke gesehen? 'Have you seen my jacket?'

adjectival noun a noun derived from an adjective*, which has the usual adjective endings: der Angestellte '(male) employee', die Angestellte '(female) employee', die Angestellten 'employees'.

adverb indicates e.g. the manner in which something is done. It can consist of one word or a phrase: schnell 'quickly', schlecht 'badly', am Abend 'in the evening', in der Schule 'at school'.

auxiliary verb used in combination with the past participle (see participle*) to form tenses* and the passive*. The German auxiliaries are haben, sein and werden: Habt ihr es schon gemacht? 'Have you already done it?' Er ist noch nicht angekommen 'He has not arrived yet.' Sie wurden in der Stadt gesehen 'They were seen in town'.

case the function of nouns* or pronouns* in a German sentence is shown by a change in their form or that of the determiners* and adjectives* used with them. The nominative indicates the subject* of the verb*, the accusative indicates the accusative/direct object*, the dative indicates the dative/indirect object*, and the genitive indicates possession or the relationship between nouns. Prepositions* also require certain cases to be used. See 16–21 (pp. 23–35).

clause sub-section of a sentence containing a verb*. The main clause is that part of a sentence which does not depend on any other element in the sentence for its meaning. The subordinate clause depends on another clause, i.e. it cannot stand alone, and is usually introduced by a conjunction*: Er weiß doch schon, dass ich krank bin 'He already knows that I'm ill'. Here the section in bold italics is the subordinate clause, while what precedes it is the main clause. A relative clause is a subordinate clause introduced by a relative pronoun (usually der/die/das) and relates back to a preceding noun* or pronoun*: Das ist die Schule, die wir früher besuchten 'That is the school we used to go to'.

colloquial an informal style of language more characteristic of spoken than written German. For example, using the expression Schwein haben instead of Glück haben for 'to be lucky'. Or simply using Tschüs! or Tschau! to say goodbye to a friend, rather than the more formal auf Wiedersehen!

comparative the form of the adjective* or adverb* used to compare things: Eine schwierigere Aufgabe 'A more difficult exercise'. Ein besseres Klima 'A better climate'. Fahr doch langsamer! 'Do drive more slowly!' See also superlative.

completion of the verb the phrase or phrases which complete the meaning of the verb*, such as an accusative object*, a dative object* or a prepositional phrase*: Er klopfte an der Tür 'He knocked on the door'. Sie gab ihrer Freundin das Buch 'She gave her friend the book'. Dieser Bus fährt in die Stadtmitte 'This bus goes to the town centre'.

compound noun a noun formed by joining together two or more words: das Büro 'office', die Maschine 'machine': die Büromaschine 'office machine'.

conditional the form würde is the Subjunctive II form of the verb* werden and is sometimes referred to as the conditional tense, even though it is not strictly a tense. It is frequently used in conditional sentences, so called because they suggest some condition applies to the meaning of the main clause (see clause*). The subordinate clause in a conditional sentence very often begins with the conjunction* wenn 'if': Wenn es heute nicht regnete, würden wir im Garten arbeiten 'If it weren't raining today, we would work in the garden'. Another type of conditional sentence with wenn and the present tense of the verb* in both clauses denotes an open or real condition: Wenn sie heute Abend kommt, gehen wir ins Kino 'If she comes this evening, we'll go to the cinema'.

conjugation the changing of the person*, number*, tense* or mood* of a verb* to indicate different meanings or grammatical functions: Ich gehe, du gehst, sie ging, er ginge, etc.

conjunction word that links clauses*, e.g. dass, obwohl, weil, aber, und.

dative object also known as the indirect object, it usually denotes a person or thing indirectly involved in the action of the verb*. In English it comes before the accusative object* (or direct object) or after 'to'/'for'; in German it is always in the dative case (see case*): Sie zeigte ihrem Bruder das neue Auto 'She showed her brother the new car'/'She showed the new car to her brother'. Er hat es dir gekauft 'He bought it for you'.

declension the changing of case* and number* of either a noun* or adjective* to indicate different meanings or grammatical functions.

declension following der, etc. also sometimes called the ‘weak declension’: the pattern of adjective endings before a noun when there is a preceding der/die/das or demonstrative*: der alte Hut ‘the old hat’, das neue Gebäude ‘the new building’, in jener teuren Wohnung ‘in that expensive flat’. See also declension following ein, etc. and zero declension*.

declension following ein, etc. also sometimes called the ‘mixed declension’: the pattern of adjective endings before a noun when there is a preceding ein/eine/ein, kein/keine/kein or possessive adjective (see adjective*): ein alter Freund ‘an old friend’, kein gutes Zeichen ‘not a good sign’, meine jüngere Schwester ‘my little sister’. See also declension following der, etc. and zero declension*.

definite article the German equivalent of the word ‘the’ (i.e. der, die or das). See also determiner*.

demonstrative a word indicating which noun* is being referred to, usually in relation to another noun: diese Frau ‘this woman’, jener Mann ‘that man’, jedes Haus ‘every house’ (see also determiner*).

determiner a word preceding a noun* that indicates which noun is being referred to, how many of the nouns there are, or to whom the noun belongs. Determiners include definite articles* (der, die, das ‘the’), indefinite articles* (ein ‘a’, kein ‘not a’), demonstratives* (dieser ‘this’, jener ‘that’), indefinites* (mancher ‘some’, viele ‘many’), and possessive adjectives (mein ‘my’, unser ‘our’ – see adjective*).

direct object: see accusative object*.

direct speech the exact representation of someone’s actual words, usually in speech marks. „Ruf mich doch morgen an,“ sagte er. “‘Give me a ring tomorrow,” he said’.
See also reported speech*.

finite verb the one verb* in a clause* which has a subject* and can be either singular or plural, in the present or past tense, in contrast to participles* and infinitives*, which are the non-finite parts of the verb: Wir sind nach Paris geflogen ‘We flew to Paris’. Schwimmst du noch am Wochenende? ‘Do you still go swimming at the weekend?’

gender a means of classifying nouns* grammatically through the different forms of the determiners* which precede them: Der Mann/das Haus. Dieser Mann/diese Frau. In keinem Dorf/in keiner Stadt. German has three genders – masculine, feminine and neuter. In most cases grammatical gender is not based on natural gender.

imperative mood the form of the verb* used to express commands: Bring mir das Buch ‘Bring me the book’. Gehen Sie nach Hause! ‘Go home!’ Kommt mal her, Kinder ‘Come here, children’. See also indicative mood* and subjunctive mood*.

indefinite article the German equivalent of the word ‘a/an’ (i.e. ein, eine, ein). See also determiner*.

GLOSSARY

indefinites words used to indicate how many of the noun there are without giving the exact number: Einige Kollegen 'a few colleagues'. Manche Studenten 'some students'. Viele Leute 'lots of people'. See also determiner*.

indicative mood the form of the verb* used to make unconditional statements (see conditional*) or to ask questions: Die Arbeit war schon am Montag fertig 'The work was finished on Monday'. Wohnen Sie hier in der Nähe? 'Do you live near here?' See also imperative mood* and subjunctive mood*.

indirect object: see dative object*.

infinitive the form of the verb* found in a dictionary: arbeiten 'to work'. The infinitive is also used in particular constructions, e.g. with a modal verb*: Wir müssen jetzt arbeiten 'We have to work now.'

inseparable verb a verb* with an inseparable prefix: vergeben 'to forgive'. The past participle (see participle*) does not begin with ge-: Ich habe dir vergeben 'I have forgiven you'. See also separable verb*.

interrogative any question word or phrase: Wo? 'Where?' Warum? 'Why?' Aus welchem Grund? 'For what reason?'

intransitive verb a verb* which needs only a subject* to form a basic sentence: Sie schläft 'She is asleep.' See also transitive verb*.

irregular verb a type of strong verb* which changes its stem in the du and the er/sie/es forms of the present tense, e.g. geben 'to give': ich gebe, du gibst, er gibt. See also weak verb*.

mixed verb a category of verbs*, small in number, that combine aspects of weak verbs* and strong verbs*. See 33.6.

modal particles words which signal the speaker's attitude towards what he or she is saying and help to involve the listener in what is being said. There is often no direct English equivalent: Das hast du ja selber gesagt 'You said that yourself (after all)'.

modal verb a verb* which can be used with another verb to modify the kind of statement being made: Ich kaufe es 'I buy it' can be modified to Ich will es kaufen 'I want to buy it', Ich muss es kaufen 'I have to buy it', etc.

mood: see imperative mood*, indicative mood*, subjunctive mood*.

noun a word which names things, processes or concepts. In written German, all nouns begin with a capital letter: der Brief 'letter', die Tiefe 'depth', das Schreiben '(act of) writing'. All nouns in German have a gender*.

number a word denoting whether a noun* or verb* is singular or plural: Ein Hund 'one dog', but zwei Hunde 'two dogs'. Du gehst 'you (singular) are going', but Sie gehen 'you (plural) are going'.

object (of the verb) the person or thing affected by the action of the verb*, as distinct from the person or thing responsible for the action (the subject*). See accusative object* and dative object*.

orthography the conventions for correct spelling and punctuation.

participle a non-finite form of a verb*. The present participle is usually an adjective: führend 'leading'. The past participle is used in forming various tenses and signals the completion of an action: Er hat es schon gemacht 'He has already done it'. The past participle can also have an adjectival sense: geteilt 'divided'. See also finite verb*.

passive also called the passive voice: a grammatical construction in which the person or thing affected by the action of a verb* appears as the subject* of the sentence. For example, the active* sentence Er hat den Brief geschrieben 'He has written the letter' can be expressed in the passive as Der Brief ist (von ihm) geschrieben worden 'The letter has been written (by him)'.

person verbs have three persons, the first (singular: ich gehe; plural: wir gehen), the second (singular: du gehst; plural: ihr geht, Sie gehen) and the third (singular: er/sie/es geht; plural: sie gehen).

preposition a word that describes where things are in time or space. German prepositions always put the noun* or pronoun* into a case* other than the nominative: unter dem Tisch 'under the table', für mich 'for me'.

prepositional phrase usually a phrase consisting of a preposition* linked to a noun* or adjective* and noun: neben der neuen Tür 'next to the new door', im alten Haus 'in old house', dem Dom gegenüber 'opposite the cathedral'.

prepositional verb a verb* that forms an idiomatic unit with a particular preposition*: glauben an (+ acc.) 'to believe in sb. or sth.'.

pronoun a word that stands in for and refers to a noun*. There are personal pronouns: e.g. er, which means 'he' when referring to a noun like der Abteilungsleiter 'head of department', and 'it' when referring to a noun like der Computer 'computer'. Relative pronouns introduce relative clauses (see clause*): Das ist eine Frage, die mich interessiert 'That is a question which interests me'. Reflexive pronouns are used with reflexive verbs*. The possessive pronouns meiner, meine, meins; deiner, deine, deins, etc. correspond to 'mine', 'yours', etc. Demonstrative* pronouns point to something specific: dieses Spiel 'this game', jene Frau 'that woman'. Informally der/die/das also act as demonstrative pronouns: Den haben wir heute nicht gesehen 'We haven't seen him today.'

reflexive verb a verb* that is used with a form of pronouns* known as reflexive pronouns to indicate that the subject* and the object* of the verb are identical: Ich rasiere mich 'I shave'. Some German verbs can only be used reflexively: Sie befindet sich in Bonn 'She is in Bonn'.

reported speech a way of showing that the words used by the speaker or the writer are someone else's. (See also direct speech*.) German uses a subjunctive* form of the verb* for this: e.g. an original sentence such as Ich bin krank 'I am ill' can be reported as Er sagte, er sei krank 'He said he was ill'.

GLOSSARY

separable verb a verb* with a (stressed) separable prefix which appears separately from the main part of the verb in some structures: Der Zug kam pünktlich an 'The train arrived on time'. See also inseparable verb*.

strong verb a verb* which undergoes a change to its stem in forming the simple past: wir singen 'we sing', wir sangen 'we sang'. See also irregular verb* and weak verb*.

subject (of the verb) usually a noun* or pronoun* which denotes the person or thing doing the action expressed by the verb*. The subject agrees with the verb in number*: Die Maschine läuft 'The machine is running', Die Maschinen laufen 'The machines are running'. See also object*.

subjunctive mood a form of the verb* used to express an action, process or state which is not actually in existence at the time of speaking. The subjunctive is mainly used in reported speech* and in conditional sentences (see conditional*) such as Ich könnte morgen kommen (, wenn du Zeit hast) 'I could come tomorrow (if you have time)'. See also imperative mood* and indicative mood*.

superlative the form of an adjective used to denote the greatest intensity of a quality: Das war die beste Lösung. 'This was the best solution'. See also comparative.

tense a finite form of the verb* (see finite verb*) which usually expresses whether the action takes place in the present, past or future. German has six tense forms. See 33.3 and 34.

transitive verb a verb* which can have an accusative object*: Ich verstehe dich 'I understand you'. See also intransitive verb*.

verb a word describing an action or state of being: wir schwimmen 'we are swimming', sich waschen 'to get washed', sie war traurig 'she was sad'.

verbal prefix a prefix added to a verb* in order to create a new verb with a different meaning. Verbal prefixes may be separable (ankommen 'to arrive') or inseparable (vergeben 'to forgive'). A few verbal prefixes can be separable or inseparable, with a distinction in meaning: see 36. See also inseparable verb* and separable verb*.

weak verb a regular verb* whose forms are completely predictable as they add standard endings to the verb stem. See 33.4. See also irregular verb* and strong verb*.

zero declension also sometimes called the 'strong declension': the pattern of adjective endings before a noun when there is no preceding ein or der: italianischer Wein 'Italian wine', deutsches Bier 'German beer'. See also declension following ein, etc.* and declension following der, etc.*.

Part A

Structures

Letters and sounds

Sections 1–4 provide a reference guide to the correspondences between letters and the sounds they represent in German. Approximate versions of German pronunciation are given in square brackets. A stressed syllable is shown in italic. (See also 59.7 on spelling reforms.)

1

Vowels

1.1

The quality of a vowel depends on whether it is stressed or unstressed (see 4). In unstressed syllables vowels tend towards the neutral sound found in the unstressed syllables of English ‘farmer’, ‘armour’, ‘along’.

1.2

The relationship between written vowels and spoken syllables is different in English and German in one important respect: ‘dame’ is one syllable in English, but Dame (lady) is two syllables in German: [da:-me].

1.3

German vowels are pronounced either short or long. In this section, a vowel which is pronounced long is followed by a colon [:]. A doubled consonant following a vowel indicates that the vowel is short (Lamm [lam] ‘lamb’); an h following a vowel indicates that the vowel is long (lahm [la:m] ‘lame’). German vowels are also much ‘purer’ than English vowels, which tend to be slight glides (see 2). The quality of German vowels is typically close to northern English pronunciation.

1.4

The letters and sounds for vowels are as follows:

- a Short, like the vowel in (northern) English ‘ham’: Kamm, Lamm. Long, like the vowel in English ‘harm’: kam, lahm.
- a/e These represent the same set of sounds. Short, like the first vowel in English ‘enter’: Essen, Ämter. Long, it has no equivalent in English. Esel ([e:zel] ‘donkey’) almost rhymes with ‘hazel’ but without the vowel glide of English.
- ee This is always pronounced long: Tee ([te:] ‘tea’) rhymes with ‘hay’, but without the vowel glide of English.
- i Short, like the vowel in English ‘it’: List ([list] ‘cunning’)
- ie As a single syllable, this is always pronounced long, like the vowel in English ‘eat’: liest ([li:st] ‘reads’). But see also 4.3.
- o Short, like the vowel in English ‘off’: offen ([ofen] open). Long, like the vowel in English ‘oaf’, but without the vowel glide of English: Ofen ([o:fen] ‘oven’).
- ö Short [o], it has no near equivalent in English: können ([könen] ‘to be able to’). Long [o:], like the vowel in English ‘urn’, but with the tongue further forward, the lips rounded and without the glide of English: Söhne ([zö:ne] ‘sons’).

u Short [u], like the vowel in English 'puli': Pulli ([puli] 'pullover'). Long [u:], like the vowel in English 'tool': Puder ([pu:der] 'powder').

ü/y These represent the same set of sounds as produced by performing English 'ee' in 'green' and pursing the lips. This produces a front vowel sound with rounded lips, long in grün ([grü:n] 'green') and typisch ([tʏ:pish] 'typical'); short in Küsse ([kʏsɐ] 'kisses').

j This is pronounced 'y' in German: Juli ([yu:li] 'July').

1.5

Where umlauted vowels (ä, ö, ü) mark grammatical changes, e.g. in forming the plural of a noun or the subjunctive of a verb, the umlauted vowel has the same length as the vowel it replaces: both short in kKamm, Kämme ([kam] [keme] 'comb', 'combs'); both long in kam, käme ([ka:m] [ke:me] 'came', 'would come'). An umlaut basically takes a vowel produced at the back of the mouth [a a: o o: u u:] and moves it to the front of the mouth [e e: ö ö: ü ü:] but with the lips shaped as they were for the back vowel.

2

Diphthongs

2.1

Diphthongs are vowel glides. The tongue 'glides' from one position to another as the sound is produced.

au Like English 'ow' in 'how now'. The vowel in German braun is very like the vowel in English 'brown'.

ai/ei Both pronounced like the glide in English 'ice' (German Eis).

au/eu Both these combinations of letters represent the sound 'oi': Mäuse ([moize] 'mice'); Europa ([oiro:pa] 'Europe').

Note that äu is the umlauted form of the back vowel glide au: Haus ([haus] 'house'), Häuser ([hoizer] 'houses').

2.2

In German, ei is always pronounced 'eye', and ie is always pronounced 'ee'. Thus, saying the second letter of the pair always produces the correct sound for English speakers: Wein ([vain] 'wine') sounds like English 'vine'. Bier ([bi:r] 'beer') sounds like English 'beer'.

2.3

Most English vowels have a slight tendency to be pronounced as glides, i.e. the tongue moves from one position to another nearby. However, most German vowels are pronounced with the tongue in a constant position.

3

Consonants

3.1

German has one consonant letter not found in English: ß. Called 'sharp s' or 's-tset', this letter is always pronounced voiceless, i.e. as in 'hiss' as opposed to 'his'. It is always written instead of double -s (ss) when preceded by a long vowel. Thus:

Long: Maße [ma:se] Füße [fʏ:se] stoße [shto:se] Stöße [shtö:se]

Short: Masse [mase] Flüsse [flüse] Sprosse [shprose] Schlösser [shlöser] Hass [has]

3.2

Most consonants are pronounced as they are in English, with the following principal exceptions:

- b, d These are pronounced 'p' and 't' respectively when at the end of a word or syllable: ab ([ap] 'away'), Rad ([ra:t] 'wheel').
- ch (a) This is pronounced hard, midway between 'k' and 'h' (as in Scots English 'loch') when it follows a back vowel (a, a:, o, o:, u, u: and au): Bach ([bakh] 'stream'), Loch ([lokh] 'hole'), Buch ([bu:kh] 'book'), Bauch ([baukh] 'stomach').
 (b) This is pronounced soft, rather like 'sh' (but halfway between English 'sh' and the above sound) when it follows a consonant or a front vowel [i, i:, e, e:, ä, ä:, ö, ö:, ü, ü: and äu, eu, ai, ei]: Milch ([milch] 'milk'), Löcher ([löcher] 'holes'), Bücher ([bü:cher] 'books'), Bäche ([beche] 'streams'), Bäuche ([boiche] 'stomachs'). It is the first sound in the English word 'huge'.
- ig The g is pronounced like soft ch (see above) when at the end of a word or syllable. In some parts of Germany it is, however, pronounced 'k' in these positions: billig ([billich, billik] 'cheap').
- ng The g is never pronounced in German. Like English 'singer'.
- st, sp These are pronounced 'sht', 'shp' at the beginning of a word or syllable: Stuttgart [shtutgart], Spiel ([shpi:l] 'game'). (In some parts of Germany, e.g. in Hamburg, these are pronounced without the 'sh' sound: [stutgart] [spi:l].)
- s This is pronounced 'z' preceding a vowel: so [zo:], versammeln ([ferzameln] 'gather'), but is pronounced as an 's' in some words imported from English: sexy [seksi], Suzy [su:zi].
- z This is pronounced 'ts', also at the beginning of a word or syllable: Skizze ([skitse] 'sketch'), zu ([tsu:] 'to'), hinzu ([hintsu:] 'in addition'), zusammen ([tsuzamen] 'together').
- v This is usually pronounced 'f' at the beginning of words and syllables: viel ([fi:l] 'a lot'); and at the end of words: brav ([bra:f] 'well behaved').
- w This is pronounced 'v' at the beginning of words and syllables: weil ([vail] 'because').
- sch This is pronounced 'sh': Schule ([shu:le] 'school').
- qu This is pronounced 'kv': quer ([kve:r] 'diagonal').
- age At the end of some nouns imported from French, this has a French pronunciation, but it is pronounced with two syllables, the first one of which carries the stress: Garage [gara:zhe].
- tion At the end of a word this is pronounced as two syllables, the last one of which carries the stress: Inflation [inflatsi-o:n]. This may be pronounced faster, almost as a single syllable: [infla-tsyo:n].

Any consonant clusters not listed above are pronounced in full. For example: Knie ([kni:] 'knee'), Pfad ([pfa:t] 'path'), Psychologie ([psüchologi:] 'psychology').

4

Stress

4.1

It is only in stressed syllables that vowels have their full value.

4.2

Many words which look like English words have a different stress: Student [shtudent], Altar [alta:r], Hierarchie [hi:ra:rchi:], Diskothek [diskote:k].

4.3

ie is usually pronounced as a single syllable, but in some nouns and adjectives imported from other languages ie is pronounced as two syllables [i:-e]: Familie ([fami:li-e]

'family'). Sometimes the second of these syllables carries the main stress in the word: hygienisch ([hügie:nish] 'hygienic').

4.4

Where two vowels meet at an internal boundary in a word they are not pronounced as a single sound but remain in separate syllables, e.g. geehrt ([ge-e:rt] 'honoured'), geimpft ([ge-imft] 'inoculated'), beeilen ([be-ailen] 'hurry').

Word order

Although German certainly has several strict rules on word order, the order in which words appear in a sentence does not by itself determine meaning. The rules which follow therefore need to be considered alongside the case system (see 16–21).

5

Simple sentences and main clauses

5.1

A simple sentence is a statement that contains no questions or direct commands (see 7 and 41 on imperatives). The basic rule to remember about word order in simple sentences or main clauses is that the finite verb is always ‘second idea’ (see 5.2). The finite verb is the one verb which can be either singular or plural, in the present or past tense:

Sie spielen mit meiner kleinen Schwester.

They are playing with my little sister.

Mein Mann schwimmt jeden Tag mindestens 500 Meter.

My husband swims at least 500 metres every day.

spielen and schwimmt are the finite verbs here.

There can be only one finite verb in each German sentence; infinitives and past participles (see 33.1), for example, are not finite verbs:

Sie werden wohl erst nachts ankommen.

You’ll probably not arrive until night-time.

Wir hatten den Film schon gesehen.

We had already seen the film.

Here werden and hatten are the finite verbs.

(For exceptions to the ‘verb second’ rule, see 7.2 on direct questions, 7.3 on commands, and 58.3 on informal conversational responses.)

5.2

The verb’s second position applies even when some element other than the subject stands in first position. This other element can be:

(a) One or more adverbs or adverbial phrases (for explanations on adverbs and adverbial phrases, see also 50):

Morgen* wird es schon zu spät sein.

Tomorrow it will be too late.

Letzten Samstag gegen drei Uhr nachts starb er an einem Herzinfarkt.
He died of a heart attack at about 3a.m. last Saturday.

Vor zwei Wochen kaufte ich mir ein neues Auto.
Two weeks ago I bought myself a new car.

- (b) A noun phrase (see 42.3a–b):

Diesen alten VW kaufst du?!
You're buying that old VW?!

- (c) A pronoun (see 30):

Uns war das Haus zu teuer.
The house was too expensive for us.

- (d) A nominative noun or phrase (see 17) complementing the verbs sein, werden or bleiben:

Ein berühmter Politiker ist er bestimmt nicht geworden.
He certainly didn't become a famous politician.

- (e) An infinitive or infinitive phrase (see 5.4):

Fernsehen kannst du ja später; zuerst musst du aber die Hausaufgaben machen.
You can watch television later. First you must do your homework.

Um Missverständnissen vorzubeugen, sollten Sie ihn sofort anrufen.
To avoid any misunderstanding you ought to phone him at once.

- ▶ See also 8.7 (p. 13) and 42.3f (p. 115) on the use of infinitive clauses with 'zu'.

- (f) A past participle:

Unterschrieben ist der Vertrag allerdings noch nicht.
The contract has not, however, been signed yet.

- ▶ See also 33.1 (p. 59) and 35.3 (p. 76).

- (g) An adverb and some other part of speech together:

Dadurch freilich wurden all unsere Pläne zunichte gemacht.
Admittedly that ruined all our plans.

- (h) A subordinate clause: see 8.1–2.

- ▶ See 15 (pp. 20–22) for the nuances and emphases associated with these various examples of 'flexible' word order.

5.3

Introductory words such as the following are not considered first ideas:

ja 'yes'
nein 'no'
also 'therefore' so 'thus' nun 'now/well' na 'well'

ach 'oh'
das heißt 'that is, i.e.'
im Gegenteil 'on the contrary'
wissen Sie/weißt du 'you know'
sehen Sie/siehst du 'you see'
verstehen Sie/verstehst du 'you understand'
wie gesagt 'as I say'
mit anderen Worten 'in other words'
unter uns gesagt 'between you and me'

Note that each of these is followed by a comma (see 59.6 on rules for the use of commas):

Ja, ich komme um acht vorbei.
 Yes, I'll call in at eight o'clock.

Das heißt, Sie sind die ganze Woche verreist?
 That means you're away all week?

5.4

The usual position for past participles, or for infinitives dependent on modals (see 35) or the verb werden, is at the end of the clause or sentence (but see also 58.4):

Das habe ich ihm schon öfters gesagt.
 I've often told him that.

Könntest du nicht bis Dienstag bleiben?
 Couldn't you stay until Tuesday?

An infinitive dependent on a finite verb (see 5.1) precedes a past participle at the end of a sentence. This applies particularly to modal verbs which, when used in combination with other verbs, employ the infinitive as the past participle:

Er hat es nicht machen dürfen (compare: er hat es nicht gemacht).
 He wasn't allowed to do it (he hasn't done it).

See 35.1 (p. 74) and 35.3 (p. 76).

In passive constructions (see 40, especially 40.4d) the past participle precedes werden:

Muss der Vertrag heute noch unterschrieben werden?
 Does the contract have to be signed today?

5.5

Separable prefixes (see 36) are placed in final position:

Er steht immer um sieben Uhr auf.
 He always gets up at seven o'clock.

See 8.7b (p. 13) for clauses with 'zu'.

6

Two main clauses

6.1

In a sentence with two or more main clauses linked by the co-ordinating conjunctions aber, denn, oder, sondern, und, the finite verb (see 5.1) is always the second element in each clause:

Rudi fiel auf den Boden, und Peter lachte laut.
Rudi fell on the floor and Peter laughed loudly.

- 6.2 If the subjects of such clauses are the same, the second subject may be omitted:

Wir spielten jeden Tag Fußball oder (wir) gingen spazieren.
We played football or went for a walk every day.

- 6.3 If the second clause has another element in first position, the subject must be included:

Ich wusch mich, dann ging ich in die Küche.
I had a wash, then I went into the kitchen.

As this example shows, the 'finite verb second' rule also applies following the conjunction dann, which is not to be confused with the co-ordinating conjunction denn (see 6.1).

- ▶ See 59.5 (p. 153) for the use of commas in German clauses and 8.3 for conjunctions in subordinate clauses.

7 Direct questions and commands

- ▶ For indirect questions, see 9 (p. 14).

- 7.1 After interrogative words, such as wer, was, wie, warum, wo, wann, womit, wovon, etc., the verb retains second position:

Wo sind meine Schuhe?
Where are my shoes?

Warum hat er es dir denn nicht gesagt?
Why didn't he tell you then?

Worüber ärgert er sich so?
What's he so annoyed about? (See also 50.5.)

- ▶ For identifying and seeking information, see 73 (pp. 227–31).

- 7.2 With all other direct questions, however, the finite verb is the first element in the sentence:

Ist* er immer noch nicht angekommen?
Has he still not arrived?

- 7.3 In direct commands and suggestions/exhortations the finite verb is again always first element:

Gehen* Sie sofort nach Hause!
Go home at once!

Zieh* doch den Mantel aus!
Take your coat off.

Vergessen* wir das!
Let's just forget about it.

- ▶ See 41 (p. 105) for imperatives; for making, accepting and declining suggestions using this pattern, see 98 (p. 356).

8

Subordinate clauses

8.1

A subordinate clause is one which requires another, main, clause to make it fully meaningful. For example:

Ich habe mich geärgert, weil er so spät gekommen ist.
I was annoyed that he arrived so late.

weil er so spät gekommen ist is the subordinate clause, which cannot stand on its own without the preceding main clause ich habe mich geärgert.

A subordinate clause is separated by a comma from the main clause. (See also 10 on relative clauses.)

8.2

The finite verb (see 5.1) in subordinate clauses, is almost always in final position (but see 58.4), and main and subordinate clauses are linked by a subordinating conjunction such as dass ('that'):

Wir wussten nicht, dass er die Arbeit schon gemacht hatte.
We didn't know that he had already done the work.

The finite verb thus follows the past participle in a subordinate clause.

See 33.1b (p. 59) and 35.3 (p. 76) on past participles. For the use of subordinate clauses in functions giving reasons and purpose, see 79.1 (p. 274).

8.3

Other common subordinating conjunctions include:

als 'when' (one occasion in the past) (see 8.7b, 48.6 and 51.2 for use of 'als' in comparisons; see also 23.1c) als ob 'as if'

bevor 'before' bis 'until'

da 'since', 'because'

damit 'so that'

nachdem 'after' (see also 34.6c and 34.8)

ob 'whether'

obgleich/obwohl 'although'

ohne dass/ohne . . . zu 'without'

sobald 'as soon as' (see also 59.4)

so dass 'so that as a result'

seit/seitdem 'since' (of time)

solange 'as long as' (see also 59.4)

um . . . zu 'in order to' (see also 8.7) während 'while'

weil 'because'

wenn 'if', 'whenever'

* Refers to more than one occasion and is not restricted to the past. 'Wann' is an interrogative introducing a direct question or an indirect question (see also 7, 9).

Die Gäste waren schon alle da, als der Fotograf kam.

The guests were already there when the the photographer arrived.

Mir wird immer ganz warm, wenn ich die Treppen zu meinem Büro hinauflaufe.

I always get quite warm when I climb the stairs to my office.

Uli ging gestern Abend in die Kneipe, obwohl er kein Geld hatte.

Uli went to the pub yesterday evening even though he didn't have any money.

Ich warte hier, bis ich mit meiner Tochter gesprochen habe.

I'll wait here until I've spoken to my daughter.

Weil es heute regnet, dürfen wir nicht draußen spielen.

We cannot play outside today because it's raining.

For conjunctions in direct clauses, see 6 (p. 9).

8.4

Sometimes the conjunction dass may be omitted. On such occasions the verb does not go to the end of the clause:

Ich glaube, dass er gestern krank war.

but:

Ich glaube, er war gestern krank.

I think he was ill yesterday.

For expressing assumptions using a dass construction, see 89.1 (p. 322).

8.5

Quite often the subordinate clause comes before the main clause. Where this happens, the subordinate clause is the first idea and the verb in the main clause retains second position:

Da wir nun mitten in einer Großstadt wohnen, gehen wir selten wandern.

Since we now live in the middle of a city we rarely go walking.

Wenn er mir morgen die CD gibt, sage ich euch Bescheid.

If he gives me the CD tomorrow, I'll let you know.

Note that wenn can be omitted from the subordinate clause by putting the verb first:

Gibt er mir morgen die CD, sage ich dir Bescheid.

See also 39.8 (p. 101); see 10.4 (p. 15) on the position of relative clauses.

8.6

When modal verbs (see 35) are used in subordinate clauses in tenses other than the present and simple past, two or three verbs may be grouped together at the end of the clause. If this happens, the finite verb (usually haben but also in the future tense werden) is placed in front of the other verbs:

Ich bin sicher, dass wir uns die Reise nächstes Jahr werden leisten können.

I am sure we will be able to afford the trip next year.

Sie schreibt, dass sie die ganze Arbeit allein hat machen müssen.

She writes to say she has had to do all the work herself.

Wenn er uns wirklich hätte sehen wollen, wäre er wohl ein bißchen früher aufgestanden, oder?

If he'd really wanted to see us, he'd have got up a little earlier, don't you think?

Bist du sicher, dass die neue Regelung hat eingeführt werden müssen?

Are you sure the new regulation had to be introduced?

If lassen (35.6b) is used with another modal verb, there may (exceptionally) be three infinitives at the end of the clause:

Meinst du, dass ich die Umzugskosten von der Firma hätte bezahlen lassen können?

Do you think I could have got the firm to pay the removal costs?

See also 5.4 (p. 9) and 35.3 (p. 76).

8.7

(a) Infinitive clauses (that is, clauses containing verbs preceded by zu) are usually placed outside the main clause:

Ich habe versucht(,) das Buch zu lesen.

I've tried to read the book.

Ich habe aufgehört zu rauchen.

I have given up smoking.

NOTE

In the first example, extended infinitive clauses can but do not have to be separated from the main clause by a comma, while in short infinitive phrases such as the second the comma is always omitted.

See also 42.3f (p. 109) for verb completion by an infinitive clause with zu; see 8.3 (p. 11) for um . . . zu

(b) With separable verbs, a dependent infinitive (see 5.4) is normally placed outside the main clause; only occasionally is it found enclosed:

Er hörte auf zu singen.

or (less commonly and only with short infinitive clauses):

Er hörte zu singen auf.

He stopped singing.

NOTE

If als or wie is used in a comparison, it is usually placed after the finite verb:

Du weißt ja, dass er schneller läuft als ich.

You know he can run faster than I can.

Der Lehrer sagte, dass mein Aufsatz genauso gut war wie Manfreds.

The teacher said my essay was just as good as Manfred's.

See use of als as a subordinating conjunction, 8.3 (p. 11).

See 48.6 (p. 127) and 51.2 (p. 132) for comparisons.

9

Indirect questions

For direct questions see 7 (p. 12).

When the interrogative adverbs (wann, wo, wie, etc.), pronouns (30) (wer, wessen), adjective (44.2) (welcher) and determiner (24) (was für ein) introduce an indirect question, the finite verb (5.1) must go to the end of the clause:

Wir fragten ihn, wie lange er bleiben möchte.

We asked him how long he would like to stay

Meine Mutter möchte wissen, wer am Wochenende dorthin fährt.

My mother would like to know who's going there at the weekend.

Bitte sagen Sie mir, welche Kollegen diesen Kurs schon besucht haben.

Please tell me which colleagues have been on this course.

See also 30.4b (p. 56).

10

Relative clauses

10.1

These are subordinate clauses which relate back to a noun (25, 28), noun phrase (42.3a–b), pronoun (30) or determiner (24.1c) in the main clause. They are introduced by an appropriate form of the relative pronoun (der, die, das or plural die). The relative pronoun sends the finite verb (see 5.1) to the end of the clause, and must agree in number (29) and gender (25, 27) with the noun or phrase it refers to. (In the plural, of course, it only needs to agree in number.) The case of the relative pronoun is decided by its role in the subordinate clause (see 8):

Haben Sie den Mann gesehen, der das Paket abgeholt hat?

Did you see the man who picked up the package?

Die Frau, der ich diesen Auftrag gegeben habe, arbeitet schon lange bei uns.

The woman I gave this job to has been working for us for a long time.

See also 30.1 (p. 54). For functions using relative clauses see 73.3, (p. 231) identifying people.

10.2

As the following table shows, the relative pronouns decline like the definite articles (see 22.2) with the exception of the highlighted forms, i.e. the masculine and neuter genitive singular (dessen), the feminine genitive singular (deren), the genitive plural (deren) and the dative plural (denen):

	Singular			Plural
	Masculine	Neuter	Feminine	All genders
Nominative	der	das	die	die
Accusative	den	das	die	die
Dative	dem	dem	der	denen
Genitive	dessen	dessen	deren	deren

Dieses Unternehmen, dessen Arbeiter schon öfters gestreikt haben, hat große finanzielle Probleme.

This firm, whose workers have often been on strike, has serious financial problems.

10.3

Relative pronouns are sometimes preceded by a preposition. Here the case of the pronoun is determined by the preposition, and the finite verb is still placed at the end of the clause:

Kennst du die Mädchen, mit denen Elke spielt?

Do you know the girls Elke is playing with?

Das alte Gebäude, in dem wir arbeiten, wird gerade umgebaut.

The old building which we work in is at present being renovated.

10.4

As the last example shows, the relative clause is usually placed within the main clause immediately after the item(s) it refers to. Occasionally, however, lengthy relative clauses may follow the main clause:

See 18.2–3 (p. 24), 19.4 (p. 27) and 20.7 (p. 33) on the use of prepositions with different cases.

Sie kann nun jeden Tag mit ihrem Mann verbringen, der nach zehn schwierigen Monaten in Brasilien endlich nach Hause gekommen ist.

She can now spend every day with her husband, who has finally returned home after ten difficult months in Brazil.

See 8 (p. 11) on subordinate clauses.

10.5

When it refers back to one of the following, 'which' is conveyed by was and the finite verb is again sent to the end of the clause:

(a) A neuter indefinite:

alles 'everything'

einiges 'some things'

etwas 'something'

folgendes 'the following'

manches 'many things'

nichts 'nothing'

vieles 'lots'

weniges 'few things'

Alles, was ich hier mache, ist falsch.

Everything I do here is wrong.

Following etwas, das may also be used.

(b) The demonstrative das 'that':

Ich bin mit dem, was er uns anbietet, gar nicht zufrieden.

I'm not at all pleased with what he's offering us.

(c) An indefinite neuter adjective, e.g. das Schlimmste 'the worst thing', das Erste 'the first thing', das Neue 'the new (thing)':

Ist das wirklich das Beste, was er bieten kann?
Is that really the best he can offer?

(d) The whole of a preceding clause:

Sie behauptet, sie habe das Haus um neun Uhr verlassen, was nicht stimmen kann.
She claims to have left the house at nine, which cannot be true.

10.6

Relative clauses can also be introduced by indefinite relative pronouns that refer to the idea contained in the whole of the preceding clause (rather than a particular word). These forms are a compound of wo + preposition such as wodurch, womit, wovon. Note that when the preposition begins with a vowel, r is inserted: woraus, worin, worüber. Once again the finite verb is placed at the end of the clause:

Es waren nur acht Leute da, woraus man schließen kann, dass die Kollegen wenig Interesse an diesem Thema haben.
There were only eight people there, from which one can conclude that colleagues have little interest in the subject.

An dieser Stelle ist die Straßenbeleuchtung besonders schlecht, worüber sich schon viele beklagt haben.
The street lighting is especially bad at this spot, something many people have complained about.

11 Order of adverbials

For functions using several adverbial expressions, see e.g. 81 (p. 286).

11.1

The normal word order in a sentence with several adverbs is time–manner–place:

Sie hat gestern (TIME) in der Kirche (PLACE) gesungen.
She sang in church yesterday.

Ich fahre manchmal (TIME) mit dem Fahrrad (MANNER) zur Arbeit (PLACE).
I sometimes go to work on my bike.

NOTE

Adverbs of attitude are placed before all other adverbs:

Du fährst doch (ATTITUDE) nicht jeden Tag (TIME) mit dem Fahrrad (MANNER) zur Arbeit (PLACE), oder?
You don't go to work on your bike every day, do you?

11.2

Unless it is placed in initial position, the adverb follows all pronouns:

Meine Frau schenkte mir zu Weihnachten diesen Pulli.
My wife gave me this jumper for Christmas.

Meine Frau schenkte ihn mir zu Weihnachten.
My wife gave me it for Christmas.

11.3

Adverbs are placed between dative (also called indirect) and accusative (also known as direct) noun objects:

Er warf dem Mädchen plötzlich einen letzten Blick zu und verschwand.

He suddenly threw the girl a final glance and disappeared.

11.4

Adverbs are placed before any adjectives they qualify (as in English):

Das Klima hier ist wesentlich besser.

The climate here is much better.

12

Noun and pronoun objects

12.1

When both objects are nouns, the dative precedes the accusative:

Sie gab ihrer Freundin das Kleid.

She gave her friend the dress.

12.2

When both objects are personal pronouns, the accusative precedes the dative:

Sie gab es ihr.

She gave her it.

12.3

When one object is a noun and the other a personal pronoun, the pronoun comes first, regardless of case:

Sie gab es ihrer Freundin.

She gave it to her friend.

Sie gab ihr das Kleid.

She gave her the dress.

NOTE

When a noun in the accusative is placed in initial position for the purpose of emphasis the accusative precedes the dative, and when a dative pronoun is similarly emphasized the dative precedes the accusative:

Das Kleid* wollte sie ihrer Freundin nicht geben.

She didn't want to give her friend the dress.

Uns* hat sie es nicht gegeben.

She didn't give it to us.

See 15.1 (p. 20).

12.4

In direct questions (see 7), the object pronoun (here a dative) normally comes before the subject:

Wie hat Ihnen der Rotwein geschmeckt?

(How) did you like the red wine?

With two pronoun objects the noun subject tends to come first:

Deshalb wollte der Vorarbeiter es ihnen nicht glauben.

That's why the foreman would not believe them.

Note also that personal pronouns come before demonstrative pronouns:

1945 war uns das noch nicht klar.

In 1945 that was still not clear to us.

12.5

Nouns and pronouns are normally placed before adjectives and take the dative:

Ich bin Ihnen sehr dankbar.

I'm very grateful to you.

Du siehst deinem Vater sehr ähnlich.

You look very much like your father.

Wir waren uns der Gefahr bewusst.

We were aware of the danger.

See also 19.9 (p. 30) and 20.3 (p. 32).

13Position of nicht*13.1

If a whole clause or sentence is being negated, nicht is placed at the end or as near to the end as possible:

Solche Probleme hast du bei uns nicht.

You won't have problems like that with us.

Um halb zehn war der Zug immer noch nicht abgefahren.

At half nine the train still had not left.

When used in this way nicht is placed after objects or adverbials but before adverbs of manner (see 11 and 50):

Er ist gestern wegen des starken Verkehrs nicht früh genug angekommen.

He didn't arrive early enough yesterday because of the heavy traffic.

13.2

Otherwise, the general rule is that nicht comes immediately before the individual element which it negates:

Das Essen hat sie nicht für uns vorbereitet.

It wasn't for us that she made the meal.

Das ist doch nicht dein Schlüssel.

That's not your key.

13.3

It is important to note that nicht precedes all elements which complete the sense of the verb:

Stell die heiße Tasse nicht auf den Tisch.

Don't put the hot cup on the table.

Sie meint, ich soll mich nicht darüber ärgern.

She says I shouldn't get annoyed about it.

Er ist heute nicht nach London gefahren.

He hasn't gone to London today.

Note in the third example that if stress is placed on 'London' the implication is that he travelled somewhere other than London. More explicitly this would be:

Er ist nicht nach London gefahren, sondern nach Paris.
It's Paris he's gone to, not London.

Er ist dorthin nicht gefahren, sondern geflogen.
He didn't drive there; he flew.

13.4 The word kein is used to express nicht ein:

Das ist ja keine leichte Aufgabe.
That is not an easy task.

(The forms of kein are identical to those of ein. See 22.3.)

14 Position of reflexive pronouns

For forms see 30.2b (p. 54).

14.1 The reflexive pronouns (mich/mir, dich/dir, sich, uns, euch) are placed immediately after the finite verb (see 5.1) in a main clause:

Er schaute sich dann die Bücher an.
He then had a look at the books.

Setzt euch einen Augenblick.
Have a seat for a moment.

14.2 When some element other than the subject is in initial position in a main clause (see 5.2), the reflexive pronoun is placed after a pronoun subject, but it can be placed before or after a noun subject:

Dann schaute er sich die Bücher an.
Then he had a look at the books.

Dann schaute sich Wolfgang die Bücher an.

or:

Dann schaute Wolfgang sich die Bücher an.
Then Wolfgang had a look at the books.

14.3 In a subordinate clause (see 8) this word order still applies:

Ich wusste nicht, ob sie sich schon kennengelernt hatten.
I didn't know whether they had already met.

Ich wusste nicht, ob sich die Studenten schon kennengelernt hatten.
I didn't know whether the students had already met.

14.4 In infinitive phrases the reflexive pronoun is placed at the head of its clause:

Es ist ja ganz interessant, sich mit ihm über seine Jugendtage in Deutschland zu unterhalten.
It's really interesting talking to him about his youth in Germany.

See also 8.7 (p. 13).

15

Flexible word order and emphasis

In spite of the above rules there is more flexibility to word order in German than in English. This flexibility allows for subtle shifts of emphasis and shades of meaning.

15.1

First position

As seen in 5.2, the first element in a sentence can be one of a wide range of parts of speech.

For examples of functions where this type of flexible word order is common, see 112.2 (p. 401) 'Satisfying needs and demands'.

(a) This first element is the item which the speaker/writer wishes to explain or elaborate on:

Die Regierung hat ihre neuen Reformen nicht durchsetzen können.
The government was unable to carry through its new reforms.

(This communicates something about the government.)

See 35.3 (p. 76) for the past participle of modal verbs.

Den alten Mann hat er im Garten gefunden.
He found the old man in the garden.

(This conveys something about the old man.)

In seiner Wohnung ist die Heizung kaputt.
The heating has broken down in his apartment.

(This tells us something about his flat.)

Nach den Ferien werde ich das Haus streichen.
I shall paint the house after the holidays.

(Here we learn what will happen after the holidays.)

(b) The first element is unlikely to contain new information as it usually either refers back to something mentioned before or hints at information which is already familiar:

Abgesehen von den üblichen Schwierigkeiten an der Grenze, war die Reise ein großer Erfolg.
Apart from the usual difficulties at the border the trip was a great success.

(The new element here is the success of the trip; the difficulties are already well known.)

In fast all diesen Städten leidet die Bevölkerung unter den Folgen der Luftverschmutzung.
In almost all these towns the population is suffering from the effects of air pollution.

(The towns are familiar because they have been referred to before – what is new is the information on pollution.)

(c) The use of the dummy subject es (see 42.3g, p. 115) helps to emphasize the subject when it is this element which conveys new or significant information:

Es fehlten vierzehn Bücher.

Fourteen books were missing.

Es besteht ja die Gefahr, dass er die Wahl verlieren könnte.

There is, of course, a danger that he might lose the election.

(d) This principle of familiar or shared information coming first can result in some emphatic formulations. This is especially the case when infinitives or past participles (33.1) come first:

Sprechen will ich ihn nicht. Ich möchte ihm nur diesen Brief geben.

I don't want to talk to him. I would just like to give him this letter.

Gesehen habe ich sie nicht, nur gehört.

I didn't see her. I just heard her.

Here the speaker uses this word order to contrast what is expected or assumed (i.e. talking to him, seeing her) with what is actually the case.

See also 12.3 (p. 17).

15.2

Final position

(a) Elements can be placed at the end of a sentence for the purposes of emphasis:

Heute Abend sah mich zum Glück keiner.

Fortunately no one saw me this evening.

The resultant style is often quite formal:

Nach vielen erfolgreichen Jahren als Personalleiter der Firma tritt nun in den Ruhestand unser alter Freund und langjähriger Kollege Willi Ruttkamp.

After many successful years as the firm's Personnel Director our old friend and long-time colleague Willi Ruttkamp is now retiring.

The same emphasis can be applied to elements that complete the verb:

Nach langem Streben und Warten wurde Emil Hauptmann in seiner alten Heimatstadt endlich Bürgermeister.

After much effort and having waited for so long, Emil Hauptmann finally became mayor in his old home town.

See 28.6 (p. 50).

(b) This practice may sometimes override accepted rules such as the indirect object preceding the direct object (see 12.1):

Wir zeigten unsere Arbeit den Besuchern aus Japan.

We showed the visitors from Japan our work.

(Here the people being shown the work are considered more important than the work itself.)

In a subordinate clause this final position excludes any infinitives (33.1), finite verbs (5.1) or separable prefixes (36.2). Thus, in the following two examples, the phrases in italics are being emphasized:

Es war klar, dass auf uns etwas ganz Unangenehmes wartete.

It was clear something very unpleasant awaited us.

Ich weiß nicht, ob sie ihren Eltern dem neuen Direktor vorgestellt hat.

I don't know whether she introduced her parents to the new head teacher.

(c) The flexibility of German word order is reflected in the following. Apart from the neutral Sie hat dem neuen Direktor ihre Eltern vorgestellt, these variations are also possible: Dem neuen Direktor hat sie ihre Eltern vorgestellt, with its mild emphasis on Eltern as the people of particular interest to whom she introduced the head teacher; and Ihre Eltern hat sie dem neuen Direktor vorgestellt, with its slight emphasis on Direktor as the person of particular interest to whom she introduced her parents.

The case system

16 The cases

Although English retains a few examples of its earlier case system an English word's grammatical role is usually determined by its position in the sentence. Thus, the meaning of the sentence 'The dog bit the man' is changed entirely by swapping the position of the two nouns to give: 'The man bit the dog'.

In German, the case system is more fully developed and allows a slightly more flexible approach to subject–object word order. Thus, the first of the above sentences could be quite accurately translated as: Den Mann biss der Hund; and the second as: Den Hund biss der Mann. This use of case endings on articles, and also on nouns, pronouns and adjectives to indicate the role these words play in a sentence, depends on a system of four distinct grammatical cases (the nominative, accusative, dative and genitive). Each of these has a number of clearly defined functions.

For an overview of the various case endings see 22.2–3 (pp. 36–7) on the article, 28 (pp. 48–50) on noun declensions, 30–2 (pp. 54–8) on pronouns and 44–7 (pp. 118–25) on adjectives.

17 The nominative

This is the form in which nouns are presented in reference books and in which they need to be learnt. The nominative is used:

17.1

For the subject of the finite verb (see 5.1 on finite verbs):

Der Bundespräsident ist nach Washington geflogen.

The German president has flown to Washington.

Heute Morgen hat dein japanischer Freund angerufen.

Your Japanese friend phoned this morning.

17.2

Following the verbs bleiben, heißen, scheinen, sein, werden and, in the passive (see 40), nennen:

For relevant functions see 61.5 (p. 168).

Mein Nachbar ist ein bekannter Schriftsteller.

My neighbour is a well-known writer.

Er wurde bald ein verlässlicher Kollege.

He soon became a reliable colleague.

Sie blieb meine beste Freundin.

She remained my best friend.

Ich wurde von meinen Lehrern immer als ein Faulenzer bezeichnet.

I was always called a lazy-bones by my teachers.

17.3

For nouns and pronouns independent of a verb, as in exclamations or when addressing people:

For similar functions see 99.1c (p. 359).

Ach, der alte Schuft!

The old rascal!

Du frecher Junge!

You naughty boy!

Eine ganz schön stürmische Überfahrt, nicht?

It's a really stormy crossing, isn't it?

18

The accusative

The accusative is used:

18.1

To indicate the direct or, as it is sometimes called, accusative object:

Sie zeigte uns den großen Garten.

She showed us the large garden.

Er suchte den empfohlenen Rotwein.

He looked for the red wine that had been recommended.

See also 42.3a (p. 109).

18.2

After the prepositions bis, durch, für, gegen, ohne, um and wider:

Das machst du aber ohne mich.

You can do that on your own (lit. without me).

Wir sind durch einen langen Tunnel gefahren.

We drove through a long tunnel.

Wir liefen um den Sportplatz herum.

We ran around the sports ground.

See also 33 (p. 59), 38.1–2 (p. 90–3), 42.3e (p. 114) and 50.6 (p. 131).

18.3

After the prepositions an, auf, unter, in, neben, über, unter, vor and zwischen when motion towards the following noun or pronoun is implied. Compare this with the dative (see 19.5), which denotes position:

Sie setzte sich vor die Tür. (Compare the dative Sie saß vor der Tür.)

She sat down in front of the door. (She was sitting in front of the door.)

Sie setzten sich neben ihre Freunde. (Sie saßen neben ihren Freunden.)

They sat down next to their friends. (They were sitting next to their friends.)

Soll ich das Plakat an die Wand hängen? (Das Plakat hängt an der Wand.)

Should I hang the poster on the wall? (The poster is/hangs on the wall.)

See also 32 (p. 58), 35.2 (p. 75), 42.3e (p. 114) and 50.6 (p. 131).

NOTE

The preposition entlang follows the noun in the accusative case:

Gehen Sie die Hauptstraße entlang.

Go along the main street.

Notice the abbreviated prepositional forms:

an + das = ans

in + das = ins

auf + das = aufs

um + das = ums

Also, but usually only in spoken German: durchs, fürs, gegens, hinters, nebens, übers, unters and vors.

See 19.5 (pp. 28).

18.4

To indicate a particular point in time or a length of time in phrases without a preposition:

Letzten Samstag* war das Wetter ganz furchtbar.

The weather last Saturday was really terrible.

Einen Augenblick*, bitte.

Just a moment, please.

Wir wollten noch einen Tag* bleiben.

We wanted to stay another day.

Die ganze Woche* ging er nicht zur Arbeit.

He didn't go to work all week.

But note the exception is the genitive eines Tages 'one day':

Eines Tages* möchte ich nach Australien fahren.

I'd like to go to Australia one day.

18.5

To denote direction or distance with motion verbs:

Sie lief die Treppe hinauf.

She ran up the stairs.

Ich wohne nur einen Kilometer von der Schule entfernt.

I live only one kilometre from school.

18.6

For adverbial expressions of measurement or value:

Er wiegt schon einen Zentner.
He already weighs 100 pounds.

Trier ist eine Reise wert.
Trier is worth a visit (lit. trip).

18.7

In wishes and greetings:

Herzlichen Glückwunsch!
Many congratulations!

Guten Tag.
Hello/good day.

For further wishes see 66 (pp. 195–201).

18.8

The verbs kosten and nennen require two accusative objects:

Sie nannte ihn ihren Liebling.
She called him her darling.

Das kostet ihn eine Menge Geld.
That will cost him a lot of money.

See 42.3b (p. 110).

19

The dative

The dative case is employed widely in both spoken and written German. It is used:

19.1

To convey the indirect or dative object, expressed in English by word order (i.e. indirect object first) or by 'to':

Sie zeigte uns den neuen Rock.
She showed us the new skirt./She showed the new skirt to us.

Er hat seinen Kollegen das Problem erklärt.
He explained the problem to his colleagues.

Ich gab es meinem Bruder.
I gave it to my brother.

See 12 (pp. 17–18).

19.2

For the so-called dative of advantage, i.e. to indicate the person for whom the action of the verb is done:

Kauf mir bitte etwas zu lesen.
Please buy me something to read.

Kannst du uns die Tür aufmachen?
Can you open the door for us?

Zieh ihr bitte den Mantel an.
Help her on with her coat, please.

Note that with reflexive verbs the pronoun may be omitted:

Du hast (dir) das Gesicht noch nicht gewaschen.
You haven't washed your face yet.

19.3

For the dative of disadvantage, usually indicating something unpleasant:

Die Behörden haben ihr das Kind weggenommen.
The authorities have taken the child away from her.

Er hat mir den Geldbeutel gestohlen.
He's stolen my purse.

Die Sonne scheint ihm in die Augen.
The sun is shining in his eyes.

19.4

After certain prepositions:

See also 38.1 (pp. 90–3).

ab 'from', 'as from'

aus 'out of'

außer 'apart from'

bei 'by/near/with'

gemäß 'in accordance with'

laut 'according to'

mit 'with'

nach 'after'

seit 'since'

von 'from/of'

zu 'to'

Außer uns und unseren Freunden* wurde niemand eingeladen.
No one else was invited apart from us and our friends.

Sie liefen aus der Wohnung.
They ran out of the flat.

Ich wohne bei meinen Eltern.
I live with my parents.

Wir fahren mit dem Auto.
We travel by car.

Zu welchem Zweck* wurde dies eingeführt?
For what purpose was this introduced?

Nach dem Frühstück* putze ich mir immer die Zähne.
After breakfast I always brush my teeth.

See also 32 (p. 58), 38.2 (p. 93), 42.3e (p. 114) and 50.6 (pp. 131–2).

The prepositions entgegen 'against/contrary to' and gegenüber 'opposite' usually follow the noun, as does nach in the sense of 'according to':

Sie wohnt dem Stadion gegenüber.
She lives opposite the stadium.

Meiner Meinung nach* ist das falsch.
In my opinion that's wrong.

NOTE

In spoken German ((an)statt, dank, trotz, während and wegen are also used with the dative. They are, however, more commonly followed by the genitive (see 20.7).

19.5

After certain prepositions when rest or movement at a place is implied. This includes:

an 'on/at/by'

auf 'on' (a horizontal surface)

hinter 'behind'

in 'in'

neben 'near/next to'

über 'over/above'

unter 'under/among'

vor 'in front of'

zwischen 'between'

Das Bild hing über dem Bett. (Compare Er hängt das Bild über das Bett.)

The picture was hanging over the bed. (He hung the picture over the bed.)

Ich saß zwischen meinem Bruder und seiner Frau. (Compare Ich setzte mich zwischen meinen Bruder und seine Frau.)

I was sitting between my brother and his wife. (I sat down between my brother and his wife.)

Jeden Sonntag gehen wir auf dem Schulgelände spazieren. (Compare Ich gehe gerade mit dem Hund aufs Schulgelände.)

We go for a walk in the school grounds every Sunday. (I'm just going (in)to the school grounds with the dog.)

See also 32 (p. 58), 38.2 (p. 93), 42.3e (p. 114) and 50.6 (pp. 131–2).

Notice the abbreviated prepositional forms:

an + dem = am

bei + dem = beim

in + dem = im

von + dem = vom

zu + dem = zum

zu + der = zur

See 18.3 (p. 24).

19.6

With several verbs, the vast majority of which only ever have a dative object. The most common include:

ähneln 'to resemble' antworten 'to answer' begegnen 'to meet'
danken 'to thank'
dienen 'to serve'
drohen 'to threaten'
entsprechen 'to correspond to'
folgen 'to follow'
gehören 'to obey'
gelten 'to be meant for/aimed at' genügen 'to suffice' geschehen 'to happen to'
glauben 'to believe'
gleichen 'to be like' gratulieren 'to congratulate'
helfen 'to help'
kündigen 'to dismiss (sb.)/give (sb. their) notice' sich nähern 'to approach' nutzen/nützen 'to be of use' passen 'to fit/to suit' passieren 'to happen to'
schaden 'to harm'
trauen 'to trust'
vertrauen 'to have trust in'
vor*kommen 'to seem (to sb.)'

Ich habe ihm nicht geantwortet.
 I didn't answer him.

Die Atmosphäre kam uns ein bisschen seltsam vor.
 The atmosphere seemed a little strange to us.

Wann ist das denn Ihren Freunden passiert?
 When did it happen to your friends?

Sie näherten sich dem Gebäude.
 They approached the building.

Der Chef hat meinem ältesten Kollegen gestern gekündigt.
 The boss gave my eldest colleague his notice yesterday.

See 42.3a (p. 109).

19.7

With a number of verbs which either have an es as their subject and/or whose dative object corresponds to the subject of the equivalent English sentence. They include:

auffallen 'to strike/occur to'
einfallen 'to occur to'
fehlen 'to be missing' gefallen 'to like' (for liking sb. + this construction see 104.2a) gehören 'to belong to'
gelingen 'to succeed'
Leid tun 'to be sorry' (for functions using 'Leid tun' see 65.1, 91.2b and 93.4) schmecken 'to taste (good)' wehtun 'to hurt'

Es tut uns Leid, dass du nicht kommen kannst.
 We're sorry that you cannot come.

Ist es euch gelungen, das Problem zu lösen?
 Did you succeed in solving the problem?

Das Stück hat ihr gar nicht gefallen.
 She didn't like the play at all.

Mir* tut der Arm weh.
 My arm is hurting.

Hat den Kindern der Kuchen geschmeckt?
 Did the children like the cake?

See 42.3h (p. 115).

19.8

With verbs prefixed by bei-, ent-, entgegen-, nach-, wider- or zu-:

Der Dieb lief uns entgegen.
 The thief ran towards us.

Hast du schon wieder dem Lehrer widersprochen?
 Did you contradict the teacher again?

Sie ist ihrer Mutter nachgelaufen.
 She's run after her mother.

Ich stimme dem Plan zu.
 I agree with/to the plan.

Er ist den Grünen beigetreten.
 He's joined the Green Party.

See 36.2 (p. 84) on inseparable and 57.2 (p. 143) on separable prefixes.

19.9

With a large number of adjectives combined with sein or werden. To denote an excess or a sufficiency of a certain quality, appropriate adjectives may be preceded by zu or genug respectively:

Ihm* war immer noch schlecht/übel/unwohl.
 He was still feeling bad/ill/unwell.

Dem Alten* wurde plötzlich schwindlig.
 The old man suddenly began to feel dizzy.

Das wird uns ja ganz nützlich/schädlich sein.
 That will be quite useful/harmful to us.

Es ist mir ja gleich/egal.
 I don't care about it.

Ich bin Ihrem Kollegen sehr dankbar.
 I am very grateful to your colleague.

Das britische Klima ist uns zu unzuverlässig.
 The British climate is too unreliable for us.

Den Kindern ist es zu heiß/kalt.
It is too hot/cold for the children.

Der Wein ist meinem Mann zu süß.
The wine is too sweet for my husband's taste.

Ist Ihnen das Essen noch warm genug?
Is the food still warm enough for you?

See also 12.5 (p. 18), 42.3j (p. 116) and 42.3k (p. 117); for adjectives with the genitive see 20.3 (p. 32).

The dative with zu and genug is often replaced by für + accusative:

Das Essen ist für mich zu salzig.
The food is too salty for me.

20

The genitive

The genitive case is nowadays less common in spoken German, where the use of prepositions tends to be preferred. Thus, 'Mr Zeiler's old car' would more likely be das alte Auto von Herrn Zeiler than das alte Auto des Herrn Zeiler. In the written language, however, the genitive is still very widely used. The normal position for the genitive in modern German is after the noun it relates to. It is used:

20.1

To denote possession:

Die neue Wohnung meiner Schwester ist ganz schön.
My sister's new flat is really nice.

Kennst du Helmut's Freundin? (or die Freundin von Helmut)
Do you know Helmut's girlfriend?

Wart ihr schon in Herrn Schmidt's Büro? (or im Büro von Herrn Schmidt)
Have you been in Mr Schmidt's office?

Ich fahre mit Frau Schmidt's Auto. (or dem Auto von Frau Schmidt)
I'll go in Mrs/Ms Schmidt's car.

Das Schloss der Habsburger finde ich hässlich.
I think the Habsburgs' castle is ugly.

Ich liebe die Schlösser Frankreichs/Frankreichs Schlösser.
I love French castles.

20.2

After collective nouns or nouns denoting proportion:

Er hat eine große Sammlung deutscher Bierdeckel.
He has a large collection of German beer mats.

Ich unterrichte eine Klasse vierzehnjähriger Jungen.
I teach a class of fourteen-year-old boys.

Die Hälfte des Geldes ist schon weg.
Half the money has already gone.

The preposition von tends to be used more frequently in spoken German to convey quantity (see also 21.5):

eine große Anzahl von Arbeitslosen a large number of unemployed

20.3

With some adjectives, the most common of which are:

bewusst 'aware of'
fähig 'capable of'
gewiss 'certain of'
schuldig 'guilty of'
sicher 'assured/sure of'
voll 'full of'

Unser Projekt ist nun des Erfolges sicher.
Our project is now assured of success.

Ich bin mir des Problems bewusst.
I am aware of the problem.

Er ist des Mordes einfach nicht fähig.
He's simply not capable of murder.

See 19.9 (p. 30) for adjectives with the dative; also 12.5 (p. 18) on word order.

20.4

With a small number of verbs. The more common include:

an*klagen (with accusative and genitive object) 'to accuse (someone) of' bedürfen 'to be in need of' gedenken 'to remember/commemorate' sich bedienen 'to make use of'
sich entsinnen 'to remember' sich erfreuen 'to enjoy' sich rühmen 'to boast of'
sich schämen 'to be ashamed of' sich vergewissern 'to make sure about/of' versichern (with accusative and genitive object) 'to assure'

Wir bedürfen Ihrer Unterstützung.
We need your support.

Ich schämte mich meiner Feigheit.
I was ashamed of my cowardice.

Sie sollten sich der finanziellen Lage der Firma vergewissern.
You ought to ascertain the firm's financial position.

See 42.3a (p. 109).

20.5

Following the verb sein in a number of set expressions:

Wir sind der Meinung/der Auffassung, dass . . .
We are of the opinion that . . .

Er ist der Ansicht, dass wir es falsch gemacht haben.
He is of the opinion that we have done it wrong.

Sie war schlechter/guter Laune.
She was in a bad/good mood.

For functions using these expressions, see 107 (pp. 373–5) ‘Voicing opinion’.

20.6

In set adverbial expressions:

meines Wissens ‘to my knowledge’ meines Erachtens ‘in my judgement/opinion’ letzten Endes ‘after all’ allen Ernstes ‘in all seriousness’ eines Tages ‘one day’

20.7

After the following prepositions:

angesichts ‘in view of’
(an)statt ‘instead of’
anstelle ‘in place of’
aufgrund ‘on the strength of’
außerhalb ‘outside’ beiderseits ‘on both sides of’
diesseits ‘this side of’ infolge ‘as a consequence of’ inmitten ‘in the middle of’
innerhalb ‘within’
jenseits ‘on the far side of’
oberhalb ‘above’ trotz ‘in spite of’
um . . . willen ‘for the sake of’
unterhalb ‘beneath’ unweit ‘not far from’
während ‘during’
wegen ‘because of’

(An)statt, dank, trotz, während and wegen can also be used with the dative, especially in spoken German.

In the spoken language, außerhalb, innerhalb, oberhalb, unterhalb and unweit are very often replaced by another preposition or used with von and the dative.

Jenseits is nowadays normally replaced by hinter + dative.

See 19.5 (p. 28).

21

Apposition

A noun placed after another in order to expand on or qualify its meaning is in apposition to the first noun. In German, the noun in apposition is always in the same case as the one it refers to:

21.1

Das ist mein Freund, der Polizist.
That’s my friend the policeman.

Haben Sie schon meinen Freund, den Polizisten, kennengelernt?
Have you met my friend the policeman?

Könnten Sie bitte meinem Freund, dem Polizisten, helfen?
Could you please help my friend the policeman?

Das ist die Wohnung meines Freundes, des Polizisten.
That is the flat of my friend the policeman.

Note that the noun in apposition is separated from the rest of the sentence by commas. However, titles of books, films, plays, etc. which are in apposition to a noun that describes them do not have the same case as the latter and are not separated by commas:

Kennst du den Film ‘Der Mann im Schatten’?
Do you know the film ‘The Man in the Shadow’?

Das kommt im Stück ‘Die Drei Schwestern’ mehrmals vor.
That occurs several times in the play ‘The Three Sisters’:

▶ See 59.5a (p. 153).

21.2 Apposition also applies in noun phrases denoting measurements and quantities, where English uses ‘of’:

▶ See also under functions, 63 (pp. 180–8) ‘Eating and drinking’.

Ein Glas kalte Milch, bitte.
A glass of cold milk, please.

Eine Tasse indischen Tee, bitte.
A cup of Indian tea, please.

In these two examples Milch and Tee are in the accusative to agree with Glas and Tasse, respectively, which are the objects of an (implied) verb such as ‘Give (me)’ or ‘I would like’.

Haben Sie meine Tasche mit den zwei Dosen grünen Bohnen gesehen?
Have you seen my bag with the two tins of green beans?

(Here, Bohnen is in the dative plural to agree with dative plural Dosen.)

▶ See 18 (pp. 24–6) and 19 (pp. 26–31).

21.3 Following a numeral or some other expression of amount, masculine and neuter nouns denoting measurement, quantity or value are only used in the singular:

Bringen Sie uns zwei Glas Bier, bitte.
Bring us two beers, please (lit. two glasses of beer).

Bei 35 Grad Hitze bleibe ich in der Wohnung.
When it’s 35 degrees (lit. of heat), I stay indoors.

Feminine nouns, however, use plural forms:

Sechs Flaschen Weißwein.
Six bottles of white wine.

but:

Das kostete damals sechzehn Mark.
That cost sixteen marks in those days.

See 25 (pp. 43–6).

21.4

With place names, German has no equivalent of English 'of':

Wir studieren an der Universität Marburg.
We're studying at the University of Marburg.

Kennen Sie die Stadt Donaueschingen?
Do you know the town of Donaueschingen?

21.5

When the nouns das Dutzend 'dozen', das Hundert 'hundred', die Million 'million' and die Milliarde 'billion' are preceded by another numeral, the noun they relate to is in apposition:

Wir hatten damals fast drei Millionen Arbeitslose.
At that time we had nearly three million unemployed.

(Here, Arbeitslose is accusative to agree with Millionen.)

See also 28.5 (p. 50).

Er ist mit zwei Dutzend spanischen Apfelsinen nach Hause gekommen.
He came home with two dozen Spanish oranges.

(Apfelsinen is dative plural to agree with zwei Dutzend.)

But if these numerals do not have a preceding numeral, von is used:

Tausende von Leuten kamen zur Kundgebung.
Thousands of people came to the demonstration.

Wir haben Millionen von Ameisen gesehen.
We saw millions of ants.

See also 20.2 (p. 31).

21.6

Apposition is also seen with als 'than' and wie 'as' in comparisons:

Er ist genauso alt wie ich.
He's just as old as I am.

Der läuft doch viel schneller als du.
He can run a lot faster than you.

Er ist viel fleißiger als mein Bruder.
He's a lot more hard-working than my brother.

Sie kennt ihn länger als mich.
She's known him longer than she has me.

See also 48.6 (p. 127) and 51.2 (p. 132); for use of als as a conjunction, see 8.3 (p. 11) and 23.1c (p. 38).

IV

Nouns

22

The article

22.1

Just as English employs two different articles, namely ‘the’ and ‘a’, German also distinguishes between a definite and indefinite article. The German case system (16–21) means that these articles, along with nouns (28) and adjectives (43–49), must be in the appropriate case.

22.2

The definite article ‘the’ is declined as follows:

	Singular			Plural
	Masculine	Neuter	Feminine	All genders
Nominative	der	das	die	die
Accusative	den	das	die	die
Dative	dem	dem	der	den
Genitive	des	des	der	der

See 17–21 (pp. 23–35) for examples of the use of the articles in the various cases.

Below is the same table but with boxes drawn to highlight some important patterns. Note, for example, how:

- i) the accusative case is different from the nominative form only in the masculine singular;
- ii) masculine and neuter forms are the same in the dative and genitive singular;
- iii) the feminine singular forms and the plural forms (all genders) are the same, except in the dative.

	Singular			Plural
	Masculine	Neuter	Feminine	All genders
Nominative	der	das	die	die
Accusative	den	das	die	die
Dative	dem	dem	der	den
Genitive	des	des	der	der

See also 24.1 (p. 42).

22.3

The indefinite article ‘ein’ is declined as follows:

	Masculine	Neuter	Feminine
Nominative	ein	ein	eine
Accusative	einen	ein	eine
Dative	einem	einem	einer
Genitive	eines	eines	einer

Although the indefinite article has no plural form, the negative form kein ‘no’, ‘not any’, does:

Nom. keine Acc. keine Dat. keinen Gen. keiner

Below is the same table with boxes drawn to highlight the important patterns. Note the difference between this table and the table in 22.2: the indefinite article carries no ending in the masculine and neuter nominative and the neuter accusative:

	Singular			Plural
	Masculine	Neuter	Feminine	All genders
Nominative	(k) ein	(k) ein	(k) eine	keine
Accusative	(k) einen	(k) ein	(k) eine	keine
Dative	(k) einem	(k) einem	(k) einer	keinen
Genitive	(k) eines	(k) eines	(k) einer	keiner

▶ See also 13.4 (p. 19), 24.2 (p. 43), 30.3 (p. 55) and 45 (p. 120).

23

Use of the articles

German and English use articles in similar ways. Note, however, the following exceptions:

23.1

No article is used in German:

(a) With instruments

Er spielt Gitarre.
He plays the guitar (i.e. any guitar).

▶ For relevant functions see 74.5a (p. 234).

(b) With professions, religions and nationalities following the verbs sein, werden and bleiben unless an adjective is inserted:

Sie ist Ingenieurin.
She’s an engineer.

Er ist Katholik.
He’s a Catholic.

Sie ist Engländerin.
She is English.

but:

Er war ein guter Arzt.
He was a good doctor.

The article is also used if one is referring to a specific person and does not wish to emphasize particularly the person's job:

Das ist die Lehrerin meines Sohns.
That's my son's teacher.

(c) Following als in the sense of 'as a':

Als Weihnachtsgeschenk* hat er mir ein Kleid gekauft.
He bought me a dress as a Christmas present/for Christmas.

(d) In certain idiomatic expressions:

Wir haben großen Hunger.
We are very hungry.

Gestern war er sehr guter Laune.
He was in a very good mood yesterday.

See 20.5 (p. 32).

Wir haben gerade Besuch.
We have visitors at the moment.

Sie hat Kopfschmerzen.
She's got a headache.

Tatsache* ist, dass die Firma große Gewinne erzielt hat.
It's a fact that the firm has achieved big profits.

Schweren Herzens* ist er nach Hause gegangen.
He went home with a heavy heart.

See 20.6 (p. 33); for talking about professions, see 74.7 (p. 235).

(e) Where English uses the indefinite determiners 'some' or 'any':

Wir hatten Schwierigkeiten.
We had (some) difficulties.

Haben Sie Brot?
Have you got (any) bread?

Hast du Milch gekauft?
Did you buy (any) milk?

Note, however, that in the negative kein is used:

Ich esse keinen Salat.
I don't eat salad.

See 22.3 (p. 37).

23.2

Articles are used in German but not in English in the following expressions:

- (a) With periods of time and with meals, especially after prepositions:

Es ist im August / am Dienstag / in der Nacht passiert.
It happened in August/on Tuesday/at night.

Der Frühling* ist immer schön.
Spring is always nice.

Das Abendessen* ist fertig.
Tea/supper is ready.

Ich werde vor dem Mittagessen / nach dem Frühstück keine Zeit haben.
I will not have time before lunch/after breakfast.

- (b) Before many abstract nouns denoting specific and familiar concepts, phenomena, movements or interests:

Das Leben* ist hart.
Life is hard.

Die Zeit* vergeht so schnell.
Time passes so quickly.

Sie liest gerade ein Buch über den Faschismus.
She's reading a book on fascism at the moment.

Ich lebe für die Musik.
I live for music.

- (c) With infinitives used as nouns (see 28.6):

Das Laufen* ist sein größter Zeitvertreib.
His favourite pastime is running.

Er hat das Rauchen aufgegeben.
He's given up smoking.

- (d) With the feminine or plural names of countries:

Wir fahren in die Türkei.
We travelled to Turkey.

die Hauptstadt der Niederlande*.
the capital of Holland.

With masculine country names the article is optional. It is, however, more common to use it:

Er wohnt in dem Irak (but also in Irak).
He lives in Iraq.

- (e) With parts of the body and clothes (see 37.3–4):

Er hat sich am Kopf verletzt.
He's injured his head.

Sie machte die Augen zu.
She closed her eyes.

Zieh den Mantel aus.
Take your coat off.

Sie zog ihrem Sohn das Hemd aus.
She took her son's shirt off him.

▶ See 19.2 (p. 26).

Where there is a qualifying adjective, however, the possessive adjective is used, as in English:

Er hob seinen verletzten Arm.
He raised his injured arm.

(f) When giving an amount or a price:

hundert Kilometer die Stunde
a hundred kilometres an hour

▶ See 59.1f (p. 150).

sechzehn Euro das Kilo sixteen euros per/a kilo

zehn Euro das Stück
ten euros each

(g) With the names of performers or famous people, and with personal names in spoken German:

Der Beckenbauer* war ein begabter Spieler.
Beckenbauer was a gifted player.

Die Dietrich* war damals unsere beste Schauspielerin.
Dietrich was our best actress in those days.

Kennst du den Heinrich?
Do you know Heinrich?

▶ See 58.3 (p. 147).

(h) Before the names of countries, towns, etc. when they are preceded by an adjective:

das heutige* Russland present-day Russia

das schöne* Schottland beautiful Scotland

das alte* Freiburg old Freiburg

▶ See 25.6d (p. 46).

(i) With geographical names for features such as lakes and mountains, as well as with the names of planets:

am Bodensee
by/near Lake Constance östlich des Genfer Sees to the east of Lake Geneva auf dem Mars on Mars

(j) With the names of streets and buildings:

Fahren Sie die Beethovenallee entlang.
Drive along Beethoven Avenue.

Er ging über den Potsdamer Platz.
He crossed Potsdam Square.

In addresses, however, the article is omitted:

Wir wohnen Bahnhofstraße 57.
We live at 57 Bahnhofstraße.

But note that some streets include the article in the name: An den Fichten 2.

(k) With certain medical conditions:

Er leidet an einer Lungenentzündung.
He suffers from pneumonia.

See 38 (pp. 90–3).

(l) In several common phrases:

aus dem Bett ‘out of bed’ im Allgemeinen ‘in general’

See 59.7 (p. 155).

in der Kirche ‘in church’
in der Schule ‘at school’
in der Stadt ‘in town’
in der Tat ‘in (actual) fact’ mit dem Bus, Zug, usw. ‘by bus, train, etc.’
mit der Post ‘by post’ zur Kirche ‘to church’
zur Schule ‘to school’

Determiners that decline like the definite article will be referred to here as ‘der words’; and those which decline like the indefinite article as ‘ein words’ (see also section 46).

24.1

Der words

See 22.2 (p. 36).

(a) dieser 'this', jeder 'each/every' and jener 'that' can be used either as pronouns (see 31.1) or determiners.

When the determiners dieser and jener are used together, dieser denotes relative proximity and jener relative remoteness:

Dieses Buch ist interessanter als jenes.

This book is more interesting than that one.

Where this contrast is not important, dieser often corresponds to English 'that':

Dieses Auto würde ich nicht kaufen.

I wouldn't buy that car.

Another meaning is 'former' (jener) and 'latter' (dieser):

Karl und Hans arbeiten schon lange hier. Dieser ist 56 Jahre alt, jener 58.

Karl and Hans have worked here a long time. The latter is 56, the former 58.

(b) welcher, mancher, solcher ('which/what', 'many', 'such') are all declined as der words:

Aus welcher Stadt kommen Sie?

Which/What town are you from?

Manche Studenten haben finanzielle Probleme.

Many students have financial problems.

In solchen Fällen muss man vorsichtig sein.

One has to be careful in such cases.

(c) derjenige 'that one' is written as one word but both parts decline. It is usually linked to a relative clause (see 10):

Wir suchen diejenigen in der Firma, die Interesse an einer zusätzlichen Qualifikation haben.

We are looking for people in the company interested in gaining an additional qualification.

Kennst du denjenigen, der gestern den Fritz abgeholt hat?

Do you know that man who picked Fritz up yesterday?

(d) derselbe 'same' is again declined like two words but written as one:

Wir machen immer dieselben Aufgaben.

We are always doing the same jobs.

With a shortened preposition (see 18.3, 19.5) the two constituent parts are written separately:

am selben Ort/im selben Gebäude at the same place/in the same building

See also 44 (pp. 118–20).

24.2

Ein words

See 22.3 (p. 37) and 30.3 (p. 55).

(a) kein, irgendein 'not a/not any', 'any'

The negative kein is an ein word, as is irgendein:

Ich habe keine Lust, ins Kino zu gehen.

I don't want to go to the cinema.

Wir wollen doch nicht irgendein Auto kaufen.

We don't want to buy any (old) car.

Note the use of was für ein 'what sort of'. The case of ein here depends on the phrase's function in the sentence:

Was für ein Mensch war er?

What sort of a person was he?

In was für einem Büro arbeitet ihr?

What sort of an office do you work in?

Was für einen Wagen hast du gekauft?

What sort of car have you bought?

(b) beide 'both', irgendwelche 'some/any' (the plural of irgendein) and sämtliche 'all' are used only in the plural.

Sie kennt beide Schwestern.

She knows both sisters.

Hast du hier irgendwelche Freunde?

Do you have any friends here?

Sie haben sämtliche Brötchen gekauft.

They bought all the bread rolls.

For the use of alle see 44.2–4 (pp. 119–20).

(c) The undeclined solch is used before ein (usually only in fairly formal written style):

Solch einen Film sieht man nicht jeden Tag.

It is not every day that one sees a film like that.

Alternatively ein can come first, in which case the declined form solcher is used:

Einen solchen Film sieht man nicht jeden Tag.

The undeclined manch is rarely found in modern German.

See also 58 (pp. 146–8).

25

Gender

German has three genders: masculine, feminine and neuter. In most instances grammatical gender is not based on natural gender. Although there are a few rules which can help predict the gender of a noun, the following can only ever serve as guidelines; many exceptions will be found. The safest approach to gender is always to learn each noun with the appropriate definite article (der, die or das).

NOUNS

25.1

Most nouns with the following endings are masculine:

-ant	der Lieferant 'distributor'
-ast	der Palast 'palace'
-ent	der Dirigent 'musical conductor'
-er	der Sprecher 'speaker'
-ich	der Teppich 'carpet'
-ig	der König 'king'
-ing	der Ring 'ring'
-ismus	der Kapitalismus 'capitalism'
-ist	der Komponist 'composer'
-ling	der Häftling 'prisoner'
-or	der Motor 'engine'
-us	der Modus 'mode'

See also 54.3 (p. 137).

25.2

The following groups of nouns are mostly masculine:

(a) Days of the week, months, seasons:

der Tag 'day', der Mittwoch 'Wednesday', der November 'November', der Frühling (but: das Frühjahr 'spring')

(b) Points of the compass and vocabulary relating to weather:

der Westen 'west', der Nordosten 'north east', der Wind 'wind', der Nebel 'fog', der Schnee 'snow', der Regen 'rain'

(c) Male persons and male animals:

der Bruder 'brother', der Ingenieur 'engineer', der Hund 'dog', der Löwe 'lion'

(d) Makes of car:

der Mercedes, der Opel, der VW, der BMW

(e) Rocks and minerals:

der Granit 'granite', der Ton 'clay', der Diamant 'diamond' (but: die Kohle 'coal')

(f) Alcoholic drinks:

der Schnaps, der Wein 'wine', der Whisky (but note das Bier 'beer')

25.3

The following endings indicate the noun is feminine:

-age	die Garage 'garage'
-anz	die Allianz 'alliance'
-ei	die Druckerei 'printing works'
-enz	die Existenz 'existence'
-ette	die Diskette 'disk/diskette'
-heit	die Gesundheit 'health'
-ie	die Melodie 'melody'
-ik	die Kritik 'criticism'

-in	die Lehrerin 'teacher'
-ion	die Fusion 'merger/fusion'
-keit	die Schwierigkeit 'difficulty'
-schaft	die Freundschaft 'friendship'
-sis	die Skepsis 'scepticism'
-tät	die Sexualität 'sexuality'
-ung	die Forschung 'research'
-ur	die Figur 'figure'

See also 54.3 (p. 137).

25.4

The following groups of nouns are mostly feminine:

- (a) Female persons and animals (but see also 25.5 for Mädchen and Fräulein):

die Frau 'woman', die Mutter 'mother', die Katze 'cat', die Gans 'goose'

- (b) Most trees and flowers:

die Eiche 'oak', die Buche 'beech', die Tulpe 'tulip', die Narzisse 'narcissus' (but: der Ahorn 'maple')

- (c) Nouns derived from measurement or size adjectives:

die Ferne 'distance', die Länge 'length', die Höhe 'height', die Stärke 'strength'

- (d) Numerals used as nouns:

die Fünf 'five', die Hundert 'hundred', die Million 'million', die Milliarde 'billion'

See 59.1f (p. 150).

- (e) Motor-cycles, ships and aeroplanes:

die Harley-Davidson, die Titanic, die Concorde, die Boeing

25.5

Most nouns with the following endings are neuter:

-at	das Quadrat 'square'
-chen	das Mädchen 'girl'
-ett	das Lazarett 'military hospital'
-icht	das Gewicht 'weight'
-il	das Ventil 'valve/outlet'
-it	das Dynamit 'dynamite'
-ium	das Laboratorium 'laboratory'
-lein	das Fräulein 'young woman/miss'
-ma	das Schema 'scheme/plan'
-ment	das Experiment 'experiment'
-sal	das Schicksal 'fate'
-tel	das Viertel 'area of a town/quarter'
-tum	das Beamtentum 'civil servants'
-um	das Datum 'date'

See also 54.3 (p. 137).

The vast majority of collective nouns with the prefix Ge- are also neuter:

das Gebäck 'cake and biscuits', das Gepäck 'luggage', das Gemüse 'vegetables'

25.6

The following groups of nouns are neuter:

(a) Young persons and animals:

das Baby 'baby', das Kind 'child', das Küken 'chick', das Lamm 'lamb'

(b) Adjectives, pronouns, conjunctions, prepositions and infinitives used as nouns (see also 28.5):

Das Grün des Meeres.
The green of the sea.

Gern nehme ich das Du an.
I'm happy for us to call each other 'du'.

For further explanations about 'du' and 'Sie', see 60.1c (p. 160).

Ich höre nur das Wenn und Aber.
All I hear are ifs and buts.

Ich habe mein Gegenüber besucht.
I visited my opposite number.

Das Laufen* macht fit.
Running gets you fit.

(c) Cafés, restaurants, hotels and cinemas:

das Kempinski, das Kaiser Wilhelm, das Savoy, das Odeon

(d) Names of towns, countries and continents:

das alte Dresden 'old Dresden', das heutige Griechenland 'present-day Greece', das neue Europa 'the new Europe' (see 23.2h)

(e) Letters of the alphabet:

das ABC, mit kleinem 'p' 'with a small "p"', ein großes Ypsilon 'a capital "y"'

(f) Chemical elements and metals:

das Blei 'lead', das Gold 'gold', das Kupfer 'copper', das Silber 'silver'

(g) Scientific units and measurements:

das Atom 'atom', das Elektron 'electron', das Neutron 'neutron', das Pfund 'pound', das Gramm 'gram', das Kilo 'kilogram'

but:

das/der Meter 'metre'; das/der Liter 'litre', and only der Kilometer 'kilometer', der Quadratkilometer 'square meter', der Kubikmeter 'cubic meter'

26 Compound nouns and acronyms

26.1 The last part of a compound noun decides the overall gender and number:

der Kupferstich 'copper engraving' is made up of das Kupfer and der Stich.

die Studentenkneipe 'student pub' is made up of der Student and die Kneipe.

das Kopfsteinpflaster 'cobblestones' is made up of der Kopfstein and das Pflaster.

die Busreise 'bus trip' is made up of der Bus and die Reise.

See also 54.1 (p. 135).

26.2 Acronyms take their gender from the principal noun:

der DGB 'Federation of German Trade Unions': der Deutsche Gewerkschaftsbund

die SPD 'Social Democratic Party': die Sozialdemokratische Partei Deutschlands

das BAFöG 'National Law on Support for Education and Training':

das Bundesausbildungsförderungsgesetz

See also 29.7b (p. 52).

27 Gender variations

27.1 A few nouns have alternative genders, which frequently depend on regional usage:

in Germany and Austria das Foto, das Radio and das Taxi, but in Switzerland die Foto, der Radio and der Taxi

in Germany and Switzerland der Keks 'biscuit', but in Austria das Keks

27.2 There are several nouns which are identical in form in the singular but whose gender depends on their meaning. These often have different plural forms:

der Band, plural die Bände 'volume/book'

but: das Band, plural die Bänder 'ribbon/tape' and: das Band, plural die Bande 'bonds' (between people) also: die Band, plural die Bands 'band/pop group' der Leiter, same plural, 'leader'

but: die Leiter, plural die Leitern 'ladder'

der Pony, no plural, 'fringe (of hair)'

but: das Pony, plural die Ponys 'pony' der See, plural die Seen 'lake'

but: die See, no plural, 'sea'

See also 29.9 (p. 53).

28

Noun declensions

28.1

General rules for noun declension are that:

- (a) Feminine nouns do not change their ending in the singular:

die Tat (nom.), die Tat (acc.), der Tat (dat.), der Tat (gen.)

- (b) Masculine and neuter nouns add -(e)s in the genitive singular (see also 28.1e):

des Tag(e)s, des Flughafens, des Baums

- (c) All nouns add -n in the dative plural if the nominative plural does not already end in -n or -s:

auf den Tischen 'on the tables'

mit den Katzen 'with the cats' but: bei Lehmanns 'at the Lehmanns' in den Autos 'in the cars'

See also 29 (pp. 50–3).

- (d) The basic, regular pattern of noun declension (sometimes called the 'strong' declension) is thus as follows:

	Masculine	Neuter	Feminine
Singular
Nominative	der Ring	das Brot	die Frau
Accusative	den Ring	das Brot	die Frau
Dative	dem Ring	dem Brot	der Frau
Genitive	des Rings	des Brotes	der Frau
Plural
Nominative	die Ringe	die Brote	die Frauen
Accusative	die Ringe	die Brote	die Frauen
Dative	den Ringen	den Broten	den Frauen
Genitive	der Ringe	der Brote	der Frauen

- (e) Nowadays the -es genitive ending is usually used only in monosyllabic nouns where pronunciation might otherwise prove difficult (des Jahres), but it must be used in nouns or syllables ending in:

-s (des Hauses)

-sch (des Tisches)

-ß/ss (des Fußes, des Flusses)

-st (des Dienstes)

-z (des Schmerzes)

With neuter nouns ending in -is the genitive singular is always -isses (des Ergebnisses).

- (f) The use of the dative singular ending -e with some masculine and neuter nouns is very old-fashioned and is rarely found except in certain set phrases:

nach Hause 'home'
 zu Hause 'at home'
 im Laufe 'in the course of' im Grunde genommen 'basically'
 in gewissem Maße 'to a certain degree'

28.2

Weak declension

(a) The term 'weak' denotes masculine nouns which add -n or -en to the nominative singular form in the accusative, dative and genitive singular, and in the plural. Weak nouns need to be learnt when they are first met (see 28.4):

	Singular	Plural
Nominative	der Mensch	die Menschen
Accusative	den Menschen	die Menschen
Dative	dem Menschen	den Menschen
Genitive	des Menschen	der Menschen

There are relatively few weak nouns; they include mostly nouns denoting living beings:

der Affe 'monkey'
der Chirurg 'surgeon'
der Franzose 'Frenchman' der Junge 'boy'
der Neffe 'nephew'
der Oberst 'colonel'
der Spatz 'sparrow'

(b) A small number of weak nouns have an -ns ending in the genitive singular. The most common are:

der Buchstabe 'letter (of alphabet)' der Friede 'peace'
der Funke 'spark'
der Gedanke 'thought'
der Glaube 'faith'
der Name 'name' der Wille 'will'

NOTE

The neuter noun das Herz (heart) has a weak ending in all forms except the accusative singular (das Herz) and also has genitive singular des Herzens.

28.3

Variations

A fairly small number of nouns feature the normal masculine/neuter genitive singular in -(e)s but the weak plural in -n. For example:

das Bett, des Bett(e)s, die Betten der Staat, des Staat(e)s, die Staaten der See, des Sees, die Seen

See also 29 (pp. 50–3).

28.4

Like strong verbs (see 33) and noun gender (see 27), irregularities in noun declension need to be learnt when the noun is first met, since there is no way of knowing just by looking at the noun whether it is of weak or regular declension. The three key elements to learn are a noun's nominative singular, its genitive singular and its nominative plural. These, along with the gender, will usually be given in any good dictionary: e.g. Tisch, m., -es, -e indicates that the noun is masculine, that the genitive form is des Tisches and that the plural is die Tische.

28.5

Adjectival declension

A large number of adjectives can serve as nouns when spelt with an initial capital letter. They always take the appropriate adjective endings following the definite article and the determiners (see 22, 24, 44), the indefinite article (see 22, 45) or the adjective without any preceding defining word (see 46):

Sehen Sie den Alten in der Ecke?

Do you see the old man in the corner?

Sie spricht mit einer der Kranken.

She's talking to one of the (female) patients.

Er wohnt bei einer Deutschen.

He lives with a German (woman).

Arbeitslose haben in dieser Stadt wenig Chancen.

Unemployed people don't have much of a chance in this town.

Er ist Beamter geworden.

He's become a civil servant.

See also 10.5c (p. 15), 54.3 (p. 137) and 59.1c (p. 149).

28.6

Infinitives as nouns

The infinitive of almost any verb can be given an initial capital letter and turned into a regular (i.e. strong) neuter noun:

das Essen 'food/meal', das Lesen 'reading', das Rauchen 'smoking', das Schwimmen 'swimming'

See also 54.4 (p. 138).

29

Plurals

29.1

There are several different ways to form noun plurals in German. It is very difficult to predict plural endings with complete certainty and therefore, once again, learners are strongly advised to learn the plural form when they first encounter the noun.

There are five clear types of plural ending, some of which are typical of certain genders or suffixes. These are listed below:

29.2

Plural in -n or -en

A very large number of nouns fall into this category, including:

Plurals

(a) Feminine nouns ending in:

-e	die Schulen 'schools'
-ei	die Metzgereien 'butchers' shops'
-heit	die Weisheiten 'wise sayings'
-in	describing job titles; a second n is inserted before the plural ending: die Ärztinnen 'doctors'
-keit	die Schwierigkeiten 'difficulties'
-schaft	die Errungenschaften 'achievements'
-ung	die Empfindungen 'feelings'

(b) All nouns ending in:

-ant	die Diamanten 'diamonds'
-ent	die Präsidenten 'presidents'
-enz	die Referenzen 'references'
-ie	die Batterien 'batteries'
-ik	die Kritiken 'criticisms'
-ion	die Informationen 'information'
-ist	die Sozialisten 'socialists'
-oge	die Biologen 'biologists'
-tät	die Universitäten 'universities'

See also 54.3 (p. 137).

29.3

Plural in -e or umlaut + -e

(a) The -e ending is taken by a large number of masculine and neuter monosyllabic nouns:

der Blick, die Blicke 'looks' der Film, die Filme 'films' der Hund, die Hunde 'dogs' der Schuh, die Schuhe 'shoes'
der Tag, die Tage 'days'

(b) In many such nouns an umlaut appears on the stressed vowel: Stühle 'chairs', Pläne 'plans'. These plural forms simply have to be learnt when the noun is first met. The umlaut + -e ending is found in a number of feminine nouns too: Hände 'hands', Städte 'towns/cities', Würste 'sausages'.

(c) Nouns ending in:

-är	die Millionäre 'millionaires'
-eur	die Jongleure 'jugglers'

See also 54.3 (p. 137).

29.4

No change in the plural

(a) Most masculine nouns ending in:

-el	die Deckel 'lids'
-en	die Reifen 'tyres'
-er	die Koffer 'suitcases'

NOUNS

(b) Diminutives in:

-chen die Häuschen 'small houses'

-lein die Entlein 'ducklings'

See also 25.6a (p. 46) and 54.3 (p. 137).

29.5Plural in umlaut only

The stressed vowel receives an umlaut in the plural without any other change being made:

die Äpfel 'apples'

die Brüder 'brothers' die Läden 'shops'

die Töchter 'daughters'

29.6Plural in -er or umlaut + -er

(a) The -er ending appears mostly in monosyllabic neuter nouns and a few monosyllabic masculine ones:

das Ei, die Eier 'eggs'

das Kleid, die Kleider 'dresses'

das Lied, die Lieder 'songs'

der Geist, die Geister 'spirits'

(b) Wherever there is a vowel which can take an umlaut, there is an umlaut with the -er plural ending:

das Dach, die Dächer 'roofs'

der Mann, die Männer 'men'

der Reichtum, die Reichtümer 'riches' der Wald, die Wälder 'forests'

29.7Plural in -s

(a) Nouns taken from English, French and Italian over the past hundred years:

die Babys die Hotels die Parks

die Radios

die Schecks

die Shows

(b) Acronyms and words which have been shortened:

die LKWs 'lorries' die Muttis 'mums'

die PKWs 'cars'

See also 26.2 (p. 47).

29.8

Other miscellaneous plural forms

(a) Greek and Latin derivations ending in -os, -us or -um usually take -en in the plural:

das Epos, die Epen 'epics' das Museum, die Museen 'museums' der Mythos, die Mythen 'myths' das Visum, die Visen 'visas'

(b) Certain other nouns derived from Latin retain their Latin plural form:

das Tempus, die Tempora 'tenses' das Tempo, die Tempi 'tempo' (in music)

das Genus, die Genera 'genuses/genders' das Korpus, die Korpora '(linguistic) corpora'

(c) Nouns ending in -ma have plural in -men:

die Firma, die Firmen 'firms' das Thema, die Themen 'topics'

29.9

Double plural forms

A number of nouns which are identical in form in the singular, but whose gender depends on the meaning, have different plural forms (see 27.2 for these).

There are also a few nouns with two meanings whose singular form and gender are identical but which have divergent plural forms:

die Bank, die Bänke 'benches' and die Banken 'banks' die Mutter, die Mütter 'mothers' and die Muttern 'nuts', i.e. for bolts der Rat, die Räte 'councils' and die Ratschläge 'pieces of advice' der Stock, die Stöcke 'sticks' and die Stockwerke 'storeys' das Wort, die Wörter 'individual words' and die Worte 'connected words'

V

Pronouns

30

Pronoun reference and forms

30.1

German pronouns preserve the gender and number (singular or plural) of the nouns to which they refer. For example:

Der Tisch ist zu klein. > Er ist zu klein.
The table is too small. > It is too small.

Die Tür ist auf. > Sie ist auf.
The door is open. > It is open.

Das Fenster ist zu. > Es ist zu.
The window is closed. > It is closed.

Die Fenster sind zu. > Sie sind zu.
The windows are closed. > They are closed.

However, the case of the pronoun depends on its role in the sentence:

Der* Tisch war teuer. Wir haben ihn nicht gekauft. Er war aber schön.
The table was expensive. We didn't buy it. But it was nice.

30.2

The personal pronoun system is set out below. Note that there is a formal and a familiar second person mode of address (see 60.1), and that the second person formal is identical for the singular and the plural.

See also 37.2 (p. 87) for reflexive pronouns.

(a) The nominative forms are:

	Singular	Plural
First person	ich 'I'	wir 'we'
Second person (familiar)	du 'you'	ihr 'you'
Third person	er, sie, es 'he, she, it'	sie 'they'
Second person (formal)	Sie 'you'	Sie 'you'

(b) Each pronoun also has an accusative and a dative form:

Singular			Plural
Nom.	Acc.	Dat.	Nom.	Acc.	Dat.
ich	mich	mir	wir	uns	uns
du	dich	dir	ihr	euch	euch er	ihn	ihm	sie	sie	ihnen
sie	sie	ihr	sie	sie	ihnen
es	es	ihm	sie	sie	ihnen
Sie	Sie	Ihnen	Sie	Sie	Ihnen

(c) The genitive forms (meiner, deiner, seiner, ihrer, seiner, Ihrer; unser, euer, ihrer, ihrer, ihrer, Ihrer) are very rare and are only found with verbs governing the genitive case (see 20.4):

Wir gedenken ihrer.
We commemorate them.

Ich bin mir seiner sicher.
I am sure of him.

The forms meinetwegen, deinetwegen, seinetwegen, ihretwegen, ihretwegen, Ihretwegen; unsertwegen, euretwegen, ihretwegen, ihretwegen, ihretwegen, Ihretwegen mean ‘because of me (etc.)/for my (etc.) sake’:

Sie musste meinetwegen warten.
She had to wait on my account/because of me.

30.3

Possessive adjectives (corresponding to ‘my’, ‘your’, ‘his’, ‘her’, etc.) are closely related to these pronoun forms. Their endings change according to case. Their stems are:

	Singular	Plural
First person	ich – mein	wir – unser
Second person	du – dein	ihr – euer
Second person (formal)	Sie – Ihr	Sie – Ihr
Third person	er – sein	sie – ihr
	sie – ihr	sie – ihr
	es – sein	sie – ihr

All possessive adjectives follow the ein declension (see 22.3 and 24.2; see 45 for the declension of adjectives following these forms).

Das ist mein neuer Wagen.
This is my new car.

Haben Sie meinen neuen Wagen gesehen?
Have you seen my new car?

Wir sind mit meinem neuen Wagen gefahren.
We drove in my new car.

When used predicatively (see 43), however, the possessive pronoun has two distinct forms. These are meiner (masculine nominative) and meins (neuter nominative and accusative):

Ist das dein Wagen? Ja, das ist meiner.

Is that your car? Yes, that's mine.

Ist das deine Diskette? Ja, das ist meine.

Is that your diskette? Yes, that's mine.

Ist das dein Buch? Ja, das ist meins.

Is that your book? Yes, that's mine.

Hast du mein Buch gesehen? Nein, ich habe deins nicht gesehen.

Have you seen my book? No, I haven't seen yours.

Otherwise the same endings are used as for attributive use (see 43.2):

Hast du meinen Wagen gesehen? Nein, ich habe deinen nicht gesehen.

Have you seen my car? No, I haven't seen yours.

Hast du meine Diskette gesehen? Nein, ich habe deine nicht gesehen.

Have you seen my diskette? No, I haven't seen yours.

Fahren wir mit deinem Wagen? Ja, mit meinem.

Shall we go in your car? Yes, in mine.

Kann ich mit deiner Diskette arbeiten? Nein, nicht mit meiner.

Can I work with your diskette? No, not with mine.

30.4

There are two interrogative pronouns: wer 'who' and welcher 'which'.

(a) wer has all four case forms:

Nom. wer

Acc. wen

Dat. wem

Gen. wessen

Wer ist das? Wen heiratest du? Mit wem hast du gesprochen?

Who is that? Who are you marrying? Who did you speak to?

The genitive form wessen is rather formal and German speakers tend to avoid it by using an alternative structure:

Wessen Schuld ist das? > Wer ist daran schuld?

Whose fault is that? > Who is to blame for it?

Wessen Auto ist das? > Wem gehört das Auto?

Whose car is it? > Who does the car belong to?

See also 58 (pp. 146–8).

(b) welcher tends not to be used in the genitive:

Nom. welcher

Acc. welchen

Dat. welchem

Welcher Politiker ist das?

Which politician is that?

An welchem Computer arbeitest du?

Which computer are you working on?

See also 9 (p. 14) and 44.2 (p. 119).

31

Other forms used as pronouns

Note the following, some of which can also be used as determiners:

See also 24 (p. 41) for determiners.

31.1

dieser/diese/dieses is sometimes used in place of er/sie/es:

Dann hat der Vater angerufen. Und dieser sagte, . . .

And then his/her father rang. And he said . . .

dieser and jener are also used for 'the latter' and 'the former' respectively (see 24.1).

31.2

The definite article der/die/das is often used in place of personal pronouns, especially in the spoken language:

Die* wohnt drüben.

She lives over there.

Den* kenne ich schon lange.

I've known him for a long time.

Das* wissen wir schon.

We already know that.

Ich bin mir dessen bewusst.

I am aware of that.

Mit dem kann man handeln.

With him one can do business.

See also 58 (pp. 146–8).

31.3

einer/eine/eins 'one'. This declines like the predicative (43) meiner/meine/meins (see 30.3):

Hast du einen / eine / eins?

Have you got one?

Often it is used with a degree of emphasis:

In der Schweiz spricht man nicht nur eine Sprache.

They don't just speak one language in Switzerland.

See 15 (pp. 20–2).

31.4

man 'one', 'people in general', 'they':

Man* versteht das schon.

People understand that.

In the accusative and dative man becomes einen and einem respectively:

Wenn man arbeitslos wird, trifft das einen hart.

If you become unemployed it affects you badly.

Ich kenne einen, der fährt schon seit seiner Kindheit nach Mallorca.

I know somebody who has been going (on holiday) to Mallorca since he was a child.

Und das soll einem jemand glauben?

Is anybody supposed to believe that?

See also 40.4a (p. 105).

Ich kenne einen, der fährt jeden Sommer nach Mallorca.

I know somebody who spends each summer holiday on Mallorca.

Und die Geschichte soll einem jemand glauben?

And somebody is supposed to believe this story?

31.5

jemand 'someone' and niemand 'no one' decline as follows:

Nom.	jemand	niemand
Acc.	jemanden	niemanden
Dat.	jemandem	niemandem
Gen.	jemandes	niemandes

See also 42.3d (p. 113).

In spoken German the accusative and dative are frequently left uninflected, as jemand and niemand:

Ich suche niemanden/niemand.

I'm not looking for anyone.

Sie spricht gerade mit jemandem/mit jemand am Telefon.

She's speaking to someone on the phone at the moment.

In relative clauses jemand is construed as masculine, i.e. jemand, der . . . 'someone who . . .'. However, in feminist usage, jemand, die . . . is found (see 10).

32

Pronouns used after prepositions

The correct use of pronouns with prepositions depends on distinguishing between people and things. Where the reference is to an inanimate object or a general state of affairs, the form da(r) + preposition is used (see 38.2 and 50.6):

Referring to der Sohn 'the son':

Sein Vater hat einen großen Einfluss auf ihn gehabt.

His father had a great influence on him.

Referring to der Plan 'the plan':

Sein Vater hat einen großen Einfluss darauf gehabt.

His father had a great influence on it.

VI

Verbs

33

Verb forms

33.1

Finite verb, infinitive and participle

All verbs have (a) an infinitive form, (b) a present and a past participle, and (c) several finite forms:

(a) The infinitive form is the form found in dictionaries. It is the usual way of referring to the verb as a concept. Thus, arbeiten means 'to work' and sagen means 'to say'.

(b) The present participle is an adjective derived from the infinitive by adding a 'd' (and, where necessary, the relevant adjectival ending). Thus, eine arbeitende Frau is 'a working woman' and ein nichts sagender Brief is 'a letter that says nothing.'

See 49 (p. 129).

The past participle is used in forming two of the past tenses (see 33.3): the perfect and the pluperfect. Thus, ich habe gearbeitet means 'I have worked' and Was hattest du gesagt? means 'What did you say?' The past participle is also used in the formation of the passive (see 40).

(c) The finite forms of a verb (see 5.1) carry specific information about:

person: whether the verb is in the 'I' form or the 'you' form, for example number: whether the verb is in the singular or the plural, e.g. whether it is in the 'I' form or the 'we' form tense: whether the verb is in the present, past or future.

For example, studiere reveals that the verb is first person singular ('I') and present tense ('I study'); and studierst reveals that it is second person (familiar) singular, and past tense ('you studied').

Infinitives and participles do not carry this information. They each have only one fixed form. Where they are used as part of the verb they must be accompanied by a finite form, such as the forms in ich habe gearbeitet und du hast auch gearbeitet 'I have worked and you have worked too'.

Infinitives are also used in certain types of instructions and commands (see 86.1b, 92, 99).

33.2

Weak, strong and irregular verbs

There are regular patterns which most verbs follow, though some verbs follow irregular patterns and a special effort must be made to learn these. Many of the most frequently used verbs are not regular. It is useful to distinguish the following types of verb:

- (a) Weak verbs (see 33.4) are entirely regular and their forms are therefore completely predictable. They always add the standard endings to the verb stem, which never changes. The following are all forms of the weak verb machen 'to make/do': mache, machst, machte, gemacht.
- (b) Strong verbs (see 33.5) have a change in the verb stem when forming the simple past tense. The following are forms of singen 'to sing'. The forms with the change in the verb stem are past tense: singe, singst, sang, sangst.
- (c) A small number of verbs combine aspects of the weak and the strong patterns. These are known as 'mixed' verbs (see 33.6).
- (d) Irregular verbs (see 33.7) are typically strong verbs which also change the verb stem in some of the present tense forms. The verb nehmen 'to take' has present tense forms based on the stem nehm- such as nehme and nehmt, but it also has nimmst and nimmt in the present tense.

Note the very different uses of the terms 'weak' and 'strong' in relation to nouns (see 28.1–2).

33.3

The six tenses

All verbs have forms corresponding to the six basic tenses. In the table below, all the finite forms of the verbs (see 33.1c) are in italics. The examples show one weak verb (studieren) and one strong verb (kommen):

There are two simple tense forms:

Present	sie studiert 'she studies/is studying'
Simple past	sie kommt 'she comes/is coming' sie studierte 'she studied/was studying' sie kam 'she came/was coming'

and four compound tense forms:

Perfect	sie hat studiert 'she has studied/she studied'
Pluperfect	sie ist gekommen 'she has come/come' sie hatte studiert 'she had studied'
Future	sie war gekommen 'she had come'
Future perfect	sie wird studieren 'she will study' sie wird kommen 'she will come'
	sie wird studiert haben 'she will have studied'
	sie wird gekommen sein 'she will have come'

See also 89.1 (p. 322).

The compound tenses are formed as follows:

Perfect: a finite form of either haben or sein, in the present tense, + the past participle of the main verb.

Pluperfect: a finite form of either haben or sein, in the simple past tense, + the past participle of the main verb.

Future: a finite form of werden, in the present tense, + the infinitive of the main verb.

Future perfect: a finite form of werden, in the present tense, + the past participle of the main verb, + either haben or sein.

*See 33.8; see also 34 for the use of tenses; see 35.2 for tenses of modal verbs.

33.4

Weak verbs

Weak verbs are completely regular and always retain the verb stem. The majority of verbs follow this pattern and any new verbs which enter the language are 'weak', e.g. privatisieren 'privatize', harmonisieren 'harmonize', testen 'test', interviewen 'interview'.

(a) In the present tense, the regular endings are added to the stem of the verb. Where the stem of the verb ends in -d or -t, an extra -e is introduced in some positions to ease pronunciation. The present tense forms of machen 'to do/make' are:

ich	mache	arbeite
du	machst	arbeitest
Sie (sing. and pl.)	machen	arbeiten
er/sie/es/man	macht	arbeitet
wir	machen	arbeiten
ihr	macht	arbeitet
sie	machen	arbeiten

(b) In the simple past, weak verbs add a -t and a slightly different set of regular endings to the verb stem. Note that the ich form and the er/sie/es/man forms are identical in the simple past. Where the stem of the verb ends in -d or -t, an extra -e is introduced in all positions to ease pronunciation:

ich	machte	arbeitete
du	machtest	arbeitetest
Sie (sing. and pl.)	machten	arbeiteten
er/sie/es/man	machte	arbeitete
wir	machten	arbeiteten
ihr	machtet	arbeitetet
sie	machten	arbeiteten

(c) The perfect and pluperfect tenses of weak verbs are formed with the past participle, and this is formed by adding ge- to the beginning of the verb stem, and -(e)t to the end.

The verbs arbeiten ‘to work’, machen ‘to make/do’ and testen ‘to test’ have the following forms:

Infinitive	Past participle	Perfect tense	Pluperfect tense
arbeiten	gearbeitet	ich habe gearbeitet	ich hatte gearbeitet
machen	gemacht	ich habe gemacht	ich hatte gemacht
testen	getestet	ich habe getestet	ich hatte getestet

The finite verb in these tenses is not always a form of haben (see 33.8).

NOTE Verbs ending in -ieren and verbs beginning with an inseparable prefix (see 57.2) do not add ge- in forming the past participle (see 33.1b). For example, the verbs studieren ‘to study’, privatisieren ‘to privatize’ and verreisen ‘to depart’ have the following forms:

Infinitive	Past participle	Perfect tense	Pluperfect tense
studieren	studiert	ich habe studiert	ich hatte studiert
privatisieren	privatisiert	ich habe privatisiert	ich hatte privatisiert
verreisen	verreist	ich bin verreist	ich war verreist

The finite verb in these tenses is not always a form of haben (see 33.8).

33.5

Strong verbs

The main feature of strong verbs is that the form of the verb stem itself undergoes a change in the simple past and often in the past participle too.

(a) In the present tense most strong verbs follow the regular pattern of endings found in weak verbs (see 33.4a). For example, the verbs gehen ‘to go’ and kommen ‘to come’ have the following predictable forms:

ich	gehe	komme
du	gehst	kommst
Sie (sing. and pl.)	gehen	kommen
er/sie/es/man	geht	kommt
wir	gehen	kommen
ihr	geht	kommt
sie	gehen	kommen

▶ See 80.7d (p. 285), 76.1b–c (pp. 252–3).

(b) In the simple past, strong verbs have a change within the stem of the verb, usually a vowel change, and they add a different set of endings to those found in weak verbs.

The simple past forms of gehen and kommen are:

ich	ging	kam
du	gingst	kamst
Sie (sing. and pl.)	gingen	kamen
er/sie/es/man	ging	kam
wir	gingen	kamen
ihr	ginget	kamt
sie	gingen	kamen

NOTE The ich form and the er/sie/es/man forms are simply the changed verb stem without any ending at all.

The change in the verb stem needs to be learnt for all strong verbs:

Infinitive	Simple past
gehen kommen etc.	ging kam etc.

Thus, if we know that the verb singen 'to sing' has the simple past sang, we can predict the following forms: ich sang 'I sang', du sangst 'you (familiar) sang', sie sang 'she sang', wir sangen 'we sang', etc.

(c) The perfect and pluperfect tenses of strong verbs are formed with the past participle (33.1b), and this is formed by adding ge- to the beginning of the verb stem and -(e)n to the end. The verbs gehen 'to go', kommen 'to come' and singen 'to sing' have the following forms:

Infinitive	Past participle	Perfect tense	Pluperfect tense
gehen kommen singen	gegangen gekommen gesungen	ich bin gegangen ich bin gekommen ich habe gesungen	ich war gegangen (see 80.7a, d) ich war gekommen (see 80.7a) ich hatte gesungen

The finite verb in these tenses is not always a form of haben (see 33.8).

NOTE Verbs beginning with an inseparable prefix (see 57.2) do not add ge- in forming the past participle. For example, the verbs bekommen 'to receive' and vergehen 'to pass' (of time) have the following forms:

Infinitive	Past participle	Perfect tense	Pluperfect tense
vergehen bekommen	vergangen bekommen	es ist vergangen ich habe bekommen	es war vergangen ich hatte bekommen

33.6

Mixed verbs

There are a few so-called 'mixed' verbs which combine features of the weak and the strong patterns by adding the regular endings to a changed vowel stem in the simple past. The most common 'mixed' verbs are:

Infinitive	Simple past stem
bringen	brachte 'to bring' (see 80.7d)
denken	dachte 'to think'
brennen	brannte 'to burn'
kennen	kannte 'to know' (a person or place) (see 101.1)
nennen	nannte 'to name/call'
rennen	rannte 'to race'
wissen	wusste 'to know' (a piece of information) (see 101.1)

(a) In the present tense these verbs are entirely regular except for wissen, which has an irregular pattern (see 33.7a).

(b) In the simple past the regular weak endings are added to the simple past stem. Thus, present tense forms include ich bringe, du denkst, es brennt, etc., and simple past forms include ich kannte, du nanntest, er rannte, etc.

(c) The perfect and pluperfect tenses of mixed verbs are formed with the past participle, and this is formed by adding ge- to the beginning of the simple past stem and -t to the end.

The forms are:

Infinitive	Simple past stem	Perfect tense
bringen	brachte	ich habe gebracht (see 80.7d)
denken	dachte	ich habe gedacht
brennen	brannte	ich habe gebrannt
kennen	kannte	ich habe gekannt
nennen	nannte	ich habe genannt
rennen	rannte	ich bin gerannt
wissen	wusste	ich habe gewusst

The finite verb (5.1) in these tenses is not always a form of haben (see 33.8).

33.7

Irregular verbs

Irregular verbs (see 33.2d) fall into several different categories, but they share one basic feature: they have an irregular pattern in the present tense. In addition, most irregular verbs are strong verbs. These are very common verbs and are part of the basic vocabulary of all speakers of German. A special effort needs to be made to learn them.

(a) The verbs sein 'to be', werden 'to become', wissen 'to know', haben 'to have' take the following forms:

Present tense
	sein	werden	wissen	haben
ich	bin	werde	weiß	habe
du	bist	wirst	weißt	hast
Sie (sing. and pl.)	sind	werden	wissen	haben
er/sie/es/man	ist	wird	weiß	hat
wir	sind	werden	wissen	haben
ihr	seid	werdet	wisst	habt
sie	sind	werden	wissen	haben

Simple past
	sein	werden	wissen	haben
ich	war	wurde	wusste	hatte
du	warst	wurdest	wusstest	hattest
Sie (sing. and pl.)	waren	wurden	wussten	hatten
er/sie/es/man	war	wurde	wusste	hatte
wir	waren	wurden	wussten	hatten
ihr	wart	wurdet	wusstet	hattet
sie	waren	wurden	wussten	hatten

Perfect	Pluperfect
ich bin gewesen 'I have been/was'	ich war gewesen 'I had been'
ich bin geworden 'I have become/became'	ich war geworden 'I had become'
ich habe gehabt 'I have had/had'	ich hatte gehabt 'I had had'
ich habe gewusst 'I have known/knew'	ich hatte gewusst 'I had known'

(b) All modal verbs are irregular (see 35).

(c) A number of common strong verbs (see 33.5) have a vowel change in the stem of the verb in the du and the er/sie/es/man forms of the present tense. This means that there is an extra feature to learn when studying the principal parts of these verbs (see 33.9). In the early stages of learning, the principal parts of each verb must be learnt individually. The following is a guide to some common patterns. Note that the change to the stem in the present tense is always found in the du and er/sie/es/man forms only (printed in italic):

Stem vowel changes from e to i: geben 'to give', nehmen 'to take', helfen 'to help':

ich	gebe	nehme	helfe
du	gibst	nimmst	hilfst
Sie	geben	nehmen	helfen
er/sie/es/man	gibt	nimmt	hilft
wir	geben	nehmen	helfen
ihr	gebt	nehmt	helft
sie	geben	nehmen	helfen

Other verbs which follow this pattern include: brechen 'to break', essen 'to eat' (du isst, er isst), gelten 'to be valid' (es gilt), messen 'to measure', sprechen 'to speak', treten 'to step/kick' (er tritt), treffen 'to meet', vergessen 'to forget', werfen 'to throw'.

Stem vowel changes from e to ie: sehen 'to see', empfehlen 'to recommend', lesen 'to read':

ich	sehe	empfehle	lese
du	siehst	empfiehlst	liest
Sie	sehen	empfehlen	lesen
er/sie/es/man	sieht	empfiehlt	liest
wir	sehen	empfehlen	lesen
ihr	seht	empfehlt	lest
sie	sehen	empfehlen	lesen

Other verbs which follow this pattern include: befehlen 'to order/instruct', stehlen 'to steal', geschehen 'to happen' (es geschieht, 'it happens').

Stem vowel changes by umlaut: fahren 'to travel/drive', schlafen 'to sleep', fallen 'to fall':

ich	fahre	schlafe	falle
du	fährst	schläfst	fällst
Sie	fahren	schlafen	fallen
er/sie/es/man	fährt	schläft	fällt
wir	fahren	schlafen	fallen
ihr	fahrt	schlaft	fallt
sie	fahren	schlafen	fallen

Other verbs which follow this pattern include: halten 'to stay/halt' (er hält), laden 'to load' (er lädt), raten 'to advise' (du rätst, er rät), tragen 'to carry', wachsen 'to grow'.

Note also:

stoßen 'to hit/bump into': du stößt, er/sie/es/man stößt

laufen 'to run/walk': du läufst, er/sie/es/man läuft

saufen 'to drink alcohol': du säufst, er/sie/es/man säuft

See 33.9 (p. 69).

33.8

Using haben or sein with the past participle

The use of haben or sein as the auxiliary in the perfect and pluperfect (33.3) is determined mainly by the following factors:

(a) The auxiliary is haben:

When the verb is transitive, i.e. takes an accusative object (18):

Sie hat ihn gefragt.
She asked him.

When the verb has a transitive sense even though the object is not expressed in the accusative. The verb may take a dative object (see 19.6), for example, or be a prepositional verb (see 38):

Wir haben ihm geholfen.
We helped him.

Der Fall der Mauer hat zu dieser Entwicklung beigetragen.
The fall of the Wall has contributed to this development.

When the verb is intransitive and expresses an ongoing state:

Wir haben lange gestanden und gewartet.
We (have) stood and waited for a long time.

Es hat lange gedauert.
It lasted a long time./It took a long time.

Es hat geregnet, geschneit und gedonnert.
It (has) rained, snowed and thundered.

(b) The auxiliary is sein when the verb is used intransitively and:

When the verb is sein, bleiben, werden:

Es ist sehr warm geblieben.
It remained very warm.

When the verb is a verb of motion:

Sind Sie nach Köln gefahren oder geflogen?
Did you drive or fly to Cologne?

When the verb expresses something that has happened to people that is outside their control rather than something that people have done:

Sie ist 1934 geboren, 1992 erkrankt, und 1994 gestorben.
She was born in 1934, fell ill in 1992, and died in 1994.

Es ist passiert. (See 69.2, 76.1g.)

Es ist geschehen.

Es ist vorgekommen. (See 69.2.)
It happened.

(c) These guidelines offer a substantial aid to using haben and sein correctly. Note, however, the following:

Es ist mir gelungen.
I succeeded (it worked out for me).

but:

Es hat geklappt.
It worked out.

(gelingen is an impersonal verb: see 42.3h.)

Ich bin ihm begegnet. (See 74.10.)
I met him (by chance).

but:

Ich habe ihn getroffen. (See 74.10.)
I met him (by chance or design).

There are a small number of verbs which are used with sein even though they are transitive verbs. Note especially los*werden 'to get rid of' and durch*gehen 'to go through something':

Endlich bin ich ihn losgeworden!
At last I have got rid of him!

Er war die ganze Zeitung durchgegangen.
He had been through the whole newspaper.

See 36.3c (p. 86).

Also, haben can be used with intransitive verbs of motion when the focus is on the general activity rather than on the specific question of where you went. Usage varies here:

Ich bin heute geschwommen.
Ich habe heute geschwommen.
I had a swim today.

Ich bin in das kleine Becken geschwommen.
I swam into the small pool.

Ich habe im kleinen Becken geschwommen.
I swam in the small pool.

(d) As the previous example shows, some verbs can be used with both haben and sein, with a change in meaning:

Wir sind nach Köln gefahren.
We drove (travelled) to Cologne.

Sie hat den BMW gefahren.
She drove (has driven) the BMW.

Ich bin nach Oslo geflogen.
I flew (have flown) to Oslo.

Die Versicherungsfirma hat ihn nach London zurückgeflogen.
The insurance company flew him back to London.

Some verbs have more than one meaning, and this is reflected in the use of haben and sein:

Ein Unfall ist gestern passiert. (See 76.1g.)
An accident happened yesterday.

Wir haben den Zoll noch nicht passiert.
We haven't gone through customs yet.

See also 42.3a (p. 109).

Any two verbs sharing the same stem (e.g. kommen and bekommen) follow the same strong or weak pattern. But the use of haben or sein as auxiliary depends on the meaning:

Sie ist um halb acht gekommen.

She came at half past seven.

Sie hat meinen Brief bekommen.

She received my letter.

See 36.2 (p. 84).

33.9

Principal parts of the verb

The principal parts of the verb which need to be learnt are thus:

- (1) the infinitive
- (2) for those verbs which have a change in the stem in the present tense: the present tense third person singular (the er/sie/es/man form)
- (3) the simple past first/third person singular (the ich/er/sie/es/man form)
- (4) haben or sein as auxiliary
- (5) the past participle.

See 33.1–3 (pp. 59–61).

Most dictionaries list these for strong verbs, together with the Subjunctive II forms (see 39.2). For weak verbs, the forms are absolutely predictable:

1	2	3	4	5
machen	macht	machte	hat	gemacht 'to make/do'
reisen	reist	reiste	ist	gereist 'to travel'
studieren	studiert	studierte	hat	studiert 'to study'

For mixed verbs, the change in the stem must be learnt:

1	2	3	4	5
bringen	bringt	brachte	hat	gebracht 'to bring'
rennen	rennt	rannte	ist	gerannt 'to race'

Most attention should be given to strong verbs. Here is a partial list showing some important patterns of vowel change. Where there is no entry in column (2) this means that the present tense is regular.

1	2	3	4	5
(a > ä > ie > a) schlafen fallen	schläft fällt	schlieft fiel	hat ist	geschlafen 'to sleep' gefallen 'to fall'
(a > ä > i > a) fangen	fängt	fing	hat	gefangen 'to catch'

(e>i>a>o)
sprechen	spricht	sprach	hat	gesprochen 'to speak'
brechen	bricht	brach	hat	gebrochen 'to break'
helfen	hilft	half	hat	geholfen 'to help'
nehmen	nimmt	nahm	hat	genommen 'to take'
(e>i>a>e)
geben	gibt	gab	hat	gegeben 'to give'
(ie>->o>o)
fliegen		flog	ist/hat	geflogen 'to fly'
bieten		bot	hat	geboten 'to offer'
schließen		schloss	hat	geschlossen 'to close' (ei>->ie>ie)
bleiben		blieb	ist	geblieben 'to remain'
schreiben		schrieb	hat	geschrieben 'to write' (ei>->i>i)
greifen		griff	hat	gegriffen 'to grab'
schneiden		schnitt	hat	geschnitten 'to cut'
(i>->a>u)
singen		sang	hat	gesungen 'to sing'
gelingen		gelang	ist	gelingen 'to succeed' (see 36.2c)
(i>->a>o)
beginnen		begann	hat	begonnen 'to begin'
schwimmen		schwamm	ist/hat	geschwommen 'to swim'

Note especially the following common verbs, which do not conform exactly to these patterns and should be learnt individually:

1	2	3	4	5
sein	ist	war	ist	gewesen 'to be'
werden	wird	wurde	ist	geworden 'to become'
tun		tat	hat	getan 'to make/do'
gehen		ging	ist	gegangen 'to go'
kommen		kam	ist	gekommen 'to come'
laufen	läuft	lief	ist	gelaufen 'to run'
fahren	fährt	fuhr	ist/hat	gefahren 'to travel/drive'
sitzen		saß	hat	gesessen 'to sit'
liegen		lag	hat	gelegen 'to be lying'
stehen		stand	hat	gestanden 'to be standing'
heißen		hieß	hat	geheißen 'to be called'
essen	isst	aß	hat	gegessen 'to eat'
saufen	säuft	soff	hat	gesoffen 'to drink alcohol' stoßen	stößt	stieß	hat	gestoßen 'to strike/ bump into'
ziehen		zog	hat/ist	gezogen 'to move/pull'

34 Use of tenses

See 81 (pp. 286–96); see also 33.3 (p. 60).

34.1

German has only one form of the verb in each tense, unlike English. Compare:

Er findet es schwer.

He finds it hard.

He is finding it hard.

He does find it hard.

Er fand es schwer.

He found it hard.

He was finding it hard.

He did find it hard.

34.2

Present tense

(a) Describes events or states belonging in the present time:

Ich verstehe Ihre Frage nicht.

I do not understand your question.

(b) Describes eternal truths and scientific facts (see 76.11):

Die Zeit vergeht schnell.

Time passes quickly.

Öl schwimmt auf Wasser.

Oil floats/will float on water.

(c) Describes events in the near or foreseeable future (where the context makes the future reference obvious, see 81.8):

Ich finde es morgen.

I'll find it tomorrow.

See also 39.8a (p. 101).

(d) Describes events or states which started in the past but are still going on (note the use of seit + dative):

Sie ist seit zwei Jahren verlobt.

She has been engaged for two years.

34.3

Future

As well as expressing future time, the future often conveys a prediction, a statement of intent (see 103) or desirability, or a supposition (see 89.1)

Wir werden gewinnen.

We are going to win.

Das wird (wohl) die Post sein.

That'll be the post.

34.4

Future perfect

- (a) Expresses a completed action envisaged at a point in the future, often with an element of determination or desirability:

Vor meinem vierzigsten Jahr werde ich mein eigenes Haus gebaut haben. (See 103.)

Before I am forty I will have built my own house.

- (b) Can also express supposition (89.1):

Er wird in die Kneipe gegangen sein.

He'll have gone to the pub (I suppose).

34.5

Simple past

See also 34.7 (p. 73).

- (a) Describes completed actions:

Sie spielten Tennis und dann fuhren sie in die Stadt.

They played tennis and then went into town.

- (b) Describes incomplete or continuing actions and states in the past:

Er schrieb (gerade) den Brief, als ich anrief. (See 76.4c.)

He was (just) writing the letter when I phoned.

- (c) Describes actions and states which precede a focal point in the past:

Ich lernte ihn 1994 kennen. Er wohnte (schon) seit zwei Jahren in Berlin.

I got to know him in 1994. He had been living for two years in Berlin.

- (d) Expresses habitual actions in the past:

Jeden Samstag machten wir eine Wanderung.

Every Saturday we went/used to go/would go for a walk.

34.6

Perfect

See also 34.7 (p. 73).

- (a) Conveys individual or isolated actions in the past:

Sie sind nach München geflogen.

They flew/have flown to Munich.

- (b) Often implies that the action in the past has some continuing relevance to the present situation:

Das haben wir erst gestern erfahren.

We only just found that out yesterday.

Die Wiedervereinigung hat schwere Folgen für die deutsche Wirtschaft gehabt.

Reunification has had serious consequences for the German economy.

- (c) Can have future reference, referring to an event which will have been completed before another one begins:

Nachdem wir den Tisch abgeräumt haben, spülen wir ab/werden wir abspülen. (See 81.7.)

After we have cleared the table we will wash up.

Bis morgen habe ich es geschafft. (See 81.7, 103.)

I will have done it by tomorrow.

34.7

Simple past or perfect?

See also 34.5–6 (pp. 72–3).

(a) Often there is no distinction in meaning between these two tenses. Thus, sie spielten Tennis and sie haben Tennis gespielt can convey exactly the same sense.

(b) There is a tendency in northern Germany for the simple past to be the preferred past tense, whereas in southern Germany the perfect is preferred in spoken German.

(c) Where the focus is on the present result of an action, the perfect is used (as it is in English):

Die Gäste kamen an.

The guests arrived/were arriving.

Die Gäste sind angekommen.

The guests have arrived. (I.e. they are here now!)

Compare:

Sie schrieb gerade den Brief, als ich anrief.

She was (just) writing the letter when I phoned.

and:

Sie hat den Brief gerade geschrieben, als ich anrief.

She had just written the letter when I phoned.

(d) There may also be a tendency for the opening (and closing) statement in a narrative to be in the perfect, with the rest in the simple past:

Wir sind also einkaufen gegangen. Aber im ersten Geschäft hatten sie nur billige Sachen, und im nächsten war alles viel zu teuer. Da gingen wir zu Meyers in der Gartenstraße . . . Wir sind ja halb tot in den Zug gefallen. (See 121.2, 117.1.)

So we went shopping. But in the first shop they only had cheap stuff, and in the next everything was much too dear. So we went to Meyers in the Gartenstraße . . . We fell into the train half dead.

34.8

Pluperfect

Expresses an action or event that took place before another began:

Nachdem sie ein Glas Wein bekommen hatten, gingen sie in den Garten.

After they had received a glass of wine they went into the garden.

35

Modal verbs

35.1

Modal + infinitive

A modal verb is one that combines with another verb to modify the statement:

Sie kommt morgen.

She is coming tomorrow.

Sie will morgen kommen.

She wants to come tomorrow.

German modal verbs combine with another verb in the infinitive (see 33.1):

Sie kann später kommen.

She can (is able to) come later.

Sie muss später kommen.

She must (has to) come later.

Sie will später kommen.

She wants to (intends to) come later.

Sie darf später kommen.

She can/is permitted to come later.

Sie mag später kommen.

She may (possibly) come later.

Sie soll später kommen.

She is expected to (is supposed to) come later.

Sie möchte später kommen.

She would like to come later.

‘möchte’ is actually a subjunctive form (see 39) of the modal verb ‘mögen’.

Note also (nicht) brauchen ‘(not) need to’, which is widely used as a modal verb in colloquial German but is still generally found with zu + infinitive in formal and written contexts (see 58):

Sie brauchen nicht später kommen. (informal)

Sie brauchen nicht später zu kommen. (formal)

You don’t need to come later. (See also 35.7.)

Most of these verbs can also be used on their own, with an accusative object. In this case they do not function as modal verbs:

Ich mag diesen Herrn.

I like this gentleman.

Ich brauche einen neuen Computer.

I need a new computer.

A small number of verbs are completed by both an accusative object (see 18) and an infinitive. Of these, lassen 'allow, let' is often regarded as a modal:

Sie lässt ihn warten.

She lets him wait/She has him wait/She makes him wait.

This verb, too, can be used on its own with an accusative object:

Ich lasse es, danke.

I'll leave it, thanks. (E.g. on deciding not to buy something.)

▶ See also 35.6b (p. 78) and 40.4b (p. 105).

Verbs of perception like hören 'hear', sehen 'see', fühlen 'feel' also follow this pattern, but are not normally regarded as modal verbs:

Ich sah das Ende der DDR kommen.

I saw/could see the end of the GDR coming.

Ich höre sie gern singen.

I like listening to her sing/singing.

Ich hörte/sah/fühlte ihn atmen.

I heard/saw/felt him breathe/breathing.

▶ See 35.3c (p. 77), 35.6 (p. 77) and 42.3b (p. 110).

35.2

Tense forms

The present and simple past forms are as follows. Irregular forms are in italics:

Infinitive	können	müssen	wollen	dürfen
Present Tense ich du Sie (sg. and pl.) er/sie/es/man wir ihr sie	kann kannst können kann können könnt können	muss musst müssen muss müssen müsst müssen	will willst wollen will wollen wollt wollen	darf darfst dürfen darf dürfen dürft dürfen
Past Tense ich du Sie (sg. and pl.) er/sie/es/man wir ihr sie	konnte konntest konnten konnte konnten konntet konnten	musste musstest mussten musste mussten musstet mussten	wollte wolltest wollten wollte wollten wolltet wollten	durfte durftest durften durfte durften durftet durften

Infinitive	mögen	sollen	lassen	möchten
Present Tense ich du Sie (sg. and pl.) er/sie/es/man wir ihr sie	mag magst mögen mag mögen mögt mögen	soll sollst sollen soll sollen sollt sollen	lasse lässt lassen lässt lassen lasst lassen	möchte möchtest möchten möchte möchten möchtet möchten
Past Tense ich du Sie (sg. and pl.) er/sie/es/man wir ihr sie	mochte mochtest mochten mochte mochten mochtet mochten	sollte solltest sollten sollte sollten solltet sollten	liess liessest liessen liess liessen liesst liessen	No past tense

35.3

Past participle of modal verbs

See 33.1 (p. 59).

(a) Note the 'double infinitive' pattern. The past participle form of these modal verbs is identical to the infinitive, and the auxiliary is haben. Note the distinctive pattern:

Er hat später kommen wollen.

He wanted to come later.

Ich habe später kommen sollen.

I was supposed to come later.

Sie hat mich lange warten lassen.

She made me wait for a long time.

See 5.4 (p. 9), also 8.6 (p. 12) for the word order in subordinate clauses; see 39.5d (p. 98) for modals and reported speech.

(b) However, when used as full verbs in their own right (i.e. with an accusative object (see 18) not with another verb), they have a different set of past participles:

gekonnt gemocht	gemusst gesollt	gewollt gelassen	gedurft
--------------------	--------------------	---------------------	---------

Ich kann nicht Französisch.

I can't speak French.

Ich habe Französisch nicht gekonnt.

I couldn't speak French.

Ich mag ihn sehr.

I like him a lot.

Ich habe ihn sehr gemocht.

I liked him a lot.

Ich will das Geld nicht.

I don't want the money.

Ich habe das Geld nicht gewollt.

I didn't want the money.

Ich lasse den Scheck auf dem Tisch.

I'm leaving the cheque on the table.

Ich habe den Scheck auf dem Tisch gelassen.

I (have) left the cheque on the table.

(c) Note that the 'double infinitive' pattern is also found with the verbs of perception listed in 35.1, with the meaning 'to hear/see/feel something happen/happening':

Viele Leute haben das Ende der DDR nicht kommen sehen.

Many people did not see the end of the GDR coming.

Hast du sie singen hören?

Have you heard her sing/singing?

Haben Sie ihn atmen sehen?

Have you seen him breathe/breathing? (Did you see him breathe/breathing?)

35.4

Word order of modal verbs

For the word order used in modal constructions see 5.2e (p. 8), 5.4 (p. 9), 8.6 (p. 12) and 35.3 (p. 76).

35.5

Omitting the infinitive

Note the tendency for the infinitive to be omitted when the meaning is obvious from the context:

Nächste Woche muss ich nach Köln.

Next week I have to go to Cologne.

Ich kann ein bisschen Spanisch.

I can speak a little Spanish.

See also 42.3i (p. 116)

35.6

Meanings of the modal verbs

See 35.1 (p. 74).

The modal verbs have a range of general and special meanings:

(a) The general meanings are:

können 'to be able to/have the ability to' (see 87 and 97)

müssen 'to have to/be obliged to' (see 85)

wollen 'to intend to/want to' (see 103) dürfen 'to be allowed/permitted to' (see 104.2) mögen 'to like to'

NOTE The use of mögen as a modal is actually quite rare in this meaning; other constructions such as gern(e) machen are much more common: Ich gehe gern(e) nach Paris 'I like going to Paris' (see also 39.3d).

sollen 'to be expected to/thought to/believed to' (see 86.1e, p. 310)

Note that this verb expresses other people's anticipation or expectation.

lassen 'to allow/cause something to happen or someone to do something' möchten 'would like to'

NOTE This is actually a Subjunctive II form (see 39.2) of mögen, and is a common polite alternative to wollen.

(b) In addition to their main meanings, the following idiomatic meanings should be noted:

können often covers the meaning of dürfen:

Kann ich morgen zum Fußballspiel?
 Can/May I go to the football match tomorrow?

▶ See 42.3i (p. 116).

or it can express supposition:

Das kann die Antwort sein.
 That may be the answer.

müssen with a negative (nicht, kein) means 'doesn't have to':

Das müssen Sie nicht sagen.
 You don't have to say that.

▶ See also 86.4 (p. 316).

müssen can express an assumption or a deduction:

Er muss schon gegessen haben.
 He must already have eaten.

Er muss schon gegangen sein.
 He must already have gone.

Das müsste reichen.
 That should/ought to be enough.

▶ See also 35.7 (p. 80), 39.3d (p. 95) and 89.1 (p. 322).

wollen in a question can express an invitation or suggestion:

Wollen wir ins Kino gehen?

Let's go to the cinema.

See also 60.1c (p. 160).

wollen can express the meaning 'claims to':

Sie will mich gestern am Strand gesehen haben.

She claims to have seen me yesterday on the beach.

See 85.1 (p. 307).

dürfen with a negative (nicht, kein) means 'must not/not allowed to':

Das dürfen Sie nicht sagen – ich darf kein Bier trinken.

You mustn't say that – I can't (am not allowed to) drink beer.

dürfte (the Subjunctive II form of dürfen) can mean 'may (very) well be':

Das dürfte der Fall sein.

That may (very) well be the case.

See also 39.3d (p. 95) and 89.1 (p. 322).

mögen more often means 'may' or 'might':

Das mag (wohl) wahr sein.

That may (well) be true.

See 89.1 (p. 322).

sollen always expresses the idea of an expectation or belief on the part of someone else. There are various English translations:

Er soll hereinkommen!

Tell him to come in.

Sie soll eine Ferienwohnung in Italien haben.

They say she has a holiday flat in Italy.

See 85.4 (p. 309).

The simple past (33.3 and 34.5), sollte, is either a past tense of the main meaning or expresses the idea 'ought to, but doesn't'. In this sense it often occurs with eigentlich:

Diese neuen Maschinen sollten eigentlich keine Wartung brauchen.

These new machines shouldn't really need servicing (but they do).

Another use of sollte expresses surprise or reservation:

Sollte das wahr sein?

Can this be true?

See also 39.3d (p. 95) and 114 (pp. 409–12).

lassen is quite common with reflexive constructions (see 37):

Ich lasse mich sehen.

I let myself be seen.

Er lässt sich nicht beraten.
He won't take advice.

Das lässt sich nicht machen.
That can't be done.

Ließe sich das machen?
Could that be done?

▶ See 39.3d (p. 95) for the Subjunctive II forms of modal verbs and 40.4b (p. 105).

35.7

muss + negative and darf + negative

As noted above (35.6b), these have meanings which are easily confused by English speakers: 'must' is rendered by müssen, 'must not' by nicht dürfen, while nicht müssen means 'does not have to':

Sie darf kein Darlehen aufnehmen.
She must not/is not allowed to take out a loan.

Sie muss kein Darlehen aufnehmen.
She doesn't have to take out a loan. (But she can if she wants.)

▶ For this use, see 86.4 (p. 316).

Note an alternative to nicht müssen is nicht brauchen zu + infinitive ('does not need to'):

Sie braucht das Darlehen nicht zurückzuzahlen.
She doesn't need to repay the loan.

▶ See also 86.4 (p. 316) on this use and 39.3d (p. 95) on müsste.

35.8

Two different patterns involving modal verbs

muss/soll/kann (etc.) gewesen sein vs. hätte sein müssen/sollen/können (etc.)
muss/soll/kann (etc.) gesagt haben vs. hätte sagen müssen/sollen/können (etc.)

Note the existence of these different patterns and their completely different functions. They are a source of difficulty because English speakers often use the same construction 'would have'/'could have'/'must have' etc. for two distinct purposes: 'He could have gone to Oxford', for example, could mean 'I think it is possible that he did' or 'There was the possibility, but it didn't happen'. In German these two meanings are expressed using two different structures.

(a) The muss gewesen sein/muss gesagt haben pattern expresses an assumption or a deduction on the part of the speaker about an event assumed to have taken place in the past. The speaker voices the possibility or the probability that something really did happen in a certain way. This pattern basically follows this special use of the future perfect for expressing assumptions (e.g. wird gewesen sein/wird gesagt haben, see 34.4, 89.1), but uses a modal verb instead of werden.

The structure is as follows:

Modal verb (usually in the present tense) + past participle of the main verb (e.g. gewesen, gesagt) + haben or sein depending on the main verb.

Examples:

Sie kann die Inhaberin des Hotels gewesen sein.

She could have been the owner of the hotel (I suppose).

(= It is possible that she was the owner of the hotel.)

Sie muss das gleich am Anfang gesagt haben.

She must have said that right at the outset (I suppose).

(= It must be the case that she did so. That is what I suppose/deduce/expect.)

Er soll die Stelle bekommen haben.

He is believed to have got the job./They say he got the job.

▶ On the range of meanings each of the modal verbs can have, see 35.6 (p. 77).

(b) The hätte sein müssen/hätte sagen müssen pattern expresses an unrealized possibility attaching to an event in the past. The speaker is effectively asserting or implying that a particular eventuality did not happen.

The structure is as follows:

hätte/hättest/hätten/hättet + infinitive of the main verb + infinitive of the modal verb.

Note that this structure is actually the simpler of the two, because it always uses a form of hätte even when the main verb is one that forms the perfect and pluperfect tense with sein.

Examples:

Sie hätte die Inhaberin des Hotels sein können.

She could have been the owner of the hotel (but it didn't happen).

Sie hätte das gleich am Anfang sagen müssen.

She would have had to say that right at the outset (but she didn't).

Er hätte die Stelle bekommen sollen.

He ought to have got the job (but he didn't).

▶ See also 39.3d (p. 95) and 39.8 (p. 101).

36 Separable and inseparable verbs

▶ See 57 (pp. 142–5) for meaning.

36.1 Verbs with a separable prefix

Separable verbs consist of a verb and a verbal prefix, e.g. ab*fahren 'to drive off'. The prefix is typically, but not always, a preposition.

(a) The meaning of a separable verb is often obvious from the meaning of its parts (see 57):

fahren 'to drive/travel'
ab*fahren 'to drive off/depart'

but the meaning of many separable verbs is not transparent:

fangen 'to catch'
an*fangen 'to begin'

(b) It is possible to hear when a verb is separable because the stress is always on the separable prefix, i.e. ab*fahren, an*fangen.

(c) The verbal prefix separates from the rest of the verb in the present tense and the simple past (see 5.5):

Die Vorstellung fängt um halb acht an.
 The performance begins at half past seven.

Die Vorstellung *fi*ng um halb acht an.
 The performance began at half past seven.

and in infinitive constructions with zu (see also 42.3f and 8.7 for word order):

Es ist nötig, mit der Vorstellung sofort anzufangen.
 It is necessary to begin the performance straightaway.

In the past participle (33.1) the two parts of the verb are separated by -ge- (written as one word):

Die Vorstellung hat um halb acht angefangen.
 The performance began at half past seven.

See also 5.4 (p. 9) on word order.

(d) Common verbal prefixes which are always separable include: ab-, an-, auf-, aus-, ein-, fern-, mit-, nach-, vor-, weg-, zu-, zurück-, zusammen- (see 57 for a list of their meanings):

Der Zug ist abgefahren.
 The train has departed.

Rufen* Sie mich bitte an.
 Please ring me.

Sie nimmt das Konzert auf Kassette auf.
 She is recording the concert on cassette.

Vergessen Sie nicht, auch die Benzinkosten einzukalkulieren.
 Don't forget to include the cost of the petrol as well.

Ich sehe kaum noch fern.
 I hardly watch TV any more.

Machen* Sie mit, wenn Sie wollen.
 Join in if you want.

Ich brauche mehr Zeit, um die Details nachzuschlagen.
 I need more time to look up the details.

Heute habe ich etwas Besonderes vor.
Today I've got something special planned.

▶ See 46.3 (p. 122) for etwas.

Werfen* Sie die Verpackung bitte nicht weg!
Please don't throw the packaging away.

Die Banken machen um zwölf zu.
The banks close at twelve.

Er kommt in einer Stunde zurück.
He is coming back in an hour.

Wir haben unser ganzes Geld zusammengelegt.
We pooled all our money.

Virtually any preposition can become a verbal prefix and will be separable if the literal meaning of the preposition features in the meaning of the verb as a whole. For example, entgegen means 'in the opposite direction' and entgegenkommen is a separable verb meaning 'to come towards':

Sie ist mir entgegengekommen.
She came towards me.

▶ See 18.2–3 (p. 24), 19.4–5 (pp. 27–8) and 20.7 (p. 32) on prepositions.

(e) Some separable verbs obviously began as verb + noun combinations:

Die Konferenz findet in Buenos Aires statt.
The conference is taking place in Buenos Aires.

Note also the tendency for some verb + noun combinations to behave like separable verbs in some respects:

Der Teppich fängt bald Feuer.
The carpet will catch fire soon.

Ich fahre jeden Tag Auto.
I drive (a car) every day.

However, these phrases are always written as two distinct words:

Er fängt Feuer.
It catches fire.

Er find Feuer.
It caught fire.

Er hat Feuer gefangen.
It caught fire.

Er kann Feuer fangen.
It can catch fire.

Er begann Feuer zu fangen.
It began to catch fire.

Sie fährt Auto.
She drives.

Sie fuhr Auto.
She drove.

Sie ist Auto gefahren.
She has been driving/drove.

Sie kann Auto fahren.
She can drive/go driving.

Sie begann Auto zu fahren.
She began to drive.

36.2

Verbs with an inseparable prefix

Some verbal prefixes are always inseparable, i.e. they always form a single word with the verb to which they are attached.

(a) It is possible to hear when a verb is inseparable because the stress is typically on the main verb (not on the prefix), i.e. bestehen, genießen.

(b) The past participle is without ge-, and in infinitive constructions with zu, the zu comes before the verb:

Er bestand das Examen.

He passed the exam.

Er hat das Examen bestanden.

He passed/has passed the exam.

Man kommt nicht weiter, ohne das Examen zu bestehen.

One doesn't progress any further without passing the exam.

See 42.3f (p. 115) for verb completion by an infinitive clause with zu; see also 8.7 (p. 13) for word order.

(c) The inseparable prefixes are be-, emp-, ent-, er-, ge-, miss-, ver-, zer-:

See also 57.2 (p. 143).

beschreiben 'to describe'

Er hat dich sehr genau beschrieben.

He described you exactly.

empfinden 'to feel/sense'

Ich habe das als unfair empfunden.

I felt that was unfair.

entlasten 'to relieve/lighten the burden'

Ist es möglich, mich ein bisschen zu entlasten?

Is it possible to lighten my load a little?

erfüllen 'to fulfil'

Sie haben den Vertrag nicht erfüllt.

You have not fulfilled the contract.

genießen 'to enjoy/have the benefit of'

Sie hat die Ferien in Irland genossen.

She enjoyed the holidays in Ireland.

misslingen 'to go wrong'

Es misslingt mir. (Es ist mir misslungen.)

It's going wrong (it went wrong) for me.

verstehen 'to understand'

Ich habe alles ganz gut verstanden.
I understood everything very well.

zerschlagen 'to smash (to pieces)'

Der Junge zerschlug das Fenster und rannte davon.
The boy broke the window and ran off.

Some verbs have a 'double prefix', and where the first prefix is inseparable, the verb as a whole is inseparable:

Sie beanspruchen Kindergeld.
They are making a claim for child allowance.

Er vernachlässigt seine Frau.
He neglects his wife.

(d) Note, however, that missverstehen 'misunderstand' is basically inseparable, but has the stress on the prefix and has zu inside the infinitive:

Sie missverstehen mich.
You misunderstand me.

Sie haben mich missverstanden.
You have misunderstood me.

Es ist unmöglich, diese Warnung misszuverstehen.
It is impossible to misunderstand this warning.

Note that the verb anerkennen 'to recognize/acknowledge' is used both as a separable verb and (less commonly) as an inseparable verb:

Ich erkenne das als richtig an.
Ich anerkenne das als richtig.
I acknowledge that as right.

36.3

Verbs with a variable prefix

See also 57.3 (p. 144).

(a) A few verbal prefixes can be separable or inseparable: durch-, über-, um-, unter-, voll-, wider-.

(b) Where the same verb + prefix combination can be both separable and inseparable, there is a subtle distinction in meaning. Usually, the separable verb retains the literal meaning of the preposition, while the inseparable verb contains an extended or figurative meaning:

um*gehen 'to circulate/go round'

Diese Gerüchte gehen seit Monaten um.
These rumours have been going around for months.

umgehen 'to circumvent/avoid'

Die neue Straße umgeht das Dorf.

The new road avoids the village.

Diese neue Verkaufsmethode hat das Gesetz umgangen.

This new sales method has got round the law.

um*schreiben 'to rewrite/change'

Es ist jetzt nötig, das Dokument umzuschreiben.

It is now necessary to rewrite the document.

umschreiben 'to paraphrase'

Es ist jetzt nötig, das Dokument kurz zu umschreiben.

It is now necessary to paraphrase the document briefly

(c) Note how separable verbs often repeat the preposition elsewhere in the sentence or add hin- or her- to the preposition to give it a clear directional meaning:

durch*schauen 'to look through'

Ich habe durch das Fernglas durchgeschaut.

I looked through the binoculars.

durchschauen 'to see through' (not be fooled)

Ich habe ihn sofort durchschaut.

I saw through him straightaway.

über*fahren 'to travel/drive across'

Wir sind nach Frankreich hinübergefahren.

We crossed over into France.

Mein Bruder war bereit, mich hinüberzufahren.

My brother was prepared to drive me over there.

See 50.4 (p. 130).

überfahren 'to run (someone) over'

Wir sind durch Paris gefahren, ohne jemanden zu überfahren.

We drove through Paris without running anyone over.

(d) Other verbs to note include:

Inseparable:

überbieten 'to outbid/go one better than'

überfordern 'to overwork/ask too much of'

übergehen 'to pass over'

überschätzen 'to overestimate' übersetzen 'to translate'

übertreiben 'to exaggerate' umfahren 'to drive around'

umreißen 'to outline' unterbieten 'to bid less than'

unterfordern 'to underwork/ask too little of'

unterschätzen 'to underestimate' untertreiben 'to understate'

widersprechen 'to contradict'

widerstehen 'to resist' widerstreben 'to oppose/go against' wiederholen 'to repeat' (this is the only inseparable verb beginning with wieder- 'again')

Separable:

über*fahren 'to cross over (usually water)'

über*gehen 'to transfer to'

um*reißen 'to pull down (buildings)' unter*bringen 'to accommodate/find a place for'

wider*hallen 'to echo'

wider*spiegeln 'to reflect/mirror'

(The latter are the only two separable verbs beginning with wider- 'against'.)

37

Reflexive verbs

37.1

These are verbs with a reflexive object, i.e. an object which refers back to the subject of the verb:

Ich wasche mich.

I wash (myself).

However, not all German reflexives can be translated by 'myself', 'yourself', etc.

37.2

The reflexive pronoun has an accusative and a dative form. Note how the pattern is basically the same as for the personal pronoun (see 30.2b) except for the use of sich:

Subject	Reflexive
	Accusative	Dative
ich	mich	mir
du	dich	dir
Sie (sing. and pl.)	sich	sich er/sie/es/man	sich	sich
wir	uns	uns
ihr	euch	euch
sie	sich	sich

37.3

Most verbs which can be used reflexively can also be used as normal transitive verbs (see 33.8a). Note the following patterns:

- (a) Er rasiert sich.
He shaves (himself).

but also:

Er rasiert mich.

He shaves me.

Er rasiert dich.

He shaves you.

Er rasiert ihn.

He shaves him (i.e. another person).

The basic pattern here is subject + verb + accusative form of the personal pronoun (when the action is performed on someone else, see 42.3a) or subject + verb + accusative form of the reflexive pronoun (when the action is performed on oneself or the verb can only be used reflexively).

- (b) Sie stellt sich das neue Büro vor.

She imagines the new office.

but also:

Sie stellt mir das neue Büro vor.

She shows the new office to me.

Sie stellt dir das neue Büro vor.

She shows the new office to you.

Sie stellt ihr das neue Büro vor.

She shows the new office to her.

The basic pattern here is subject + verb + dative form of the personal pronoun (when someone else is the beneficiary of the action) or subject + verb + dative form of the reflexive pronoun (when the subject is also the beneficiary or when the verb can only be used reflexively). Sich/jmdm. (dat.) etwas (acc.) vor*stellen literally means 'to place sth. in front of oneself/sb.'.

- (c) Sie hat sich einen Computer gekauft.

She (has) bought (herself) a computer.

but also (see 19.2):

Sie hat mir einen Computer gekauft.

She (has) bought me a computer.

Sie hat dir einen Computer gekauft.

She (has) bought you a computer.

Sie hat ihnen einen Computer gekauft.

She (has) bought them a computer.

The basic pattern here is subject + verb + accusative object + pronoun in the dative which explicitly shows the recipient or beneficiary of the action (see 42.3b).

37.4

The dative reflexive pronoun is used to express washing and cleaning oneself when a part of the body is mentioned:

Ich muss mir die Hände waschen.

I must wash my hands.

See also 23.2e (p. 39) and 110.11 (p. 390).

37.5

A number of verbs can only be used reflexively, i.e. they always have a reflexive pronoun.

(a) Most reflexive verbs have the reflexive pronoun in the accusative (see 18):

sich befinden 'to be situated'

Die britische Botschaft befindet sich jetzt in Berlin.
The British embassy is now in Berlin.

For this formal use of sich befinden, see also 69.3 (p. 213).

sich über etw. (acc.) freuen 'to be pleased about'

Freust du dich über dein Weihnachtsgeschenk?
Are you pleased with your Christmas present?

See 42.3d (p. 113) for abbreviations.

sich auf etw. (acc.) freuen 'to look forward to'

Freust du dich auf dein Weihnachtsgeschenk?
Are you looking forward to your Christmas present?

sich ereignen 'to happen' (this is always used in the third person, usually describing a mishap)

In der Nacht hat sich ein Flugzeugunglück ereignet.
There was a plane crash in the night.

See also 76.1g (p. 254).

sich um etw. bewerben 'to apply for sth.'

Ich bewerbe mich um die Stelle.
I am applying for the job.

sich um etw. oder jmdn. drehen 'to revolve around sth. or sb.'

Alles dreht sich um das Geld.
Money is at the centre of everything.

sich nach etw. oder jmdm. erkundigen 'to enquire about sth. or sb.'

Sie erkundigt sich nach dir.
She is asking after you.

sich vor etw. oder jmdm. fürchten 'to be afraid of sth. or sb.'

Fürchten Sie sich vor ihm?
Are you afraid of him?

sich in jmdn. verlieben 'to fall in love with sb.'

Sie hat sich in ihn verliebt.
She has fallen in love with him.

sich irren 'to be mistaken'

Ich irre mich.
I am mistaken.

sich mit jmdm. über etw. (acc.) unterhalten 'to have a conversation with sb. about sth.'

Er hat sich mit mir über das Wetter unterhalten.
He talked to me about the weather.

also:

Wir haben uns über das Wetter unterhalten.
We talked about the weather.

- ▶ See 18.2–3 (pp. 24–5) for prepositions with the accusative, 19.4–5 (pp. 27–8) for prepositions with the dative.

(b) Verbs with the reflexive pronoun in the dative (see 19) include:

sich etw. (acc.) ein*bilden 'to imagine wrongly'

Du hast dir diese Krankheit eingebildet.
You have imagined this illness.

sich etw. (acc.) überlegen 'to reflect on sth./think it over'

Ich überlege mir dieses Angebot.
I am considering this offer.

(c) Note also the impersonal reflexive:

es handelt sich um etw. oder jmdn. 'it concerns sb. or sth./it is a matter of sth.'

Es handelt sich hier um ein dringendes Problem.
This is an urgent problem.

- ▶ See 42.3h (p. 115).

38 Prepositional verbs

- ▶ See also 18.2–3 (pp. 24–5) and 19.4–5 (pp. 27–8).

38.1

A large number of verbs are linked idiomatically to a particular preposition, i.e. are always used with the same preposition. For example, glauben an 'believe in', warten auf 'wait for'. Some verbs can be used with more than one preposition, with a change in meaning (e.g. bestehen auf 'to insist on', bestehen aus 'to consist of'). German prepositional verbs need to be learnt as a unit: verb + preposition + case. Some common prepositional verbs are listed below according to the preposition they take and the case governed by the preposition:

an (+ acc.)

glauben an 'to believe in' denken an 'to think of/about' erinnern an 'to remind sb. of/about'

sich erinnern an 'to remember'

(sich) gewöhnen an 'to get used to'

Wir haben an dich gedacht.
We were thinking of you.

Prepositional

an (+ dat.)

liegen an 'to be because of/be the reason for'

teil*nehmen an 'to participate in'

Es lag an mir, dass er nicht gekommen ist.

It was because of me/my fault that he didn't come.

auf (+ acc.)

reagieren auf 'to react to'

warten auf 'to wait for' verzichten auf 'to go without' an*kommen auf 'to depend on' sich freuen auf 'to look forward to'

Wie haben sie auf die Nachricht reagiert?

How did they react to the news?

auf (+ dat.)

bestehen auf 'to insist on'

beruhen auf 'to rest on/be built on'

Sie hat auf ihrem Recht bestanden.

She insisted on her rights.

aus (+ dat.)

bestehen aus 'to consist of'

Unser Team besteht aus einer Frau und zwei Männern.

Our team consists of one woman and two men.

für (+ acc.)

sich interessieren für 'to be interested in'

jmdm. danken für 'to thank sb. for'

Ich interessiere mich sehr für die Musik der zwanziger Jahre.

I am very interested in the music of the twenties.

in (+ acc.)

sich verlieben in 'to fall in love with'

Er hat sich sofort in sie verliebt.

He fell in love with her straight away mit (+ dat.)

rechnen mit 'to reckon with' sprechen mit 'to talk to/with' beginnen mit 'to begin (with)' an*fangen mit 'to begin (with)'

auf*hören mit 'to stop'

(sich) beschäftigen mit 'to occupy oneself with/work on' sich befassen mit 'to work on'

Ab Mai müssen Sie mit einem höheren Preis rechnen.

From May you have to reckon with a higher price.

nach (+ dat.)

fragen nach 'to enquire after/about'

sich erkundigen nach 'to enquire about' riechen nach 'to smell of'

schmecken nach 'to taste of'

Meine Frau fragt nach Ihrer Mutter.

My wife asks after your mother.

über (+ acc.)

reden über 'to talk about' sprechen über 'to talk about' nach*denken über 'to think about/reflect on'

streiten über 'to argue about'

jmdn. informieren über 'to inform sb. about'

sich freuen über 'to be pleased about'

Ich möchte über dieses Problem ein bisschen nachdenken.

I would like to think over this problem for a while.

um (+ acc.)

kämpfen um 'to fight for'

werben um 'to try to recruit/persuade/win over'

sich bewerben um 'to apply for'

jmdn. bitten um 'to ask sb. for'

jmdn. bringen um 'to deprive sb. of'

Er hat sich um die Stelle in Aachen beworben.

He has applied for the job in Aachen.

von (+ dat.)

reden von 'to talk of/about' sprechen von 'to talk of/about' träumen von 'to dream of/about'

ab*hängen von 'to depend on'

jmdn. überzeugen von 'to convince sb. of'

Das Picknick hängt natürlich von dem Wetter ab.

The picnic depends on the weather, of course.

vor (+ dat.)

jmdn. warnen vor 'to warn sb. about'

jmdn. retten vor 'to save/rescue sb. from'

jmdn. schützen vor 'to protect sb. from'

Angst haben vor 'to be afraid of'

Die Wettervorhersage warnt vor einem Unwetter morgen.

The weather forecast is warning of a storm tomorrow.

zu (+ dat.)

gehören zu 'to belong to/be part of'

passen zu 'to go with/match'

etw. (acc.) bei*tragen zu 'to contribute to'

Deutschland trägt eine Menge zur Europäischen Union bei.
Germany contributes a lot to the European Union.

38.2

da + preposition

The preposition in prepositional verbs is often found in a form beginning da-: daran, darauf, daraus, dafür, darin, damit, danach, davon, davor, darüber, darum, dazu, etc.

The preposition is preceded by da- or dar- (see 50.6) when:

(a) the prepositional verb is completed by a clause:

Sie hat mich davor gewarnt, dass die Preise hier höher sind.
Dass die Preise hier höher sind, davor hat sie mich gewarnt.
She warned me that the prices here are higher.

See 42.3e (p. 114) for this construction; see also 18.2–3 (pp. 24–5), 19.4–5 (pp. 27–8) and 50.6 (p. 131).

(b) the prepositional verb refers back to the meaning of a previous clause:

Wir brauchen einen Urlaub. Du hast mich davon überzeugt.
We need a holiday. You've convinced me of it.

39

The subjunctive

39.1

Overview

(a) German has two subjunctive forms of the verb, called Subjunctive I and Subjunctive II. They are used to describe actions or states which might happen or which are reported to have happened.

(b) The subjunctive forms are used in the following contexts:

Subjunctive I is used most often in reported speech (39.6 and 85).

Subjunctive II is used in contexts where there is a suggestion that the event described by the verb may not or did not happen. Subjunctive II can also substitute for Subjunctive I in reported speech (85.1d, 89).

Subjunctive II is more frequent, so it will be described first (see 39.2–3).

39.2

Use of Subjunctive II

(a) The main use of this form of the verb is to express hypothetical or conditional actions (see also 39.8) or states, for example after als (ob) 'as if', often with the implication that the event being described is improbable or at least not certain. Note that the present tense forms can and often do refer to future states and actions:

Er hat so getan, als ob er die Geschichte schon gehört hätte.
He pretended to have/acted as if he had already heard the story.

Es wäre schön, wenn wir morgen zusammen fahren könnten.
It would be nice if we could travel together tomorrow.

Ich hätte morgen mehr Zeit, mit dir zu essen.
I would have more time tomorrow to eat with you.

Wenn sie Millionärin wäre, würde sie sicher eine Weltreise machen.
If she were a millionaire she would certainly go on a trip around the world.

► For making hypotheses see 89.4 (p. 324).

(b) Subjunctive II is also used to soften the directness of a question or a suggestion out of politeness:

► For this use see 91.1–4 (pp. 328–32); for attracting the attention of a person who is busy, see 90.2 (p. 325).

Ich hätte eine Frage . . .
I'd like to ask a question if I may . . .

Ich möchte noch ein Stück Kuchen.
I would like another piece of cake.

39.3

Formation of Subjunctive II

(a) The present tense of the second subjunctive is formed from the simple past by adding -e to the simple past ich/er/sie/es/man form. Strong and irregular verbs also add an umlaut where possible:

► See 33.4b (p. 61), 33.5b (p. 62) and 33.6–7 (pp. 63–6).

Examples of strong verbs are:

Infinitive	3 rd person sg. past tense	3 rd person sg. present Subjunctive II sein	war 'was'	wäre 'would be'
haben	hatte 'had'	hätte 'would have'
gehen	ging 'went'	ginge 'would go'
geben	gab 'gave'	gäbe 'would give'
sehen	sah 'saw'	sähe 'would see'

The second subjunctive forms of most weak verbs are indistinguishable from the normal past tense forms:

Infinitive	3 rd person sg. simple past indicative and Subjunctive I machen	machte 'did/would do'
arbeiten	arbeitete 'worked/would work'
üben	übte 'practised/would practise'
reisen	reiste 'travelled/would travel'

One mixed verb, however, can add an umlaut:

brauchen bräuchte 'would need'

(b) The past tense of Subjunctive II is a combination of wäre or hätte + the past participle (depending on whether the verb takes sein or haben in the perfect: see 33.8):

Infinitive	Past subjunctive II in the 3 rd person sg.
sein	er/sie/es/man wäre gewesen	he/she/it/one would have been werden	er/sie/es/man wäre geworden	he/she/it/one would have become gehen	er/sie/es man wäre gegangen	he/she/it/one would have gone haben	er/sie/es/man hätte gehabt	he/she/it/one would have had geben	er/sie/es/man hätte gegeben	he/she/it/one would have given machen	er/sie/es/man hätte gemacht	he/she/it/one would have done

Examples:

Present	Past
Es wäre schön. It would be nice.	Es wäre schön gewesen. It would have been nice.
Ich hätte mehr Zeit. I would have more time.	Ich hätte mehr Zeit gehabt. I would have had more time.

(c) The forms of sein and haben are as follows:

Person	Tense
	Present		Past
ich	would be	would have	would have been	would have had
du	wäre	hätte	wäre gewesen	hätte gehabt
Sie	wär(e)st	hättest	wärest gewesen	hättest gehabt
er/sie/es/man	wären	hätten	wären gewesen	hätten gehabt
wir	wäre	hätte	wäre gewesen	hätte gehabt
ihr	wären	hätten	wären gewesen	hätten gehabt
Sie/sie	wär(e)t	hättet	wäret gewesen	hättet gehabt
	wären	hätten	wären gewesen	hätten gehabt

(d) The modal verbs have the following Subjunctive II forms:

Infinitive	3 rd person sg. present		3 rd person sg. past past
können	könnte	would be able to	hätte . . . können	would have been able to müssen	müsste	would have to	hätte . . . müssen	would have had to wollen	wollte	would want to	hätte . . . wollen	would have wanted to sollen	sollte	would have to	hätte . . . sollen	would have had to dürfen	dürfte	would be allowed to	hätte . . . dürfen	would have been allowed to mögen	möchte	would like	hätte . . . mögen	would have liked lassen	ließe	would let/allow	hätte . . . lassen	would have let/would have allowed

See 35.8 (p. 80).

Some of these forms carry special meanings. They are widely used as polite or tactful forms when making requests. (See also 91.1.) Note the following:

könnte 'would be able to'

Könnten Sie bitte lauter sprechen?
Could you please speak up?

Das könnte die Antwort sein.
That could be the answer.

▶ See also 35.6b (p. 78).

müsste 'would have to'

Wenn ich keine Reiseschecks hätte, müsste ich jetzt auf die Bank.
If I didn't have traveller's cheques I would have to go to the bank now.

▶ See 5.2 (p. 7) on word order here.

Das müsste die Antwort sein.
That must be (would have to be) the answer.

▶ See also 35.6b (p. 78) and 89.1 (p. 322).

dürfte 'would be allowed to/is probably'

Wenn du älter wärst, dürftest du mit den anderen spielen.
If you were older you could play with the others.

▶ See 39.8 (p. 101) on conditionals, and 89.1 (p. 322).

Das dürfte die Antwort sein.
That could well be (probably is) the answer.

▶ See also 35.6b (p. 78).

sollte 'ought to' (often used with eigentlich to suggest that something has not happened which should have happened, or vice versa)

Er sollte eigentlich schon hier sein.
He really should be here by now (but he isn't).

Er sollte eigentlich nicht hier sein.
He really shouldn't be here (but he is).

▶ See also 35.6b (p. 78).

möchte 'would like to'

Ich möchte heute im Restaurant zu Mittag essen.
I would like to have lunch in a restaurant today.

▶ See also 35.6b (p. 78).

wollte 'wanted to' (often implying an intention that now looks unlikely to be fulfilled; also often used with eigentlich in this sense)

Ich wollte eigentlich heute Abend ins Kino gehen.
I wanted to go to the cinema this evening.

See also 35.6b (p. 78).

39.4

Use of Subjunctive I

(a) The main use is to characterize a stretch of speech as a report, i.e. not necessarily voicing the speaker's own words or opinions:

Er sagte, er habe jetzt keine Zeit.
He said he had no time right now.

See also 85 (pp. 307–9).

But, in fact, both Subjunctive I and Subjunctive II are used for this purpose.

(b) Subjunctive I is also used in expressions with the sense of 'let it be so'

Es lebe die neue Demokratie!
Long live the new democracy!

ABC sei ein gleichschenkliges Dreieck.
Let ABC be an isosceles triangle.

For assumptions in a scientific context using this construction, see 89.2 (p. 323).

39.5

Formation of Subjunctive I

(a) The present tense of Subjunctive I is formed from the infinitive by removing the final -n to obtain the er/sie/es/man form:

Infinitive	Subjunctive I 3 rd person sg.
sein	er/sie/es/man sei
haben	er/sie/es/man habe
gehen	er/sie/es/man gehe
sagen	er/sie/es/man sage

Subjunctive I is rarely used outside the er/sie/es/man form (for the forms of man see 31.4), and there are usually no clear Subjunctive I forms in other persons of the verb (e.g. in the wir or the third person plural sie forms). Where Subjunctive I forms are not clearly recognizable, the appropriate Subjunctive II is used instead.

Hence in the third person singular habe is possible:

Er sagte, der Minister habe verantwortungsvoll gehandelt.
He said the minister had acted responsibly.

But in the third person plural, the subjunctive and the normal present tense form, haben are identical, thus the differentiating hätten is used:

Er sagte, die zuständigen Polizeibeamten hätten alles getan, was man tun konnte.

He said the police officers in charge had done everything possible.

Indeed, some speakers tend to favour Subjunctive II as the preferred form for much reported speech, so usage varies considerably (see also 39.6b). Learners should certainly know the Subjunctive I forms but should listen carefully to German speakers to find out whether and to what extent native speakers are using Subjunctive I.

(b) The past tense of Subjunctive I is a combination of sei or habe + the past participle (depending on whether the verb takes sein or haben in the perfect: see 33.8):

- 3rd person sg.
- sei gewesen
- sei gegangen
- sei geschwommen
- habe gesagt
- habe gehabt
- habe gekauft

Der Angeklagte sagte, das Opfer sei gewalttätig gewesen.
The accused said that the the victim had been violent.

Es wird berichtet, dass der Präsident über Neuwahlen gar nichts gesagt habe.
It is being reported that the president did not say anything about new elections.

(c) The forms of sein and haben are as follows:

Person	Present		Past
ich	sei	habe	sei gewesen	habe gehabt
du	seiest	habest	seiest gewesen	habest gehabt
Sie	seien	haben	seien gewesen	haben gehabt
er/sie/es/man	sei	habe	sei gewesen	habe gehabt
wir	seien	haben	seien gewesen	haben gehabt
ihr	seiet	habet	seiet gewesen	habet gehabt
Sie/sie	seien	haben	seien gewesen	haben gehabt

(d) The Subjunctive I forms of the modal verbs are:

Person	können	müssen	sollen
ich	könne	müsse	solle
du	könnest	müsstest	sollest
Sie	können	müssen	sollen
er/sie/es/man	könne	müsse	solle
wir	können	müssen	sollen
ihr	könnet	müsstet	sollet
Sie/sie	können	müssen	sollen

Person	wollen	dürfen	mögen
ich	wolle	dürfe	möge
du	wollest	dürfest	mögest
Sie	wollen	dürfen	mögen
er/sie/es/man	wolle	dürfe	möge
wir	wollen	dürfen	mögen
ihr	wollet	dürfet	möget
Sie/sie	wollen	dürfen	mögen

Sie meinte, sie müsse diese Rolle im Stück spielen.

She said she had to act this part in the play.

Die Kinder berichteten, dass ihre Betreuerin während des Bombenangriffs bei ihnen bleiben wolle.

The children reported that their carer wanted to stay with them during the bombing attack.

Past: er/sie/es/man habe + infinitive of verb + modal verb in the infinitive

Sie sagte, sie habe diese Rolle immer spielen müssen.

She said she always had to act this part.

Die Kinder berichteten, dass ihre Betreuerin während des Bombenangriffs bei ihnen habe bleiben wollen.

The children reported that their carer had wanted to stay with them during the bombing attack.

See 35.3a (p. 76) for the perfect tense forms of modal verbs; and 8.6 (p. 12) for the word order in subordinate clauses.

39.6

Reported speech

(a) Subjunctive I keeps the tense of the original words which are being reported.

German differs from English here. In English, the tense of the reported verb is influenced by the tense of the introductory verb:

Original words I am the mayor of this town
Report He says he is the mayor of this town.
He said he was the mayor of this town

Original words I was (have been) the mayor of this town.
Report He says he was the mayor of this town.
He said he had been the mayor of this town.

German keeps the tense of the original but shifts the form of the verb into Subjunctive I:

Original words Ich bin hier der Bürgermeister.
 Report Er sagt, er sei hier der Bürgermeister.
Er sagte, er sei hier der Bürgermeister.

Original words Ich bin hier der Bürgermeister gewesen/war hier der Bürgermeister.
 Report Er sagt, er sei hier der Bürgermeister gewesen.
Er sagte, er sei hier der Bürgermeister gewesen.

(b) Where German speakers use both Subjunctive I and Subjunctive II for reported speech, the use of the second subjunctive usually implies a greater distance between the speaker and the truth of what is being reported, even an air of doubt and scepticism (see 85.1):

Actual words Ich habe keine Zeit.
 Neutral report Er sagte, er habe keine Zeit.
 Report with possible doubt Er sagte, er hätte keine Zeit.
 He said he didn't have any time.

39.7

Using würde + infinitive

Würde + infinitive is a very common alternative to Subjunctive II (39.2–3) in conditional sentences (see 39.8).

(a) The forms of würde are:

ich würde wir würden du würdest ihr würdet er/sie/es/man würde sie würden
Sie (sing. and pl.) würden

(b) A combination of würde + infinitive is quite commonly used instead of a Subjunctive II form and has exactly the same meaning:

Ich ginge zur Party. = Ich würde zur Party gehen.
 I would go to the party.

This is especially so for some of the strong verbs (33.5) which have irregular and unpredictable Subjunctive II forms:

Infinitive	Simple past	Subjunctive II
helfen stehen	half stand	hülfe = würde helfen stünde = würde stehen

The following common Subjunctive II forms are not normally replaced by würde + infinitive:

the modal verbs wäre 'would be'
hätte 'would have'

Also, some Subjunctive II forms tend to be part of fixed expressions:

Es gäbe 'there would be' (from es gibt 'there is/there are': see also 69.1)

Es ginge 'it would be OK' (from es geht 'it is OK')

Nicht dass ich wüsste 'Not that I'm aware of/Not that I know of'

For other verbs, würde + infinitive is increasingly used, especially in spoken German.

See also 58 (pp. 146–8).

(c) The Subjunctive II forms of weak verbs (e.g. arbeitete; verdiente) are indistinguishable from ordinary simple past tenses. In a conditional sentence (39.8), at least one of the two verbs (either one) needs to be marked as a conditional and this is done using würde + infinitive. For this reason, the würde construction is widely used with weak verbs:

Wenn ich länger arbeitete, würde ich kaum mehr Geld verdienen.

Wenn ich länger arbeiten würde, verdiente ich kaum mehr Geld.

If I worked longer I would hardly earn any more money.

As long as one of the two verbs in this kind of 'if . . . then' construction is clearly marked as conditional, this is enough to show that the whole sentence is a conditional, and the other verb may appear in the (ambiguous) Subjunctive II form. However, the use of würde + infinitive in both halves of such a sentence is ungainly and tends to be avoided. Frequently a modal verb in Subjunctive II is found here:

Wenn ich länger arbeiten würde, könnte ich kaum mehr Geld verdienen.

If I worked longer I could hardly earn any more money.

(d) The würde construction is also frequently used with strong verbs, since many German speakers are uncomfortable with the Subjunctive II forms of some verbs:

Wenn sie langsamer reden könnte, versteünde ich sie besser.

Wenn sie langsamer reden könnte, würde ich sie besser verstehen.

If she could talk more slowly I would understand her better.

(e) The würde construction is widely used when there are several main verbs in a sequence, some of which may be weak and some of which may be strong:

Wenn er jetzt käme, würden wir Feierabend machen, ein Bier trinken, und ins Kino gehen.

If he came now we would knock off work, have a beer, and go to the cinema.

39.8

Conditionals

(a) Although conditional expressions (of the kind 'If . . . , then . . . ') often have the verb in the subjunctive, this is not always the case. Using a verb which is not in the subjunctive implies that the event being described is being viewed as probable, in some sense 'real':

Wenn ich morgen Zeit habe, komme ich.

If I have time tomorrow I will come.

Wenn er mir morgen die CD gibt, sage ich euch Bescheid.
If he gives me the CD tomorrow, I'll let you know.

See also 34.2c (p. 71) and 89.3 (p. 323).

(b) Note that it is possible to have conditional expressions without wenn. In this case the verb in the subordinate clause comes at the beginning of the clause (see 8.5). The main clause can be introduced by dann or so, but this is not essential:

Habe ich morgen Zeit, (dann) komme ich.
If I have time tomorrow I will come.

Hätte ich morgen Zeit, (dann) käme ich.
If I had time tomorrow I would come.

Gibt er mir morgen die CD, (so) sage ich dir Bescheid.
If he gives me the book tomorrow I will let you know.

40 The passive

See 77 (p. 267).

40.1 Active and passive sentences

The subject of a passive construction is not the doer of the action but the object of the action:

Active:

Jeden Tag bauen wir zehn neue Häuser.
Every day we build ten new houses.

Passive:

Jeden Tag werden zehn neue Häuser (von uns) gebaut.
Every day ten new houses are built (by us).

In German, only transitive verbs (33.8a) which can have an accusative object (see 18.1 and 18.8) can be used in this kind of passive sentence.

40.2 The passive with werden

(a) The most common passive construction uses werden as an auxiliary (where English uses the verb 'to be'). The forms of werden are given in section 33.7a. Note the special past participle worden, which is used only for passive constructions:

Present: a present tense form of werden + past participle (see 33.1)

Es wird gemacht.
It is (being) done.

Simple past: a simple past tense form of werden + past participle

Es wurde gemacht.
It was (being) done.

Perfect: ist + past participle + worden

Es ist gemacht worden.

It has been done.

Pluperfect: war + past participle + worden

Es war gemacht worden.

It had been done.

Future: wird + infinitive + werden

Es wird gemacht werden.

It will be done.

But see 34.2c for the common use of the present tense in obvious contexts:

Das wird morgen gemacht.

That will be done tomorrow.

Future Perfect: wird + past participle + worden sein

Es wird gemacht worden sein.

It will have been done.

(b) German can distinguish between the process of an action, using the passive with werden, and the resulting state on completion of an action, using sein + past participle, a structure which is sometimes called the 'statal passive':

Der Flug wird gebucht.

The flight is (being) booked. (focus on the process)

Der Flug ist gebucht worden.

The flight has been/was booked. (focus on the process)

Der Flug ist gebucht.

The flight is booked. (focus on the resulting state)

The focus in the last example is on the status of the flight: is it or is it not booked? Because English uses the verb 'to be' as an auxiliary for both senses, English-speaking learners of German may tend to use the 'statal' construction with sein + past participle when they mean to focus on the process of the action. The following example shows how failing to distinguish between these constructions could lead to misunderstandings:

Diese Frage wird beantwortet.

This question is (being) answered.

Diese Frage ist beantwortet.

This question is (has been) answered.

The second of these sentences has a finality about it. It asserts, as an indisputable fact, that the matter is settled, and there is nothing more to discuss.

(c) Verbs with a dative or genitive object (see 19 and 20) behave in a special way in the passive. An impersonal subject, es, is introduced. Note that es is singular (so that werden always appears in a singular form), and that es disappears when another word occupies first position in the sentence:

► See 5.2 (p. 7) on word order.

Active:

Sie haben ihm nicht geglaubt.
They didn't believe him.

Passive:

Es wurde ihm nicht geglaubt.
Ihm wurde nicht geglaubt.
He was not believed.

Mir wurde gesagt, dass . . .
I was told that . . .

Ihr wurde der erste Preis verliehen.
She was awarded the first prize.

Verbs taking a genitive object are rare (see 20.4):

Wir haben der Opfer gedacht.
We commemorated the victims.

Es wurde der Opfer gedacht.
Der Opfer wurde gedacht.
The victims were commemorated.

► See also 42.3g (p. 115).

40.3

von and durch

(a) The person who carries out the action can be expressed in a passive sentence using von 'by':

Meine Mutter hat den Flug gebucht.
My mother (has) booked the flight.

Der Flug wurde von meiner Mutter gebucht.
Der Flug ist von meiner Mutter gebucht worden.
The flight was booked (has been booked) by my mother.

(b) durch (see 18.2) is also used where English uses 'by', but tends to express an action as opposed to an agent:

Dieser Entschluss hat alles geändert.
This decision (has) changed everything.

Durch diesen Entschluss wurde alles geändert.
Durch diesen Entschluss ist alles geändert worden.
Everything was (has been) changed by this decision.

(c) Note, however, that durch can be used when an action is performed by someone acting on someone else's instructions:

Der Tisch wurde durch die Sekretärin gebucht.

The table was booked by the secretary (i.e. acting for the boss).

Die Stadt wurde durch die alliierten Truppen zurückerobert.

The town was retaken by the allied troops.

40.4

Alternative constructions

Note the following alternative constructions which carry the same kind of focus as the passive with werden:

(a) The impersonal pronoun man (see 31.4). This is widely used in everyday spoken and written German:

Man hat die Frage gestellt.

People asked the question/Someone asked the question/The question was asked.

(b) lassen + sich + verb taking an accusative object. Literally, this construction means 'something allows itself to be done'. Its use suggests a fairly formal, usually written style (see 58).

Diese Frage lässt sich leicht beantworten.

This question can easily be answered/This question is easy to answer.

See also 35.6b (p. 78).

(c) An adjective ending in -bar or -lich derived from a verb (see 55.1a):

Das ist leicht verständlich.

That is easy to understand/That is easily understood.

Es ist nicht machbar.

It is not do-able/It cannot be done.

Note, however, that this process of word formation is highly irregular and unpredictable (see 52.3).

(d) Modal verbs (35) in combination with the passive.

It is worth noting how often modal verbs occur in passive and related constructions:

Das muss gemacht werden.

That must be done.

Das kann/sollte man machen.

It can/ought to be done.

See also 5.4 (p. 9).

41

Imperatives

See also 86.1 (pp. 309–11), 99.1c (p. 359).

41.1

The imperative forms of the verb are used to give direct commands or instructions to someone. The imperative has a formal and a familiar form corresponding to whether the correct form of address is Sie or du (plural ihr; see also 58). The imperative forms of sein and haben are:

Sie form du form of address ihr form of address	seien Sie! sei! seid!	haben Sie! hab! habt!
--	--	--

Thus, Sei ruhig!, Seid ruhig!, and Seien Sie bitte ruhig! all mean 'Be quiet!'

See 7.3 (p. 10) for word order in commands.

41.2

The various imperatives are formed as follows. Note that in written German the exclamation mark is normal usage (see also 59.6):

For the Sie form, invert subject and verb:

Machen Sie das!
Do that!

For the ihr form, use the normal present tense form on its own:

Schlaft gut!
Sleep well!

For the du form, take the -(e)st ending off the du form, present tense:

Mach das!
Do that!

See 33 (pp. 59–70) for basic verb forms.

However, note the following points about the imperative du form:

(a) Verbs which add an umlaut in the present tense for the du form (see 33.7c) lose it in the imperative:

Du schläfst
You are sleeping.

Schlaf gut!
Sleep well.

Du fährst nicht nach London.
You are not going to London.

Fahr nicht nach London!
Don't go to London!

(b) Verbs which have the vowel change e > i in the present tense (see 33.7c) retain this change in the imperative:

Du gibst es mir.
You give it to me.

See 12 (pp. 17–18) for word order here.

Gib es mir!
Give it to me!

Du nimmst es nicht.
You're not taking it.

Nimm es nicht!
Don't take it!

(c) An extra syllable (-e) may be added to the imperative du form, especially when the verb stem ends in -b, -g, -d or -t:

Sag/sage ihm nichts!
Don't tell him anything!

Schneide es hier!
Cut it here!

Arbeite nicht so viel!
Don't work so much!

Beschreibe es mir!
Describe it to me!

Note also that du and ihr can be used together with an imperative in order to give an emphatic contrast:

Mach du das!
You do it!

See 58.2a (p. 147).

41.3

Some examples of imperative forms:

Infinitive	du	ihr	Sie
geben	gib	gebt	geben Sie
haben	hab	habt	haben Sie
kommen	komm	kommt	kommen Sie
laufen	lauf	lauft	laufen Sie
machen	mach	macht	machen Sie
nehmen	nimm	nehmt	nehmen Sie
sagen	sag	sagt	sagen Sie
schlafen	schlaf	schlaft	schlafen Sie
schreiben	schreib	schreibt	schreiben Sie
sprechen	sprich	sprecht	sprechen Sie

For other ways of giving instructions, see modal verbs (35 (p. 74)); The subjunctive (39 (p. 93)); 90.4, (p. 327) on 'Requesting patience'; and 92 (p. 333) on 'Asking for something to be done'.

42

Basic sentence patterns: verbs and their completion

This section describes the basic sentence patterns for constructing simple sentences (see also 5–10 and 15). It is the choice of verb that determines these patterns. The following key explains the notation used:

VERBS

key

S The subject of the sentence, typically a noun, noun phrase or pronoun in the nominative case (e.g. der Computer, mein Computer).

= The verbs sein, bleiben, werden.

These verbs are followed by a complement which has the form of a noun, noun phrase, or pronoun in the nominative case, or an adjective. The complement characterizes the subject, hence this kind of sentence is like an equation: Mein neuer Computer ist mein bester Freund 'My new computer is my best friend', Mein neuer Computer ist klasse 'My new computer is super'.

V The verb.

Vp A prepositional verb (see 38), like warten auf + acc. 'to wait for', bestehen auf + dat. 'to insist on'. Here it is necessary to specify which case is used after the preposition.

O Object of the verb, in one of the three non-subject cases:

Oa A noun, noun phrase, or noun in the accusative case, e.g. den Computer, einen Computer.

Od A noun, noun phrase, or noun in the dative case, e.g. dem Computer, einem Computer.

Og A noun, noun phrase, or noun in the genitive case, e.g. des Computers, eines Computers.

loc A word or phrase denoting a location in time or space, e.g. auf dem Tisch 'on the table', nach dem Vortrag 'after the lecture', dort 'there', dann 'then'.

dir A word or phrase denoting direction through time or space, e.g. auf den Tisch 'onto the table', zum Bahnhof 'to the station', in den nächsten Vortrag 'into the next lecture', dorthin/dahin 'to there'.

ext A word or phrase denoting extent in time or space, e.g. einen Monat 'for a month', einen Kilometer 'for a kilometre'.

42.1

It is useful to learn the whole of the basic pattern needed to use a verb properly in order to make a simple statement. Nearly all simple sentences consist of a subject (S) and a verb (V). For some verbs this is all that is needed to produce a simple sentence:

SV

Sie schläft.

She is sleeping.

Sie ruht.

She is resting.

42.2

Most verbs require some kind of element apart from S and V in order to complete the sense. The verbs sein, bleiben, werden equate two things or persons and so each side of the equation is in the subject case, nominative (see 19). Or the completion may be an adjective (43):

S = S

Sie ist Wirtschaftsprüferin.

She is a chartered accountant.

Er bleibt ein guter Freund.

He remains a good friend.

See 17.2 (p. 23).

S = adj.

Sie wird Wirtschaftsprüferin.

She is going to be a chartered accountant.

Sie ist intelligent.

She is intelligent.

Er ist ihr ähnlich. (See 19.9.)

He is like her.

42.3

The vast majority of verbs require one or two further elements in order to complete their sense, and these cannot be in the nominative (subject) case if they are nouns or pronouns. The basic patterns are:

(a) Completion with one element

SVOa

Ich kaufe den Computer. (See 18.1.)

I buy the computer.

SVOD

Der Test dient einem wichtigen Zweck. (See 19.6.)

The test serves an important purpose.

SVOg

Dieses Ergebnis bedarf einer Erklärung. (See 20.4.)

This result requires an explanation.

SVpOa

Ich warte auf den günstigsten Augenblick. (See 38.)

I am waiting for the most favourable moment.

SVpOd

Ich bestehe auf meinem Recht. (See 38.)

I insist on my rights.

SVloc

Das Theaterstück beginnt bald. (See 50.)

The play begins soon.

Das Theaterstück beginnt in einer Stunde.

The play begins in one hour.

Das Theaterstück beginnt nach dem Konzert.

The play begins after the concert.

Das Geld liegt dort. (See 80.2.)

The money is there.

Das Geld liegt auf dem Tisch. (See 19.5.)

The money is on the table.

Wir wohnen dort.

We live there.

Wir wohnen in der Stadtmitte.

We live in the town centre.

Wir wohnen auf dem Land.

We live in the country.

See 19.5 (p. 28).

SVdir

Wir fahren dorthin.

We're driving there.

Wir fahren in die Stadtmitte.

We're driving into the town centre.

See 18.3 (p. 24).

Wir fahren aufs Land.

We're driving into the country.

See 18.3 (p. 24).

SVext

Das Theaterstück dauert lange.

The play lasts a long time.

See 18.4 (p. 25).

Das Theaterstück dauert den ganzen Abend.

The play lasts the whole evening.

Sie ist (um) einen Kopf kleiner als ihr Bruder.

She is a head smaller than her brother.

See 48.6 (p. 127).

(b) Completion with two elements

SVOaOd/SVOdOa

Sie zeigt dem neuen Kollegen die Arbeitsmethode.

She shows the routine to the new colleague.

Sie zeigt ihm die Arbeitsmethode.

She shows him the routine.

Sie zeigt sie ihm.

She shows it (to) him.

She shows him it.

See 12 (pp. 17–18) for noun and pronoun objects.

SVOaOa

Der Brief hat mich den ganzen Abend gekostet.

The letter cost me the whole evening.

See 18.8 (p. 26) for the use of the accusative.

SVOaOg

Sie beschuldigte ihn des Mordes.
She accused him of murder.

- ▶ See 20.4 (p. 32) on verbs taking the genitive.

SVpOaOa

SVpOaOd

- ▶ See 38 (pp. 90–3) on prepositional verbs.

Die Experten schätzen den Schaden auf eine Million Euros.
The experts estimate the damage at one million euros.

Die Experten schätzen ihn auf eine Million Euros.
The experts estimate it at one million euros.

Die Experten warnen die Regierung vor der Inflationsgefahr.
The experts warn the government of the danger of inflation.

Die Experten warnen sie vor der Inflationsgefahr.
The experts warn them of the danger of inflation.

Die Experten warnen sie davor, dass Inflationsgefahr besteht.
The experts warn them that there is a danger of inflation.

- ▶ See 42.3e (p. 114), 50.6 (p. 131) and 38.2 (p. 93).

Die Experten warnen sie davor.
The experts warn them about it.

Die Experten warnen sie vor diesem Mann.
The experts warn them about this man.

Die Experten warnen sie vor ihm.
The experts warn them about him.

SVOa[=]Oa

Ich nannte ihn einen Lügner.
I called him a liar.

- ▶ See 18.8 (p. 26).

SVOa[=]adj.

Die Zutaten machen das Essen interessant.
The ingredients make the meal interesting.

SVOaloc

Ich habe meine Brieftasche in der Schublade gefunden.
I found my wallet in the drawer.

- ▶ See 19.5 (p. 28).

Ich habe sie dort gefunden.
I found it there.

Er hat die Konferenz für diesen Mittwoch anberaumt.
He has called the conference for this Wednesday.

Er hat sie für dann anberaumt.
He has called it for then.

- ▶ See 18.2 (p. 24).
- SVOadir

Sie legt das Geld dorthin.
She puts the money there.

Sie legt das Geld auf den Tisch.
She puts the money on(to) the table.

- ▶ See 18.3 (p. 24).

Sie legt es dorthin.
She puts it there.

Sie legt es auf den Tisch.
She puts it on(to) the table.

- ▶ See 18.3 (p. 24).

Wir haben die Konferenz auf nächsten Freitag verschoben.
We have postponed the conference till next Friday.

Wir haben sie auf nächsten Freitag verschoben.
We have postponed it till next Friday.

- ▶ See also 35.1 (p. 74).

(c) It is sometimes difficult to be sure which pattern a particular reflexive verb fits. It all depends on whether the reflexive pronoun is seen as an integral part of the verb or as just one of the possible object completions of the verb (see 30):

Ich stelle mir die Zukunft vor. (SVOa)
I imagine the future.

Ich stelle Ihnen meinen neuen Freund vor. (SVOdOa)
I introduce my new friend to you.

- ▶ See 12 (pp. 17–18).

Er stellte sich der Polizei (SVOd)
He gave himself up to the police.

Sie vergewissert sich der finanziellen Lage. (SVOg)
She assures herself of the financial situation.

- ▶ See 20.4 (p. 32).

Ich erinnere mich an letztes Jahr. (SVpOa)
I remember last year.

Die Reeperbahn befindet sich in Hamburg. (SVploc)
The Reeperbahn is in Hamburg.

Ich begeben mich hinein/ins Theater. (SVpdir)
I'm going in/(in)to the theatre.

▶ See 18.3 (p. 24).

Die neue Siedlung erstreckt sich bis zum Wald. (SVext)
The new housing estate stretches to the wood.

▶ See 37 (pp. 87–90).

(d) Dictionaries and grammars often provide 'shorthand' guides to these completion patterns using general words like jemand- (in the appropriate case form) and etwas. Where the verb is completed by 'someone or something', the case required can be deduced from the form of jemand-. Thus jemandem oder etwas dienen 'to serve someone or something' requires any noun or pronoun to be in the dative: es dient keinem Zweck 'it serves no purpose', ich habe Ihnen gedient 'I have been of service to you'. Often, the forms jemanden, jemandem and jemandes are abbreviated (e.g. to jmdn., jmdm. and jmds.), but they always show the required case ending.

▶ See 31.5 (p. 58).

Here is a representative list of the basic patterns:

Subject + verb

schlafen 'to sleep/be sleeping' intelligent sein 'to be intelligent'

Wirtschaftsprüfer sein 'to be a chartered accountant'

ein guter Freund sein 'to be a good friend'

jmdm. ähnlich sein 'to be like someone'

▶ See 23 (pp. 37–41).

Subject + verb + one completion

jmdn. kennen 'to know sb.'

jmdm. oder etw. (dat.) dienen 'to serve sb./sth.' (19.6)

jmds. oder etw. (gen.) bedürfen 'to be in need of sb./sth.' (20.4)

Subject + prepositional verb + one completion auf jmdn. oder etw. (acc.) warten 'to wait for sb. or sth.'

auf jmdm. oder etw. (dat.) bestehen 'to insist on sb. or sth.'

▶ See 38 (pp. 90–3).

Subject + verb + two completions

jmdm. etw. (acc.) zeigen 'to show sb. sth.' (12)

jmdn. einer Sache (gen.) beschuldigen 'to accuse sb. of sth.' (20.4)

jmdn. etw. (acc.) nennen 'to call sb. sth.' (18.8)

jmdn./etw. (acc.) interessant machen 'to make sb./sth. interesting'

Subject + prepositional verb + two completions

etw. (acc.) auf etw. (acc.) schätzen 'to estimate sth. at so much'

jmdn. vor jmdm. oder etw. (dat.) warnen 'to warn sb. about sb./sth.'

See also 38 (pp. 90–3).

Subject + verb + location

irgendwo liegen 'to be lying somewhere' sich irgendwo befinden 'to be situated somewhere' (see 37)

Subject + verb + direction irgendwohin gehen 'to go somewhere' sich irgendwohin begeben 'to go somewhere' (formal: lit. to betake oneself somewhere)

Subject + verb + object + direction

jmdn./etw. (acc.) irgendwohin tun 'to put sb./sth. somewhere'

Subject + verb + object + location

jmdn. oder etw. (acc.) irgendwo finden 'to find sb./sth. somewhere'

Subject + verb + extent

einen Augenblick dauern 'to last a moment' (see 18.4)

um einen Kopf größer oder kleiner sein 'to be a head taller or shorter' (see 48)

(e) Completion by a clause

In many of the above patterns the verb can be completed by a clause instead of a noun or pronoun. The subject can also be a clause. For example, instead of noun phrases in the SVOa pattern:

Diese Tatsache erklärt seine gute Laune.

This fact explains his good mood.

the object completion can be a clause:

Diese Tatsache erklärt, warum er jetzt den ganzen Tag singt.

This fact explains why he sings all day now.

Or the subject can be a clause:

Dass er bald heiratet, erklärt seine gute Laune.

The fact that he is getting married soon explains his good mood.

or both can be clauses:

Dass er bald heiratet, erklärt, warum er jetzt den ganzen Tag singt.

The fact that he is getting married soon explains why he sings all day now.

See 5.2 (p. 7) for word order.

NOTE Prepositional verbs make a clause completion using da + preposition (see 32, 38.2 and 50.6):

Sie hat darauf bestanden, dass sie das Wochenende frei haben müsste.

She insisted that she had to have the weekend free.

See also 10.5d (p. 16).

(f) Completion by an infinitive clause with zu

Some verbs can be completed by an infinitive clause with zu, either on its own:

Ich habe vor, in den Ferien Spanisch zu lernen.

I intend to learn Spanish in the holidays.

See 36 (pp. 81–7).

Sie beabsichtigt, nächstes Jahr nach Japan zu fahren.

She intends to go to Japan next year.

or as one of two completions:

Er half mir, diese Wohnung zu finden.

He helped me to find this apartment.

Sie ermahnte ihn, langsamer zu fahren.

She urged him to drive more slowly.

See also 8.7a (p. 13) for word order in infinitive clauses.

(g) Sometimes a ‘dummy subject’ es occupies first position, when the real subject (in italics in the examples below) comes later in the sentence. This pattern is a variation on the standard SV pattern. Compare English ‘There is . . . /There are . . .’:

Es fehlt ein Hunderteuroschein. (= Ein Hunderteuroschein fehlt.)

A hundred euro note is missing.

There is a hundred euro note missing.

Es besteht die Gefahr, dass . . . (= Die Gefahr besteht, dass . . .)

There is the danger that . . . (lit. The danger exists that . . .)

Note that the dummy es can also be used with a plural subject:

Es kommen bald bessere Verkaufszahlen. (= Bessere Verkaufszahlen kommen bald.)

Better sales figures are coming soon.

See also 15.1 (p. 20) on word order and 40.2c (p. 103) on usage with the passive.

(h) Impersonal verbs with es as the subject are best learnt as a unit:

Es gelingt (+ dat.) ‘to succeed’

Es ist mir gelungen, nach Amerika zu kommen.
I succeeded in coming to America.

▶ See also 19.7 (p. 29).

Es handelt sich um (+ acc.) 'it concerns/it is about'

Es handelt sich um eine ehemalige Angestellte.
It concerns a former (female) employee.

▶ See also 37 (pp. 87–90).

Es geht um (+ acc.) 'it concerns/the issue is/what is at issue is'

Es geht um die Zukunft Europas.
The future of Europe is at issue.

▶ See 38 (pp. 90–3).

Es stellt sich heraus, dass 'it turns out that'

Es stellte sich heraus, dass er gelogen hatte.
It turned out that he had been lying.

▶ See also 36 (pp. 81–7) and 37.5 (p. 89).

(i) It is quite common for some completing elements to be omitted when the meaning is obvious from the context. For example:

Wie geht es dir?
How are things with you?

Wie geht es?
How are things?

Es geht mir gut, danke.
Es geht ganz gut, danke.
I am fine, thank you.

Es geht, danke.
OK, thanks.

Das hat uns kaum überrascht.
That hardly surprised us.

Das hat kaum überrascht.
That was hardly a surprise.

Wir haben doch schon Geld an die Kirche gegeben.
Wir haben doch schon an die Kirche gegeben.
Wir haben doch schon gegeben.
But we have already given (money) (to the church).

▶ See also 35 (pp. 74–81) and 39.8b (p. 102) for omission of wenn.

(j) It is often possible to introduce a dative into some of these patterns to express the person involved or interested in the action:

Ich kaufe (mir) einen neuen Computer.

I buy (myself) a new computer.

See 19.2 (p. 26) for the dative and 37.3 (p. 88) on reflexive verbs.

Note especially the S=adj. pattern, usually with zu, with the meaning 'too . . . for me/him, etc.'/'as far as I/he, etc., is concerned' (see 19.9 on the dative):

Das ist mir (zu) wichtig.

That is (too) important for/to me.

Sie ist mir zu klug.

She is too clever for my liking.

(k) The following unusual completion patterns should be noted:

mich friert 'I am freezing'

mir ist kalt 'I am cold'

mir ist warm 'I am warm'

mir ist heiß 'I am hot'

See 30 (pp. 54–7).

Er ist warm/kalt is a statement about a person's character, not about temperature, and Ich bin heiß means 'I am sexually aroused', and should only be used of animals in polite discourse (die Hündin ist heiß 'the bitch is on heat'). Be careful!

VII

Adjectives and adverbs

43 Predicative and attributive adjectives

43.1 Adjectives describe nouns. If used predicatively, that is if they are placed after the finite verb (see 5.1), very often some form of sein, they do not take any endings:

Das Buch war ganz interessant.
The book was really interesting.

Die Äpfel sind jetzt reif.
The apples are ripe now.

Ihre Stimme klingt fröhlich.
Her voice sounds cheerful.

43.2 However, if used attributively, i.e. before the noun they describe, adjectives are declined:

Hast du das neue Plakat gesehen?
Have you seen the new poster?

Die reifen Äpfel schmecken wirklich gut.
The ripe apples taste really nice.

43.3 Attributive adjectives can have a der, ein or zero declension. All three declensions are regular and involve no more than minor variations in endings. The particular declension used depends on what determiner (if any) precedes the adjective (see 24).

44 Declension following der etc.

In this section and sections 45 and 46 it should be noted that the declension we are concerned with is not that of der, ein, etc., but that of the following adjective.

The 'declension following der' is sometimes also referred to as the 'weak' declension, since the adjective does not carry much information about the case and gender of the noun: this information is given to a greater extent by the form of der, ein, etc. (not to be confused with the 'weak' declension of nouns, see 28.2). The various forms of the adjective ending following der are shown in italics:

Declension following der

44.1

	Masculine	Neuter	Feminine
Singular
Nominative	der große Hut	das kleine Dorf	die schöne Stadt
Accusative	den großen Hut	das kleine Dorf	die schöne Stadt
Dative	dem großen Hut	dem kleinen Dorf	der schönen Stadt
Genitive	des großen Hutes	des kleinen Dorfes	der schönen Stadt
Plural
(all genders)
Nominative	die guten Kinder
Accusative	die guten Kinder
Dative	den guten Kindern
Genitive	der guten Kinder

44.2

These adjective endings are used after der words

See 24.1.

Dieser große Mann wohnt bei uns im Gebäude.
This/That tall man lives in our building.

Sie arbeiten in jenem baufälligen Haus.
They are working in that tumbledown house.

Er kommt immer mit vielem guten Stoff.
He always comes with a lot of good material.

Welchen Film habt ihr gesehen?
Which film did you see? (see 30.4b)

Sie beschrieb die wirtschaftlichen Probleme sämtlicher europäischen Länder.
She described the economic problems of all the European countries.

Following beide, irgendwelche and solche, der-declension endings are usual but the zero declension (see 46) is also found:

Wir haben beide verletzten (or verletzte) Soldaten gesehen.
We saw both injured soldiers.

Solche komischen (or komische) Leute findet man hier öfters.
You quite often get funny people like that here.

See 24.2 (p. 43).

Note the der-declension ending after personal pronouns (see 30):

Wir Deutschen wollten ja unsere D-Mark behalten.
We Germans wanted to hold on to our deutschmark.

44.3

The plural alle 'all' is also followed by der-declension adjective endings, but note that any following possessive adjectives (e.g. mein, dein, sein, etc. – see 30.3) or demonstrative adjectives (e.g. dieser, jener – see 24.1) take the same endings as alle:

Nominative	alle deine guten Freunde 'all your good friends' alle jene guten Freunde 'all those good friends'
Accusative	alle deine guten Freunde alle jene guten Freunde
Dative	allen deinen guten Freunden allen jenen guten Freunden
Genitive	aller deiner guten Freunde aller jener guten Freunde

Alle diese schönen Sommertage nutzen mir nichts, wenn ich die ganze Zeit arbeiten muss.

All these lovely summer days are no good to me if I have to work all the time.

In allen unseren Büros ist es furchtbar kalt.

It's terribly cold in all our offices.

Kennst du alle jene neuen Spieler?

Do you know all those new players?

44.4

After alles 'everything', the adjective declines like a der-declension neuter adjective but usually has an initial capital letter:

Nominative	alles Gute 'all the best'
Accusative	alles Gute
Dative	alles Gutem
Genitive	alles Guten

Ich wünsche euch alles Gute.

I wish you all the best.

See 10.5 (p. 15) for alles as a relative pronoun and 62.4c (p. 180) and 66 (pp. 195–201) for its use in good wishes.

45

Declension following ein

This is also sometimes called the 'mixed' declension (since the adjective endings are a mix of 'strong' (see 46) and 'weak' (see 44) patterns). The various forms of the adjective ending following ein and kein are shown in italics:

'Zero' declension

45.1

	Masculine	Neuter	Feminine
Singular
Nominative	ein neuer Wagen	ein altes Haus	eine leere Dose
Accusative	einen neuen Wagen	ein altes Haus	eine leere Dose
Dative	einem neuen Wagen	einem alten Haus	einer leeren Dose
Genitive	eines neuen Wagens	eines alten Hauses	einer leeren Dose
Plural
(all genders)
Nominative	keine reichen Leute
Accusative	keine reichen Leute
Dative	keinen reichen Leuten
Genitive	keiner reichen Leute

45.2

The ein-declension endings are used after ein, kein and the possessive adjectives mein 'my', dein 'your', sein 'his', ihr 'her/its/their', unser 'our', Ihr 'your' (polite form), euer 'your' (pl. of dein):

Das Haus braucht ein neues Dach.

The house needs a new roof.

Ein junger Mann namens Ehlers sucht dich.

A young man called Ehlers is looking for you.

Er ist mein bester Freund.

He's my best friend.

Wir können unsere schweren Koffer nicht mehr tragen.

We cannot carry our heavy bags any longer.

46

'Zero' declension

The term 'zero' here denotes the absence of a preceding der or ein word. It is also sometimes called the 'strong' declension since, in the absence of a der, ein, etc. word, the adjective ending carries a lot of information about the gender and the case of the noun. The term 'strong' here is not to be confused with 'strong declension' of nouns, see 28.1d. The forms of the adjective ending in this pattern are shown in italics:

46.1

	Masculine	Neuter	Feminine
Singular
Nominative	französischer Wein	helles Bier	frische Sahne
Accusative	französischen Wein	helles Bier	frische Sahne
Dative	französischem Wein	hellem Bier	frischer Sahne
Genitive	französischen Weins	hellen Biers	frischer Sahne
Plural (all genders)
Nominative	reiche Leute
Accusative	reiche Leute
Dative	reichen Leuten
Genitive	reicher Leute

46.2

The so-called zero-declension endings are used:

- (a) When an adjective is not preceded either by an article (22) or by a determiner (24):

Roter Wein gefällt mir am besten.

I like red wine best.

Ich empfehle Ihnen frisches Obst.

I recommend you eat/buy fresh fruit.

Ich mag den Geschmack frisch gebackenen Brotes.

I like the taste of freshly baked bread.

Bei schönem Wetter gehen wir oft wandern.

In nice weather we often go walking.

- (b) After ein paar 'a few':

Ich habe ein paar gute Freunde in Berlin.

I have a few good friends in Berlin.

See also 59.1e (p. 150).

- (c) After any numeral other than one:

Ich habe sechs alte Weinflaschen gefunden.

I've found six old wine bottles.

See 75.5 (p. 245).

46.3

Following etwas 'something', viel 'much', wenig 'little', nichts 'nothing' and allerlei 'all kinds of', the adjective declines like a zero-declension neuter adjective and usually begins with a capital letter:

Nominative	nichts Interessantes 'nothing of interest'
Accusative	nichts Interessantes
Dative	nichts Interessantem
Genitive	nichts Interessanten

The genitive form is rarely found.

Ich habe wenig Neues zu berichten.

I have little new to report.

Wir brauchen etwas Konkreteres.

We need something more concrete.

See 48 (pp. 125–8) on comparison of adjectives.

Er ist mit allerlei Neuem nach Hause gekommen.

He came home with all sorts of new things.

See 10.5a (p. 15) for nichts, vieles and weniges.

46.4

After the indefinites einige 'some/a few', etliche 'several', folgende 'following', manche 'some', mehrere 'several', viele 'many' and wenige 'few', the adjective also takes zero-declension endings (though manche can have a following adjective with a der-declension ending):

Wir haben wenige kalte Tage gehabt.

We had few cold days.

Einige arme Rentner können sich nicht richtig ernähren.
Some poor pensioners are unable to feed themselves properly.

Dank vieler guter Ratschläge hat sich unser Geschäft erfolgreich entwickelt. (see 19.4 and 20.7)
Thanks to much good advice our business has developed successfully.

See 10.5a (p. 15) for einiges, folgendes, manches.

46.5

When viel and wenig precede singular, so-called 'uncountable' nouns, or when they are used as adverbs, they are not declined, and the following adjective takes zero-declension endings:

Viel guter Wein ist verschwendet worden.

A lot of good wine has been wasted.

Dieser Sessel ist aus wenig haltbarem Stoff gemacht.

This armchair is made of not very hard-wearing material.

See also 48.4 (p. 127).

46.6

Note that a string of adjectives before a noun all have the same endings, whether they take der-, zero- or ein-declension endings:

In dem Moment ist ein freundlicher alter Polizist vorbeigekommen.

At that moment a friendly old policeman came by.

Hast du schon die schönen, runden spanischen Apfelsinen gegessen?

Have you eaten the beautiful, round Spanish oranges yet?

Trockener französischer Wein schmeckt mir gar nicht.

I don't like dry French wine at all.

In the masculine or neuter dative singular the second element may take the der-declension ending n rather than the zero-declension m:

Der Anzug ist aus teurem italienischen Stoff.

The suit is made of expensive Italian material.

47

Other adjective types

47.1

Invariable -er ending

(a) German readily forms adjectives from the names of cities and towns by adding -er to the place name. Adjectives thus formed have an initial capital letter and do not decline (see 80):

Hast du denn das Berliner Stadtschloss schon besucht?

Have you been to Berlin Castle yet?

Die Basler Fastnacht ist ein echtes Erlebnis.

The Basel Carnival is a real experience.

Wegen des Londoner Gipfeltreffens ist diese Straße heute gesperrt.

This street is closed today because of the London summit.

Waren Sie schon im Ulmer Dom?

Have you ever been to Ulm Cathedral?

- (b) Adjectives formed from numerals also end in -er and do not decline:

In den fünfziger Jahren hatten wir ja wenig Geld.

Of course we had little money in the fifties.

See 81.4 (p. 287).

47.2

Spelling of certain adjectives

- (a) The adjective hoch loses its c in declined forms:

Die Kosten sind zu hoch.

The costs are too high.

But:

Sie erstiegen den hohen Fernsehturm.

They climbed the high television tower.

In den hohen Bergen ist es immer viel kühler.

Up in the (high) mountains it's always a lot cooler.

- (b) The e preceding the final -l, -n and -r is lost in declined forms:

Die Firma ist nicht mehr rentabel.

The firm/business is no longer viable.

But:

die unrentable Firma

Er erzählt ungeheure Lügen.

He tells outrageous lies.

Das war ein miserables Spiel.

That was a rotten game.

Der Mann in der dunklen Jacke.

The man in the dark jacket.

Infolge des sauren Regens sind hier viele Bäume gestorben.

Many trees have died here as a result of acid rain.

See also 20.7 (p. 33).

Note also Basler from Basel in 47.1a above.

47.3

Non-declinable adjectives

Certain adjectives do not take case endings. There are three main categories here:

- (a) Adjectives used exclusively in spoken German, such as klasse, prima, super, all of which have similar meanings:

Der ist ein prima Typ.

He's a smashing/really nice person.

See 74.4 (p. 232).

Wir hatten eine super Zeit bei euch.

We had a great time at your place.

- (b) The colour adjectives beige, lila, orange, rosa:

Sie trug ein rosa Kleid.

She wore a pink dress.

Sie liebt die lila Hose.

She loves the purple trousers.

Er hat ein orange Hemd (but: ein orangefarbenes Hemd).
He's got an orange shirt.

(c) ganz and halb when used before place names without a preceding article or determiner:

Ganz Deutschland war in Trümmern.
The whole of Germany was in ruins.

In ganz Frankreich finden morgen Wahlen statt.
There are elections tomorrow in the whole of France.

Durch halb Europa sind wir gereist.
We've travelled halfway round Europe.

47.4

Adjectives with prepositions

Adjectives are often used in combination with specific prepositions which ought to be learnt along with the adjective. A few examples of this widespread phenomenon are:

bereit zu (+ dat.) 'ready for' eifersüchtig auf (+ acc.) 'jealous of' gleichgültig gegenüber (+ dat.) 'indifferent towards' reich an (+ dat.) 'rich in' typisch für (+ acc.) 'typical of'
verwandt mit (+ dat.) 'related to' (see 74.9)

Er ist eifersüchtig auf seinen Bruder.
He is jealous of his brother.

Das ist ja typisch für diese Leute.
That's typical of those people.

Antje ist, glaube ich, mit dem Bernd verwandt.
Antje is related to Bernd, I think.

See also 18.2 (p. 24) and 19.5 (p. 28).

47.5

The negative prefix un-

The German prefix un- can correspond to a variety of English negative prefixes:

undiszipliniert 'undisciplined' unhöflich 'discourteous/impolite' unmöglich 'impossible' unverständlich 'incomprehensible'

See also 54.1 (p. 135).

48

Comparison of adjectives

See 105 (pp. 371–3).

48.1

The majority of the simple adjectives in 43–47 can be used to compare one thing or person with another. German comparatives (the form of the adjective used to compare things or persons with each other) and superlatives (the form used to denote the greatest intensity of a quality) are formed by appending -er and -est/-st, respectively, to the basic adjective and then adding the appropriate adjective endings (see 51 for comparison of adverbs):

Ich lese ein interessanteres Buch als dieses.

I'm reading a more interesting book than that.

Das muss wohl das interessanteste Buch in der ganzen Bibliothek sein.

That must be the most interesting book in the whole library.

Die breitere Straße bringt ja nur noch mehr Verkehr.

The wider road will only bring more traffic.

Wir landeten auf der breitesten Landebahn.

We landed on the widest runway.

Care must be taken with -er endings as some adjectives end in -er. For example:

Das Essen war lecker.

The meal was tasty.

Ein leckerer Essen.

A tasty meal.

But:

Ein leckereres Essen

A tastier meal (see 43)

48.2

Most common adjectives of one syllable add an umlaut to a, o or u in the comparative or superlative. These include:

alt 'old'

dumm 'stupid'

grob 'coarse/rough'

hart 'hard/harsh'

kalt 'cold'

klug 'clever'

krank 'ill'

kurz 'short'

lang 'long'

scharf 'sharp'

schwach 'weak'

schwarz 'black'

stark 'strong'

warm 'warm'

Das ist ja eine viel längere Straße als unsere.

That's a much longer street than ours.

Wir möchten in einem wärmeren Klima leben.

We'd like to live in a warmer climate.

Die jüngste Tochter ist schon verheiratet.

The youngest daughter is already married.

See 44–6 (pp. 118–23) for rules on adjective endings.

48.3

The superlative with -est is usually employed with adjectives whose simple or basic form ends in -d, -s, -sch, -ß, -t, -tz, -x or -z:

Warum habe ich das härteste Bett?

Why have I got the hardest bed?

Sie hat das blasseste Gesicht, das ich je gesehen habe.

She's got the palest face I've ever seen.

Damals hatten wir immer die wildesten Partys.

We always had the wildest parties in those days.

See also 105.1 (p. 371).

48.4

Common irregular comparative and superlative forms include:

groß 'big'	größer 'bigger'	das größte 'the biggest'	am größten 'biggest'
gut 'good'	besser 'better'	das beste 'the best'	am besten 'best'
hoch 'high'	höher 'higher'	das höchste 'the highest'	am höchsten 'highest'
nah 'near'	näher 'nearer'	das nächste 'the nearest'	am nächsten 'nearest'
viel 'much'	mehr 'more'	das meiste 'the most'	am meisten 'most'
wenig 'little'	weniger 'less/ fewer'	das wenigste 'the least'	am wenigsten 'least/ fewest'
	minder 'less'	das mindeste 'the least'

Note that the alternative comparative forms of wenig are indeclinable:

Ich habe weniger Chancen im Leben gehabt als mein Bruder.

I've had fewer opportunities in life than my brother.

See also 46.5 (p. 122).

Minder is only used in formal written German and serves to qualify an adjective:

Unsere Gruppe war nicht minder benachteiligt als eure.

Our group was no less disadvantaged than yours.

48.5

Adjectives used predicatively (see 43) do not decline. In the superlative (48.5), the predicative form is am + superlative ending in -en (48.3). For example, am schnellsten 'the quickest', am besten 'the best', etc.:

Dieses Haus ist am schönsten.

This house is the nicest.

Das erste Mädchen war am klügsten.

The first girl was the cleverest.

48.6

(a) English 'than' and 'as' in comparisons are expressed by als and so . . . wie, respectively. The following noun, pronoun or adjective agrees in case with the thing or person being compared:

Sie ist älter als ich.

She's older than I am.

Eure Wohnung ist größer als unsre.

Your flat is bigger than ours.

See 83 (pp. 300–3) for use of als as a conjunction; see also 23.1c (p. 38).

Die Webers sind nicht so reich wie die Müllers.

The Webers are not as rich as the Müllers.

Birgit ist fast so groß wie Maria.

Birgit is almost as tall as Maria.

The comparison can be reinforced by genauso or ebenso (see also 105.2):

Dieser Film ist genauso langweilig wie der von letzter Woche.

This film is just as boring as last week's.

In Italien im Sommer ist es ebenso heiß wie in Griechenland.

Italy is just as hot in summer as Greece.

Comparatives can also be reinforced by the use of a preceding noch or viel, and superlatives by the use of aller- or bei weitem:

Dieser Anzug ist noch billiger.

This suit is even cheaper.

Diese Aufgabe ist viel langweiliger.

This task is much more boring.

Sie ist zur Zeit die allerschnellste Radfahrerin der Welt.

She is currently the fastest cyclist in the world.

Das ist bei weitem seine beste Leistung.

That is by far his best performance.

(b) In the superlative, English 'of' is expressed by von or the genitive case:

Unser Kaninchen war das schönste von allen.

Our rabbit was the prettiest of them all.

Das ist ja das schwierigste unsrer vielen Probleme.

That is certainly the most difficult of our many problems.

(c) When used in the comparative, attributive adjectives can express the sense of 'fairly' or 'quite':

Sie haben eine kleinere Summe verlangt.

They demanded a fairly small sum (of money).

(d) 'More and more' in a comparative phrase is conveyed by German immer and the predicative comparative adjective (see 43):

Die Situation wird immer ernster.

The situation is getting more and more serious.

Die Nächte werden immer kälter.

The nights are getting more and more cold/colder and colder.

(e) English 'the more . . . the more' is expressed in German by je + -er . . . , um so -er or desto -er (see 82.1):

Je schneller* du es machst, um so früher kriegst du das Geld.

The quicker you do it, the sooner you get the money.

Je länger* wir die Antwort hinausschieben, desto schwieriger wird es für sie sein.

The longer we delay answering, the more difficult it will be for them.

49 Extended adjectival phrases

See 58.1 (p. 146).

Also known as 'extended participial phrases', adjectival phrases consist of a participle (33.1) used as an attributive adjective (see 43) placed before the noun it describes. The participle can either be present or past:

For the use of adjectival phrases in definitions, see 75.1 (p. 241).

Dieses von Siemens entwickelte Verfahren ist sehr bedeutend.

This process developed by Siemens (lit. This by Siemens developed process) is very significant.

Die das Streikrecht verteidigenden Arbeiter suchen die Unterstützung ihres Abgeordneten.

The workers who are defending the right to strike (lit. The the right to strike defending workers) are seeking the support of their MP.

Die sich auch in Großbritannien schnell entwickelnde ökologische Bewegung übt einen großen Einfluss auf die Wähler aus.

The ecology movement which is also growing quickly in Great Britain (lit. The also in Great Britain quickly developing ecological movement) has a great influence on voters.

As the last two examples show, the adjectival phrase may be extended by objects (18.1, 19.1), adverbs (50) and reflexive pronouns (37.2), with the result that article and noun are separated by several other elements. Note that English uses a phrase or subordinate clause (8) placed after the noun to render these German phrases.

NOTE

These extended adjectival phrases are generally not used in spoken German but occur frequently in newspapers, magazines, legal and other official documents (see 58).

50 Adverbs

50.1

Adverbs qualify verbs and tell us how, why, at what time or in what place the action of the verb was performed. There are several categories of adverb, including ones of:

- (a) time (e.g. schließlich 'finally', noch einmal 'once again', unterdessen 'meanwhile') (see 81 and 76.3–6)
- (b) degree (e.g. fast 'almost', genug 'enough', teilweise 'partly')
- (c) manner (e.g. gründlich 'thoroughly', schnell 'quickly', umsonst 'in vain')
- (d) place (e.g. draußen 'outside', drüben 'over there', oben 'up/upstairs') (see 80)

Some separable prefixes (los-, weg-, zurück-, etc.) are adverbs too (see also 36.1, 57.1)

50.2

The simple, i.e. uninflected, form of the adjective (43) can usually be used as an adverb:

Sie haben die Arbeit gut gemacht.

You've done the job well.

50.3

There are, in addition, a number of characteristic adverbial endings which are added to the simple adjective. The most common are: -e, -erweise, -lang, -lich, -s, -wärts, -weise:

Der Zug ist pünktlich angekommen.
The train arrived on time.

Wie lange wohnen Sie schon in Bonn?
How long have you lived in Bonn?

Glücklicherweise ist nichts passiert.
Fortunately nothing happened.

Sie haben stundenlang darüber diskutiert.
They spent hours discussing it.

Das hast du aber sicherlich schon gemacht, oder?
But you've surely done that already, haven't you?

Wir treffen uns meistens abends/vormittags/montags. (NB small letters because they are adverbs)
We usually meet in the evenings/mornings/on Mondays.

Er fuhr rückwärts in die Garage.
He reversed (the car) into the garage.

In der 9. Klasse lernt man Französisch, wahlweise auch Russisch.
You study French in Year 9 and you can also take Russian as an option.

See also 56 (pp. 141–2).

50.4

Hin and her are added to several prepositions as a prefix (e.g. hinüber, herbei, hingegen, herauf) and to a small number of adverbs of place as a suffix (e.g. dorthin, hierher). They indicate motion to (her) or motion away from (hin) the speaker (see also 80.7):

Kommen Sie herein.
Come in.

Wir gingen die Treppe hinauf.
We went up the stairs.

Gehen Sie hier die Straße hinunter.
Go down this street.

Sie liefen dorthin.
They ran there.

Komm hierher!
Come here!

Notice also the hybrid form gehen Sie 'raus! 'get out!' (see 58).

Often hin and her simply serve to reinforce the meaning of the preposition:

Sie rannte aus dem Haus hinaus.
She ran out of the house.

See 18.2–3 (pp. 24–5), 19.4–5 (pp. 27–8).

Wir liefen um den Sportplatz herum.

We ran around the sports ground.

50.5

(a) Interrogatives, or question words, represent another type of adverb. Some are formed with the suffix hin or her:

wann 'when?'

warum 'why?'

was 'what?'

wer 'who?'

wie 'how?'

wo 'where?'

woher 'where from?'

wohin 'where to?'

(b) Several interrogatives consist of wo + preposition. Note that if the preposition begins with a vowel, r is inserted:

wodurch 'by/through what?'

wohin 'where to?'

womit 'with what?'

woraus 'out of what?'

worin 'what in?'

worüber 'what about?'

wovon 'about what?'

Wohin fahrt ihr morgen?

Where are you going tomorrow?

Wovon handelt das Buch?

What's the book about?

Worüber haben Sie sich unterhalten?

What did you talk about?

See 10.6 (p. 16) for these forms as relative pronouns; see also 7 (p. 12) on direct questions and 9 (p. 14) on indirect questions.

50.6

For each of the interrogatives in 50.5b there is a corresponding adverb:

dadurch 'through it/that'

danach 'after it/that'

daraus 'out of it/that'

davor 'before/in front of it', etc.

Dahin 'to there' and daher 'from there' (also 'therefore') are the corresponding forms for wohin and woher respectively.

See 32 (p. 58) and 38.2 (p. 93).

Ich bin danach sofort nach Hause gegangen.

I went straight home after that.

Siehst du das rote Auto davor?

Can you see the red car in front of it?

Daher* habt ihr keine Alternative. Ihr müsst mitkommen.

You therefore have no choice. You must come with us.

- For the order of adverbials in a sentence or clause, see 11.

The wo + preposition words and the da + preposition words stand in a relationship of question answer.

Worüber haben sie sich unterhalten? (What did they talk about?)

Über die Baustelle. (About the building site.)

Darüber, dass die Baustelle so viel Lärm verursacht. (About the fact that the building site creates so much noise.)

- See 42.3e (p. 114).

Darüber! (pointing to the building site)

Note also darum, corresponding to warum (why?), as well as worum (about what):

Worum geht es? (What's it about?)

Darum. (About that!)

Warum? (Why?)

Darum! (Because!)

Darum also sometimes has the meaning 'for this reason':

Darum wollte ich ja nicht hingehen.

That's the reason why I didn't want to go.

- See also 32 (p. 58), 38.2 (p. 93) and 42.3e (p. 114).

51 Comparison of adverbs

- 51.1 The comparative of adverbs is essentially the same as that of adjectives (see 105):

schnell 'quickly/fast', schneller 'more quickly/faster' gut 'well', besser 'better'

effizient 'efficiently', effizienter 'more efficiently'

- 51.2 As with adjectives, 'than' in a comparison is expressed by als:

Horst behauptet, er habe seine Hausaufgaben besser als alle anderen gemacht.

Horst claims he did his homework better than all the others.

- See 8.3 (p. 11) for use of als as a conjunction; see also 23.1c (p. 38).

- 51.3 The superlative form of the adverb is the same as that of the predicative adjective (43 and 48):

Sie läuft am schnellsten.

She runs the fastest.

In unsrer Familie spricht mein Vater Englisch am besten.

My father is the best English speaker in our family.

- 51.4 The superlative of adverbs can also be formed in other ways:

- (a) Through the use of äußerst, höchst or möglichst:

Er hat die Sache äußerst schnell erledigt.
He dealt with the matter extremely quickly.

Die Studenten haben höchst leichtsinnig reagiert.
The students reacted in a most thoughtless manner.

Teilen Sie uns bitte möglichst bald mit, ob Sie unsere Kampagne unterstützen werden.
Please let us know as soon as possible whether you will support our campaign.

(b) An alternative to am schnellsten, am besten, etc. is the use of aufs Schnellste, aufs Beste, etc.:

Wir haben ihm per Brief aufs Wärmste gratuliert.
We sent him a letter with our warmest congratulations.

Die Konferenz war aufs Beste organisiert.
The conference was extremely well organized.

The sense here is 'could not be warmer/better'.

51.5

There are a small number of irregular comparative and superlative adverbial forms:

bald 'soon'	eher/früher 'sooner'	am ehesten/am frühesten 'soonest'
gern 'gladly/ keenly'	lieber 'more gladly/ rather'	am liebsten 'most gladly/most of all'
nah 'closely'	näher 'more closely'	am nächsten 'most closely/closest'
oft 'often'	öfter 'more often'	am öftesten (or am häufigsten) 'most often'
viel 'much'	mehr 'more'	am meisten 'most'

Note the adverbial superlative forms in -ens, the most common of which are:

bestens 'very well'
höchstens 'at the most'
meistens 'mostly'
mindestens 'at least'
nächstens 'shortly'
schnellstens 'as quickly as possible' strengstens 'strictly'
wärmstens 'most warmly' wenigstens 'at least'

In der U-Bahn ist das Rauchen strengstens verboten.
Smoking in the underground is strictly forbidden.

Der Aufsatz wird höchstens vier Seiten lang sein.
The essay will be four sides long at most.

Mein Kollege in Bochum hat Sie wärmstens empfohlen.
My colleague in Bochum has given you the warmest of recommendations.

VIII

Word structure and word formation

52 Principles of word formation

52.1 This section describes the main ways in which complex words are formed by combining vocabulary elements. For example: Umweltfreundlichkeit 'environmental friendliness' is composed of Umwelt 'environment' + Freundlichkeit 'friendliness'. Each of these in turn is built up as follows:

um 'around' + Welt 'world' > Umwelt 'environment'
Freund 'friend' + -lich > freundlich 'friendly' + -keit > Freundlichkeit 'friendliness'

The patterns of word formation are listed in this section simply according to whether they involve elements added to the beginning of a word (prefixes), to the end of a word (suffixes) or some other process.

52.2 It is important to realize that you cannot generalize from most of these patterns to predict other words. This is as true of English as it is of German. Note the following three pairs of words:

tief > Tiefe; schön > Schönheit; schnell > Schnelligkeit deep > depth; beautiful > beauty; fast > speed

Learning English involves knowing that the noun formed from the adjective 'steep' is not 'stepth'. Similarly, learning German involves knowing that the word for 'speed' is not Schnelle.

52.3 The irregularity of these patterns makes them largely unpredictable for someone in the early stages of learning the language. It is advisable not to coin words you have not met before on the basis of one of these patterns. But a knowledge of them will prove very useful in recognizing the meaning of words encountered for the first time and is therefore important in building vocabulary.

52.4 Some word formations have acquired specialized meanings. Thus, die Höhle (derived from hohl 'hollow') ought to mean 'hollowness' but actually means 'cave', and hitzefrei might mean 'free from heat' but actually means 'on official holiday from school because of extremely hot weather'.

52.5

The umlaut (see 1.5) is sometimes involved in the process of word formation in German, but it is not always possible to predict when it will be present.

The most important patterns are listed below.

53 Forming verbs

53.1

Without a prefix

All the verbs in this section are weak (see 33.4).

(a) -ieren can form verbs from nouns:

die Analyse 'analysis' > analysieren 'to analyse' die Kontrolle 'check/control' > kontrollieren 'to check/control' das Telefon 'telephone' > telefonieren 'to speak on the phone'

(b) -en can be added to a noun to form a verb, sometimes following a pattern which begins with an adjective:

warm 'warm' > die Wärme 'warmth' > wärmen 'to warm' stark 'strong' > die Stärke 'strength' > stärken 'to strengthen' die Farbe 'colour' > färben 'to colour'

(c) Many verbs recently imported from English add -en to the English word:

boxen 'to box', checken 'to check/make sure'

See 36 (pp. 81–7) on separable and inseparable prefixes, and see 57 (pp. 142–5) on the meaning of verbal prefixes.

54 Forming nouns

See also 58.1 (p. 146) on formal nominal style.

54.1

Using prefixes

Common prefixes include:

Fehl- 'false/wrong/mistaken'

der Fehlstart 'false start', die Fehleinschätzung 'mistaken estimate', die Fehlprognose 'false prognosis'

Grund- 'basic/essential'

die Grundregel 'basic (ground) rule', das Grundprinzip 'basic principle', die Grundhaltung 'basic attitude', die Grundschule 'primary (elementary) school'

Haupt- 'main'

das Hauptargument 'main argument', die Hauptsache 'main thing', das Hauptfach 'main subject of study'

Miss- 'wrong' (like English 'mis-') der Misserfolg 'failure/fiasco', der Missbrauch 'abuse/improper use', das Missverständnis 'misunderstanding'

Neben- 'secondary/incidental'

das Nebenargument 'secondary argument', das Nebenfach 'subsidiary subject of study', die Nebenwirkung 'side effect'

Nicht- 'non-'

der Nichtraucher 'non-smoker', der Nichtschwimmer 'non-swimmer', der/die Nichtversicherte 'uninsured person'

Riesen- 'enormous'

der Riesenerfolg 'huge success', das Riesenproblem 'huge problem', die Riesensumme 'huge amount (of money)'

Schein- 'illusory/not real'

das Scheinargument 'bogus argument', der Scheinerfolg 'illusory success', die Scheinehe 'fictitious marriage'

Scheiß- (colloquial, potentially offensive) expresses contempt and dislike (see also 58.2 and 104)

das Scheißargument 'rotten/poor argument', die Scheißehe 'awful marriage'

Teil- 'part/partial'

der Teilerfolg 'partial success', die Teilzeitarbeit 'part-time work'

Un- gives a negative (see also 47.5 and 75.5)

der Unsinn 'nonsense', das Unglück 'unhappiness'. Some of the words it forms have unusual nuances: das Ungewitter 'thunder storm', der Unmensch 'inhumane person/monster', die Unmenge 'huge quantity'

Ur- 'original/ancient'

die Urquelle 'original source', der Urgroßvater 'great-grandfather'

54.2

Meaning and gender of compound nouns

(a) The final element in a compound determines the meaning and gender of the whole (see 26.1):

die Maschine 'machine'

das Büro 'office'

die Büromaschine is a particular kind of machine: an 'office machine'

der Büromaschinenhersteller is a particular kind of Hersteller 'manufacturer': a 'manufacturer of office machines'

(b) A 'linking' letter, (e)s or (e)n, is sometimes found between the main elements of the compound word:

Büromaschinenhersteller 'manufacturer of office machines'

Geschwindigkeitsgrenze 'speed limit'

(c) German can be more precise than English in the meanings which are combined. In English, a 'film-maker' may have made many films, or one. In German, the plural of der Film is die Filme and we have either der Filmmacher (one particular film) or der Filmemacher (more than one).

54.3

Using suffixes

See also 25.1 (p. 44), 25.3 (p. 44), 25.5 (p. 45), 29.2 (p. 50) and 29.4 (p. 51).

Common suffixes are shown below. Note that all nouns formed by adding the same suffix have the same gender. Where an umlaut can be added as part of this process, this is added only where there is a vowel which can take an umlaut (a, o, u, au; see 1.5).

-chen/-lein (with umlaut on the stressed vowel) form neuter nouns denoting diminutives:

das Häuschen 'little house'

-heit/-keit/-igkeit form feminine nouns from adjectives and other nouns, usually denoting an abstract concept:

die Kindheit 'childhood', die Sicherheit 'safety/security', die Klugheit 'cleverness', die Eitelkeit 'vanity', die Geschwindigkeit 'speed', die Minderheit 'minority', die Möglichkeit 'possibility'

-e (with umlaut on the stressed vowel) forms feminine nouns from adjectives, denoting an abstract quality:

die Tiefe 'depth', die Größe 'size', die Schärfe 'sharpness'

-e forms feminine nouns from some verbs, denoting a concrete event:

die Durchsage 'announcement', die Anfrage 'enquiry'

-ei forms feminine nouns denoting collections of things:

die Datei 'data bank', die Kartei 'card index'

-er forms masculine nouns denoting a person (or thing) who performs the action described in a verb:

der Verteidiger 'defender', der Fahrer 'driver', der Computer 'computer',

-erei forms feminine nouns denoting a repeated and/or annoying action:

die Angeberei 'idle boasting', die Schweinerei 'dirty trick/awful mess'

-ik forms feminine nouns, usually denoting academic disciplines:

die Informatik 'information technology', die Statistik 'statistics', die Mathematik 'mathematics', die Keramik 'ceramics', die Karibik 'the Caribbean Sea'

But:

der Atlantik, der Pazifik (because these are oceans: der Ozean)

-in forms feminine nouns identifying a person as female:

die Verteidigerin 'defender/defence counsel', die Professorin 'professor', die Amerikanerin 'American woman'

-ling forms masculine nouns denoting a person:

der Säugling '(suckling) infant', der Feigling 'coward'

-nis forms mostly neuter nouns:

das Hindernis 'obstacle' but die Finsternis 'darkness'

-schaft forms feminine abstract nouns:

die Brüderschaft 'brotherhood', die Mutterschaft 'motherhood'

-tum forms mainly neuter nouns denoting an abstract category or a collective group:

das Wachstum 'growth', das Bürgertum 'middle classes', das Altertum 'antiquity' but der Reichtum 'wealth'

-ung forms feminine nouns from verbs, and denotes either a process or the result of a process:

die Behandlung 'treatment', die Betreuung 'supervision', die Bestrafung 'punishment', die Bohrung 'drilling/hole', die Verfilmung 'filming/filmed version of a book' but die Wohnung 'flat/apartment', die Sitzung 'session (of a meeting)'

-wesen forms neuter nouns denoting a system or organism:

das Bankwesen 'banking (system)', das Verkehrswesen 'transport (system)', das Lebewesen 'living organism'

Adjectival nouns with the gender das denote a general or abstract quality:

das Mögliche 'what is possible', das Gemeinte 'what was intended', das Vergangene 'what is past', das Aktuelle 'what is topical'

See also 28.5 (p. 50); see 25–27 (pp. 43–7) for rules on the gender of compound nouns.

54.4

Forming nouns from the principal parts of verbs

There are four patterns for forming nouns from verbs:

(a) From the infinitive, with the gender das, usually denoting the act of performing the activity described by the verb:

das Warten 'waiting'
das Reden 'talking'
das Trinken 'drinking'

Any infinitive can be turned into a noun in this way. Occasionally, the noun formed in this way can have an additional meaning. For example, das Schreiben can mean both '(act of) writing' and 'written document'.

See also 28.6 (p. 50).

(b) From the present participle (see 33.1), usually denoting the person or thing performing the action:

der, die Studierende 'student'

der, die Mitsingende 'the person singing along'

der, die Nichtshabende 'person who has nothing'

der, die Umziehende 'person who is moving house'

(c) From the past participle (33.1). The past participle of transitive verbs (i.e. those that take an accusative object) usually has a passive sense (40):

der, die Angeklagte 'the accused' (jmdn. an*klagen 'to accuse sb.') das Vereinbarte 'that which has been agreed' (etw. vereinbaren 'to agree on sth.')

See also 28.5 (p. 50).

The past participle of intransitive verbs (i.e. those that do not take an accusative object) simply denotes an action which happened in the past:

der, die Umgezogene 'person who (has) moved house' (um*ziehen 'to move house')

(d) Using the vowel changes in the strong verb pattern (see 33.5) to form masculine nouns. The principal parts involved are the present tense stem, the simple past stem and the past participle (see 33.9):

beginnen	i – a – o	'to begin'	der Beginn	'beginning'
springen	i – a – u	'to jump'	der Sprung	'jump'
greifen	ei – i – i	'to grab'	der Griff	'handle'
schneiden	ei – i – i	'to cut'	der Schnitt	'cut'
sitzen	i – a – e	'to be sitting'	der Sitz	'seat'
stehen	e – a – a	'to stand'	der Stand	'stand'
stoßen	o – ie – o	'to push'	der Stoß	'push/collision'

Some nouns are formed using an additional vowel change:

brechen	i – a – o	'to break'	der Bruch	'break/fracture'
fliegen	ie – o – o	'to fly'	der Flug	'flight'
ziehen	ie – o – o	'to pull'	der Zug	'train/draught'
schließen	ie – o – o	'to close/to conclude'	der Schluss	'conclusion/ending'

55

Forming adjectives

See also 43 (p. 118).

55.1

Using suffixes

(a) The following form adjectives from nouns:

-bar 'able/-ible'

machbar 'doable/viable', erreichbar 'reachable/attainable', sichtbar 'visible'

See also 40.4c (p. 105).

-haft 'like' (see 74)

lehrerhaft 'schoolmasterly', meisterhaft 'masterful'

-isch (sometimes with umlaut) (see 74)

kindisch 'childish', exemplarisch 'exemplary', spöttisch 'mocking'

-lich (sometimes with umlaut) kindlich 'childlike', freundlich 'friendly', vertraglich 'contractual' (but verträglich 'agreeable, digestible'), täglich 'daily', wöchentlich 'weekly', monatlich 'monthly', jährlich 'yearly', zweijährlich 'biennially'

See also 40.4c (p. 105).

-en/-ern (sometimes with umlaut) golden 'golden', eisern 'made of iron', hölzern 'wooden'

-ig (sometimes with umlaut) eisig 'icy', brüchig 'fragile', dreistündig 'lasting three hours', zweitägig 'lasting two days', dreiwöchig 'lasting three weeks', viermonatig 'lasting four months', sechsjährig 'lasting six years'

-mäßig 'pertaining to'

gefühlsmäßig 'emotional', planmäßig 'according to (the) plan', geschäftsmäßig 'businesslike'

-freundlich 'friendly towards/good for' umweltfreundlich 'environmentally friendly', kinderfreundlich 'good for children', familienfreundlich 'good for the family'

-feindlich 'hostile towards/bad for' umweltfeindlich 'bad for the environment', kinderfeindlich 'anti-children/not catering for children', familienfeindlich 'hostile to the family'

-nah 'close to'

bürgernah 'close to ordinary people', praxisnah 'applied' (rather than theoretical)

-fern 'distant from' bürgerfern 'remote from ordinary people', praxisfern 'not very practically orientated/theoretical'

-reich 'rich in/high in' kinderreich 'having many children', ideenreich 'with lots of ideas', phosphatreich 'high in phosphates'

-arm 'poor in/low in'

kinderarm 'with not many children', phosphatarm 'low in phosphates'

Forming adverbs

-los 'without'

kinderlos 'childless', ideenlos 'without ideas', rücksichtslos
'thoughtless/inconsiderate'

-frei 'free from'

phosphatfrei 'phosphate-free', koffeinfrei 'caffeine-free', ideologiefrei
'free from ideology'

(b) The present participle (see 33.1) and the past participle of all verbs can be used adjectivally. Here are some examples:

Past participle:

geeignet 'suitable', gefragt 'popular (often asked for)', gelernt 'trained/qualified', erfahren 'experienced'

Present participle:

führend 'leading', fragend 'questioning', stehend 'standing', durchgehend 'continuous/non-stop'

55.2

Using prefixes

There are many prefixes which alter or intensify the meaning of an adjective, including un- 'not', ur- 'original/very old'; and several which intensify the meaning, such as hoch- 'very' and höchst-, riesen-, super- 'extremely':

uninteressant 'uninteresting' (see 47.5)

uralt 'ancient'

hochinteressant 'extremely interesting' höchstwahrscheinlich 'most probably'

riesengroß 'enormous'

superfit 'super fit'

56

Forming adverbs

56.1

Most adjectives can be used as adverbs without a change in their form (see 50.2). For patterns forming distinct adverbs, see 50.3.

56.2

Where an adjective form exists alongside an adverbial form ending in -erweise, the adverb is almost always a sentence adverb, i.e. it relates to the sentence as a whole rather than to a specific word:

Das hat er glücklicherweise nicht erfahren.

Fortunately, he didn't find that out.

56.3

Note that the adverbial form ending in -weise is occasionally used adjectivally, with the full range of adjective endings (see 44–46):

Das stimmt teilweise.

That is partly true.

Ist das nicht ein teilweiser Widerspruch?
Isn't that a partial contradiction?

Das ist eine teilweise Erklärung.
That is a partial explanation.

See also 50.3 (p. 130).

57

Verbal prefixes

57.1

Prefixes which are always separable

See 36.1.

ab- 'away/off/finish off, de-, dis-'

ab*fahren 'to depart'

etw. ab*schließen 'to finish off/conclude'

jmdn./etw. ab*tun 'to discard/dismiss/put aside'

an- 'on, onto/a little bit' jmdn./etw. an*schauen 'to look at sb./sth.'

ein Gerät an*machen 'to switch on an appliance' jmdn./etw. an*brennen 'to burn slightly, singe sb./sth.' (see 76.3) auf- 'up/open'

etw. auf*hängen 'to hang sth. up'

etw. auf*wärmen 'to warm sth. up'

etw. auf*machen 'to open'

aus- 'off/out (of), from'

ein Gerät aus*machen 'to switch off an appliance' jmdn./etw. aus*machen 'to make sb./sth. out (see clearly)'

ein- 'in, into/get used to' ein*schränken 'to constrain/limit (contain within a limit)' sich ein*arbeiten 'to get used to the work'

entgegen- 'towards/in the opposite direction'

jmdm. entgegen*kommen 'come towards sb./be accommodating'

fern- 'distant'

fern*sehen 'to watch TV'

fern*bleiben 'to stay away'

hinzu- 'in addition'

etw. hinzu*schreiben 'to add sth. (in writing)'

etw. hinzu*sagen 'to say sth. in addition'

mit- 'as well'

mit*machen 'to join in'

mit*singen 'to sing along'

nach- 'after/follow, imitate, repeat'

etw. nach*schlagen 'to look sth. up'

jmdm. etw. nach*machen 'to imitate/copy sb.'

jmdm. nach*singen 'to sing what sb. else has just sung' vor- 'before, in front of/show how to'

etw. vor*zeigen 'to show, present sth.'

jmdm. etw. vor*werfen 'to accuse sb. of sth.' (lit. 'to throw sth. in front of sb.') jmdm. etw. vor*machen 'to show sb. how to do sth.'

weg- 'away' (see 80.7)

weg*fahren 'to drive off'

weg*bleiben 'to stay away'

wieder- 'again' (see 36.3d)

jmdn. wieder*sehen 'to see someone again'

wieder*kehren 'to return'

zu- 'to, towards/closed'

zu*schauen 'to watch (as a spectator)'

jmdm. etw. zu*flüstern 'to whisper sth. to sb.'

etw. zu*machen 'to close/shut'

zurück- 'back/return'

zurück*blättern 'to flick back through the pages'

zusammen- 'together/collapse'

etw. zusammen*tun 'to pool, put sth. together'

zusammen*brechen 'to collapse' (lit. 'break together')

jmdn. zusammen*hauen 'to beat sb. up'

57.2

Prefixes which are always inseparable

See 36.2 (p. 84).

be- and be-...-ig- (sometimes with umlaut) produce verbs with an accusative object (see 18.1) from nouns and adjectives:

der Nachteil 'disadvantage' > jmdn. benachteiligen 'to disadvantage sb.'

die Vollmacht 'power of authority' > jmdn. bevollmächtigen 'to give sb. power of authority' die Schranke 'barrier' > jmdn./etw. beschränken 'to restrict sb./sth.'

rein 'clean' > etw. bereinigen 'to clear sth. up (misunderstanding etc.)/put straight' be- also forms verbs with an accusative object which can be used instead of a verb + preposition sequence:

auf eine Frage antworten > eine Frage beantworten 'to answer a question' ent- often suggests removing something (cf. English 'dis-', 'de-'):

jmdn. entmutigen 'to discourage/make sb. feel dispirited'

entkommen 'to escape'

er- produces verbs with an accusative object, and suggests going through to the final consequence of an action:

jmdn. ermutigen 'to encourage/cheer up sb.'

eine Lohnerhöhung erstreiken 'to get a wage increase by striking'

jmdn. erschießen 'to shoot a person dead'

miss- 'wrong'

misshandeln 'to maltreat'

missverstehen 'to misunderstand'

ver- (sometimes ending in -ern) can form verbs from nouns and adjectives with a variety of meanings, usually denoting some kind of process:

der Stein 'stone' > versteinern 'turn to stone/ossify' die Ursache 'cause' > verursachen 'to cause' (with a negative consequence) tief 'deep' > vertiefen 'to deepen' groß 'large' > größer 'larger' > vergrößern 'to enlarge' ver- sometimes marks the process as a negative one:

jmdn. verleiten 'to lead sb. astray'

verkommen 'to go to ruin'

etw. verlernen 'to forget sth. you have learnt'

sich ver- 'make a mistake'

sich versprechen 'to make a slip of the tongue' sich verirren 'to stray/get lost' sich vertun 'to make an error'

zer- 'into small pieces'

etw. zertreten 'to break sth. by standing on it'

etw. zerlegen 'to disassemble carefully/analyse sth.'

57.3

Prefixes which can be separable or inseparable

See 36.3 (p. 85).

durch- 'through'

jmdn./etw. durchschauen 'to see through/not be fooled by sb. or sth.'

durch etw. durch*schauen 'to look through sth.'

hinter- 'behind' (nearly always inseparable verbs)

etw. irgendwo hinterlegen 'to deposit sth. somewhere for safe keeping'

über- 'over, across/too much/do again'

etw. oder jmdn. über*setzen 'to ferry sb. or sth. across'

etw. übersetzen 'to translate sth.'

etw. oder jmdn. überschätzen 'to overestimate sb. or sth.'

etw. überarbeiten 'to rework sth.'

um- 'around/change'

(her-)um*gehen 'to walk round'

jmdn./etw. umgehen 'to evade sth. or sb.'

etw. um*schreiben 'to rewrite sth.'

etw. umschreiben 'to paraphrase sth.'

unter- 'under, underneath/too low'

jmdn./etw. irgendwo unter*bringen 'to put sb. up/provide accommodation for sb./find a place for sth.'

etw. unternehmen 'to undertake sth.'

etw. unterschreiben 'to sign a document'

jmdn./etw. unterschätzen 'to underestimate sb. or sth.'

There are also a number of inseparable verbs beginning with unter- which now have only a remote connection to the meaning 'under', e.g. unterrichten 'to teach/instruct', unterbrechen 'to interrupt'.

voll- 'complete/full'

voll*tanken 'to fill up with petrol' etw. vollbringen 'to succeed in doing sth./accomplish sth.'

wider- 'against'

jmdm./etw. widersprechen 'to contradict sb. or sth.'

There are only two separable verbs beginning with wider-:

etw. wider*spiegeln 'to reflect/mirror sth.'

wider*hallen 'to echo'

IX

Style and orthography

58

Formal and informal style

The following features should be noted because they are characteristic of formal (or informal) style (see 121 for formal spoken style):

58.1

Formal nominal style

(a) A particular feature of modern German is the use of a noun + verb construction in which the noun is derived from a verb (see 54). For example, die Buchung 'booking' is derived from the verb buchen 'to book'. The phrase 'to make a booking' is, in German, eine Buchung vor*nehmen. Note that the verb in this kind of construction (here vor*nehmen) simply has the meaning 'to carry out the action expressed in the noun'. This is a feature commonly found in formal written German, but it can also be used in spoken German, where it sounds extremely formal.

(b) Sometimes a compound noun is found as part of this formal style:

Er hatte keine Zeit, den Flug zu buchen.
He had no time to book the flight.

Er hatte keine Zeit, die Flugbuchung vorzunehmen.
He had no time to make the flight reservation.

See 26 (p. 47).

(c) The preference in this formal kind of style for nouns over other word classes sometimes produces a chain of nouns with, for example, the second noun in the genitive. Compare:

Das Austauschprogramm fördert die deutsch-amerikanischen Beziehungen.

The exchange programme furthers German-American relations.

Das Austauschprogramm dient der Förderung der deutsch-amerikanischen Beziehungen.

(lit.) The exchange programme serves the furtherance of German-American relations.

See 19.6 (p. 28) for verbs with a dative object.

(d) The verb most commonly found in this kind of formal construction is treffen:

etw./sich auf etw. (= acc.) vor*bereiten to prepare sth. or oneself for sth.

Vorbereitung(en) für etwas treffen to make preparation(s) for sth.

eine Auslese/eine Auswahl treffen (from etw. aus etw. aus*lesen and etw. aus etw. aus*wählen)
to make a selection

However, not all such phrases can be traced back to a verb:

eine Maßnahme treffen to introduce a measure, to take action

Vorkehrungen treffen to take precautions

58.2 Informal style and verb forms

See also 60.1 (p. 159) on using du and Sie.

(a) In informal (colloquial) speech (see also 116.1), it is quite common for the endings to be dropped from the verb stem in the first person, present tense:

Ich mache es gleich. > Ich mach es gleich.
I'll do it straight away.

Ich habe es schon getan. > Ich hab es schon getan.
I have already done it.

It is also quite common in this kind of everyday style of speech to run sounds together, e.g. Ich hab's schon getan.

(b) Imperatives in the du form can also be made to sound even more informal by dropping the final -e from the verb where there is one (see 41.2c):

Sag's niemandem!
Don't tell anyone!

See 59.5c (p. 154).

(c) Casual articulation of du and Sie following the forms of the verb are sometimes a sign that the speaker is being informal or familiar:

Hast du gebucht? > Haste gebucht? (spoken German only)
Have you booked?

Haben Sie Geschwister? > Haben Se Geschwister?
Do you have any brothers and sisters?

In the latter example, a speaker who has previously been using Sie could be signalling that he or she finds using Sie a bit too formal and would be happier using du.

58.3 Informal responses

In informal conversation it is quite common to omit the object of the verb or some other completion when responding to what the other person has just said, where the context makes the meaning obvious. This leads to sentences in which the finite verb appears to be in first position (compare 5.1–5.2):

Kennst du den Harald? > Nein, kenn ich nicht.

Do you know Harald? > No, don't know him.

See also 23.2g (p. 40).

Hast du den Wein schon kaltgestellt? > Hab ich schon heute morgen gemacht.

Have you cooled the wine? > Did it this morning.

Kannst du morgen bei mir vorbeikommen? > (Nein,) geht (leider) nicht.

Can you come round tomorrow? > (No,) (unfortunately I) can't.

Mir ist kalt, und dir? > Mir auch.

I am cold, and you? > Me too.

See 19.6 (p. 28) and 42.3a (p. 109).

Die Musik stört die ganze Nachbarschaft. > Uns nicht.

The music is disturbing the entire neighbourhood. > Not us.

58.4

Verb – final position in informal style

In subordinate clauses, verbal elements which should appear at the end of the clause in careful, formal speech (see 8.1–8.2) are often brought forward in everyday informal speech:

Ich war nicht da, weil ich ein paar Stunden aufräumen musste nach der Party.

I wasn't there because I had to tidy up for a few hours after the party.

Often this is a result of the speaker trying to make it easier for the listener to pick up the whole verb complex without having to wait until the end of a long clause. But note that even in the last example, where the finite verb has moved forward in the sentence, it is still not the 'second idea' (see 5.1).

59

Spelling and punctuation

A major revision of spelling and punctuation was introduced in the German-speaking countries of Europe on 1 August 1998 and is due to become binding after a transition period ending on 31 July 2005. Sections 59.1–59.5 give an outline of the new spelling and punctuation conventions. Section 59.7 lists the old and new forms of some common words and phrases. A detailed account of the new rules and the principles on which they are based can be found in Die deutsche Rechtschreibung, edited by Günther Drosdowski et al., Duden Verlag, Mannheim/Leipzig/Wien/Zürich 1996. You are recommended to use a modern dictionary such as this which gives the new spellings.

59.1

Capital letter or small letter?

(a) Generally, a word begins with a capital letter when it is:

- the first word in the sentence, except at the beginning of a letter (see 60.7b)
- a noun of any kind, including adjectival nouns (see 28.5), e.g. der Versicherte 'the person insured', das Baden 'bathing', die Sieben 'the number seven'

- any form of the formal second person pronoun Sie (see 30.2) and the related possessive adjective Ihr (see 30.3)
 - an adjective which is part of a title, often indicating an institution, e.g. die Europäische Union 'the European Union', Friedrich der Große 'Frederick the Great', der Deutsche Bundestag, 'the German Bundestag', das Rote Kreuz 'the Red Cross'
 - an adjective derived from a place name, e.g. das Münchner Hofbräuhaus 'the Munich Hofbräuhaus', die Berliner Mauer 'the Berlin wall' (see 47.1)
- (b) All other words in a sentence begin with a small letter, including:
- adjectives denoting nationalities, e.g. die europäischen Regierungen, 'the European governments', die britische Wirtschaft 'the British economy'
 - adjectives belonging to a fixed phrase which has acquired specialized meaning, e.g. die erste Hilfe 'first aid', das schwarze Brett 'information board' (which does not have to be black at all)
- (c) Note, however, the following cases concerning the use of adjectives:
- the adjective has a capital letter if it has the gender das and has a general reference, e.g. das Wichtigste 'the most important thing', das Gute an der Sache 'the good thing about the matter' (see 28.5)
 - the adjective also has a capital letter if it has a specialized meaning as a noun, but the same adjective will be written with a small letter if it has a particular reference and if the noun to which it refers can be deduced from the context:

Dann kam der Alte und sagte . . . (informal)

Then the old man (or someone's father) came and said . . .

Der neue Wagen gefällt mir nicht so gut wie der alte.

I don't like the new car as much as the old one.

▶ See also 105.2 (p. 372).

An exception to this rule, however, is der einzelne 'the individual'.

(d) Note also the following instances where words which may look like nouns are written with a small letter. This is because they are seen as part of an adverbial, or some other kind, of construction:

abends und nachmittags

in the evenings and afternoons

▶ See 50 (pp. 129–32) on adverbs and 81 (pp. 286–96) for use.

Otherwise nouns which are used as part of an adverbial expression retain their capital letter:

heute Nachmittag, heute Abend, morgen Vormittag this afternoon, this evening, tomorrow morning in/mit Bezug auf concerning/with reference to

▶ See 61.11 (p. 174).

im Großen und Ganzen

on the whole

▶ See 119.4 (p. 430).

im Allgemeinen
in general

▶ See 119.4 (p. 430).

im Voraus
in advance

▶ See 59.7 (p. 155) and 62.3 (p. 177).

(e) Capital letter or small letter, with a change in meaning

Note the following, where the same word form occurs either with a capital letter or with a small letter, but the two are not interchangeable:

ein paar means 'several/a few', ein Paar means 'a pair' (see 46.2b) deutsch sprechen; Deutsch sprechen

With a capital letter, Deutsch refers to the German language as a whole, and has the same sense as das Deutsche. (But as part of the phrase 'die deutsche Sprache' the adjective is written with a small letter):

in deutscher Sprache in German (usually referring to a written text or the performance of a written text)

auf Deutsch in German

Er spricht kaum Deutsch.
He can hardly speak German.

Du sprichst gut (gutes) Deutsch.
You speak good German.

Das Buch wurde aus dem Englischen ins Deutsche übersetzt.
The book was translated into German from the English.

deutsch is written with a small letter when it functions as an adverb, adding an important detail to a sentence:

Ich fühle mich (gar nicht) deutsch.
I (don't) feel German (at all).

Sie denkt deutsch.
She thinks like a German (in a German way).

Wir können uns deutsch/auf Deutsch unterhalten.
We can talk in German.

Ich habe mit ihr (auf) Deutsch, nicht (auf) Englisch gesprochen.
I talked German, not English with her.

▶ See also 36.1e (p. 83) and 50 (pp. 129–32).

(f) hundert, tausend; Hundert, Tausend (see 75.5)

These are written with a small letter and are undeclined when used as a standard numeral (like zwanzig, dreißig, etc.):

nach hundert Kilometern after a hundred kilometres nach zweihundert Kilometern after two hundred kilometres nach vielen hundert Kilometern after many hundred kilometres

They are written with a capital letter, and are plural nouns, when used as nouns of quantity in contexts such as:

mit Tausenden von Mitgliedern with thousands of members

mit Zehntausenden von Mitgliedern with tens of thousands of members mit mehreren Tausenden von Mitgliedern with several thousands of members

59.2

Splitting up words

When dividing up a word at the end of a line, the hyphen is generally placed before the consonant which begins the next syllable:

in-teressant
Va-ter

However, single vowels at the beginning or end of a word, and the component parts of complex words are never separated off in this way:

a-tonal
atonal

Ru-he peace and quiet

See 1 (p. 3) and 3 (p. 4).

The component parts of complex words, e.g. words with a prefix or compound words, remain intact when the word is split:

ver-einigt unified aus-atmen breathe out

Double consonants are generally split down the middle:

Mit-te middle

Mil-lion
Million

But st, ck, sch and ch are not split in simple words:

Fen-ster window drü-cken to press

wa-schen to wash

Bü-cher books

Prefixes and other meaningful parts of a word are preserved intact (see 57):

Aus-tausch exchange

Diens-tag
Tuesday

ß can be split either as -ß or as s-s:

So-ße, Sos-se sauce

Where a sequence of three identical consonants occurs as a result of word formation (see 52.1), the three consonants are split to observe the spelling of the component words. For example, still 'quiet' + legen 'to lay' = stilllegen (the separable verb still*legen) 'to close down (a factory)'. When split at the end of a line, this is written still-legen.

59.3

Spelling of long and short vowels

See 1 (p. 3).

(a) A double consonant (see 3) following a vowel indicates that the vowel is pronounced short. An h following the vowel indicates that it is pronounced long.

stellen [shtelen] to place

stehlen [shte:len] to steal

However, this is not an absolute guide to pronunciation. Not all long vowels are indicated by the presence of an h in the spelling:

Kamel [kame:l] camel

ewig [e:vig] eternal

See also 1–4 (pp. 3–6).

(b) ss or ß?

The spelling depends on whether the preceding vowel is pronounced long or short (see 1.4). ss and ß are always pronounced voiceless (see 3.1).

ss is written after a short vowel, e.g. Fluss [flʊs] 'river', Flüsse [flʏsɐ] 'rivers', Misserfolg [mɪsɐfɔlk] 'failure'

ß is written after a long vowel and after the diphthongs [au], [oi] and [ai], e.g. Fuß [fu:s] 'foot', Füße [fʏ:se] 'feet', außer [au:ser] 'outside, except for', äußerlich [oi:serlich] 'external', heiß [hai:s] 'hot', dreißig [drai:sig] 'thirty' (see 2)

These spelling conventions are observed when words combine to form complex words (see 52.1). Thus: Hass [has] 'hatred', hasserfüllt [hasɐfʏlt] 'full of hatred', hässlich [heslich] 'ugly'; but Maß [ma:s] 'measure', maßgebend [ma:sge:bend] 'standard, authoritative', mäßigen [me:sigen] 'to moderate, reduce'.

Note that umlauted vowels can be pronounced long or short: lässig [lesig] 'casual, nonchalant', but mäßig [me:sig] 'moderate' (adj.) (see 1.5).

Note that ß is not used in Switzerland, and is rarely used when writing capitals.

59.4

One word or two?

Sometimes whether one writes one word or two depends on a difference in meaning:

so lange
for such a long time

solange
as long as (conjunction: see 8.3)

so bald
so soon

sobald
as soon as (conjunction: see 8.3)

wo möglich
if possible

womöglich perhaps/possibly wie weit

how far (away)

wieweit
to what extent

59.5

Use of commas, colons and apostrophes

(a) The main use of the comma in German is to mark clause boundaries. It is used to separate a main clause from a subordinate clause (see 5 and 8):

Dass sie so gut singt, hat mich überrascht.
That she can sing so well surprised me.

Ich glaube nicht, dass sie kommt.
I don't think that she'll come.

A comma separates items in a list, except for the last two:

Ich habe Rindfleisch, Kartoffeln, Gemüse und Rotwein gekauft.
I bought beef, potatoes, vegetables and red wine.

A comma separates nouns in apposition (see 21):

Wir haben den Brief unserem Nachbarn, dem Rechtsanwalt, gezeigt.
We showed the letter to our neighbour, the lawyer.

However, commas are not used when a series of subordinate clauses is linked by und, oder, bzw. (beziehungsweise), entweder . . . oder:

Sie wusste nicht, dass sie sein Handy mitgenommen hatte und ihr eigenes auf dem Tisch gelassen hatte.
She didn't know that she had taken his mobile phone and left her own on the table.

▶ See 6 (pp. 9–12) and 8 (pp. 11–13).

and a comma is optional with infinitive clauses introduced by zu, um . . . zu, ohne . . . zu, statt . . . zu:

Ich gehe früher, um einen guten Platz zu bekommen.
Ich gehe früher um einen guten Platz zu bekommen.
I am going earlier (in order) to get a good seat/place.
Ich habe mehr gezahlt, ohne einen besseren Platz zu bekommen.
Ich habe mehr gezahlt ohne einen besseren Platz zu bekommen.
I paid more without getting a better seat.

▶ See 8.7 (p. 13) and 42.3f (p. 115).

A comma is also optional after participial phrases:

Von meinem Standpunkt aus, muss man die Frage anders stellen.
Von meinem Standpunkt aus muss man die Frage anders stellen.
From my point of view you have to put the question differently.

NOTE The practice in the rest of this book is to mark commas even where they may be optional.

(b) The main use of the colon is to introduce direct speech:

Er sagte sofort: „Ich bezahle das“.
Straight away he said, 'I'll pay for that'.

(c) The apostrophe is used to show omitted letters:

Ich versteh's nicht.
I don't understand it.

but it is not supposed to be used (as it is in English) to indicate possession:

Georgs Wohnung
Georg's flat

▶ See also 58.2 (p. 147).

(d) When writing numbers, a space is left between units of a thousand (where English has a comma), and a comma is used to show decimal values (where English has a point; see 75.5):

1 000 (eintausend)

1,000 (one thousand)

1,5 (eins komma fünf)

1.5 (one point five)

€1 234,56 (eintausendzweihundertvierunddreißig Euro sechshundfünfzig Cent)

€1,234.56 (1,234 euros and 56 cents)

When writing large numbers, a point is sometimes used instead of a space:

17.450.263

17,450,263

59.6

Other punctuation

A point (full stop) is used with ordinal numbers:

der 3. Juni

The 3rd of June

Quotation marks open on the line and close above the line:

Er sagte sofort: „Herzlich willkommen!“

Straight away he said ‘Welcome!’

See 84.1c (p. 304).

Single or double quotation marks may be used. In printed texts quoted material is often found enclosed between single or double chevrons (<Herzlich willkommen!>).

The use of the exclamation mark, as the above example also shows, follows English usage (see also 41.2).

59.7

Sample checklist of changes brought about by the 1998 reforms

If you are reading a text published before the reforms took effect (and this may include some publications up to 2005), it is useful to be able to recognize the changes which have been introduced. For a full list, you need to consult a recently published dictionary. The following list of common words and phrases is drawn from Die deutsche Rechtschreibung (Duden, see the introduction to this section).

Old spelling

alleinstehend

alles übrige

Apotheke

aufs beste

braungebrannt

daß

das Schwarze Brett

du läßt

du mußt

Erste Hilfe

fallen*lassen

New spelling

allein stehend

alles Übrige

Apotheke or Apoteke

aufs Beste

braun gebrannt

dass

das schwarze Brett

du lässt

du musst

erste Hilfe

fallen lassen

fertig*bringen	fertig bringen
fertig*gebracht	fertig gebracht
Fluß, Flüsse	Fluss, Flüsse
Flußsand	Flusssand
fönen	föhnen
Geographie	Geographie or Geografie
Graphit	Graphit or Grafit
gutaussehend	gut aussehend
hassen, Haß	hassen, Hass
heute abend	heute Abend
im allgemeinen	im Allgemeinen
im großen und ganzen	im Großen und Ganzen
im einzelnen	im Einzelnen
im nachhinein	im Nachhinein
im voraus	im Voraus
in bezug auf	in Bezug auf
irgend jemand	irgendjemand
irgend etwas	irgendetwas
jedesmal	jedes Mal
Joghurt	Joghurt or Jogurt
Karamel	Karamell
Ketchup	Ketchup or Ketschup
Kommunique	Kommunique or Kommunikee
muß, müßt	muss, müsst
nahestehend	nahe stehend
numerieren	nummerieren 'to number' (cf. die Nummer 'number')
Orthographie	Orthographie or Orthografie
Paket	Packet 'packet' (cf. packen 'to pack')
Panther	Panther
Plazieren	platzieren 'to place' (cf. der Platz 'place')
Portemonnaie	Portemonnaie or Portmonee
Potentiell	potentiell or potenziell
rad*fahren	Rad fahren
Rhythmus	Rhythmus or Rytmus
Roheit	Rohheit
Schiffahrt	Schiffahrt
schlechtgelaunt	schlecht gelaunt
schneuzen	schnäuzen (cf. die Schnauze 'snout')
sitzen*bleiben	sitzen bleiben ('repeat the year in school')
soviel	so viel
Stop	Stopp
staub*saugen	Staub saugen
stilllegen	still*legen
strenggenommen	streng genommen
Thunfisch	Tunfisch
Tip	Tipp
übrig*bleiben	übrig bleiben
wieviel	wie viel (cf. wie viele)
Zigarette	Zigarrette (cf. die Zigarre 'cigar')
zuviel	zu viel (cf. zu viele)

Part B

Functions

X

Social contact

60

Greeting

The following are the most common expressions for 'to greet' in German:

jmdn. grüßen 'to greet sb.'
viele Grüße/einen schönen Gruß (an jmdn.) 'many/best wishes (to sb.)' jmdm. einen schönen Gruß sagen 'to give/send sb. (one's) best wishes' jmdm. Grüße bestellen 'to give/send regards to sb.'
jmdm. Wünsche aus*richten 'to convey (good) wishes to sb.'
jmdn. jmdm. empfehlen 'to convey sb.'s respects to sb.' (formal) sich jmdm. empfehlen 'to send one's regards to sb.' (formal)
jmd. lässt jmdn. grüßen 'sb. sends his/her regards' jmdn. von jmdm. grüßen 'to pass on sb.'s good wishes'

60.1

Using du, ihr and Sie

For greeting, and indeed any interaction with Germans, it is very important that English-speaking learners of German become familiar with the following guidelines on the use of the familiar pronouns du (with its plural ihr) and the polite or distant Sie. Failure to use the correct form can cause offence.

(a) Use of du and ihr

Du/ihr is used when addressing:

- relatives and close friends
- children up to about the age of 14 or 15
- fellow pupils and students
- colleagues in manual or blue-collar jobs
- animals, objects and God

(b) Use of Sie

Sie is used in all other circumstances, of which the following should be particularly noted:

- with adults who are strangers
- with colleagues in non-blue-collar jobs (often even after years of working together)

- by teachers when addressing pupils in the senior classes of secondary school
- for all student–lecturer communication in higher education

(c) When to start using du

Du is usually associated with first-name terms, but first names are, for example, used with Sie in the senior classes of secondary school. The point in a relationship at which the du form becomes appropriate is very difficult to define. Native English speakers are advised to follow the lead of Germans on this matter. It is normal for the older/more senior person to offer the du form to the younger/junior person. If ever in doubt, use Sie. The verbs corresponding to the pronouns du and Sie are jmdn. duzen and jmdn. siezen respectively:

For 'das Du' see 25.6b (p. 46).

Wollen wir uns duzen?
Shall we use the du form?

See 35.6b (p. 78).

(d) Spelling of du/ihr and Sie

du/ihr and the related possessive adjectives, i.e. dein, etc. and euer, etc. (see 30.3), are written with small letters in all circumstances:

Ich danke dir für deinen langen Brief.
Thank you for your long letter.

Was habt ihr im Sommer vor?
What do you have planned for the summer?

In all contexts the various forms of Sie and the possessive adjective Ihr are written with a capital letter:

Wann fahren Sie in die Stadt?
When are you going to town?

Wie geht es Ihnen/Ihrem Mann?
How are you?/How is your husband?

60.2

Initial greeting

(a) In spoken German a simple Hallo! is very common, especially amongst friends, colleagues and young people (see also 90.1). Grüß dich! 'greetings' is also frequently heard.

(b) Guten Tag 'Good day' is the standard greeting for a stranger or informal acquaintance and can be used throughout the day. In the morning Guten Morgen might be used, while in the evening Guten Abend is likely to be preferred (see 18.7 for this use of the accusative). These forms might be reinforced by schön:

Schön(en) guten Morgen!
A very good morning to you!

(c) In southern Germany and Austria Grüß Gott! is frequently employed, as is Servus! (lit. 'your servant'), which can also mean 'cheerio' (see also 62.1 on saying goodbye). In Switzerland and the very south of Germany Grüß Sie! and Grüzi! are standard greetings when talking to people with whom one is not on first-name terms.

60.3

Conveying greetings

See also 85.3 (p. 308).

(a) If passing on personal greetings via a friend to a third person, either in speech or writing, one of the following would be appropriate:

Sag ihm einen schönen Gruß von mir.

Give him my best wishes.

Einen schönen Gruß an deine Schwester.

Give your sister my best wishes.

Grüß deinen Vater (von mir)!

Say hello to your father (for me).

Grüß mir deine Mutter!

Say hello to your mother for me.

See 19.2 (p. 26) for this dative usage.

Bestell Raimund viele Grüße von mir.

Give Raimund my best regards.

The above can also be used in the Sie form for less informal occasions:

Bitte grüßen Sie Ihre Kollegin (vielmals) von mir!

Please send your colleague my (very) best regards.

Viele Grüße an Ihren Mann.

Kind regards to your husband.

In very formal usage the following might occur:

Bitte richten Sie ihm meine besten Wünsche aus.

Please convey my best wishes to him.

See 12.3 (p. 17) for word order with noun and pronoun objects.

(b) If passing on someone else's greetings, use the following:

Manfred lässt grüßen/lässt euch schön grüßen.

Manfred sends his regards/sends you his best regards.

Ich soll Sie von Herrn Auer grüßen./Ich soll Grüße von Herrn Auer bestellen.

Herr Auer says to send you his best wishes.

See 35.1 (p. 74) for the use of these modal verbs.

60.4

Responding to requests to pass on greetings

The greetings in 60.2 can simply be returned in the same form. One of the following would be an appropriate response to 60.3a:

Ja, (das) mach ich (gern).
Yes, I'll (gladly/certainly) do that.

Auf jeden Fall.
Certainly/I certainly will.

Ja!/Jawohl!/Ja, (aber) natürlich/selbstverständlich.
Of course (I will).

Gerne.
Gladly.

(Ganz) bestimmt./Ja, (ganz) sicher.
I (most) certainly will.

Na klar./Aber sicher.
Sure, of course.

60.5

Enquiring about well being

(a) To ask someone how they are, use:

Wie geht's?/Wie geht es Ihnen?/Wie geht's dir?
How are you?

This structure requires the dative of the person, when mentioned, and the subject of the verb is always es. Responses could include:

Danke, gut/es geht.
Thanks, I'm well/I'm OK.

Es geht mir/uns sehr gut/bestens.
I am/we are very well/extremely well.

Wir sind alle ganz gesund/wohlauf.
We are all very well/in good health.

Note that wohlauf is now considered a little old-fashioned.

Na ja, es geht!
Oh, all right.

Danke, einigermaßen.
Not so bad, thanks.

Alternatively, if things are not so good:

Mir geht's schlecht.
I'm not well/I'm ill.

Es geht (mir) nicht so gut/gar nicht gut.
I'm not too well/not at all well.

(b) To return the question, use:

Und (wie geht es) dir/euch/Ihnen?
And how are you/what about you?

(c) When asking about a third person, use:

Und wie geht es Ihrem Mann?
Und wie geht es Ihrem Gatten? (formal)
 And how is your husband?

Und was macht (die) Petra?
 And how's Petra?

Und was machen die Kinder?
 And how are the children (doing)?

See 19.7 (p. 29) and 42.3h (p. 115) for the use of impersonal verbs.

60.6

Welcoming

(jmdm.) willkommen sein 'to be welcome' jmdn. willkommen heißen 'to welcome sb.'
 jmdn. begrüßen 'to greet sb.'
 jmdm. ein Willkommen bereiten 'to give sb. a welcome' jmdn. auf*nehmen/empfangen 'to receive sb.'

(a) The standard welcome is Willkommen! but there are a number of variations:

Seien Sie/Sei/Seid herzlich willkommen.
 A warm welcome to you.

Ein herzliches Willkommen!
 Welcome indeed!

Herzlich willkommen (in Berlin/im Hotel 'Rostock')!
 Welcome (to Berlin/the Hotel 'Rostock')!

Sie sind uns (= dat.) jederzeit willkommen.
 You are always welcome here.

See 19.9 (p. 30) for the use of the dative; see also 96 (pp. 349–53) on invitations.

(b) Following the initial welcome one of the following may be used:

Bitte, kommen Sie herein!
 Please, do come in.

See 50.4 (p. 130) for the use of herein.

Haben Sie eine gute Reise gehabt?
 Did you have a good journey?

Wie war die Fahrt?
 How was the journey?

(c) A more formal welcome might be expressed:

Im Namen der Stadt Mainz möchte ich Sie herzlich willkommen heißen.

I would like to offer you a warm welcome on behalf of the city of Mainz.

See 28.2 (p. 49) for the declension of Name and weak nouns in general.

(d) Other ways of expressing welcome include:

Ein großes Kaminfeuer begrüßte ihn bei seiner Ankunft.
A large fire welcomed him on his arrival.

Ein Glas Wein stand zu ihrer Begrüßung auf dem Tisch.
There was a glass of wine on the table to greet her.

Man hat mir dort ein herzliches Willkommen bereitet. (formal)
I was given a very warm welcome there.

Wir wurden dort sehr freundlich empfangen.
We were received there in a most friendly manner.

Man hat ihn sehr freundlich aufgenommen.
He was received/accommodated in a most friendly manner.

Die Gelegenheit, die Entscheidungen des Finanzrates zu überprüfen, ist uns (= dat.) sehr willkommen.
We very much welcome the opportunity to review the finance committee's decisions.

60.7

Beginning a letter

(a) Formal letters

If the name of the addressee is known, use:

Sehr geehrter Herr Rösler/Sehr geehrte Frau Simon.
Dear Mr Rösler/Dear Mrs/Ms Simon

Note that 'Ms' is conveyed by Frau, which is now also the usual rendering of 'Miss', with Fräulein considered a relic of more sexist days.

(For the pronunciation of geehrter see 4.4.)

If the person you are writing to has a title, it will follow Herr or Frau:

Sehr geehrter Herr Professor Wegener/Sehr geehrte Frau Dr Matthäus
Dear Professor Wegener/Dear Dr Matthäus

If the person's name is not known, use:

Sehr geehrte Damen und Herren
Dear Sir/Madam

NOTE

Damen und Herren is plural whereas the usage in English is singular.

Sehr geehrte Herren 'Dear Sirs' is only used if it is known that the addressees are exclusively male.

(b) Informal letters

The normal form of address here is:

Lieber Paul/Liebe Heidi
Dear Paul/Dear Heidi

If addressing two people it is usual to repeat the 'Dear':

Lieber Paul, lieber Harald/Liebe Elke und lieber Paul

Dear Paul and Harald/Dear Elke and Paul

To address a whole family, simply write:

Liebe Familie Huber

Dear Huber family

If the addressees are close friends or relatives, Ihr Lieben 'Dear All' could be used.

A comma will usually follow all these openings and the letter proper will begin with a small letter (unless the first word is a noun). It is accepted practice not to begin a letter with ich.

60.8

Postcard greetings

The following formulations might be used either to begin or end a postcard message:

Einen schönen Gruß aus München (von/schickt dir Harald).

Best wishes from Munich (from Harald).

Grüße/Herzliche Grüße/Liebe Grüße aus dem Schwarzwald.

Greetings/warmest greetings/good wishes from the Black Forest.

60.9

Compliments

A compliments slip (-r Empfehlungszettel) will normally bear the words:

mit den besten Empfehlungen with (the) compliments

This will be followed by the person's title, e.g. vom Direktor 'of the Director'. Some business cards (-e Visitenkarte) will have the same wording.

61

Making introductions

Introductions can be expressed as follows:

sich vor*stellen 'to introduce oneself'

jmdn. jmdm. vor*stellen 'to introduce sb. to sb.'

jmdn. kennen*lernen 'to be introduced to/get to know sb.'

jmdn. mit jmdm. bekannt machen 'to introduce sb. to sb.'

mit jmdm. bekannt sein 'to know/be acquainted with sb.'

jmds. Bekanntschaft machen 'to make sb.'s acquaintance' (formal) das ist/sind . . . 'this is/here are . . .'

jmdn. kennen 'to know sb.'

sich (= acc.) kennen 'to know each other'

heißen 'to be called'

jmdm. begegnen 'to meet sb.'

61.1

Making initial contact

(a) To attract someone's attention say:

Entschuldigung!/Verzeihung!

Excuse me./I'm sorry. (See also 68.1 on 'apologizing and seeking forgiveness'.)

Entschuldigen Sie bitte, wo ist hier der Bahnhof?

Excuse me, please, can you tell me where the station is?

(b) To attract someone's attention or to hail someone from afar, Hallo! might be used. Alternatively, if the aim is to attract attention urgently or to warn someone, the following would be more appropriate:

Vorsicht, passen Sie doch auf!

(Be careful), watch out!

Heh!/Heh, du! Pass mal auf. (informal)

Hey/hey you. Listen.

Depending on the tone of voice, the second of these may sound rude or mildly threatening.

Vorsicht!/Achtung!

Look out/Watch it!

He, du da! 'Oi, you!' is distinctly rude.

61.2

Reacting when spoken to

(a) Appropriate responses to the above include:

Bitte?

I'm sorry?

Ja, (bitte)?

Yes (what is it)?

Ja, was gibt's?

Yes, what's the matter?

(b) More informally and abruptly one could say:

Na, was denn?

Well, what is it?

61.3

Formal introductions

(a) When introducing oneself, say:

Darf ich mich vor*stellen?

May I introduce myself?

It is quite common for people to introduce themselves in formal and business situations by their surname only: Guten Tag, Meier 'Hello, my name's Meier'.

(b) In responding to a formal introduction, say angenehm (lit. 'pleasant') or:

(Es) freut mich (, Sie kennenzulernen).

I'm pleased to meet you.

See 42.3g (p. 115) for impersonal verbs with the dummy subject es.

Remember that in Germany it is customary to shake hands with people each time one meets them, not just when being introduced to them for the first time.

(c) When introducing two people to each other, it is considered good form first to tell a woman a man's name or a more senior person a younger person's name. Expressions for introductions include:

Darf ich (Ihnen) Herrn Arnold vor*stellen?

May I introduce Mr Arnold (to you)?

See 28.2 (p. 49) for the declension of Herr.

Ich möchte (Ihnen) Frau Pühmeyer vor*stellen.

I'd like to introduce Mrs Pühmeyer (to you).

Darf ich (Sie) bekannt machen? Frau Pühmeyer, das ist Herr Arnold.

May I introduce you? Mrs Pühmeyer, this is Mr Arnold.

Frau Pühmeyer, darf ich Sie mit Herrn Arnold bekannt machen?

Mrs Pühmeyer, may I introduce you to Mr Arnold?

See also 61.6b (p. 169) on 'Making acquaintances'.

The following are used on less formal occasions:

Frau Weingarten, kennen Sie Herrn Zeisig?

Mrs Weingarten, do you know Mr Zeisig?

Herr Doktor Gutmann, kennen Sie schon Manfred Seeler?

Dr Gutmann, do you know Manfred Seeler?

Das sind Herr und Frau Neumann.

This is Mr and Mrs Neumann.

Kennen Sie sich schon?

Do you already know each other?

61.4

Official introductions

(a) In dealing with officialdom, either in person or by letter, there are a few variations on the above:

(Wie ist Ihr) Vorname/Familiennamenachname/Mädchenname?

(What is your) first name/surname/maiden name?

Wie heißen Sie mit Vornamen und (mit) Familiennamen/Nachnamen?

What is your first name and your surname?

Sind Sie Herr Schwarz?

Are you Mr Schwarz? (Answer: Ja, das bin ich, 'Yes I am')

See also 73.2 (p. 228) on 'Supplying personal details'.

(b) On forms and other documents the following may be found in connection with a woman's married name:

Angelika Hauptmann geb. (geborene) Freud
 Angelika Hauptmann, neé Freud

61.5

Informal introductions

(a) Introducing oneself

The verb heißen can be used in all contexts to ask a person's name and to supply one's own:

Wie heißen Sie/heißt du?
 What is your name?

Wer sind Sie/bist du?
 Who are you?

Guten Tag, ich heiße/mein Name ist Bruno (Wegener).
 Hello, my name is Bruno (Wegener).

Among young people, in particular, Hallo followed by a first name often serves as an introduction:

Hallo, Uli, ich bin (die) Marlies/(der) Wolfgang.
 Hello, Uli, I'm Marlies/Wolfgang.

See 23.2g (p. 40) for the use of the definite article in German and 17.2 (p. 23) for the case following sein and heißen.

(b) Introducing someone else. Expressions here include many mentioned under 61.3c, but in the du or ihr forms of the verb:

Peter, kennst du (die) Gabi/(den) Hubert?
 Peter, do you know Gabi/Hubert?

Das hier ist (der) Frank/mein Mann.
 This is Frank/my husband.

Hans, du kennst doch sicher den Rudi?
 Hans, you know Rudi, don't you?

Sabine, du kennst doch schon die Antje?
 Sabine you already know Antje, don't you?

Kennst du meinen Bruder Stephan?
 Do you know my brother Stephan?

Er heißt Stephan, aber alle nennen ihn Steff.
 He's called Stephan but everyone calls him Steff.

Das ist meine Cousine. Sie heißt Karin.
 That's my cousin. She's called Karin.

Ihr kennt euch ja schon, oder?
 You already know each other, don't you?

61.6

Making acquaintances

- (a) The verb kennen*lernen can be used in almost all contexts:

Ich habe sie schon vor Jahren kennengelernt.

I met them (several) years ago.

Sie hatten sich in London kennengelernt.

They had met in London.

- (b) The word bekannt can be used to express existing acquaintance or, with machen, the act of introducing someone else:

Sie sind schon lange miteinander bekannt.

They have known each other for a long time.

- See 34.2d (p. 71) for this use of the present tense.

Ich werde ihn mit meinem Vetter bekannt machen.

I'll introduce him to my cousin.

- (c) A rather more formal way to express acquaintance is with the noun Bekanntschaft:

Wo haben Sie seine Bekanntschaft gemacht?

Where did you make his acquaintance?

- (d) Alternatively, the less formal begegnen can be used:

Wir sind ihm zum ersten Mal in München begegnet.

We first met him in Munich.

61.7

Introductions on the telephone

jmdn. sprechen 'to speak to sb.'

mit jmdm. sprechen 'to speak to sb.'

jmdn. melden 'to announce (a caller)' mit jmdm. verbunden sein 'to be connected/through to sb.'

jmdn. (mit jmdm.) verbinden 'to put sb. through (to sb.)'

- (a) When answering the telephone a simple Hallo! or Ja, bitte, 'Yes, how can I help you?' will suffice. To identify oneself, it is usual to give one's surname or, less commonly, both first name and surname. Children may also give both first name and surname:

Erschens/Neumann/Heinz Meyer

Hello, Erschens/Neumann/Heinz Meyer (speaking).

- Alternatively, one of the following could be used:

Ich bin's, der Manfred (Schulz).

It's me, Manfred (Schulz).

Hallo, hier ist Horst (Kaiser).

Hello, Horst (Kaiser) speaking.

Hier (ist) Birgit.

Birgit (speaking).

In a family the following might be used:

Familie Meyer

Hello, the Meyers/the Meyer household

Another way of announcing the family name, or of answering someone's telephone for them, is:

Hier bei Bauer.

The Bauer's (home).

(Note that on letters bei Bauer means 'c/o the Bauers'.)

If the caller has asked to speak to you personally, say:

Am Apparat/Ja, bitte?

Speaking/how can I help?

To speak to someone else, say:

Kann ich bitte (den) Günther sprechen?

Can I speak to Günther, please?

See 23.2g (p. 40) for the use of the definite article here.

(b) To find out who is on the line, ask:

Mit wem spreche ich, bitte?

Who(m) am I speaking to, please?

Wer spricht?/Wer ist am Apparat, bitte?

Who's calling?/Who is it, please?

Sabine, bist du es? (informal)

Is that you Sabine?

A possible response upon discovering who is calling might be:

Ach, du bist es!

Oh, it's you!

A firm will identify itself as follows:

Hier Firma Hahn.

This is the firm of Hahn & Co.

Hahn und Co., guten Morgen.

Good morning, Hahn & Co.

An individual may identify himself or herself:

Hahn und Co., hier Schneider.

This is Hahn & Co., Mr/Ms Schneider speaking.

(c) When calling a switchboard or some other contact person, the following will be useful:

Ich möchte bitte Apparat 671 (sechs sieben eins).

Can you give me extension 671, please?

See 30.4a (p. 56) for the full declension of wer.

Mit wem bin ich verbunden?

Who(m) am I through to?/Who(m) am I speaking to?

Verbinden Sie mich bitte mit der Personalabteilung.

Please put me through to Personnel.

Kann ich bitte den Personalleiter sprechen?

Can I speak to the Head of Personnel, please?

Kann ich bitte mit Herrn Maibaum sprechen?

Can I speak to Mr Maibaum, please?

(d) A telephonist or secretary is likely to ask:

Wen soll/darf ich melden, bitte?

Who shall I say is calling, please?

Or a caller may be asked to wait briefly:

Einen Augenblick, ich verbinde (Sie).

Just a moment, I'll put you through.

(e) When calling a company's answering machine, the following type of message may be heard:

Hier ist der automatische Anrufbeantworter, Firma Carl Dan Pedinghaus.

You are through to the answering machine of the firm Carl Dan Pedinghaus.

A more typical message for a domestic answering machine might be:

Guten Tag, Sie haben den Anschluss von Anke Weber gewählt.

Hello, you have dialled Anke Weber's number.

Since many people prefer not to put their name on the tape, the following is becoming more typical:

Es ist im Moment niemand da. Bitte hinterlassen Sie Ihre Nachricht, Ihren Namen und Ihre Rufnummer nach dem Signal und wir rufen so bald wie möglich zurück.

There is nobody here to take your call at present. Please leave your message, name and number after the beep and we'll get back to you as soon as we can.

(f) To indicate a wrong number say:

Es tut mir Leid, Sie sind falsch verbunden.

I'm sorry, you've got the wrong number.

61.8

When entering a room or someone's office, it would usually be appropriate to say one of the following:

Kann ich/Darf ich (rein*kommen)?

Can/May I (come in)?

Störe ich?
Am I disturbing you?

Sind Sie frei?
Are you free?

Hast du einen Moment Zeit für mich?
Do you have a moment?

61.9

Inviting someone in

(a) When responding positively to a knock on the door, say:

Herein!/Ja!/Ja, bitte!
Come in!

(b) More generally:

Kommen Sie (bitte) (rein).
(Please) come (in).

Sie können ruhig rein*kommen.
Do come in.

See 50.4 (p. 130) for the use of hin and her. See also 80.7 (p. 284) on 'The speaker's perspective'.

(c) To invite a person to sit down, say:

Setzen Sie sich doch./Setz dich doch.
Have a seat.

Bitte, nehmen Sie doch Platz.
Please do sit down.

Möchten/Wollen Sie sich nicht setzen?
Wouldn't you like to sit down?

(d) A more general welcome (see also 60.6 on 'welcoming') could include:

Fühlen Sie sich wie zu Hause.
Please make yourself at home.

Machen Sie es sich bequem.
Make yourself comfortable.

When offering refreshment, say:

Bedienen Sie sich, bitte.
Please help yourself.

61.10

Exchanging personal details

See also 73.2 (p. 228) on 'Supplying personal details'.

kommen/stammen aus (+ dat.) 'to come from'

- (a) To swap addresses and numbers, say:

Wie ist Ihre/deine Adresse/Telefonnummer?

What is your address/telephone number?

- (b) To discover a person's place of origin, ask:

Wo bist du geboren?

Where were you born?

Woher kommen Sie/kommst du?

Where are you from?

Woher stammen Sie/stammst du?

Where do you come from (originally)?

The verb stammen has a slightly formal ring to it.

Possible responses are:

Ich komme aus Schottland/aus den USA/aus dem Libanon/aus der Türkei.

I'm from Scotland/the USA/the Lebanon/Turkey.

Wir stammen aus Düsseldorf.

We come from Düsseldorf (originally).

Ich bin Engländer(in).

I'm English.

See 23.1 (p. 37) for the omission of the indefinite article.

Ich bin in Paris geboren.

I was born in Paris.

- (c) If discussing families, the following will be useful (see also 74.9 on 'Family relationships'):

Haben Sie/Hast du Geschwister?

Do you have any brothers or sisters?

Ich habe zwei Schwestern aber keinen Bruder.

I have two sisters but no brother.

Wir sind zu dritt/zu viert/zu fünft in der Familie.

There are three/four/five of us in our family.

A family of four, five, etc. is eine vierköpfige/fünfköpfige Familie.

- (d) Typical questions and answers when meeting a foreigner include:

Waren Sie/warst du schon einmal in Deutschland/im Ausland?

Have you been to Germany/abroad before?

Nein, ich bin zum ersten Mal hier.

No, it's my first time here.

Sind Sie/Bist du zum ersten Mal in der Schweiz?

Is this your first visit to Switzerland?

Nein, ich bin öfters hier.
No, I often come here.

(e) If talking about foreign languages, note the following:

Sprechen Sie Deutsch?
Do you speak German?

Können Sie auch Französisch?
Do you speak French too?

See 35.5 (p. 77) for the omission of the infinitive with modal verbs.

Ich spreche nur sehr wenig Deutsch.
I speak very little German.

61.11

Formal letter openings

See also 60.7a (p. 164) on formal letters; 60.7b (p. 164) on informal letter openings; and 67.3 (p. 204) on 'Thanking in a formal letter'.

bezugnehmend auf (+ acc.) 'with reference to' (see 59.1d) mit Bezug auf (+ acc.) 'with reference to' sich beziehen auf (+ acc.) 'to refer to' auf etw. (= acc.) aufmerksam machen 'to draw attention to sth.'
auf etw. (= acc.) hin*weisen 'to indicate/point sth. out' aufgrund (+ gen.) 'on the basis/strength of'
in Beantwortung (+ gen.) 'in reply to' gemäß (+ dat.) 'further to'

Referring back to previous correspondence can be expressed by any of the following:

bezugnehmend auf/mit Bezug auf Ihr Schreiben/Ihre Anfrage vom 10. Januar . . . (+ verb) with reference to your letter/enquiry of 10 January . . .

Ich beziehe mich auf Ihren/meinen Brief vom 23. September.
I refer to your/my letter of 23 September.

See 42.3c (p. 112) for reflexive verb completion.

Wir möchten auf unser Schreiben vom 16. Februar aufmerksam machen/hin*weisen.
We would like to draw your attention to our letter of 16 February.

aufgrund Ihres Schreibens vom 1. Juni . . . (+ verb) on the basis of your letter of 1 June . . .

in Beantwortung Ihres freundlichen Schreibens . . . (+ verb) in reply to your (kind) letter . . .

Alternatively, if the previous contact was by telephone:

Gemäß unserem Telefonat . . . (+ verb) (formal) Further to our telephone conversation . . .

gemäß unserer telefonischen Abmachung . . . (+ verb) (formal) as we agreed on the telephone . . .

wie heute am Telefon besprochen . . .
as discussed today on the telephone . . .

62

Taking leave

62.1

Saying goodbye

sich (= acc.) verabschieden von (+ dat.) 'to take one's leave from'

(a) 'Goodbye' can be expressed by (Auf) Wiedersehen! (except on the telephone; see 62.1d). Very late in the evening Gute Nacht 'Good night' is preferred.

In spoken German one of the following is more likely to be heard:

Tschüss!/Tschau!
Bye./See you.

In southern Germany you will often hear Servus! (which can also mean 'hello'; see also 60.2c) and Ade! (pronounced 'Ah-day', with the stress on the second syllable).

Other options include:

Bis später/dann.
See you later.

Bis bald/demnächst.
See you soon.

Bis morgen/Mittwoch/nächstes Jahr/irgendwann mal.
See you tomorrow/on Wednesday/next year/some time.

See 18.2 (p. 24) for bis and other prepositions taking the accusative.

(b) Preparing to leave can require a number of preliminary phrases such as:

Wir müssen jetzt wirklich gehen.
We really must be going now.

Es wird langsam Zeit, dass wir nach Hause gehen.
It's about time we were going home.

Es wird Zeit für uns.
It's time for us to go.

Or, very formally:

Ich darf mich verabschieden.
I'll say goodbye, then.

Much more informally one might say:

Du, ich muss weg/gehen.
I've got to go.

See 35.5 (p. 77) for the omission of the infinitive with modal verbs.

(c) Asking someone to call again can be conveyed by:

Bitte schauen Sie in acht bis zehn Tagen wieder vorbei.
Please call back in 8 to 10 days' time.

Sie wissen, Sie sind hier jederzeit herzlich willkommen.
You know you are very welcome here any time.

Or, more informally:

Komm doch mal wieder vorbei.
Call in again sometime.

Lass dich mal wieder (bei uns) sehen.
Come and see us again some time.

See 35.6b (p. 78) for this use of lassen.

(d) On the telephone the standard 'goodbye' is (Auf) Wiederhören! or, more informally, Tschüss 'bye'. Other options are:

Danke für den/Ihren/deinen Anruf.
Thanks for calling.

Ruf doch mal wieder an.
Call again some time.

NOTE Auf Wiederhören is also used on the radio.

62.2

Wishes for the journey

(a) Wishing someone a pleasant trip:

Gute Reise!/Gute Fahrt!/Gute Heimfahrt!
Hope you have a good journey (home).

Fahren Sie bitte vorsichtig.
Drive carefully.

Kommen Sie/Komm gut nach Hause!/Kommen Sie/Komm gut an!
(Have a) safe journey.

(b) Checking everything has been taken:

Haben Sie alles mit/dabei?
Have you got everything?

Hoffentlich habe ich nichts vergessen/liegenlassen/dagelassen.
I hope I haven't forgotten anything/left anything behind.

(c) Asking to confirm safe arrival:

Bitte ruf uns an, wenn du zu Hause bist.
Please give us a ring when you get home.

62.3

Finishing a formal letter sich (bei jmdm.) bedanken 'to thank (sb.)' jmdm. dankbar sein 'to be grateful to sb.'

 in Erwartung (+ gen.) 'in the expectation of' hoffen auf etw. (= acc.) 'to hope for sth.'
 sich (= acc.) freuen auf (+ acc.) 'to look forward to'
 etw. (= dat.) entgegen*sehen 'to look forward to sth.'
 jmdm. weiter*helfen 'to help sb.'
 jmdm. dienen 'to be of service to sb.'
 bei etw. (= dat.) bei*liegen 'to be enclosed with sth.'
 etw. (= dat.) bei*legen 'to enclose sth. with/attach sth. to' den Empfang bestätigen 'to confirm receipt' mit freundlichen Grüßen/Empfehlungen 'yours sincerely/with kind regards'
 i.A. (= im Auftrag)/i.V. (= in Vertretung) 'pp.'

(a) Thanking in advance:

Vielen Dank im Voraus.

Thank you very much in advance.

See 59.1d (p. 149).

Ich bedanke mich/Wir danken Ihnen im Voraus.

Thank you/we thank you in advance.

See also 67.2a (p. 202) on expressing formal thanks.

(b) Closing the letter

If the writer wishes to encourage a response, one of the following may be appropriate:

Für eine baldige Antwort wäre ich (Ihnen) sehr dankbar.

I would be grateful (to you) for an early reply.

See 39.2 (p. 93) on the use of the subjunctive.

In Erwartung einer baldigen Antwort verbleibe ich . . .

In the expectation of a prompt reply I remain, yours . . .

A firm is likely to write:

Wir hoffen auf baldige Antwort.

We hope for a prompt reply.

Wir freuen uns auf Ihre baldige Antwort.

We look forward to (receiving) your prompt reply.

See 42.3a (p. 109) and 42.3c (p. 112) for the above two verb completion patterns.

Wir sehen Ihrer baldigen/umgehenden Antwort gern entgegen.

We look forward to your prompt/immediate reply.

Wir sehen Ihrer Stellungnahme/Ihrem diesbezüglichen Schreiben gern entgegen.

We look forward to (hearing) your view/(receiving) your letter on this matter.

Wir sehen Ihrer werten Bestellung gern entgegen.

We look forward to receiving your valued order.

If the letter has provided information, weiter*helfen (lit. 'to help further') may well be used, as well as, less commonly nowadays, the verb dienen (lit. 'to serve'):

Wir hoffen Ihnen damit weitergeholfen zu haben.

We hope this will have helped you.

Wir hoffen Ihnen hiermit gedient zu haben.

We hope to have been of help to you.

Ich hoffe Ihnen damit wenigstens etwas dienen zu können.

I hope this has been of at least some help to you.

See 19.6 (p. 28) for verbs taking the dative; see 42.3f (p. 115) for verb completion by infinitive clause with zu; see also 8.7 (p. 13) for word order.

(c) Enclosures

If something is enclosed with the letter, bei*legen or bei*liegen (followed by the dative) is likely to be used:

Einen adressierten Rückumschlag haben wir diesem Brief beigelegt.

We enclose an addressed envelope with this letter.

Ein internationaler Antwortschein liegt diesem Brief bei.

An international reply coupon is enclosed with this letter.

See 42.3a–b (pp. 109–12) for verb completion with the dative, and verb completion with the accusative and dative.

Anbei erhalten Sie mein Manuskript.

My manuscript is enclosed.

At the end of the letter, following the signature, the word Anlage(n) or the abbreviation Anl. denotes 'enclosures' ('Enc.'). This may be accompanied in the body of the letter by:

In der Anlage finden Sie eine Kopie des Briefes.

A copy of the letter is enclosed.

A request such as the following will be made if receipt has to be acknowledged:

Bitte bestätigen Sie den Empfang des Paketes.

Please acknowledge receipt of the parcel.

(d) Signing off

The standard closure to a business or formal letter is:

Mit (vielen) freundlichen Grüßen

Yours sincerely/faithfully

Less common is:

Mit freundlichen/(den) besten Empfehlungen
With kind/best regards

Less formal, but still not informal, endings would be:

Mit bestem Gruß/mit (den) besten Grüßen . . .
With best wishes . . .

Es grüßt Sie herzlich . . .
Very best wishes . . .

See 42.3g (p. 115) for the use of the dummy subject es.

NOTE

Hochachtungsvoll 'Yours faithfully', is now considered rather old-fashioned.

Finally, if the letter is signed on behalf of someone, the abbreviations i.A. (im Auftrag) or i.V. (in Vertretung) will be found; these are the equivalents of English 'pp.'

62.4

Finishing an informal letter

See also 60.7b (p. 164) for opening an informal letter.

Schluß machen/schließen 'to close/finish' sich melden 'to get in touch/write' von sich (= dat.) hören lassen 'to get in touch' (lit. 'to let sb. hear about oneself')

(a) Preparing to sign off:

Ich muss jetzt Schluss machen/schließen.
I must close now.

Das wär's dann für heute.
That's enough for today then.

See 39.2 (p. 93) for the use of the subjunctive.

(b) Requests to keep in touch:

Bis bald.
See you soon.

Schreib bald.
Write soon.

Schreib mal wieder.
(Do) write again.

Melde dich bald.
Get in touch soon.

Lass bitte bald was von dir hören.
Get in touch soon/write soon.

See 35.6a (p. 77) for the modal verb lassen.

(c) Signing off (see also 60.8 on 'Postcard greetings'):

Alles Liebe/Alles Gute

All the best

See 44.4 (p. 120).

Viele liebe Grüße, dein/deine . . .

Very best wishes

63

Eating and drinking

These can involve any of the following expressions

Hunger/Durst haben 'to be hungry/thirsty'

etw. (= acc.) möchten 'to want sth. (to eat)'

zum Essen ein*laden 'to invite sb. to have sth. to eat'

eine Runde aus*geben/spendieren 'to buy a round'

essen gehen 'to go (for sth.) to eat' wollen wir (+ infinitive) . . . 'shall we . . . ' gehen wir (+ infinitive) . . . 'let's go to . . . '

63.1

Expressing hunger and thirst

(a) Personal wishes:

Ich habe (keinen) Hunger/Durst. (informal)

I am (not) hungry/thirsty.

Ich trinke ein Glas Rotwein, bitte.

I'll have a glass of red wine, please.

Er möchte ein Glas Weißwein.

He would like a glass of white wine.

See 21.2 (p. 34) for the use of apposition; for the case of nouns qualifying another noun, such as ein Glas Rotwein, see 21 (pp. 33–5), particularly 21.2 (p. 34).

(b) Proposing/inviting:

Darf ich Sie zum Essen ein*laden?

May I invite you to eat/have something to eat with me?

Was darf ich dir (an*)bieten?

What can I offer you?

Möchten Sie etwas essen/trinken?

Would you like something to eat/drink?

Was möchtest du essen?

What would you like to eat?

Wollen wir was trinken?

Shall we have something to drink?

Sie gibt heute einen aus.

She's buying everyone a drink today.

Sie haben uns ein Bier/eine Runde ausgegeben.

They bought us a beer/a round of drinks.

Ich möchte euch ein Eis/eine Runde spendieren.

I'd like to buy you an ice cream/buy you all an ice cream.

See 19.2 (p. 26) for the use of the dative here.

Gehen wir einen trinken. (informal)

Let's go and have a drink.

Gehen wir heute Abend essen?

Shall we go (out) for something to eat this evening?

Komm, ich lade dich zum Kaffee ein.

Come on, I'll buy you a coffee.

In addition a waiter might ask:

Was darf ich Ihnen bringen?

What can I bring you?

Und zum Trinken?

And what would you like to drink?

Trinken Sie noch ein Bier?

Would you like another beer?

Haben Sie sonst noch einen Wunsch?

Can I get you anything else?

63.2

Finding somewhere to sit in a café/restaurant

(a) In certain restaurants a waiter or a cloakroom attendant may offer to take a guest's coat:

Darf ich Ihnen den Mantel ab*nehmen?

May I take your coat?

(b) Asking about availability:

Haben Sie einen Tisch frei?

Do you have a spare table?

Haben Sie einen Tisch für zwei?

Do you have a table for two?

Haben Sie einen Hochstuhl für unsere kleine Tochter?

Do you have a high-chair for our young daughter?

Ich habe schon reserviert.

I've (already) booked.

Wir haben einen Tisch für vier Personen für Keller reserviert.

We ordered a table for four in the name of Keller.

(c) Asking if something is occupied:

Ist dieser Tisch/Stuhl/Platz noch frei?

Is this table/chair/seat free?

Ist hier noch frei?

Is this (chair/table) free?

Ist hier noch Platz?

Is there room/space here?

(d) Discussing location:

Gibt es hier eine (Nicht)Raucherecke?

Is there a (no) smoking section here?

Haben Sie einen Tisch am Fenster/auf der Terrasse?

Do you have a table by the window/on the terrace?

Ich möchte drinnen/draußen/in der Ecke sitzen.

I'd like to sit inside/outside/in the corner.

63.3

Ordering food and drink

etw. wählen 'to choose/order sth.'

etw. empfehlen 'to recommend sth.'

etw. nehmen/probieren 'to have/try sth.'

jmdm. etw. bringen/reichen 'to bring/pass sb. sth.'

(a) Getting the menu:

Die (Speise)Karte bitte!

(I'd like) the menu, please.

Die Weinliste bitte!

(Bring us) the wine list, please.

Ich hätte gern die Getränkekarte.

I'd like the drinks list.

See 39.2 (p. 93) for this subjunctive form.

It should be noted, however, that wine is usually ordered after food has been chosen. To place an order tell the waiter:

Wir möchten (gern) bestellen.

We'd like to order.

Or, if more time is required:

Wir haben noch nicht gewählt.

We haven't chosen yet.

(b) Consulting the waiter

The waiter or waitress will probably ask:

Haben Sie schon gewählt?
Have you decided what you want?

Was darf es sein?/Was möchten Sie?
What is it to be?/What would you like?

If help is needed choosing, say:

Was empfehlen Sie?
What do you recommend?

This is likely to elicit a response such as:

Ich empfehle Ihnen das Brathähnchen.
I would recommend the roast chicken.

▶ See 42.3b (p. 110) on verb completion.

Other questions one is likely to want to ask are:

Was ist denn Eisbein?
What is 'Eisbein'?

Or, more formally:

Können Sie erklären, was ein Eisbein ist?
Can you explain what 'Eisbein' is?

Sauerkraut – was ist das?
What is 'Sauerkraut'?

Haben Sie ein Schinkenbrot, bitte?
Do you have a(n open) ham sandwich?

Was für Suppen haben Sie?
What soups do you have?

▶ See 24.2a (p. 43) for the determiner was für ein.

Welche Eissorten haben Sie?
What ice cream flavours do you have?

To check on a dish's ingredients, ask:

Sind in dieser Torte Nüsse?
Are there any nuts in this gâteau/flan?

Enthält dieser Obstsalat Kiwi?
Is there kiwi in this fruit salad?

(c) Ordering

It should be noted that in German restaurants it is not uncommon to order all courses in one go at the start of the meal:

Ich nehme Menü drei./Ich nehme das Menü zu 15 Euro.
I'll have menu number 3/the 15 euro menu.

Als Hauptgericht/Vorspeise/möchten wir . . .
For our main course/starters we would like . . .

Zum Nachtisch/Als Nachspeise nehmen wir Eis.
For sweet we'll have ice cream.

If more of something is required:

Ich möchte noch etwas Reis/Salat.
I'd like some more rice/salad.

Kann ich Ihnen noch etwas bringen?
Would you like anything else?

Noch einen (= acc.) Kaffee?
Another coffee?

Noch ein kleines (= acc.) Bier, bitte.
Another small beer, please.

To tell the person serving how much is wanted, say:

Ich nehme eine kleine/große Portion Kartoffeln.
I'll have a small/large helping of potatoes.

See 21.2 (p. 34) for the use of apposition.

Danke, das reicht.
Thank you, that's enough.

Bitte nicht so viel.
Not so much, thank you.

A waiter may ask:

Haben Sie noch einen Wunsch?
Would you like anything else?

(Darf es) sonst noch etwas (sein)?
(Would you like) anything else?

When the wine is about to be served, the waiter will probably ask:

Möchten Sie den Wein probieren?
Would you like to try the wine first?

Note that Danke as a response to this question would mean 'no, thank you'.

When the food arrives a group will be asked:

Wer bekommt die Zwiebelsuppe?
Who is having the onion soup?

A possible response would be:

Ja, die bekomme ich.
Yes, that's me/for me.

If condiments are wanted, ask:

Können Sie uns bitte Salz/Pfeffer/Senf/Zucker bringen/geben?
Could you please bring/pass us (some) salt/pepper/mustard/sugar?

This request can be rendered more formal by substituting reichen for bringen or geben. If buying a snack from an Imbissstube (café or snack-bar), the following would be a more appropriate way to order:

Einmal/Zweimal Bratwurst mit Pommes frites, bitte.
(Fried) sausage with chips once/twice, please.

63.4

Dealing with problems

es fehlt (+ noun) 'there's a . . . missing'
etw. brauchen 'to need sth.'
etw. aus*wechseln 'to change/replace sth.'
etw. um*tauschen 'to swap/change sth.'

(a) If the order is delayed the waiter/waitress might be asked:

Müssen wir noch lange warten?
Will we have to wait much longer?

Warum dauert es denn so lange?
Why is it taking so long?

Ich habe schon vor einer halben Stunde bestellt.
I ordered half an hour ago.

A placatory waiter will probably reply:

Ihre Suppe kommt sofort/gleich.
Your soup will be here very shortly/in just a moment.

(b) If, when it finally arrives, the order is incorrect or there is something else wrong with it, one of the following might be appropriate:

Das habe ich aber nicht bestellt.
That's not what I ordered.

Das Essen ist ja kalt.
The food is cold.

Das Schnitzel ist nicht durch.
The schnitzel is not done/cooked properly.

(c) On the other hand, more utensils may be required or something dirty may need replacing:

Es fehlt ein Löffel.
There's a spoon missing.

See 42.3g (p. 115) for this use of the dummy subject es. See also 70 (pp. 215–20) on talking about absence.

Wir brauchen noch ein Glas, bitte.
We need another glass, please.

Bringen Sie mir bitte einen anderen Teller!
Bring me another (i.e. a different) plate, please.

Mein Glas ist nicht sauber. Könnten Sie es bitte auswechseln?
My glass isn't clean. Could you change it, please?

▶ See 39.3d (p. 95) for the subjunctive of modal verbs.

(d) Alternatively, reference may need to be made to the menu again:

Bitte bringen Sie mir nochmal die Speisekarte.
Could I see the menu again, please.

(e) If the bill is not what was expected, say:

Ich glaube, die Rechnung stimmt nicht.
I think the bill is wrong.

Könnten Sie bitte gerade noch einmal die Rechnung durch*gehen/prüfen.
Could you just go through/check the bill again, please?

▶ See also 94.1 (p. 339) for putting someone right.

63.5

Paying the bill

(a) To attract the waiter's attention at the end of the meal, call:

(Wir möchten) zahlen bitte!/Die Rechnung bitte!
We would like to pay, please!/The bill, please!

Könnten Sie uns bitte die Rechnung bringen!
Could you bring us the bill, please!

(b) If there are two or more at the table, the waiter/waitress is likely to ask:

(Geht das) zusammen oder getrennt?
Is the bill for everyone or is it to be paid separately?

To identify what you have to pay for, say:

Ich bezahle den Salatteller und zwei Bier.
I'm paying for the salad and two beers.

If feeling flush, you might then offer:

Zusammen./Ich bezahle.
All together./I'll pay.

(c) Leaving a tip

To find out if service is extra, ask:

Ist die Bedienung/der Service inbegriffen?
Is service included (in the price)?

The waiter will say what the bill comes to:

Das macht 37 Euro 50.
That's/ comes to €37.50.

The normal method of tipping is to pay a slightly larger amount and round the bill up. For example, if the bill comes to €37.50:

40 Euro. Stimmt so.

€40. It's OK as it is. (i.e. keep the change.)

Das stimmt so./Danke, das stimmt.

That's OK as it is./Thanks, that's fine (as it is). (i.e. keep the change.)

63.6

Talking about food and drink

etw. kochen 'to cook sth.'

zum Frühstück/Mittagessen essen 'to have for breakfast/lunch'

etw. gern essen 'to like eating sth.'

etw. (= nom.) schmeckt jmdm. 'sb. likes sth.'

(a) Talking about eating habits:

Ich koche immer selbst.

I do all my own cooking.

Wer kocht bei euch?

Who does the cooking in your house?

Was isst du zum Frühstück/zu Mittag/zu Abend?

What do you eat for breakfast/lunch/tea?

Zum Mittagessen/Mittags esse ich immer etwas Warmes.

I always have something hot for lunch.

See 46.3 (p. 122) for the use of etwas.

Zum Abendessen/Abends essen wir Suppe mit Brot und Käse oder Fleisch.

For tea/in the evenings we have soup with bread and cheese or meat.

(b) Talking about general likes and dislikes (see also 104 on likes and dislikes):

Was ist dein Lieblingessen?

What is your favourite food?

Ich esse gern Nudeln.

I like (eating) nudels.

Ich trinke gern Mineralwasser.

I like (drinking) mineral water.

Wir trinken keinen Alkohol.

We don't drink alcohol./We are teetotal.

Salzkartoffeln mag ich nicht. (informal)

I don't like boiled potatoes.

Ich esse lieber Kartoffelsalat.

I prefer potato salad.

See 51.5 (p. 133) for irregular comparative adverbs. See also 105 (p. 371) on 'Indicating preferences'.

Rosenkohl esse ich sehr gern.
I really like Brussels sprouts.

(c) Talking about reactions to food and drink

Enquiring about specific likes and dislikes usually involves the verb schmecken, which literally means 'to taste' but has the implication 'to taste good':

Wie schmeckt dir der Apfelkuchen?
How do you like the apple cake?

▶ See 19.7 (p. 29) for impersonal verbs. See also 115 (pp. 412–15) on 'Enjoyment and pleasure'.

Hat es geschmeckt?
Did you like it?

Es war sehr gut/ausgezeichnet/zu salzig/leider nicht so gut.
It was very good/excellent/too salty/not so good, I'm afraid.

To express a food's particular quality one might say:

Das Essen ist zu kalt/heiß.
The food is too cold/hot (in temperature).

Das ist zu scharf/süß/sauer.
That is too hot (i.e. in flavour)/sweet/sour.

To find out if someone has tried a particular item, ask:

Hast du den Kuchen schon versucht/probiert?
Have you tried the cake yet?

(d) Making plans to eat and drink

If offering to prepare food and drink, one might say (see also 96.2 on 'Making an offer'):

Soll ich Kaffee/etwas zu essen machen?
Should I make some coffee/something to eat?

Was sollen wir kochen?
What shall we cook/make?

To find out when food will be ready, ask:

Wie lange dauert es noch?
How much longer will it take?

Wann ist das Essen fertig?
When will the meal be ready?

Wann gibt es Essen?
At what time are we eating?

▶ See 34.2c (p. 71) for this use of the present tense.

Giving and receiving compliments

British students should note that many Germans do not appreciate the implications of understatement and are likely to interpret it as lack of interest. On the other hand, American students should be aware that the majority of Germans view overstatement with some suspicion.

64.1

Complimenting

jmdm. ein Kompliment machen 'to pay sb. a compliment'
etw. (= nom.) gefällt jmdm. 'sb. likes sth.'

(a) To pay a compliment is ein Kompliment/Komplimente machen. It takes the dative of the person being complimented (see 19.1–19.2):

Er hat ihr ein großes Kompliment gemacht.

He paid her a great compliment.

Wenn Sie das sagen, ist das wahrhaftig ein Kompliment/heißt das schon etwas.

That's quite a compliment.

A compliment 'on something' is wegen (+ gen.).

Many of the following expressions can be applied to different subjects. The subsections are intended to be illustrative only.

(b) On clothes:

Der Rock ist sehr hübsch/super/toll/schick.

The skirt is very pretty/great/brilliant/elegant.

Er steht dir gut.

It suits you.

Dein Kleid gefällt mir sehr.

I really like your dress.

Ich finde den Anzug sehr elegant.

I think the suit is very elegant.

(c) On a house/flat:

Es ist wirklich gemütlich bei euch.

Your flat/house is really comfortable/cosy.

Ich finde eure neue Wohnung sehr schön.

I think your new flat is really beautiful.

Das hast du (aber) gut/prima gemacht.

You've done that well/really well.

(d) On a performance:

Wie gut du das kannst!

You are really good at that!

Spielt die gut!

She certainly plays well.

See 31.2 (p. 57) for the emphatic (and often colloquial) use of der, die, das as personal pronouns.

(Das war) eine Glanzleistung!
That was a superb performance!

Bravo!
Bravo/well done!

(e) On use of language:

Sie sprechen aber sehr gut Deutsch.
You speak German very well.

Sie sprechen ja schon fast fließend.
You are almost fluent already.

(f) On cooking:

Mein Lob/Kompliment dem Koch/der Köchin.
My compliments to the chef (used both in restaurants and humorously amongst friends and relatives).

(g) General expressions of delight/approval (see also 104 on likes and dislikes; 112 on satisfaction and dissatisfaction; 109 on expressing agreement):

(Oh/Ei) wie schön!
(Oh) how lovely!

Mensch ist das schön!
That really is nice/beautiful.

Das ist ja großartig/phantastisch/ausgezeichnet/klasse/fein!
That is really great/fantastic/excellent/tremendous/superb!

Alle Achtung!
Good for you/him/her, etc.

64.2

Responding to compliments

(a) The simplest response will usually be Danke! 'thank you'; but depending on the type of compliment one of the following may be more appropriate:

Das freut mich.
I'm pleased (i.e. that you like it).

Das ist sehr freundlich/nett von Ihnen/dir.
That's very kind/nice of you.

Gleichfalls.
You do too/Yours does too/The same to you (i.e. the meaning depends on context).

(b) As in English, a token question may be offered in response to a compliment:

Das Kleid ist schön. – Ja, gefällt's dir?
The dress is beautiful. – Do you like it?

Ja, nicht?

Yes, it is, isn't it?

(c) An explanation of the origin of something may be given:

Das habe ich vom Karstadt./Das habe ich schon lange.

I got it at Karstadt./I've had it a long time.

65

Expressing commiseration

65.1

Sympathizing

To express sympathy or empathy any of the following might be used:

jmd. tut jmdm. Leid 'sb. feels sorry for sb.' (see also 19.7)

Pech haben 'to be unlucky'

Mitleid für etw./mit jmdm. haben 'to have sympathy for sth./with sb.'

mit jmdm. mit*fühlen 'to sympathize with sb.'

Verständis für etw. haben 'to show understanding for sth.'

jmdm. Verständnis entgegen*bringen 'to show sb. understanding'

jmdm. etw. nach*fühlen/nach*empfinden 'to understand sb.'s feelings' sich in jmds. Lage (hinein*)versetzen 'to put oneself in sb.'s position'

See also 111 (pp. 393–400) on 'Expressing happiness, fear and sadness'.

(a) To express sorrow at something, use

Es tut mir (wirklich) Leid.

I'm (really) sorry.

See also 68.1a–b (p. 206) on 'Apologizing and seeking forgiveness'.

(b) But with people use:

Er/Sie tut mir Leid.

I feel sorry for him/her.

Die Kinder tun mir Leid.

I feel sorry for the children.

Alternatively, 'poor' might be placed before the person or after du/Sie:

Der arme Willi!/Die arme Frau!

Poor Willi!/The poor woman!

See 23.2g (p. 40) for the use of the definite article in German.

Du Arme(r)!/Sie Arme(r)!

Poor you.

See 28.5 (p. 50) on adjectival nouns.

(c) There is a wide range of possible exclamations which convey sympathy. The most common are:

Schade!

What a pity!

Das ist (aber) schlimm/schrecklich/schade!
That's bad/terrible/a pity.

Pech (gehabt)! (informal) Bad luck!

So ein Pech!/Was für ein Pech!
What bad luck.

Du bist ein echter Pechvogel!
You really are unlucky/a walking disaster area.

(d) To express sympathy with someone's situation, Germans might use one of the following: Mitleid 'pity/compassion' and the adjectives mitleidvoll/mitleidig 'compassionate/pitying/sympathetic', or Mitgefühl 'sympathy' and the verb mit*fühlen 'to feel for somebody/sympathize with someone':

Ich kann mit dir mit*fühlen.
I can sympathize with you.

Ich habe großes Mitleid mit ihr.
I have a lot of sympathy with her.

▶ See 46.1–2a (p. 121) for the use of the zero declension.

Er hat sein Mitgefühl ausgesprochen.
He expressed his sympathies.

Frau Debus hat viel Mitgefühl für meine Sorgen gezeigt.
Mrs Debus showed a lot of sympathy for my concerns.

(e) Understanding for someone or something is expressed by means of Verständnis:

Sie müssen Verständnis für seine Probleme haben.
You must show some understanding for his problems.

Wir müssen ihnen Verständnis entgegen*bringen. (formal)
We must show them some understanding.

(f) Limits to sympathy can be expressed by:

Ich kann Ihnen das nach*fühlen/nach*empfinden, aber ich kann ja nichts dafür.
I can understand your feelings but there's nothing I can do about it.

▶ See 35.5 (p. 77) for the omission of the infinitive with modal verbs.

Erwarte kein Mitleid von ihm.
Don't expect any pity from him.

(g) To persuade someone to see something from another point of view, use:

Versuche doch einmal, dich in meine schwierige Lage zu versetzen.
Do try to see it from my point of view./Try to appreciate what a difficult position I am in.

65.2

Consoling

jmdn. trösten 'to console sb.'

sich trösten 'to console oneself'

jmdn. über etw. (= acc.) hinweg*trösten 'to help sb. over sth.'

jmdm. Trost zu*sprechen/bringen 'to console sb.'

(a) To console a person immediately after he or she has accidentally damaged something, say:

Es macht nichts./Es ist schon OK.

It's doesn't matter./It's OK.

Es ist doch (gar) nicht so schlimm.

It's not (at all) so bad.

(b) To encourage someone who is feeling 'down', one might say:

Kopf hoch!

(Come on) cheer up!

(c) The words Trost, trösten and tröstlich are the normal means of expressing consolation.

To express the act of consoling someone, use:

Der Pfarrer hat ein paar tröstende Worte gesagt.

The priest/minister said a few words of comfort.

Mein Bruder hat mich über die Krise hinweggetröstet.

My brother helped me over (lit. 'consoled me over') the crisis.

Er hat der Frau Trost zugesprochen/gebracht.

He consoled/comforted her.

The means of consolation following trösten is expressed by mit:

Er tröstet sich mit dem Gedanken an das Geld.

He's consoling himself by thinking about the money.

See 38.1 (p. 90) for prepositional verbs.

Feeling comforted or consoled by something is expressed by means of Trost or tröstlich:

Es ist ein Trost/tröstlich zu wissen, dass du immer da bist.

It's a comfort/comforting to know you are always there.

See 42.3e (p. 114) for verb completion by a clause.

Ein Trost, dass jetzt alles vorbei ist.

It's a relief that everything is now over.

Das Kind ist unser einziger Trost.

The child is our only comfort.

Zum Trost kann ich Ihnen sagen, dass wir zur Zeit ähnliche Probleme haben.

It may comfort you to know that we are currently having similar problems.

Fairly common ironic expressions are:

Das ist ein schwacher/schöner/schlechter Trost.

That's some comfort (i.e. not much comfort).

Das ist ja sehr tröstlich!

Some comfort that is.

Trösten Sie sich! or tröste dich! are used in an ironic sense when telling a person with a problem about someone else's similar difficulty – in the sense of 'console yourself with the thought that you are not the only one'.

65.3

Bereavement

an etw. (= dat.) Anteil nehmen 'to feel sorry about sth.'

Beileid aus*drücken/aus*sprechen 'to express sympathy'

zutiefst erschüttert sein 'to be deeply shocked'

Mitgefühl entgegen*nehmen 'to accept sympathy' mit jmdm. (mit*)fühlen 'to feel for sb.'

(jmds.) Leid teilen 'to share (sb.'s) sorrow' entschlafen/hin*scheiden 'to pass away/die'

um jmdn. trauern 'to mourn sb.'

(a) Sympathies to someone, either personally or in writing, could be conveyed by one of the following:

Mein herzliches/aufrichtiges Beileid zum Tode deiner Schwester.

My deepest/sincere condolences on the death of your sister.

Wir sind in Gedanken bei euch.

You are in our thoughts.

Rather more formally one might write:

Wir nehmen Anteil am Tode Ihres Mannes.

We are/feel deeply sorry about the death of your husband.

Wir möchten Ihnen unser aufrichtiges Beileid ausdrücken/aussprechen.

We would like to express our sincere condolences.

Zutiefst erschüttert hörten wir vom Tode Ihrer Frau.

We were deeply shocked to hear of the death of your wife.

See also 111.3j (p. 399) on 'Grief and mourning'; and 111.3k (p. 399) and 114.6 (p. 411) on expressing shock.

Most formally of all:

Bitte nehmen Sie mein tiefempfundenenes Mitgefühl zu Ihrem schweren Verlust entgegen.

Please accept my deeply felt sympathy at your terrible loss.

(b) On a card one might write:

Mit tiefstem Beileid.

With deepest sympathy.

▶ See 46.1 (p. 121) for the zero declension.

Wir fühlen mit Ihnen.

We feel for you.

Wir teilen Ihr Leid.

We share your sorrow.

▶ See also 111.3j (p. 399) on 'Grief and mourning'.

(c) An obituary notice in the paper might employ the highly formal and literary verbs entschlafen and hin*scheiden:

Gestern entschlief nach langem Leiden mein lieber Gatte, Rudolf Engel. In tiefer/stiller Trauer, Katharina Engel.

My dearly beloved husband, Rudolf Engel, passed away yesterday following a long illness. Sadly missed by Katharina Engel.

Am Freitag schied nach kurzer Krankheit meine liebe Frau, Mechthild Sammer, hin. In stiller Trauer, Alois Sammer.

My dearly beloved wife, Mechthild Sammer, died on Friday following a short illness. Sadly missed by Alois Sammer.

Wir trauern um unseren verstorbenen Bruder, Harald Meier.

We mourn the loss of our recently departed brother, Harald Meier.

▶ See 38.1 (p. 90) for prepositional verbs.

(d) Another typical newspaper notice is:

Wir bedanken uns für alle Beileidsbeweise.

Thank you for all expressions of condolence.

(e) The reason for someone's absence or for the cancellation of an event may be given as:

Wegen eines Trauerfalls* in der Familie muss die heutige Veranstaltung leider *aus*fallen*.

Owing to a family bereavement today's event has had to be cancelled.

▶ See 67.1–3 (pp. 201–4) on 'Thanking' for acknowledging commiseration.

66

Expressing good wishes

The following cover a wide range of reasons for wishing someone well:

jmdm. etw. wünschen 'to wish sb. sth.'
viel Glück/Spaß 'good luck/have a good time' viel Erfolg/Vergnügen 'every success/hope you enjoy yourself' viel Freude 'much joy/happiness' alles Gute 'all the best' (see 44.4) gute Besserung 'get well soon' Gesundheit! 'bless you'
sich (= dat.) etw. schmecken lassen 'to enjoy food' guten Appetit! 'enjoy your meal'
zum Wohl! 'cheers!'

For 'good wishes' see 18 (p. 24), particularly 18.7 (p. 26).

Almost all the greetings and expressions of good wishes that follow are assumed to be preceded by Ich wünsche Ihnen/dir . . . 'I wish you . . . ' and as a result expressions are in the accusative case. Inclusion of the verb is more typical of fairly formal style, as in the third example of 66.8a.

66.1

General wishes

(a) The following may be used when wishing someone well for a forthcoming activity or event:

Viel Glück!
 Good luck!

Viel Spaß (beim Autorennen)!
 Hope you have fun/a good time (at the motor racing).

See also 115.3 (p. 412) on 'Enjoying oneself'.

Viel Vergnügen!
 Hope you enjoy it.

(b) In spoken German between friends and at the end of informal letters, good wishes may be conveyed by:

Mach's gut!/Ich wünsche dir was.
 (I wish you) all the best.

Mit den besten Wünschen, however, can only be used in letters.

(c) At work, colleagues might wish each other Mahlzeit! 'bon appetit' at lunch time (see also 66.5 on food and drink). You should say the same (or Guten Appetit!) when passing people who are eating. After work it is normal to say (Schönen) Feierabend! 'Have a nice evening/Enjoy your evening off'. On Fridays Schönes Wochenende! 'Have a nice weekend' is more likely to be used.

(d) To return good wishes simply say Gleichfalls or Ihnen/dir auch 'To you too'.

See 67.1–3 (pp. 201–4) for thanking people for their good wishes.

(e) To wish someone joy of something:

Ich wünsche dir viel Freude an dem Auto.

I hope you enjoy the car./I wish you much pleasure with the car.

66.2

For good health

(a) To wish someone a speedy recovery from illness, say or write:

Gute Besserung!

Get well soon.

Werde schnell wieder gesund.

Get well/better soon.

Ich hoffe, du bist bald wieder gesund.

I hope you're better soon.

Slightly more formally one might write:

Alles Gute/Beste Wünsche für eine baldige Genesung.

All the best/best wishes for a speedy recovery.

See 44.4 (p. 120) for the adjective declension after alles.

(b) If someone sneezes, say Gesundheit! 'Bless you!' (lit. 'good health').

66.3

For an examination

The normal way of expressing good luck is:

Viel Glück bei der Prüfung.

Good luck in the exam.

Alles Gute zum Examen.

All the best for the examination.

A more formal variant is:

Viel Erfolg bei der bevorstehenden Prüfung.

(I wish you) every success in the forthcoming exam.

66.4

For a new home

Alles Gute im neuen Heim.

All the best in your new home.

Viel Glück in eurem neuen Haus.

Good luck in your new house.

66.5

With food and drink

(a) The standard thing to say before starting a meal is Guten Appetit 'bon appetit/I hope you enjoy your meal'. This is used a great deal in Germany. The normal response would be Danke/(Danke,) gleichfalls 'Thanks/(Thanks,) you too'.

Another option is:

Lassen Sie es sich schmecken./Lass es dir (gut) schmecken.
I hope you enjoy it.

See 35.6b (p. 78) for the use of lassen.

(b) If offering a toast, choose one of the following:

Prost! (informal) Cheers!

Prosit!/Zum Wohl!
Cheers!/Good health!

Auf Ihr Wohl! (formal)
To your good health!

If responding to a toast, simply reply in kind: (Ja,) zum Wohl!

When toasting a particular occasion or activity use auf:

Auf ein gutes neues Jahr!
Here's to a happy new year.

See also 66.8d (p. 200) on New Year celebrations.

Auf gute Zusammenarbeit!
Here's to a fruitful collaboration.

Laßt uns auf Paul/auf gute Gesundheit im Neuen Jahr anstoßen.
Let us drink (lit: chink glasses) to Paul's health/to good health in the new year.

Generally speaking, a guest should not start drinking until the host or hostess has offered a toast. Clinking of glasses is by no means universal but it is rather more common in Germany than in Britain or the USA.

66.6

At night

(a) To wish someone good night, you could say:

Schlafen Sie gut!
Sleep well.

Ich hoffe, Sie haben eine ruhige Nacht.
I hope you have a peaceful night.

Or simply, Gute Nacht! 'Good night'.

(b) To a child one might say:

Schlaf gut.
Sleep well.

Träume süß!
Sweet dreams.

Dropping the final -e from the imperative form is a sign of greater informality (see 58.2b).

66.7

Congratulating

jmdn. zu etw. (= dat.) beglückwünschen 'to congratulate sb. on sth.'
 herzliche Glückwünsche zu etw. (= dat.) 'many congratulations on sth.'
 jmdm. zu etw. gratulieren 'congratulate sb. on sth.'
 jmdm. etw. zu etw. wünschen 'to wish sb. sth. on the occasion of sth.'

(a) Congratulations are usually expressed by the verb beglückwünschen 'to congratulate' or the phrase herzliche Glückwünsche 'many congratulations':

Herzliche Glückwünsche zu eurem Erfolg.
 Many congratulations on your success.

(b) Congratulations on a new job or a promotion:

Herzlichen Glückwunsch zur neuen Stelle.
 Congratulations on the new job.

Ich beglückwünsche Sie zur Beförderung.
 I congratulate you on your promotion.

See 38.1 (p. 90) for prepositional verbs.

(c) Congratulations on a birth:

Wir gratulieren (Ihnen) zum neuen Baby/zur Geburt Ihres ersten Kindes.

We send our congratulations on the arrival of the new baby/the birth of your first child.

See 19.6 (p. 28) for verbs that take the dative.

(d) Congratulations on examination success:

Ich gratuliere zur bestandenen Prüfung.
 Congratulations on passing your exam.

(e) An official wedding announcement in the newspaper is also a form of congratulation:

Wir geben die Vermählung unseres Sohnes bekannt.
 We have pleasure in announcing the marriage of our son.

(f) In Catholic families the First Communion is an important event on which children are congratulated, particularly by godparents:

Zu deiner Erstkommunion wünscht dir alles Gute und Gottes Segen, dein Taufpate.

All the best and God's blessing to you on the occasion of your First Communion, your godfather.

Similarly, children are congratulated by their sponsors on their Confirmation (the Catholic Firmung or Protestant Konfirmation):

Zu deiner Firmung, Hans, wünscht dir alles Gute dein Firmpate/deine Firmpatin.

All the best to you, Hans, for your Confirmation, your sponsor.

See 67.1–3 (pp. 201–4) on thanking for responding to good wishes.

66.8

Celebrations

(a) Along with herzlichen Glückwunsch zu . . . (see 66.7a–b on ‘Congratulating’), alles Gute zu . . . is the most common means of wishing someone well on a personal celebration, such as a birthday or anniversary:

Alles Gute zum (60.) Geburtstag.

Best wishes on/All the best for your (60th) birthday.

Alles Gute zum Namenstag.

Best wishes on your name day/Saint’s day.

Zu eurer Hochzeit wünsche ich (euch) alles Gute/viel Glück.

I wish you all the best/good luck on your wedding day.

A more formal greeting for this last example, such as might appear on a card, would be:

Dem glücklichen Paar viel Freude am Hochzeitstag und für das Leben zu zweit.

Much joy to the happy couple on their wedding day and in their (future) life together.

(b) Good wishes for public holidays of any kind can be conveyed by:

Schöne Feiertage!/Schönen Feiertag!

Enjoy the/Have a good holiday.

NOTE

Holidays spent away from home would normally elicit the wish Schönen Urlaub! ‘Have a good holiday’, while for longer holidays away from, say, school, you could wish someone Schöne Ferien!

(c) At Christmas one of the following would be appropriate either in spoken or written German:

Frohe/Fröhliche/Gesegnete Weihnachten!

Merry/Happy/Blessed Christmas.

Frohes Weihnachtsfest!/Frohes Fest!

Merry Christmas.

(d) At New Year the most idiomatic greeting is Guten Rutsch (ins neue Jahr)!, meaning literally ‘have a good slide into the new year’. Other possibilities are:

Ein Glückliches Neues Jahr!/(Ein) Gutes Neues Jahr!

Happy New Year.

Frohes/Glückliches Neujahr!

Happy New Year.

(Frohe Weihnachten) und die besten Wünsche zum Neuen Jahr!

(Merry Christmas) and best wishes for the new year.

Alles Gute zum Neuen Jahr!

All the best for the new year.

The following could be used as a toast:

Prost Neujahr!

Here's to the new year.

(e) Easter greetings are usually conveyed by:

Frohe Ostern!/Ein frohes Osterfest!

Happy Easter.

See 46.1 (p. 121) for the zero declension of adjectives.

67

Giving and receiving thanks, expressing appreciation

There are many ways in which thanks and appreciation can be expressed:

vielen/herzlichen Dank für etw. (= acc.) 'many thanks for sth.'
jmdm. für etw. (= acc.) danken 'to thank sb. for sth.'
sich bei jmdm. für etw. (= acc.) bedanken 'to thank sb. for sth.'
jmdm. (zu Dank) verpflichtet sein 'to be indebted to sb.'
jmdm. Dankbarkeit zeigen 'to show sb. gratitude' Verdienst/Leistung an*erkennen 'to recognize sb.'s merit/performance'
etw. zu schätzen/würdigen wissen 'to value/appreciate sth.'
es ist das Verdienst von (+ dat.) 'it is thanks to'
etw. dankend erhalten 'to be grateful for (receiving) sth.'
etw. dankend bestätigen 'to acknowledge receipt gratefully'
jmdm. einen Dienst erweisen 'to do sb. a service'
etw. dankend an*nehmen 'to take/accept gratefully'

67.1

Thanking someone informally

(a) Simple thanks can be expressed by Danke. More emphatically, say:

Danke sehr./Vielen Dank/Herzlichen Dank.

Thank you very much/Many thanks/Sincere thanks.

Alternatively, the verb danken may be used:

Wir danken euch sehr.

Thank you very much.

See 19.6 (p. 28) for verbs that take the dative.

In very informal usage some people might say tausend Dank 'thanks a million'.

(b) To thank someone for something use für:

Danke sehr für* die Einladung.

Thank you very much for the invitation.

But to thank someone for having done something, a clause with dass is required (see 8.1–2):

Vielen Dank (dafür), dass Sie das Auto repariert haben.
Many thanks for mending the car.

(c) Other ways to thank people informally include:

Danke, das war doch wirklich nicht nötig.
Thanks, but it really wasn't necessary.

Es war sehr nett/freundlich von dir, uns einzuladen.
It was very nice/kind of you to invite us.

▶ See 42.3f (p. 115) for verb completion by infinitive clauses with zu; see also 8.7 (p. 13) for word order.

Wir wissen nicht, wie wir euch danken können.
We don't know how we can thank you.

(Es/das ist) nett, dass Sie an mich gedacht haben.
(It is) nice of you to think of me.

▶ See 38.1 (p. 90) for prepositional verbs.

Das ist/Ich finde das sehr lieb/freundlich (von Ihnen).
That is/I think that is very nice/kind (of you).

And, slightly more formally:

Das ist sehr liebenswürdig von Ihnen.
That is very kind of you.

(d) Thanks to deity or to providence (often with no religious connotation) can be expressed as follows:

Gott sei Dank!
Thank God/heavens.

▶ See 39.5 (p. 97) for this subjunctive form.

Zum Glück ist nichts passiert.
Fortunately nothing happened.

67.2

Thanking and expressing appreciation formally

(a) The verb sich (= acc.) bedanken is frequently used, particularly in written communications (see also 67.3 on 'Thanking in a formal letter'):

Wir möchten uns bei Ihnen bedanken.
We would like to thank/express our thanks to you.

Ich bedanke mich herzlich/recht herzlich für Ihre Hilfe.
Thank you very much/most sincerely for your help.

This expression would also be used in front of an audience; note the use of bei before the person being thanked:

Wir möchten uns bei Ihnen für Ihre Unterstützung bedanken.
We would like to thank you for your support.

(b) A very formal but quite common expression is (zu Dank) verpflichtet sein:

Ich bin Ihnen zu Dank verpflichtet.

I am indebted to you./I owe you a debt of gratitude.

Wir sind Ihnen sehr verpflichtet.

We are indebted to you/very grateful.

(c) On official occasions and when awards are to be made, e.g. in the work situation, the following may be said:

Darf ich mich auch im Namen des Geschäftsführers für Ihr Engagement bedanken.

Allow me to thank you on behalf of the manager as well for your commitment.

Note that Engagement is pronounced as in French.

See 28.2b (p. 49) for the declension of Name and other weak nouns.

Wir möchten Ihnen unsere Dankbarkeit zeigen.

We should like to show you our gratitude.

See 12.3 (p. 17) for the order of noun and pronoun objects.

Wir schätzen ihren Beitrag sehr.

We value her contribution highly.

In Anerkennung Ihrer großen Leistungen bei uns in der Firma möchten wir Ihnen diese Uhr schenken.

We would like to present you with this clock in recognition of your great achievements in the firm.

See 5.2a (p. 7) for the position of the verb here.

Wir möchten Ihr Verdienst/Ihre Leistung auf folgende Weise an*erkennen.

We would like to recognize your contribution/performance in the following way.

Alle Kollegen wissen sein Verdienst zu schätzen.

All his colleagues value his contribution.

Die Firma weiß Ihre Arbeit zu würdigen.

The firm greatly appreciates your work.

Es ist das Verdienst der indischen Regierung, dass die Pest so schnell unter Kontrolle gebracht wurde.

It is thanks to the Indian government that the (spread of the) plague was controlled so quickly.

Sie haben uns einen großen Dienst erwiesen.

You have done us a great service.

(d) A notice of thanks in the newspaper might take the following form:

Herzlichen Dank allen, die uns zu unserer Hochzeit so reichlich mit Geschenken und Glückwünschen erfreut haben.

Sincere thanks to all those who sent so many delightful gifts and good wishes on the occasion of our wedding.

67.3

Thanking in a formal letter

Thanks in a letter usually refer back to a previous communication (see also 61.11 on 'Formal letter openings'):

(a) Letters:

Wir danken Ihnen für Ihr Schreiben vom 24. August.

Thank you for your letter of 24 August.

Wir bestätigen dankend den Eingang Ihres Briefs.

We acknowledge with thanks the receipt of your letter.

Wir haben Ihren Brief dankend erhalten.

We are grateful for your letter.

(b) Enquiries:

Wir bedanken uns für Ihre Anfrage vom 11. April.

Thank you for your enquiry of 11 April.

(c) Orders:

Besten Dank/Wir danken bestens für Ihre Bestellung.

Many thanks for your order.

Hiermit möchte ich mich für die Zusendung der Materialien bedanken.

I would (hereby) like to thank you for sending the materials.

This can be rendered more informally by adding recht herzlich:

Hiermit möchte ich mich recht herzlich für die Zusendung der Materialien bedanken.

I would like to thank you very much for sending the materials.

Wir bestätigen dankend den Erhalt/Empfang Ihrer werten Bestellung. (formal)

We gratefully acknowledge receipt of your valued order.

(d) Offers/quotes:

Ich danke für die Übermittlung Ihres Angebots vom 3. Januar.

Thank you for forwarding/sending your offer dated 3 January.

67.4

Acknowledging thanks

(a) Germans are far more likely than the British to acknowledge explicitly someone's expression of thanks. Bitte 'Don't mention it/You're welcome' is rarely omitted in response to Danke. Slightly more forcefully you might use Bitte schön!, Bitte sehr! or Aber bitte!

(b) Other possible responses are:

Nichts zu danken!

Don't mention it.

Keine Ursache!

Not at all./Think nothing of it. (lit. no cause)

Gern geschehen!

You're welcome.

Das ist doch nicht der Rede wert./Das ist doch selbstverständlich.

Don't mention it. (lit. That's hardly worth mentioning)

See 20.3 (p. 32) for the use of the genitive with certain adjectives.

Schon gut!

That's all right

Note that schon gut! is also used in response to a suggestion or a complaint in the sense of 'yes, all right'.

(c) To say something was received gratefully, use dankend or mit Dank:

Sie nahm das Buch mit Dank/dankend an.

She accepted the book with gratitude/gratefully.

67.5

Declining help and offers

(a) To turn down an offer of material help of some sort, say:

Das darf/kann ich nicht (von Ihnen) an*nehmen.

I am not allowed/cannot accept that (from you).

This might be followed by:

Trotzdem vielen Dank.

Thanks all the same.

(b) When telling someone not to meddle (declining help when it has not been requested, as it were), say:

Das geht Sie gar nichts an.

That's none of your business.

This rather rude formulation can be rendered less harsh by adapting it slightly:

Entschuldigen Sie, aber das geht Sie wirklich nichts an!

Excuse me, but that really isn't any of your business.

Alternatively, use the fairly neutral:

Das betrifft Sie doch nicht.

That doesn't concern you.

Another, less forceful expression is:

Entschuldigen Sie, aber überlassen Sie das bitte mir.

Please leave that to me, if you don't mind.

On the other hand, to be more abrupt and peremptory one could use:

Halten Sie sich da (ganz) raus.
Keep (well) out of it.

(c) Note that a simple Danke in response to an offer of some sort will mean 'No, thank you'. In order to accept the offer, say either Ja, bitte 'Yes, please' or Ja, gerne 'Yes, gladly/Yes, I would'.

68

Expressing apologies and regret

The most common expressions include:

jmdm. Leid tun 'to be sorry'
sich (= acc.) bei jmdm. entschuldigen 'to apologize to sb.'
etw. mit etw. (= dat.) entschuldigen 'to excuse sth. with sth.'
sich bei jmdm. entschuldigen lassen 'to send one's apologies to sb.'
jmdn. bei jmdm. entschuldigen 'to convey sb.'s apologies to sb.'
sich (= dat.)/jmdm. verzeihen 'to forgive oneself/sb.'
jmdn. um Verzeihung bitten 'to ask sb. for forgiveness/apologize'
jmdm. etw. vergeben 'to forgive sb. sth.'

68.1

Apologizing and seeking forgiveness

(a) To say sorry for a slight mishap or some minor misdemeanour, a simple Verzeihung! or Entschuldigung! 'sorry' will suffice:

Entschuldigung, falsch verbunden.
I'm sorry, I've got the wrong number. (on the telephone)

Verzeihung, ich habe mich verwählt.
I'm sorry, I've dialled the wrong number.

Tut mir Leid, short for es tut mir Leid (see 68.1b), is also used in this sense. In German border regions with France, in particular, the form Pardon (pronounced as in French) may well be heard, while in informal spoken German Sorry! is now frequently heard, although it tends to be a lot more superficial than in English and it should not be used for a genuine apology.

(b) The expression Leid tun is very commonly used to convey apologies and regret, often with an adverb for reinforcement. Note that the verb is always used impersonally (see 19.7 for impersonal verbs):

Es tut mir furchtbar/aufrichtig Leid, dass ich das Buch schon wieder vergessen habe.
I am terribly/sincerely sorry for having forgotten the book again.

Es tut uns sehr/wirklich Leid, dass ihr nicht mitkommen könnt.
We are very/really sorry that you can't come with us.

See also 113.3 (p. 406) on 'Disappointment'.

(c) A slightly stronger request for forgiveness than the one-word expressions in 68.1a is conveyed by the verb entschuldigen 'to excuse/forgive' and its reflexive variant:

Entschuldige, ich hab's nicht gewusst.

I'm sorry, I didn't know.

Entschuldigen Sie, bitte.

Please excuse (me).

Entschuldigen Sie bitte, dass ich zu spät gekommen bin.

I am sorry I came too late.

Er entschuldigte sich für die zusätzliche Arbeit.

He apologized for the extra work.

In combination with a direct object this is the verb normally used to request forgiveness for something:

Entschuldigen Sie bitte meine Verspätung. (formal)

Please forgive my late arrival.

In formal style:

Meine Abwesenheit bitte ich zu entschuldigen. (very formal)

Please excuse my absence.

With mit the excuse can be offered too:

Die Studenten entschuldigten ihre schlechten Noten mit Geldsorgen.

The students gave financial worries as the reason for their bad marks.

Entschuldigung and zu can also be employed to explain a reason or excuse:

Zu seiner Entschuldigung sagte er, dass er kein Geld gehabt habe.

To excuse himself/in his defence he said he didn't have any money.

Note also the expression:

Er wusste keine Entschuldigung vorzubringen.

He was unable to produce an excuse.

See also 36.1c (p. 82) for the use of zu with separable verbs.

(d) Certain constructions with entschuldigen are used to convey someone else's apologies for absence (note the use of bei + dat. with the reason or event):

Sie musste gestern den Kollegen bei dem Treffen entschuldigen.

She had to present her colleague's excuses (for absence) to the meeting yesterday.

Können Sie mich bitte bei dem Direktor entschuldigen?

Can you send my apologies (for absence) to the director?

In combination with the modal verb lassen (see 35.6b), sich entschuldigen is also used to pass on apologies for absence:

Meine Frau lässt sich entschuldigen. Sie muss heute arbeiten.
My wife sends her apologies. She has to work today.

Entschuldigen is further used to excuse someone from an activity, e.g. in school:

Ich möchte meinen Sohn Hans für morgen entschuldigen.
I would like to have my son Hans excused for tomorrow.

A more formal way of offering an excuse for someone's absence is:

Ich möchte meine Tochter wegen ihres Fehlens entschuldigen.
I would like to excuse my daughter for being absent.

(e) Another verb used to seek forgiveness is verzeihen 'to pardon/forgive':

Verzeihen Sie, daß ich so spät an*rufe.
I'm sorry for ringing so late.

Verzeih die Störung. (informal)
I'm sorry for disturbing you.

- ▶ See 58.2b (p. 147) for the informal dropping of the -e in imperatives.

Note that verzeihen takes a dative object of the person (see 19.1):

Sie hat ihm endlich verziehen.
She finally forgave him.

Es sei dir noch einmal verziehen!
You're forgiven!/We'll forgive you one more time! (ironical)

- ▶ See 39.4 (p. 97) for the use of Subjunctive I.

Wir können es uns nicht verzeihen, dass wir ihm nicht geholfen haben.
We cannot forgive ourselves for not helping him.

A much more formal and emphatic request for forgiveness is expressed by um Verzeihung bitten:

Er bat sie (vielmals) um Verzeihung.
He apologized to her (profusely).

- ▶ See 38.1 (p. 90) for the use of prepositional verbs.

(f) The verb vergeben is less commonly used. It too takes a dative of the person:

Sie hat ihm seine Rücksichtslosigkeit vergeben.
She has forgiven him his thoughtlessness.

The verb is also used in the religious sense of forgiveness:

Vergib uns unsere Sünden.
Forgive us our sins.

- ▶ See 19.2 (p. 26) for this use of the dative; and 12.3 (p. 17) for the order of noun and pronoun objects.

68.2

Expressing regret

See also 71 (p. 221) for expressing availability and 72 (pp. 224–7) for non-availability.

etw. bedauern 'to regret sth.'
 zu (jmds.) Bedauern 'to (sb.'s) regret' bedauerlicherweise 'regrettably' um Verständnis bitten 'to ask for understanding' Verständnis für etw. haben 'to show understanding for sth.'

(a) The majority of expressions of regret in formal letters involve the verb bedauern or the corresponding verbal noun:

Wir bedauern, nicht früher geantwortet zu haben.
 We regret not having replied sooner.

Wir bedauern, Ihnen mitteilen zu müssen, dass diese Veröffentlichung immer noch nicht lieferbar ist.
 We regret to inform you that this publication is still not available.

See 42.3f (p. 115) for verb completion by infinitive clause with zu; and 8.7 (p. 13) on word order.

Zu unserem großen Bedauern müssen Sie mit einer Verzögerung von ca. 10 Wochen rechnen.
 Much to our regret you can expect (lit. you must reckon on) a delay of about 10 weeks.

(b) The adverb bedauerlicherweise is also frequently found in formal style:

Bedauerlicherweise ist das nun nicht mehr möglich.
 Unfortunately that is now no longer possible.

(c) Regret may also involve asking for someone's understanding:

Wir bitten um Ihr Verständnis, aber die gewünschte Broschüre ist zur Zeit vergriffen.
 We would ask for your understanding as the brochure you require is currently out of print.

Bitte haben Sie Verständnis für unsere schwierige Lage.
 Please show some understanding/sympathy for our difficult position.

(d) In all styles, regret can be conveyed by leider:

Leider kann ich heute nicht ins Kino.
 Unfortunately I can't come to the cinema today.

Ihr Brief ist hier leider zu spät eingetroffen.
 Your letter unfortunately arrived here too late.

(e) For affirming that the mistake/slip was a one-off, use:

Das kommt nicht wieder vor./Das soll nicht wieder vorkommen.
 That won't happen again.

68.3

Accepting an apology

(a) To acknowledge a person's apology, a simple bitte! 'that's OK' will often suffice. It can be reinforced as bitte bitte! 'that's perfectly all right'.

(b) There are a number of other possible responses for informal usage:

Ist schon gut/OK.

It's all right/OK.

(Das) macht doch nichts.

That's no problem.

Das ist doch nicht so schlimm/tragisch.

That's not so bad/tragic.

Mach dir nichts daraus.

Don't worry about it.

Keine Sorge./Mach dir keine Sorgen.

No problem./Don't worry about it.

(Das) spielt keine Rolle.

That is of no importance.

(c) Less informal are:

Das kann ja (jedem) passieren.

These things happen./It could happen to anyone.

See 19.6 (p. 28) for the use of the dative.

Das ist nicht Ihre Schuld.

That's not your fault.

Es ist nicht der Rede wert.

It's not worth mentioning./Don't even mention it.

See 20.3 (p. 32) for other adjectives which require the genitive.

Das ist vergeben and vergessen.

That's all over and done with.

(d) To indicate a conciliatory mood one might use:

Vergessen wir das!

Let's just forget about it.

Schon vergessen!

I've already forgotten (about) it.

XI

Giving and seeking factual information

69

Talking and enquiring about existence

69.1

Presence

sein 'to be'
da sein 'to be present/here'
-s Dasein 'present'
existieren 'to exist'
bestehen 'to exist'
anwesend sein 'to be present'
dabei sein 'to be involved'
zur Stelle sein 'to be on the spot'
-e Gegenwart 'present'
es gibt 'there is/there are'

(a) Being around/about sein and existieren are the obvious verbs to indicate presence. Sein is usually complemented by an adverb:

Er ist da.
He is here.

Herr Meier ist hier.
Mr Meier is here.

Wer ist da? Ich bin's.
Who is there? It's me.

Von der Urgroßmutter existiert noch ein Foto aus ihrer Kindheit.
There is a photo of great-grandmother (in existence) from her childhood.

When talking about somebody's presence, use -s Dasein:

Sein Dasein gab ihr Trost.
His presence comforted her/consoled her.

(b) Being present (for a specific purpose):

Zur Abstimmung im Bundestag müssen mindestens zwei Drittel der Abgeordneten anwesend sein.

At least two thirds of the MPs/delegates must be present for the vote in (the German) Parliament.

Ist hier an Bord ein Arzt anwesend?

Is there a doctor on board?

Bei einem Unfall ist nicht immer gleich ein Fachmann zur Stelle.

In an accident there is not always an expert available/on the spot straight away.

Die Verlosung muss in (der) Gegenwart eines Juristen vollzogen werden.

The draw must be conducted in the presence of a lawyer.

The idiomatic way to express occurrence is es gibt 'there is/there are'. Es gibt is followed by the accusative form of the person/thing or the persons/things that exist(s):

Wo gibt es hier seltene Pflanzen zu sehen?

Where can one/we see some rare plants?

In der Wüste gibt es nur wenige Oasen.

There are only a few oases in the desert.

(c) Being involved

dabei sein 'to be present/involved':

Viele Veteranen waren dabei, als die letzten russischen Soldaten aus Berlin abzogen.

Many veterans were present when the last Russian soldiers moved out of Berlin.

Wenn Fußball gespielt wird, ist er immer dabei.

If there is football being played he is always there/involved.

See 8 (pp. 11–13) for word order.

69.2

Occurrence

es gibt 'there is/there are'

vor*kommen/passieren 'to occur' (see 33.8b)

-s Vorkommen von 'presence/occurrence/deposit of'

-r Bestand 'stock/supply'

-e Gegebenheit 'condition'

gegenwärtige Lage 'present/current situation'

(a) When talking about occurrence in certain places or at certain times:

Es gibt über 90 Millionen deutsche Muttersprachler auf der Welt.

There are more than 90 million native speakers of German in the world.

Damals, in den 20er Jahren, gab es schon viele Autos.
At that time, in the twenties, there were already many cars.

(es stays with the verb; see 5.1–5.2.)

Am Anfang des Krieges gab es noch kein Penizillin in den deutschen Krankenhäusern.

At the beginning of the war there was no penicillin in German hospitals.

(b) Things that can/cannot happen:

Es kann natürlich gelegentlich vorkommen, dass die Spuren verwischt sind.

Obviously it can happen on occasions that the traces have been covered up.

Es ist noch nie passiert, dass eine Datei unwiderruflich verloren ging.
It has never happened that a file has been irretrievably lost.

So eine Schlamperei darf doch nicht vorkommen!
Such sloppiness simply should not (be allowed to) happen!

Das hat es doch noch nie gegeben!
That has never happened before!

(c) Natural resources:

Das Vorkommen von Bodenschätzen bedeutet, dass dieses Gebiet besonders umstritten ist.

The presence of natural deposits means that this area is particularly disputed.

Die Abbildung stellt das Erdölvorkommen in diesem Kontinent dar.
The illustration shows the location of oil/where oil is to be found on this continent.

Der Baumbestand im Schwarzwald ist stark dezimiert.
The stock of trees in the Black Forest has been drastically reduced.

(d) Given conditions:

Die Wege richten sich nach den natürlichen Gegebenheiten des Geländes.

The paths follow the natural features of the land.

Bei der gegenwärtigen Wirtschaftslage ist eine Investition nicht angebracht.

In the current economic climate investment is not appropriate.

69.3

Locating things and people

sich (= acc.) befinden 'to be located' (see 37.5)

zu finden sein 'can be found'

-r Fundort(e) 'place where sth. was found'

es gibt 'there is/ there are'

See 37 (pp. 87–90) for reflexive verbs.

Die Personalabteilung befindet sich in der dritten Etage.
The personnel department is on the third floor.

Der Reporter befindet sich in einem Krisengebiet.
The reporter is in an area of crisis.

Das Automobilwerk befindet sich im Industriegebiet.
The car factory is situated on an industrial estate/in an industrial area.

Die Seitenangabe ist im Sachregister zu finden.
The page number can be found in the subject index.

Der Fundort des Homo Sapiens ist auf der Karte gekennzeichnet.
The place where Homo sapiens was found is indicated on the map.

In diesem Stadtteil gibt es nicht einmal eine Bäckerei.
There isn't even a bakery in this part of town.

In manchen Teilen von Berlin gibt es viele soziale Probleme.
In some parts of Berlin there are many social problems.

69.4

For events taking place

See 70.5 (p. 220) for cancellation.

ab*halten 'to hold'

statt*finden 'to take place'

Sprechstunde halten 'to hold surgery/one's office hour'

eine Vorlesung/ein Seminar/einen Kurs halten 'to deliver a lecture/a seminar/a course'

Die Veranstaltung findet in der Messehalle statt.
The event takes place at the exhibition centre.

Der Ärztekongress soll wieder in Davos abgehalten werden.
The medical conference is to be held in Davos again.

Sie hält ihre Goethe-Vorlesung immer am Mittwoch morgen.
She always delivers her Goethe lecture on Wednesday mornings.

Halten Sie heute Sprechstunde?
Do you have your office hour/surgery today?

69.5

For accompanying someone to a place or on an instrument

jmdn. an (+ dat.) begleiten 'to accompany sb. on (an instrument)'

jmdn. zu (+ dat.) begleiten 'to accompany sb. to (a place)'

-e Begleitung 'company'

mit jmdm. an etw. (= acc.)/zu etw./jmdm. gehen 'to go to sth./sb. with sb.'

Er begleitete sie am Klavier/zum Arzt.
He accompanied her on the piano/to the doctor's.

Er war in Begleitung eines berühmten Tennisspielers.
He was in the company of/He was accompanied by a famous tennis player.

Ich gehe mit dir zum Arzt/an den Flughafen.
I'll go with you to the doctor's/to the airport.

70

Talking and enquiring about absence and non-existence

70.1

Negation of existence and occurrence

Absence and non-existence are conveyed by means of nicht or kein with expressions of existence.

The structures are analogous to the ones described in 69.1–4:

nicht da sein 'not to be there'
weg sein 'to be away/gone' abwesend sein 'to be absent'
-e Abwesenheit 'absent'
nicht/kein . . . besteht 'does not exist' es gibt nicht/kein 'there is/are no'

Der Geschäftsführer ist heute leider nicht da.
The manager is unfortunately not here today.

Der Schüler war wegen einer schweren Erkrankung vom Unterricht abwesend.
The pupil missed classes owing to a serious illness.

Der Verkauf wurde in seiner Abwesenheit beschlossen.
The sale was agreed in his absence/while he was away.

Es besteht in diesem Fall keinerlei Ansteckungsgefahr.
In this case there is no danger of contagion whatsoever.

See 42.3g (p. 115) for the use of the dummy subject es.

Im Vereinigten Königreich gibt es keine Tollwut.
There is no rabies in the United Kingdom.

Es gibt keine Dinosaurier mehr auf der Erde: Sie sind ausgestorben.
There are no more dinosaurs on earth: they are extinct.

See 70.4 (p. 217) for things that have ceased to exist.

70.2

Being missed and missing something

(a) Being missed:

fehlen 'to be missing, lacking/to be absent'
jmdn/etw. vermissen 'to miss sb./sth.'

Hier fehlt ein Messer/eine Seite.
There is a knife/a page missing here.

Wir vermissen unsren treuen Hund.
We miss our faithful dog.

Fehlen with the dative of disadvantage (see 19.3; see also 19.7 for the use of impersonal es). The person who is lacking/missing something is in the dative form, whereas the person/item that is missing is in the nominative:

Er fehlt ihr.
She misses him.

Mir fehlen noch 50 Euro.
I am still 50 euros short.

(b) Missing an event:

fehlen 'to be absent'
etw. verpassen/versäumen 'to miss sth.'

Wegen der Haushaltskürzungen fehlen uns für dieses Projekt qualifizierte Mitarbeiter.
Due to the budget cuts we are short of qualified employees for this project.

Ich habe den Film/das Spiel verpasst.
I missed the film/the play.

70.3

Lack and shortage

Lack and shortage can be rendered by mangeln an (+ dat.) and -r Mangel 'lack/dearth'. 'Not/hardly enough' is expressed by nicht/kaum genug.

jmdm. (= dat.) mangelt es an (+ dat.) 'to be lacking sth.'
knapp an etw. (= dat.) sein 'to be short of sth.'

Here again, the person in need is in the dative, but this time the item he or she is missing is also in the dative following an.

Es mangelte ihr an nichts; trotzdem war sie unzufrieden.
She wanted for nothing, but she was still dissatisfied.

In diesem Betrieb mangelt es an ausgebildeten Arbeitskräften.
In this firm there is a lack of trained workers.

See 42.3h (p. 115) for the use of impersonal verbs such as mangeln.

Es herrscht (ein) Mangel an Studenten in den Naturwissenschaften.
There is a shortage of students in the natural sciences.

Er hatte kaum Geld.
He did not have much money.

Sie hatte kaum Freunde.
She did not have many friends.

Wir sind knapp an Milch und Zucker und sollten mal einkaufen gehen.
We have hardly any milk and sugar and should go shopping.

Note the idiomatic expression:

Wir sind knapp bei Kasse.
We are short of money.

70.4

Having ceased to exist

(a) Having disappeared without a trace

The adverbs and prefixes ab and weg are often used to indicate that something has been done away with, put off or has gone/disappeared. Ab has the same function as the prefix 'de-' or 'dis-' in English, weg the same as 'away' or 'off'.

ab sein 'to be off'
weg sein 'to be gone'
verschwinden 'to disappear' verschwinden in 'to disappear into'

Der Knopf an meiner Anzugsjacke ist ab.
The button on the jacket of my suit has come off/is missing.

Mein Geldbeutel ist weg/verschunden.
My purse is gone/has disappeared.

Das Flugzeug verschwand in den Wolken.
The plane disappeared in(to) the clouds.

Ich kann mein Jackett nicht finden. Es kann sich doch nicht in Luft aufgelöst haben!
I cannot find my jacket. It can't have vanished into thin air!

(b) Being dismantled, demolished:

abgebaut 'dismantled' abgerissen 'demolished'
abgetragen 'mined'

Die unrentablen Fabriken wurden abgebaut.
The unprofitable factories were dismantled.

Das alte Theater ist jetzt abgerissen.
The old theatre has been demolished.

In manchen Gebieten wird die Braunkohle immer noch über Tage abgetragen.

In some areas (brown) coal is still mined above ground.

- (c) Having been abolished or eradicated abgeschafft 'abolished'

ausgerottet 'eradicated, exterminated/extinct'

gestrichen 'cancelled/abolished'

Die Todesstrafe ist in Deutschland seit 1949 abgeschafft.

The death penalty has been abolished in Germany since 1949.

Die Pest ist in Europa ausgerottet.

The plague has been eradicated in Europe.

Der religiöse Feiertag soll gestrichen werden.

The religious holiday is to be abolished.

- (d) For people and things that have gone away:

weg*fahren 'to leave/to go away'

weg*ziehen aus/nach 'to move away from/to'

(jmdm.) weg*laufen 'to run away' (from sb.)

jmdn./etw. verlassen 'to leave sb./sth. (behind)'

Fahrt ihr dieses Jahr weg?

Are you going away (i.e. on holiday) this year?

Meine Nachbarn sind nach Berlin weggezogen.

My neighbours have moved (away) to Berlin.

Meiner besten Freundin ist ihre Katze weggelaufen.

My best friend's cat has run away (i.e. from her).

See 19.3 (p. 27) on the dative of disadvantage.

Sie will ihre Familie verlassen und auswandern.

She wants to leave her family and emigrate.

- (e) For things that are out-dated and therefore obsolete:

veraltet 'obsolete/out-of-date' altmodisch 'old-fashioned'

Dieses PC Handbuch ist veraltet.

This PC manual is out of date.

Diesen altmodischen Anzug kannst du aber nicht auf der Hochzeit tragen.

You can't possibly wear this old-fashioned suit at the wedding.

(f) For things that have been destroyed:

The prefix zer- before a past participle indicates something has been completely destroyed.

See 36.2 (p. 84) for inseparable prefixes and 57.2 (p. 143) for the meaning of verbal prefixes.

zerschlagen 'shattered' zerstört 'destroyed'
zertrümmert 'reduced to ruins'

Ihre Hoffnung hatte sich zerschlagen.
 Her hopes were shattered.

Die alte Wasserleitung ist total zerstört.
 The old water pipe is completely destroyed.

Die alte Wallfahrtskirche ist leider zertrümmert.
 The old pilgrimage church is unfortunately in ruins.

(g) For things that are consumed or exhausted:

See 72.2b (p. 226) below for consumables no longer available.

aufgebraucht/verbraucht 'used up' alle/aus 'run out/used up' (informal) erschöpft 'exhausted'

Das Papier für das Faxgerät ist aufgebraucht.
 The paper for the fax machine has run out.

Die Milch ist alle. (informal)
 The milk is finished.

Die Mineralvorkommen in diesem Boden sind erschöpft.
 The mineral deposits in this ground have been exhausted.

(h) For items free from or low in something:

The following suffixes indicate lack or absence (see 55.1 on adjective formation):

-los 'without'
-frei 'free from/of'
-leer 'empty of'
-arm/-reduziert 'low/poor in'

parteilos 'without party affiliation' bargeldlos telefonieren 'to telephone without using cash' arbeitslos 'unemployed'
beschwerdefrei 'free from any ailment' koffeinfrei 'caffeine-free, decaffeinated' inhaltsleer 'without content' (of an idea, etc. 'vacuous/superficial') menschenleere Straßen 'deserted streets' fettarme Kost 'low-fat food' kalorienarm/kalorienreduziert 'low/reduced in calories' nikotinarm im Rauch 'low nicotine' (for cigarettes, etc.)

(i) Doing without/choosing not to:

auf etw. (= acc.) verzichten 'to do without sth.'

Der Preisträger hat auf den Geldbetrag verzichtet.
 The prize-winner chose not to accept/forewent the money.

In ihrem sechsbändigen Wörterbuch verzichten die Verfasser darauf Normen zu setzen.
 In their six-volume dictionary the authors choose not to lay down norms.

▶ See 38.2 (p. 93) for clause links with darauf, etc.

(j) Absence of speech/comment/action:

schweigen 'to be silent'

Die Presse schweigt lieber zu dieser peinlichen Situation.
 The press prefers not to comment on this embarrassing situation.

Die Waffen schwiegen.
 The weapons/arms fell/were silent.

70.5

Cancelled or failing to happen

etw. (= acc.) ab*sagen 'to cancel sth.'
etw. (= nom.) fällt aus 'sth. is cancelled'
etw. (= acc.) ein*stellen 'to discontinue sth.'
etw. (= nom.) bleibt aus 'sth. fails to happen'

Das Konzert musste leider abgesagt werden/ausfallen.
 Unfortunately, the concert had to be cancelled.

Der Straßenbahnverkehr ist jetzt eingestellt.
 There are no more trams in use now.

Der Erfolg blieb leider aus.
 Unfortunately, success did not come.

▶ For more expressions of absence, see also 72 (pp. 224–7) on non-availability and 113.3 (p. 406) on disappointment.

71

Expressing and enquiring about availability

It is not always possible to draw a clear line between presence and availability, thus all expressions listed for presence (see 69.1) can also be used for availability. The items in this section imply that something is present elsewhere and that someone wants to get hold of it.

71.1

Making or having something available

(a) For making something available to someone, use jmdm. etw. leihen 'to let sb. have (the use of) sth.' in informal contexts:

Ich leihe Ihnen gern meinen Wagen.

I'll be happy to let you have the use of my car.

Note that in colloquial usage borgen can be used here instead of leihen:

Ich borge Ihnen gern meinen Wagen. (colloquial)

I'll be happy to let you have the use of my car.

See also 71.6 (p. 223) for borrowing.

(b) More formally one of the following can be used:

jmdm. etw. zur Verfügung stellen 'to make sth. available to sb.'

jmdm. steht etw. (= nom.) zur Verfügung 'sth. is available to sb.'

über etw. (= acc.) verfügen 'to have sth. at one's disposal'

jmdm. etw. aus*händigen 'to hand over/issue sth. to sb.'

Verfügung also means 'permission' or 'authority'; jmdm. etw. zur Verfügung stellen means 'to make something available to somebody/put something at someone's disposal'.

Ich stelle Ihnen meinen Wagen gern zur Verfügung.

You can have my car willingly (lit. I'll gladly make my car available to you).

See 12 (pp. 17–18) for the word order of noun and pronoun.

Die Gemälde wurden freundlicherweise von der Tate Gallery in London zur Verfügung gestellt.

The paintings were kindly made available by the Tate Gallery in London.

Mein Wagen steht Ihnen jederzeit zur Verfügung.

You can use my car any time.

Als Dolmetscher muss man über einen großen Wortschatz verfügen.

As an interpreter one must have a large vocabulary at one's disposal.

A more official and formal way of expressing the handing over of something is jmdm. etw. aus*händigen:

Ich händige Ihnen die Schlüssel zu Ihrem neuen Wagen aus, sobald wir Ihren Scheck haben.

I shall issue the keys to your new car as soon as we have (received) your cheque.

71.2

For items in stock

auf Lager haben 'to have in stock/store'

auf Vorrat kaufen/an*schaffen 'to stock up'

vorrätig sein/haben 'to be/have in stock'

-r Bestand an (+ dat.) 'the stock of'

Wir haben/Es sind zur Zeit alle Campingartikel auf Lager.

We have all camping accessories/All camping accessories are in stock.

Bevor der Kaffee teurer wird, sollte man genügend auf Vorrat kaufen.

One ought to stock up on coffee before it gets more expensive.

Haben Sie auch Übergrößen vorrätig?

Do you also have outsizes in stock?

Der Bestand an Nahrungsmitteln muss nachgefüllt werden.

Food stocks must be replenished.

71.3

Being within reach or at hand

etw. zur Hand haben 'to have sth. to hand'

vorhanden sein 'to be at hand/available'

parat haben 'to have ready'

Haben Sie zufällig sein Adressbuch zur Hand?

Do you by any chance have his address book to hand/handy?

Ist in diesem Gebäude ein Speicher vorhanden?

Is there an attic (for storing things) available in this building?

Haben Sie einen Feuerlöscher parat?

Do you have a fire extinguisher at the ready?

71.4

Reaching for or getting something

bekommen 'to get'

an etw. (heran*)kommen 'to get hold of sth.' (often implying that sth. is hard to get)

etw. erreichen 'to reach sth./manage sth.'

Was muss ich tun, um in Deutsch eine bessere Note zu bekommen?

What do I have to do (in order) to get a better grade in German?

Es ist sehr schwierig, an diese seltenen Münzen heranzukommen.

It is very difficult to get hold of these rare coins.

Wie kommst du denn an so einen Job. Braucht man da Beziehungen?
How do you get a job like that. Do you need contacts?

Ich habe es erreicht, dass wir mehr Wohngeld bekommen.
I've managed to get us more housing benefit.

71.5

To express availability through purchase

kaufen 'to buy'
bekommen 'to get'
erhalten 'to receive'
erhältlich 'available'
etw. von/bei jmdm. bestellen 'to order sth. from sb.'
etw. über jmdn. beziehen 'to purchase sth. from sb.'
zu haben sein (colloquial) 'to be had' es gibt . . . (zu kaufen) 'can be (bought)'

Das Vorlesungsverzeichnis ist in der Universitätsbuchhandlung erhältlich.

The list of lectures (and seminars, etc.) is available in the university bookshop.

Tabakwaren und Zeitschriften sowie Briefmarken bekommen Sie am Kiosk.

Tobacco, magazines and stamps are available at the kiosk.

See 5.2b (p. 8) on word order.

Dieses Produkt kann nur beim Fachhandel bestellt werden.
This product can only be ordered from a specialist shop.

Alternative Heilmittel kann man über eine Reihe von Apotheken beziehen.

Alternative remedies can be purchased from a number of pharmacies.

Plastiktüten sind an der Kasse zu haben.
Plastic bags are to be had at the checkout.

The idiomatic expression es gibt . . . zu (+ infinitive) expresses the presence of things e.g. 'to be bought/seen', etc.

Wo gibt es Briefmarken zu kaufen?
Where can you buy stamps?

71.6

Availability through borrowing, rental sich (= dat.) etw. leihen/borgen 'to borrow sth.'

jmdm. etw. (aus*)leihen 'to lend sth. to sb.'
mieten 'to rent'
vermieten 'to let'

Wir können euch leider nicht so viel (Geld) leihen.
Unfortunately, we can't lend you so much (money).

Möchtest du dir mein Rad leihen/borgen?
Would you like to borrow my bike?

In Deutschland werden die meisten Wohnungen gemietet.
In Germany most flats are rented.

71.7

Establishing if something is free to be used or if someone is free to do something frei sein 'to be free' frei haben 'to be free/off duty'

Zeit haben 'to have time'

Der Fensterplatz ist frei.
The seat/place at the window is free.

Wann hast du abends wieder einmal frei?
When are you free again in the evening?/When do you next have an evening off?

Hast du heute Zeit, um mir das Regal zu reparieren?
Do you have time today to repair the bookshelf for me?

71.8

To indicate for how long an item is fit for consumption, haltbar and zum baldigen Verbrauch bestimmt are used. On all perishable foods you will find das Haltbarkeitsdatum ('the best-before date').

Dieses Milchprodukt ist noch zwei Tage haltbar.
This dairy product should be used within two days.

Ein Fertiggericht ist zum baldigen Verbrauch bestimmt.
A ready-to-eat/pre-cooked dish is intended for immediate consumption/should be eaten immediately.

72

Talking about non-availability

72.1

Non-availability can be expressed by the negation of the structures used in 71.1–3.

jmdm. etw. nicht zur Verfügung stellen 'not to make sth. available to sb.'
jmdm. steht etw. nicht zur Verfügung 'sth. is not available to sb.'
nicht auf Lager haben 'not to have in stock/store'
etw. nicht vorrätig haben 'not to have sth. in stock'
etw. nicht zur Hand haben 'not to have sth. to hand'
etw. nicht/kein etw. da haben 'not to have sth. here'
jmdm. kommt etw. abhanden 'sb. loses sth.'
etw. verlegt haben 'to have misplaced sth.'

Ich kann Ihnen den Parkplatz nicht mehr zur Verfügung stellen.
(formal)

I can no longer let you have the parking space.

Less formally, this could be expressed:

Sie können meinen Parkplatz nicht mehr benutzen.

You can no longer use my parking space.

Wir haben im Moment keine neuen Fahrpläne vorrätig.

At the moment we haven't got any new timetables in stock.

Ich hatte keinen Atlas zur Hand.

I didn't have an atlas to hand.

Wir haben heute kein Bargeld da.

We have no cash (here) today.

Die Urkunde ist mir irgendwie abhanden gekommen.

I have somehow lost the certificate.

See 19.3 (p. 27) for the dative of disadvantage.

Er kann seinen Pass nicht finden. Er muss ihn wohl verlegt haben.

He cannot find his passport. He must have misplaced it.

72.2

Being out or having run out of sth.

(a) If a person is out of something, the prefix aus- is usually used in conjunction with the past participle.

See 40.2b (p. 103) for the passive with sein.

ausgebucht 'booked up'

ausgegeben 'spent'

ausgetrunken 'drunk up/empty'

ausverkauft 'sold out'

aus*laufen 'to run out/be discontinued'

Er hat sein ganzes Taschengeld im Buchladen ausgegeben.

He spent all his pocket money in the bookshop.

Die Flasche Weinbrandt war völlig ausgetrunken.

The bottle of brandy was completely empty.

Das Modell läuft im Herbst aus.

The model will be discontinued in the autumn.

For further examples using past participles, including ausgerottet, see 70.4 on non-existence.

For further past participles with aus-, refer to your dictionary.

- (b) With consumables that are finished auf*brauchen 'to use up' alle 'gone/finished'

leer 'empty'

Die Kartoffeln sind/der Kaffee ist alle. (informal) We've no more potatoes. We've run out of coffee.

Die Kartoffeln sind/der Kaffee ist aufgebraucht.
 The potatoes have/the coffee has all been used up.

Der Einbrecher find die Kassen leer.
 The intruder found the tills empty.

See 42.3b (p. 110) on sentence patterns and 70.4g (p. 219) for more examples of things consumed.

72.3

Indicating something is temporarily unavailable

- (a) For occupied/booked seats or engaged lines:

Die Toilette/das Telefon ist besetzt.
 The toilet/telephone is engaged.

Die Flüge sind alle ausgebucht.
 The flights are all booked (up).

- (b) If an item cannot be bought for some reason

See also 71.2 (p. 222) for things in stock.

nicht zu kaufen/nicht käuflich 'not for sale' unverkäuflich 'not for sale'
ausverkauft 'sold out'
vergriffen 'out of print'

Das Ausstellungsstück ist leider nicht käuflich/nicht zu kaufen.
 Sorry, the display item/exhibit is not for sale.

Diese Warenprobe ist ein unverkäufliches Muster.
 This sample is not for sale.

Die Sonderangebote sind seit gestern alle ausverkauft.
 All the special offers have been sold out since yesterday.

See 34.2d (p. 71) for the use of seit with the present tense.

Man sollte rechtzeitig auf den Markt gehen, bevor alles ausverkauft ist.
 One should go to the market early, before everything is sold out.

Dieser Titel ist schon längst vergriffen.
 This book has been out of print for a long time.

72.4

Saying that someone is not available for a caller

(a) Indicating a person is engaged in something mit etw. beschäftigt sein 'to be busy with sth.'

anderweitig beschäftigt sein 'to be busy with sth. else' unterwegs sein 'to be out/en route (elsewhere)' keine Zeit haben 'to have no time' alle Hände voll zu tun haben 'to be busy' verhindert sein 'to be unable to make it' gerade 'at the moment'

Er ist mit dem Abwasch beschäftigt und kann nicht zur Tür kommen.
 He is busy with the washing up and cannot come to the door.

Sie konnte sich nicht um den Gast kümmern. Sie war anderweitig beschäftigt.

She couldn't look after the guest. She was busy with something else.

Der Klempner ist noch unterwegs. Er wird Sie später zurückrufen.
 The plumber is still out. He'll call you back later.

Ich habe jetzt leider keine Zeit, um mich mit Ihnen zu unterhalten.
 I am sorry, I have no time to chat with you.

Mein Mann telefoniert gerade/spricht gerade mit einer Kundin.
 My husband is on the phone/is talking to a (female) customer at the moment.

See also 76.4c (p. 257) for indicating that someone is in the process of doing something.

(b) Indicating a person is already 'attached' nicht zu haben sein 'not to be had/not available' (colloquial, often jokingly) (schon) vergeben sein 'to be (already) spoken for'

Diese junge Dame ist nicht zu haben, sie ist verlobt.
 This young lady is not 'available'; she is engaged.

Und die andere ist auch schon vergeben.
 And the other one is also (already) spoken for.

73

Identifying and seeking identification

For word order in direct questions, see 7.1 (p. 10).

73.1

Means of identification

In Germany everybody has to carry some form of identification (-r Personalausweis/-e Kennkarte 'identity card' or, alternatively, r-Reisepass/Pass 'passport'). An ID card is needed, e.g. to open a bank account, to prove your age or to gain admittance to somewhere.

Darf ich bitte Ihren Ausweis/Ihre Leserkarte sehen?

May I see your ID card/your reader's card, please?

Können Sie sich ausweisen?

Can you prove your identity/Have you got some form of identification on you?

The card carries information, Angaben zur Person 'personal particulars', on the subjects in the following sections.

73.2

Supplying personal details

(a) Names

On official forms the following items are listed:

-r Name 'name'

Familienname/Nachname 'surname'

Vorname 'first name/Christian name'

Geburtsname/Mädchenname 'name at birth/maiden name' (usually abbreviated geb. for geborene 'née')

Künstlernamen 'stage name/nom de plume'

The following questions would be asked by officials and could sound rather brusque unless they are softened with denn:

See 117.1c (p. 418) for the use of modal particles.

Wie heißen Sie denn?

What is your name, please?

Wie heißen Sie mit Nachnamen?

What is your surname?

Ich heiße ...

My name is ...

Wie ist Ihr Mädchenname?

What is your maiden name?

Müller.

Müller.

Haben Sie einen Künstlernamen?

Do you have a pseudonym?

Mein Künstlername ist ...

My nom de plume is ...

Checking the spelling of names, etc.:

Wie schreibt man das?

How do you spell that?

Bitte buchstabieren Sie Ihren Nachnamen. (formal)

Please spell your surname.

See 118.3 (p. 426) for the spelling alphabet.

(b) Place and date of birth

On official forms:

-r Geburtsort 'place of birth'
-s Geburtsdatum 'date of birth'

The convention for writing dates is date, month, year:

26.09.2002 for 26 September 2002.

Asking directly:

Wo sind Sie geboren?
 Where were you born?

Wann sind Sie geboren?
 When were you born?

Wann haben Sie Geburtstag?
 When is your birthday?

(c) Nationality

On forms:

Nationality (-e Nationalität/-e Staatsangehörigkeit) on an official document is indicated by an (underlined> adjective:

deutsch 'German' britisch 'British'
türkisch 'Turkish'

Asking directly:

Welche Staatsangehörigkeit haben Sie?
 What nationality are you?

The answer in spoken German could be either with the undeclined adjective, or with a noun (see 28.5 on adjectival nouns).

Ich bin Deutsche/Deutscher.
 I am German (female/male).

Ich bin Brite/Amerikaner/Australier.
 I am British /American /Australian.

Kommen Sie aus einem Land der Europäischen Union?
 Do you come from a European Union country?

(d) Special characteristics

On forms:

-e Größe 'height' (in metres, e.g. 1,63m = 5'4")
 -e Augenfarbe 'colour of eyes'
 -s Geschlecht 'sex'

Not included in passports but used for identification:

-r Fingerabdruck 'fingerprint' genetische Merkmale 'genetic marks/birthmarks'

Asking directly:

Wie groß bist du?

How tall are you?

Was für eine Farbe haben seine Augen?

What colour are his eyes?

See 24.2a (p. 43) for was für ein.

War der Autofahrer männlich oder weiblich/ein Mann oder eine Frau?

Was the driver male or female/a man or a woman?

(e) Further details in documents

-s Ausstellungsdatum/-r Tag der Ausstellung 'date of issue' gültig bis 'valid until'

Asking directly:

Wie lange ist Ihr Pass noch gültig?

How long is your passport valid for?

(f) Residence

People resident in Germany have to register with the local registration office (-s Einwohnermeldeamt). Registration is compulsory (-e Meldepflicht; see 86.2 for -pflicht).

A registration form contains the following sections:

-r Wohnort 'place (town) of residence'
 -r Wohnsitz 'residence' wohnhaft in 'resident in'

A passport would only carry the name of the town of residence, whereas the ID card would have the full address:

-e gegenwärtige Adresse 'current address' polizeilich gemeldet in . . . 'registered with the police in . . . ' (for people on limited visas)

Asking directly:

Wo wohnen Sie?

Where do you live?

Wo ist Ihr Hauptwohnsitz?

Where is your main residence?

73.3

People can be referred to by means of personal pronouns (see 30.2 and 32) and can be identified through a relative clause (see 10). In pointing to someone, der/die/das (see 31.2) or dieser/diese/dieses (24.1a) might be used.

Ist das der Mann, der hier gestern ein neues Konto eröffnet hat?

Is that the man who opened a new account here yesterday?

Diese junge Dame* war gestern schon einmal hier.

This young lady was here yesterday.

See 74 (pp. 231–40) for how to describe people.

74

Describing people

74.1

Descriptions in general

beschreiben 'to describe'

-e Beschreibung 'description'

-e Personenbeschreibung 'description of a person'

Bitte beschreiben Sie mir diese Person.

Please describe this person.

74.2

Introducing description

(a) A description can be introduced by referring to someone's features or characteristics, -e Eigenschaft(en):

Dieser Mensch* hat ganz besondere Eigenschaften.

This person has very special characteristics/features.

(b) Recognizing people by their characteristics is expressed by erkennen 'to recognize' and -s Kennzeichen (-) 'characteristic':

Den Bademeister* erkennt man an seiner weißen Uniform.

The swimming-pool attendant/lifeguard can be recognized by his white uniform.

See 77.2 (p. 267) for man.

74.3

Physical appearance and looks

(a) General appearance

See 110.1b (p. 381) for looking well and 110.8a (p. 387) for looking unwell.

aus*sehen 'to look'
 -s Aussehen 'looks'
 -s Äußere (adjectival noun) 'outward appearance'
 aus*sehen wie 'to look like'
 jmdm. ähnlich sehen 'to resemble sb.'

Das Fotomodell sieht in diesem Anzug sehr elegant aus.

The (photo) model looks very elegant in this outfit.

Dem Äußeren nach zu urteilen, muss sie eine recht ordentliche Person sein.

To judge by her outward appearance she must be a very orderly/tidy person.

Sie achtet sehr auf ihr Äußeres.

She takes care of her outward appearance.

(b) Comparing with others

Dein Freund sieht aus wie ein Westernheld.

Your friend looks like a hero in a Western.

See 8.7b (p. 13) for word order.

Mit den buschigen Augenbrauen ähnelt er stark seinem Großvater.

With his bushy eyebrows he strongly resembles his grandfather.

(c) For adjectives of physical appearance, refer to a dictionary. The following is a short selection of common descriptive terms:

körperlich 'physical'
 durchschnittlich 'average' körperlich stark 'physically strong'
 schwach 'weak'
 behindert 'handicapped, disabled' unreif 'immature' groß 'tall'

Er ist über 1,86m groß.

He is over 1.86m tall.

See 75.3 (p. 241) on 'Size and parameter'.

74.4

Character

(a) General terms

-r Charakter 'character' charakterlich 'of character/personal'
 -e Eigenschaft 'property/characteristic'

Diese Führungskraft hat wichtige charakterliche Stärken/Schwächen.
This executive has important personal strengths/weaknesses.

(b) Positive traits of character erfahren 'experienced'

jmdm. sympathisch sein 'to be likeable to sb.'
mitfühlend 'sympathetic' eigenartig 'peculiar/idiosyncratic'

Der Verunglückte war ein erfahrener Skiläufer.
The casualty was an experienced skier.

Die neue Lehrerin ist mir besonders sympathisch.
I think the new teacher is especially likeable/particularly nice.

Als Krankenschwester darf man nicht zu mitfühlend sein.
As a nurse one mustn't be too sympathetic.

Was hältst du von seinem eigenartigen Führungsstil?
What do you think about his peculiar/idiosyncratic style of management?

(c) Habits and tendencies eine Veranlagung/einen Hang zu etw. haben 'to have a disposition/tendency towards sth.'

veranlagt sein (zu etw.) 'to have a talent/gift (for sth.)/be good at sth.'
einen Hang zu etw. haben 'to have a tendency towards sth.'
zu etw. neigen 'to tend towards'
etw. zu tun pflegen 'to have a habit of doing sth.'

The nouns Veranlagung and Hang tend to be used in particularly formal contexts.
Einen Hang zu etw. haben suggests a state of mind:

Er hat noch diesen Hang zur Abhängigkeit von seiner Mutter.
He still has this tendency to be dependent on his mother.

Eine Veranlagung (zu etw.) haben suggests a physiological condition:

Ich habe eine nervöse Veranlagung.
I have a nervous disposition.

Die Familie hat eine erbliche Veranlagung.
The family has a hereditary condition.

Er hat eine gewisse Veranlagung zur Übertreibung.
She has a certain tendency to exaggerate.

The following are used in less formal contexts:

Schon als sie klein war, konnte man sehen, dass sie sportlich veranlagt war.

When she was only little one could already see that she had a gift for sports.

Er neigt zum Alkohol/zur Verschwendung.

He likes to drink/spend. (i.e. he is a drunkard/wastes money)

Er machte sonntags gewöhnlich einen langen Spaziergang.

Er pfl egte sonntags einen langen Spaziergang zu machen.
(slightly formal)

He had a habit of taking/He used to take a long walk on Sundays.

74.5

Capabilities and talents

(a) Capabilities and skills

See 101.1a (p. 364) for the difference between kennen and wissen. For können, see 35.6 (p. 77) on modal verbs.

sich (= acc.) mit etw. aus*kennen 'to know one's way with sth.'

-e Fähigkeit/-e Fertigkeit 'capability/skill'

Fähigkeiten besitzen/über Fähigkeiten verfügen 'be skilled/able'

eine Sprache können 'to be able to speak/have a language' eine Sprache sprechen können 'to be able to speak/to have a language'

-s Talent 'talent'

Talent für etw. haben 'to be talented at sth.'

für etw. talentiert/begabt sein 'to be talented/gifted at sth.'

-e Begabung 'gift'

eine Begabung für etw. haben 'be gifted at sth.'

-s Vermögen 'ability'

ein Instrument spielen 'to play an instrument'

Expressing familiarity with something involves the use of kennen in some form:

Kennst du dich mit diesen Anweisungen aus?

Are you familiar with these instructions?

Being capable:

Ein Schreiner muss über gute Handfertigkeiten verfügen.

A carpenter must have good manual skills.

See 87.3b (p. 319) on the difference between Fertigkeit and Fähigkeit.

Speaking a language:

Könn t ihr Französisch/Arabis ch/Spanis ch?

Can you speak French/Arabic/Spanish?

Playing an instrument or sports:

Meine Nachbarin spielt Geige.

My neighbour plays the violin.

See 23.1a (p. 37) for omission of the article.

Spielt dein Bruder Squash?

Does your brother play squash?

(b) Talents

Talents or gifts are referred to as -s Talent/-e Begabung:

Sie ist ein großes Talent.

She is a great talent.

Der Musikstipendiat hat eine seltene Begabung für Komposition.

The music scholar has a rare gift for composition.

Die hochbegabten/weniger begabten Schüler werden in einem besonderen Programm gefördert.

The highly gifted/less gifted pupils are encouraged/promoted/taught in a special programme of study.

Er hat ein stark ausgebildetes Analysevermögen.

He has a very thoroughly developed analytical ability.

74.6

Making an impression on others einen guten/schlechten Eindruck auf jmdn. machen 'to make a good/bad impression on sb.'

einen Eindruck bei jmdm. hinterlassen 'to leave an impression with sb.'

jmdn. beeindrucken 'to impress sb.'

beeindruckt sein von (+ dat.) 'to be impressed by'

jmdm. etw. an*sehen 'to tell sth. from sb.('s face)'

scheinen/wirken 'to seem/make an impression'

Man sieht es ihr (an den Augen) an, dass sie völlig übermüdet ist.

One can tell (from her eyes) that she is completely overtired.

Der alte Herr scheint heute besonders gut aufgelegt zu sein.

The old gentleman seems to be in a particularly good mood today.

Der Nachrichtensprecher wirkt heute Abend etwas niedergeschlagen.

The newsreader seems somewhat depressed this evening.

Wir waren von dem tadellosen Benehmen der Kinder stark beeindruckt.

We were very impressed by the immaculate behaviour of the children.

74.7

Talking about professions

von Beruf 'by profession' tätig sein als 'to be working as' angestellt sein als 'to be employed as'

im Beamtenverhältnis stehen 'to be a (permanent) civil servant'

im Angestelltenverhältnis stehen 'to be a salaried employee'

Mein Vater ist Lehrer.

My father is a teacher.

- ▶ See 23.1b (p. 37) for omission of the article.

Sie ist von Beruf Wirtschaftsprüferin.

She is an auditor by profession.

Bisher war sie als Vorarbeiterin in einem Betrieb tätig.

Until now she was working as a supervisor in a firm.

Möchten Sie nicht lieber als Vollzeitkraft angestellt sein?

Wouldn't you rather be employed full-time?

74.8

Social relationships

- ▶ See also 61.3–5 (pp. 166–8) on introductions, etc.

- (a) 'To be familiar with' someone or 'to know' someone is rendered by jmdn. kennen.

jmdn. kennen 'to know sb.'

jmdn. kennen*lernen 'to get to know sb.'

Kennst du den Kandidaten der neuen Partei?

Do you know the candidate of the new (political) party?

Wir kennen uns schon seit zwanzig Jahren.

We've known each other for twenty years.

Wie habt ihr euch eigentlich kennengelernt? Beim Tennisspielen.

How did you meet/get to know each other? Playing tennis.

- (b) Friends and acquaintances

Only close friends are called -r Freund/-e Freundin.

Possessive adjectives are very significant here, especially when talking about the other sex, e.g. mein Freund 'my boyfriend'.

If a male teenager says meine Freundin, he is implying his (one and only) 'girlfriend'.

- ▶ See 30.3 (p. 55) and 45.2 (p. 121) for possessive adjectives.

-r Freund 'friend'

mit jmdm. befreundet sein 'to be friends with sb.'

-r/-e Bekannte (adjective noun) 'acquaintance/casual friend'

Die beiden waren gut miteinander befreundet.

They were good friends (with each other).

- ▶ See 28.5 (p. 50) for adjectival nouns.

Das sind gute Bekannte aus der Studienzeit.

They are good friends from university/college days.

(c) People are often described in their professional relationships to others:

- r Kollege/-e Kollegin 'colleague'
- r Arbeitskollege 'colleague at work'
- r Mitarbeiter/-e Mitarbeiterin 'colleague/collaborator'
- r/-e Vorgesetzte 'superior' (adjectival noun)

Mein Mitarbeiter und ich betreuen zusammen das neue Projekt.
My colleague and I are looking after the new project together.

(d) Contemporaries

- r Schul-/Klassenkamerad, -in 'school friend/classmate'
- r Schulfreund, -in '(close) schoolfriend'
- ein Schüler/eine Schülerin aus meinem Jahrgang 'pupil from my year (at school)'
- r Studienkollege, -in/-r Kommilitone, -in 'fellow student'

Zum 25. Jahrestag seines Examens waren fast alle früheren Studienkollegen gekommen.
Almost all his former fellow students had come to the 25th anniversary of his exams.

74.9

Family relationships

General terms

- e Familie 'family'
- r/-e Verwandte 'related person' (adjectival noun)
- mit jmdm. verwandt sein 'to be related to sb.' (see 47.4)
- ein enger/entfernter Verwandter 'a close/distant (male) relative'
- r/-e Angehörige, -en 'relative' (adjectival noun)
- die engsten Angehörigen 'the closest relatives'
- der nächste Angehörige 'next of kin'

Wir sind miteinander verwandt.
We are related to each other.

In formal circumstances, e.g. funerals, -r/-e Angehörige (short for -r/-e Familienangehörige) is used.

Sie wurde im engsten Familienkreis beigesetzt.
She was buried and only her closest family attended.

(a) Immediate family

Parents and spouses:

- e Eltern (plural) 'parents'
- s Elternteil 'parent'

-r Vater/-e Mutter 'father/mother'
 -r (Ehe)mann/-e (Ehe)frau 'husband/wife'

Seine Eltern sind schon ziemlich alt.
 His parents are quite old.

Children:

-s Kind 'child'
 -r Sohn/-e Tochter 'son/daughter'

Unsre Söhne studieren schon.
 Our sons are already at university/college.

Brothers and sisters:

-r Bruder/-e Schwester 'brother/sister'
 -e Geschwister (plural) 'brothers and sisters/siblings'

Der jüngste Bruder war erst sechs, als die Eltern nach Köln zogen.
 The youngest brother was only six when the parents moved to Cologne.

Sie war die Älteste von drei Geschwistern.
 She was the eldest of three brothers and sisters.

Grandparents and grandchildren:

die Großeltern 'grandparents'
 -r Großvater/-e Großmutter 'grandfather/grandmother'
 -r Enkel/-e Enkelin 'grandson/granddaughter'
 -e Enkel (plural) 'grandchildren'

Viele Großeltern sehen ihre Enkel nur selten.
 Many grandparents see their grandchildren only rarely.

Cousins:

-r Cousin (French pronunciation) '(male) cousin'
 -e Cousine '(female) cousin'

Gestern kam die Cousine von meinem Vater zu uns zum Kaffee.
 Yesterday my father's (female) cousin had coffee with us.

(b) Once removed

For family relationships that are once removed by a generation, the prefix Groß- 'grand-' is used:

-r Großonkel/-e Großtante 'great uncle/aunt'
 -r Großneffe/-e Großnichte 'great nephew/niece' zweiten Grades 'once removed' eine Cousine zweiten Grades 'a cousin once removed' (formal)

Tante Margret ist sehr stolz auf ihre Großnichte.
 Aunt Margret is very proud of her great niece.

(c) In-laws

-r Schwiegersohn 'son-in-law'
 -e Schwiegermutter 'mother-in-law' angeheiratet 'related by marriage'
 ein angeheirateter Vetter 'a cousin by marriage'

The prefix Schwieger- is used for all 'in-laws', except -r Schwager/-e Schwägerin 'brother-in-law/sister-in-law':

Mit seinem Schwager kommt Thomas besonders gut aus.
 Thomas gets on especially well with his brother-in-law.

(d) Second marriages

Stief- as a prefix works just like 'step-' in English:

-r Stiefsohn/-e Stieftochter 'stepson/daughter' mein Sohn aus erster Ehe 'my son from my first marriage'
 -e Halbschwester/-r Halbbruder 'half-sister/brother'

Ihre Tochter aus erster Ehe kann schon auf die kleine Halbschwester aufpassen.
 The daughter from her first marriage can already look after her little half-sister.

(e) Foster and adoptive arrangements

Pflege- 'foster'
Adoptiv- 'adoptive'
jmdn. adoptieren 'to adopt sb.'
 -e Pflegeeltern 'foster-parents'
 -s Adoptivkind/angenommene Kind 'adoptive child'

Es wird immer schwieriger, gesunde Babies zu adoptieren.
 It is getting harder and harder to adopt healthy babies.

(f) Family status

ledig 'single'
 sich (= acc.) mit jmdm. verloben 'to get engaged to sb.'

jmdn. heiraten 'to get married to sb.'
 verheiratet 'married'
 geschieden 'divorced'
 von jmdm. getrennt sein/leben 'to be separated from sb.'
 verwitwet 'widowed'

Sie hat sich am 21. Juni mit Hans Richter verlobt.

She got engaged to Hans Richter on 21 June.

Husbands, wives or partners are occasionally referred to as meine bessere Hälfte (lit. 'my better half').

74.10

Dating and meeting each other casually mit jmdm. gehen 'to go out with sb.' (young people's colloquial speech) (mit jmdm.) flirten 'to flirt (with sb.)' ein (enges) Verhältnis mit jmdm. haben 'to have a (close/amorous) relationship with sb.'

Geht der Paul eigentlich immer noch mit der Heidi aus der zehnten Klasse?

Is Paul still going out with/dating Heidi from the tenth form?

Arranging to meet someone sich (= acc.) mit jmdm. treffen 'to meet (with) sb.'

 sich (= acc.) mit jmdm. (zu etw.) verabreden 'to make a date with sb. (for sth.)'

Ich habe mich mit ihr an der Bar getroffen.

I met her at the bar.

See 33.8c (p. 67).

Wir hatten uns zum Abendessen verabredet.

We had arranged to meet for supper.

Meeting someone by chance

jmdn. (zufällig) treffen/jmdm. begegnen 'to meet sb. by chance'

Ich habe sie zufällig in der Stadt getroffen/Ich bin ihr zufällig in der Stadt begegnet.

I bumped into her in town.

See 33.8c (p. 67).

Weißt du, wer mir neulich auf dem Markt begegnet ist? Der Andreas.

Do you know who I bumped into the other day at the market?
 Andreas.

75

Describing objects

75.1

Definitions

In order to ask for a definition of an object, use Was versteht man unter (+ dat.)? 'What is meant/understood by ... ?'

Definitions are given in the following form:

Ein Dreieck ist eine von drei Geraden begrenzte geometrische Figur.
A triangle is a geometrical shape bordered by three straight lines.

See 49 (p. 129) for extended adjectival phrases.

75.2

Shape

(a) A 'line' (-e Linie) can be described as krumm/gerade 'crooked/straight' or direkt 'direct'.

See 80.3 (p. 282) on 'Describing distances'.

(b) Geometrical forms are -e Gestalt/-e Form

Kreise, Quadrate und Dreiecke sind geometrische Formen.
Circles, squares and triangles are geometric forms.

(c) An 'object/body' (-r Körper) could be described as fest/weich 'solid/soft'.

(d) For the names of particular shapes and forms, consult your dictionary.

75.3

Size and parameter

(a) Basic terms

-e Größe 'size'

Größe can be both 'size' and 'parameter' (e.g. time/force)

kleine Größen are 'small sizes' (e.g. clothes)

Hier haben wir es mit meßbaren Größen zu tun.
We are dealing here with measurable amounts.

'Height' for people is also given using groß, even if the person is in fact small:

Er ist 1,75m groß.
He is 1.75m tall.

Bei ihrer Geburt war Ulrike nur 42cm groß.
At birth Ulrike measured only 42cm.

(b) Measurements in German-speaking countries are metric. Refer to any large cookbook or DIY book for conversion tables (-e Umrechnungstabelle). Remember that commas instead of full stops are used to divide decimals.

See 59.5d (p. 154) for the use of punctuation in decimals.

In geometry, measurements are given as:

A sei 4cm, B sei 7cm.
A is/Let A be 4cm and B 7cm.

(cm is pronounced Zentimeter.)

- ▶ See 39.5 (p. 97) and 39.4b (p. 97) on the subjunctive.

Sizes are often compared to those of common fruits and the like, e.g. erbsengroß/haselnussgroß 'pea-/hazelnut size'.

Die Hagelkörner waren fast erbsengroß.
The hailstones were almost as big as peas.

(c) Dimension

'dimension' is rendered as -s Ausmaß(e)/-e Dimension(en).

Area (-e Fläche) is measured in Quadratcentimeter (= cm²)/Quadratmeter (= m²)/Quadratkilometer (= km²) 'square centimetre/metre/kilometre'.

Meine Wohnung hat 60 Quadratmeter/ist 60 Quadratmeter groß.
My flat is 60 square metres (in area).

In order to describe, for example, an indoor pool, say:

Das Schwimmbecken hat olympische Maße/Ausmaße: Es ist 50m lang und 10m breit./Es ist 50 mal 10m groß. (m = Meter)
The pool is Olympic size: it is 50m long and 10m wide. It is 50 metres by 10.

To cover an area, sich erstrecken/aus*dehnen über 'to stretch/extend' is used.

- ▶ See also 80.4d (p. 282) for covering an area.

Das Industriegelände erstreckt sich über 25 Hektar.
The industrial site extends over 25 hectares.

Volume is measured in -r Kubikzentimeter (= cm³)/-r Kubikmeter (= m³), etc., 'cubic centimetre/cubic metre', etc.

To describe a three-dimensional object, use lang/breit/hoch 'long/wide/high':

Der Tisch ist 1,40m lang, 70cm breit und 74cm hoch.
The table is 1.40m long, 70cm wide and 74cm high.

To describe the depth of something (e.g. cupboards, wardrobes, drawers, etc.), use tief:

Die Schublade ist 50cm breit, 10cm hoch und 60cm tief.
The drawer is 50cm wide, 10cm high and 60cm deep.

Corresponding nouns (see 53.1b and 54.3 for word formation) are -e Länge/-e Breite/-e Höhe/-e Tiefe 'length/breadth/height/depth'.

Der Münchner Fernsehturm hat eine Höhe von 290 Metern.
The television tower in Munich has a height of 290m.

- ▶ See 47.1a (p. 123) for adjectives derived from place names.

In order to describe something that is 'x' cm wide by 'y' cm long, mal or auf ('times') is used.

Diese Holzplatte ist zwei mal drei Meter lang und zwei Zentimeter dick.
This wooden board is two metres wide, three metres long and two centimetres thick.

Ich brauche eine Tischdecke von 2,40 auf 1,70m.
I need a tablecloth measuring 2.4m by 1.7m.

(d) Fitting and matching passen 'to fit/suit/match'

etw. passt zu etw. 'sth. goes with sth./matches sth.'
etw. passt jmdm. 'sth. suits/fits sb.'
jmdm. stehen 'to suit'
etw. steht jmdm. 'sth. suits sb./looks nice on sb.'

Dieser Schrank passt genau in die Ecke.
This cupboard fits exactly into the corner.

Diese Gardinen passen im Farbton genial zum Teppich.
The colour of the curtains matches the carpet perfectly.

Diese Hose passt aber gar nicht zu der Bluse, die du anhast.
These trousers don't go at all with the blouse you are wearing.

Deine Frisur passt zu dir.
Your hairstyle suits you.

Die grüne Farbe von dem Kleid steht dir gut.
The green colour of your dress really suits you.

(e) Alterations

For more expressions on alterations, see 76.8a (p. 261).

ändern 'to alter'
-e Änderung 'alteration'

Diese Hose muss geändert werden. Sie ist zu lang.
These trousers must be altered. They are too long.

In order to be more specific, comparative adjectives are used in verbs with a ver- prefix.

See 57.2 (p. 143) for the meaning of verbal prefixes.

verändern 'to change' (for the difference between ändern and verändern see 76.8d) vergrößern 'to enlarge'
verkleinern 'to reduce' (in size) verlängern 'to lengthen'

verkürzen 'to shorten' verdoppeln 'to double'
verdreifachen (etc.) 'to treble' (etc.)

Mit dem neuen Haarschnitt sah der 7 Jährige ganz verändert aus.
 The seven year old looked completely different with his new haircut.

Soll ich das Foto von dir vergrößern lassen?
 Shall I have your photograph enlarged?

Sein Einkommen hat sich in den letzten drei Jahren verdoppelt.
 His income has doubled in the last three years.

More informally, you can use machen with a comparative:

Kleiner/gerader/fester/weicher machen 'to make smaller/straighter/stronger/softer'

Kannst du mir schnell das Kleid kürzer machen?
 Could you quickly shorten my dress?

(f) Expressing strength/power

stark 'strong'
-e Stärke 'strength' (especially in a compound noun)
-e Pferdestärke (PS) 'horsepower'
-e Lautstärke 'volume'

Er ist schon fast so stark wie sein großer Bruder.
 He is already almost as strong as his big brother.

Könnten Sie bitte die Lautstärke reduzieren?
 Could you reduce the volume, please?

(g) Expressing weight

'Weight' is rendered as -s Gewicht and 'to weigh' as wiegen or, more precisely but less frequently, as wägen, and is measured in -s Gramm/Kilogramm, etc. -r Zentner 'hundredweight' and -e Tonne 'ton' are also commonly used.

-s Gewicht 'weight'
wiegen 'to weigh'
Übergewicht haben 'to be overweight' schwer 'heavy'
leicht 'light'

Der Ringkämpfer wiegt über zwei Zentner.
 The wrestler weighs more than two hundredweight.

Die Stewardessen sollen weder Über- noch Untergewicht haben.
 Stewardesses are supposed to be neither under- nor overweight.

In order to ask about weight, use wie schwer/was wiegt:

Wie schwer ist dein Koffer?

How heavy is your suitcase?

Was hat das Baby bei der Geburt gewogen?

How much did the baby weigh at birth?

See also 110.4c (p. 383) on gaining and losing weight.

75.4

Describing a state

(a) General terms

-r Zustand 'condition'

fest 'solid'

flüssig 'liquid'

gasförmig 'gaseous' verdampfen 'to evaporate'

kochen 'to boil'

gefrieren 'to freeze'

Die neue Brücke ist noch im Planungszustand.

The new bridge is still at the planning stage.

Das Fleisch ist noch in gefrorenem/rohem Zustand.

The meat is still in a frozen/raw state.

Die Wohnung ist in einem Zustand!

The flat is in a (right) state!

Chemicals are referred to as being fest/flüssig/gasförmig, etc. or in festem/flüssigem/gasförmigem Zustand 'in a solid/liquid/gaseous form'.

(b) Changing state

Bei einer bestimmten Temperatur wird dieses Metall flüssig.

This metal becomes liquid at a certain temperature.

Wasser kocht bei 100°C (= Celsius) und verdampft.

Water boils at 100°C and evaporates.

Bei 0°C gefriert das Wasser.

Water freezes at 0°C.

Temperatures are measured in (-s) Grad Celsius

See also 110.8e (p. 388) on running a temperature.

75.5

Quantity

See 31.3 (p. 57) for the use of ein to denote the number one; and 46.2–6 (pp. 121–3) for countables and uncountables.

(a) 'Amount' is rendered as:

-e Menge 'amount'
 -e Anzahl/-e Zahl 'number' mengenmäßig 'by amount' zahlenmäßig 'by number'
 quantitativ 'quantitatively'
 -e Unmenge von 'tremendous number/hundreds of' unzählig viele 'countless many' zahllose 'innumerable'

Die Soldaten waren dem Feind zahlenmäßig unterlegen.

The soldiers were outnumbered by the enemy.

For quantities that are better not counted or seem too large to be counted, use
 -e Unmenge von/unzählig viele/zahllose 'innumerable':

Sie hat wieder einmal eine Unmenge Geld ausgegeben.

She has spent an awful lot of money again.

In dem Teich waren unzählig viele Fische und Kaulquappen.

There were innumerable fish and tadpoles in the pond.

(b) Unlike in English, there is no 'of' between units of packaging and the description of contents, e.g. -e Flasche/-e Tasse/-r Kasten 'bottle/cup/(large) box':

ein Becher Milch/eine Schachtel Pralinen/eine Portion Pommes frites a carton of milk/a box of chocolates/a portion of chips

(c) Consumption

Eine starke Glühbirne verbraucht 100 Watt (Energie) in der Stunde.

A bright light-bulb uses 100 watts per hour.

Dieser Betrieb verbraucht 100 000 Kilowatt pro Tag

This factory/business consumes 100,000 every day.

See 59.5d (p. 154).

Fuel consumption is calculated in litres of fuel (needed) per 100 km:

Mein alter Audi verbraucht 10 Liter auf 100 km.

My old Audi uses 10 litres per 100 km.

75.6

Fractions

All fractions other than -e Hälfte 'half' are neuter (the suffix -tel is short for -s Teil 'part'):

Möchtest du die Hälfte von meiner Pizza?

Would you like half of my pizza?

See 23.2f (p. 40) for the use of the article here.

Ein Sechstel des Waldes soll gefällt werden.

A sixth of the wood is to be felled.

In der Schweiz lebt ein Viertel der Gesamtbevölkerung vom Tourismus.

In Switzerland a quarter of the population lives from tourism.

75.7

Patterns

A pattern (-s Muster/-r Schnitt/-s Schnittmuster) can be either regelmäßig 'regular' or unregelmäßig 'irregular'.

This is a short list of common patterns:

(quer-/längs-)gestreift ' (horizontally/vertically) striped' gepunktet/geblümt 'dotted/flowered' (rot/blau) kariert/schraffiert ' (red/blue) checked/hatched'

Der quergestreifte Schlips sieht zu dem geblühten Hemd unmöglich aus.

The horizontally striped tie looks awful with the flowered shirt.

Auf diesem Ausdruck lässt sich der schraffierte Hintergrund gut erkennen.

On this print-out the hatched background is clearly visible.

75.8

Referring to quality

(a) High quality (-e Qualität) can be indicated by the following adjectives:

perfekt 'perfect'
 best- 'best' (+ another adjective) höchst- 'highest' (+ another adjective) von jmdm. empfohlen sein/werden 'to be recommended by sb.'
 empfehlenswert 'advisable, recommended'

Unter diesen Umständen ist das die bestmögliche Lösung.

Under the circumstances this is the best possible solution.

Welches Pferd ist denn das höchstdotierte?

Which horse has won the most prize money?

Diese Beratungsstelle ist mir von Kolleginnen empfohlen worden.

This counselling service has been recommended to me by some colleagues.

Es ist empfehlenswert, sich vor einer größeren Investition bei verschiedenen Banken zu erkundigen.

It is advisable to enquire with several banks before making bigger investments.

Other expressions of high quality are:

1A 'first class/A1'

von erster Klasse sein/erstklassig sein 'to be of top quality'

Qualität haben 'to be of high quality'

von erster Güte sein 'to be top quality'

von einer guten/besonderen Qualität sein 'to be of good/special quality'

Dieser Wein hat wirklich Qualität.

This wine is of really high quality.

Der reinrassige Hund ist von erster Güte.

The pedigree dog is top quality.

Dieser Stoff ist von einer besonders guten/von einer besonderen Qualität.

This material is of particularly high quality.

(b) High quality is also implied by Marken- 'brand', where products are labelled with -s Markenzeichen 'mark of quality':

-s Markenzeichen 'mark of quality'

-e Markenbutter 'best butter'

-r Markenname 'brandname'

-r Markenartikel 'proprietary article'

-e Hausmarke 'own brand'

-e Qualitätsmarke 'mark of quality'

(c) Lists of contents and ingredients often feature enthalten or beinhalten:

enthalten/beinhalten 'to contain'

-r Inhalt 'contents'

-r Bestandteil 'constituent'

-e Zutaten (plural) 'ingredients'

aus etw. sein 'to be (made) of sth.'

aus etw. bestehen 'to consist of sth.'

Das Produkt enthält einen künstlichen Farbstoff.

The product contains artificial colouring.

Für den Kuchen brauchen Sie die folgenden Zutaten.

For the cake you will need the following ingredients.

In order to explain what things are made of, aus is used:

Der Fallschirm ist aus Seide.

The parachute is made from silk.

Dieses Produkt ist aus Rohstoffen/wiederverwertetem Glas.

This product is made from raw materials/recycled glass.

Wasser besteht aus Wasserstoff und Sauerstoff.

Water consists of hydrogen and oxygen.

- (d) In order to describe what something tastes/smells of or looks like, nach is used.

Die Suppe riecht/schmeckt nach Spülwasser.

The soup smells of/tastes of dishwater.

Es sieht nach Regen aus.

It looks like rain.

- (e) Price/cost is described as:

preiswert 'inexpensive' (lit. 'worthy of its price')

billig 'cheap'

teuer 'expensive'

das macht 'that makes/adds up to' (referring to total cost) zusammen 'together/in total'

Bedienung/Mehrwertsteuer inbegriffen 'service/VAT included'

Nein, diese Reise ist mir viel zu teuer/ist viel zu teuer für mich.

No, this journey is much too expensive for me.

Mit Mehrwertsteuer macht das 14,95.

That is 14.95, including VAT.

- (f) Standards and levels

-r Standard 'standard'

-s Niveau 'level'

-s Bildungsniveau 'standard/level of education'

ein Niveau erreichen 'to reach a level'

-r Wasserspiegel/Wasserpegel 'water table'

Meeting requirements or being up to standard is rendered by Ansprüchen (= dat.)
genügen/gerecht werden/entsprechen:

Der Service entspricht nicht den Ansprüchen unserer Kunden.

The service does not come up to the standard demanded by our customers.

See 112 (pp. 401–4) for satisfaction.

Being almost up to standard is rendered by so gut wie/fast/beinahe 'as good as/almost/nearly'.

75.9

Giving statistical information

- (a) For describing a graph or statistical data, use:

Diese Statistik/dieses Schaubild zeigt 'These statistics show/this graph shows'

In dieser Statistik geht es um (+ acc.) 'These statistics deal with'

Was x (= acc.) betrifft 'as far as x is concerned'

Diese Statistik zeigt die Entwicklung des Bruttoinlandprodukts von 1949 bis heute.

These statistics show the development of the gross domestic product from 1949 to today.

In dieser Statistik geht es um den Konjunkturverlauf seit den siebziger Jahren.

These statistics deal with the economic ups and downs since the seventies.

Was das Kosten–Leistungsverhältnis betrifft, so zeigt diese Statistik, wie es sich ständig verbessert hat.

As far as the cost–benefit ratio is concerned, these statistics demonstrate how it has continuously improved.

(b) For explaining ranking, use:

an der Spitze liegen/stehen 'to be at the top'

an erster/zweiter/dritter usw. Stelle liegen/stehen/folgen 'to be in first/second/third, etc. place auf Platz zwei/drei usw. befindet sich/folgt 'in second/third, etc. place is/follows' der . . . größte/zweitgrößte/drittgrößte usw. 'the biggest/second biggest/third biggest, etc.

Other superlative adjectives can also be attached to this 'zweit-' prefix, e.g.:

zweitteuerste 'second most expensive' zweitbilligste 'second cheapest' zweitkleinste 'second smallest' zweitschnellste 'second fastest'

Als Exportland lag Deutschland lange an der Spitze.

Germany was the leading export country for a long time.

An zweiter Stelle/Auf dem zweiten Platz folgt wahrscheinlich Japan.

Japan is probably in second place.

(c) For describing changes, use:

steigen, stieg, gestiegen (intransitive, irregular, strong) 'to rise, rose, risen' steigen um 'to rise by'

steigen auf 'to rise to'

sinken, sank, gesunken (intransitive, irregular, strong) 'to go down, went down, gone down' fallen, fiel, gefallen (here: intransitive, irregular) 'to fall, fell, fallen' sinken um 'to go down by'

sinken auf 'to go down to'

sich senken/sich erhöhen 'to fall/to rise' senken (transitive, regular, weak) 'to lower' stabil bleiben 'to remain stable' sich verändern um (+acc.) 'to change'

Die Inflationsrate ist zwischen 1987 und 1990 um 5% gestiegen.

Between 1987 and 1990 the inflation rate rose by 5%.

Der Zinssatz ist auf 7% gestiegen.

The interest rate has risen to 7%.

Die Zahl der Arbeitslosen ist um 15.000 gesunken.

The number of unemployed went down by 15,000.

Im vergangenen Jahr ist die Zahl der Arbeitslosen auf 150.000 gesunken.

Last year the number of unemployed went down to 150,000.

Die Inflationsrate hat sich um 5% erhöht/gesenkt.

The inflation rate has risen/fallen by 5%.

For reflexive verbs, see 37 (pp. 87–90).

Meine Bank hat die Zinsen um 1% gesenkt.

My bank cut its interest rate by 1%.

Die Inflationsrate in Europa soll nach der Einführung des Euro relativ stabil bleiben.

After the introduction of the euro, the inflation rate in Europe is supposed to remain relatively stable.

Auch der Wert des Euro soll sich kaum verändern.

Even the value of the euro is supposed to change hardly at all.

For verändern, see 76.8d (p. 262).

(d) For talking about amounts, use:

betragen (betrug, betragen) 'to amount to, to be' sich belaufen (belief, belaufen) auf 'to amount to, to come to' ausmachen (machte aus, hat ausgemacht) 'to amount to, to account for' entfallen (entfiel, ist entfallen) auf 'to be spent on'

Vor 15 Jahren hatte der Anteil der Ausgaben für Nahrungsmittel noch rund ein Drittel betragen.

Fifteen years ago the share spent on food still amounted to one third.

Die Ausgaben für Miete und Heizung machen 16,4% der Gesamtausgaben aus.

The spending on rent and heating amounts to 16.4% of the total expenditure.

Die Ausgaben für Kleider und Schuhe beliefen sich auf 265 euro.
The total expenditure for clothes and shoes amounted to 265 euros.

Von den Gesamtausgaben entfiel ungefähr ein Fünftel auf Nahrungsmittel.
Of the general expenditure, around one fifth went/was spent on food.

76

Describing actions and processes

76.1

Basic words for actions and processes

(a) Doing things

tun/machen 'to do'

There are two essential verbs to convey 'doing': tun and machen.

As translations for 'to do' they are interchangeable as long as they are not used with a direct object.

machen with a direct object is often translated idiomatically:

Jetzt mache ich erst mal Pause.
First of all I'll take a break.

Könntest du heute das Essen machen? Ich habe keine Zeit.
Could you prepare the meal today? I haven't got time.

Wenn du deine Hausaufgaben gemacht hast, kannst du Fußball spielen.
When you've done your homework you can play football.

tun with a direct object has similarly idiomatic meanings:

Sie wollte ihm etwas Gutes tun.
She wanted to do something nice/good for him.

Er hatte doch nichts Böses getan.
He had not done anything bad/evil.

tun may be slightly more elevated in style:

Was soll ich tun/machen, damit das Kind schläft?
What can I do to make the child sleep?

(b) For processes occurring naturally or of their own accord, use the verb gehen and its derivatives gehen 'to go (on)'

-r Vorgang (ë) 'process'
-r Rückgang 'decline/fall'

For ongoing processes:

Was geht hier vor?

What's going on here?

Die Produktion von Chlorophyll ist ein natürlicher Vorgang unter Einfluss von Sonnenlicht.

The production of chlorophyll is a natural process under the influence of sunlight.

Ein Rückgang der Bevölkerungszahl ist zu befürchten.

A fall in the population is feared.

(c) Saying that things, usually machines and mechanisms, are running/working gehen 'to go/work'

laufen 'to run'

funktionieren 'to function'

Es geht.

It works./It's OK.

Die Uhr geht.

The clock/watch is working.

Testen Sie, ob die elektronische Waage geht.

Check if the electronic scales are working.

Es geht nicht ohne elektrischen Strom.

It doesn't work without current.

Der VW Käfer läuft und läuft und läuft.

The VW beetle just keeps on running and running (and running).

Können Sie mir sagen, wie dieser Drucker funktioniert?

Could you tell me how this printer works?

Ich habe gerade das Virus-Programm laufen.

I am just running the virus checker.

(d) Production processes

-s Verfahren 'process/method/technique'

-e Verarbeitung 'processing'

-e Textverarbeitung 'word processing'

-e Datenverarbeitung 'data processing'

Die Medikamente werden nach dem neuesten Verfahren hergestellt.

The medication is produced using the latest techniques.

(e) Referring to courses of events

laufen 'to run'

-r Ablauf (ë) 'course'

-r Ablauf der Ereignisse 'the course of events'

-r Handlungsablauf 'action/development of the plot'

im Verlauf der Zeit/des Tages 'in the course of time/the day'

im Verlauf der Verhandlungen/der Krankheit 'in the course of the negotiations/the illness'

Ablauf as opposed to Verlauf is possibly more predictable in running its course:

Der Versuchsablauf war genau festgeschrieben und konnte nicht geändert werden.

The way the experiment was to be conducted was laid down precisely and could not be altered.

Beschreiben Sie den Tagesablauf eines Bäckers.

Describe a typical day in the life of a baker.

(f) Describing procedures

-s Verfahren 'process/procedure/proceedings'

-s Vergehen 'action'

-r Durchgang 'round' (also in a competition)

-r Wahlgang 'round' (in action)

-s Bewerbungsverfahren 'application procedure'

-s Gerichtsverfahren 'legal proceedings'

Im zweiten Durchgang war er Sieger.

He won in the second round/phase/stage.

Der Bundespräsident wurde im dritten Wahlgang gewählt.

The (German) President was elected in the third round/phase/ballot.

See 40 (pp. 102–5) for the use of the passive.

(g) To refer to unplanned events that merely 'happen', use geschehen or passieren. The two verbs are interchangeable in meaning. Passieren, however, sometimes has a negative connotation (see 33.8c–d):

Was ist denn geschehen/passiert?

What has happened?

Ein Wunder ist geschehen./Es ist ein Wunder geschehen.

A miracle has occurred.

Ein Unfall ist passiert./Es ist ein Unfall passiert.

An accident has happened.

See also 37.5 (p. 89).

The structure starting with the impersonal es is more idiomatic.

See 42.3g (p. 115) for the dummy subject es.

76.2

Describing the process of something

(a) Ongoing processes can be described by using nouns formed from infinitives.

See 54.4a (p. 138) for word formation and 25 (p. 43) and 28.6 (p. 50) on noun genders.

- s Begreifen 'understanding'
- s Schneiden 'cutting'
- s Kaufen 'purchasing'
- s Funktionieren 'functioning'

(b) For the finished process, nouns formed from other parts of the verb, particularly past participles (see 54.4c), are sometimes used:

- r Begriff 'concept'
- r Schnitt 'cut'
- r Kauf 'purchase'

76.3

Starting a process

(a) General expressions for starting a process

Some verbs beginning with an-

- jmdn./etw. anbrennen 'to singe, burn slightly' (see 57)
- an*fangen/beginnen 'to begin'
- mit etw. an*fangen/beginnen 'to begin with sth.'
- r Anfang/-r Beginn 'the beginning'
- los*gehen 'to start/get under way'
- aus*gehen von 'to start from/take as a point of departure'
- r Ausgangspunkt 'point of departure'

Am Anfang war das Wort.

In the beginning was the Word.

Wir fangen mit den Vorbereitungen an./Wir beginnen mit den Vorbereitungen.

We are starting with the preparations.

See 36.1 (p. 81) for separable verbs.

Vielleicht solltest du in deiner Beziehung einen neuen Anfang machen.

Maybe you should make a fresh start in your relationship.

Jetzt geht das Gewitter richtig los.

Now the thunderstorm is really getting under way.

For starting a race:

Achtung, fertig, los!

On your marks, get set, go!

For starting from a false assumption:

Sie gehen von den falschen Voraussetzungen aus.

You are starting from the wrong assumptions.

(b) For starting an engine or machine an*machen/an*stellen 'to turn/switch on' are generally used.

Kannst du mir sagen, wie man den Staubsauger anmacht?
Can you tell me how to turn on the vacuum-cleaner?

Ich habe die Spülmaschine schon angestellt.
I have already turned on the dishwasher.

More technical expressions tend to refer to specific types of engines:

Car: Mein Wagen springt einfach nicht an, wenn es kalt ist.
My car simply does not start when it is cold.

Aeroplane: Wir werden in wenigen Minuten die Motoren starten.
We will be starting the engines in a few minutes.

(c) Compounds with -los also imply that a process is being started:

*los*brechen* is usually chosen in connection with bad weather:

Kaum waren wir zu Hause, ist das Gewitter/der Sturm losgebrochen.
We were only just arriving home when the thunderstorm/storm started.

*los*düsen/los*brausen* implies that a car is being used (colloquial use).

Am Abend bin ich dann nochmal in die Stadt losgedüst/losgebraust.
In the evening I went into town again.

*los*legen* usually refers to somebody starting to talk, possibly scream, or walk very fast (colloquial use).

Als der Vater nein sagte, hat Otto erst so richtig losgelegt.
When his father said no, Otto really started to complain (vocally).

Nach Mitternacht hat das Orchester richtig losgelegt.
After midnight the orchestra really let rip.

- Du, ich habe das Neueste aus dem Büro gehört.
- Ja? Dann leg mal los.
- Listen, I've heard the latest gossip from the office.
- Really? Then go on, tell me./Spill the beans.

*los*machen* in the sense of 'get going' is colloquial and often used in the form of a demand.

Nun mach mal los, ich hab es eilig.
Get on with it now, I am in a hurry.

*los*platzen mit etw.* refers to somebody who cannot wait to tell others news or gossip (colloquial use).

Viele Zeitungen platzen mit Skandalen los, bevor sie die Fakten recherchiert haben.
Many newspapers blurt out scandals before researching the facts.

*los*tigern* and *los*ziehen* imply that somebody marches off with a purpose (colloquial use).

Refer to your dictionary for the use of los*ballern 'to start shooting' (colloquial use) los*bellen 'to start barking' los*brüllen 'to start shouting/roaring' los*gehen 'to start walking, to go off' los*fahren/loslaufen 'to set off (by means of a vehicle/on foot)' los*flitzen 'to run'

los*heulen 'to burst out crying' los*krabbeln 'to start crawling' los*kommen 'to get off (also: to get free)' los*schicken 'to send off (to somewhere)' los*schießen 'to start shooting'

76.4

Continuation of a process

(a) The continuation of a process is often indicated by the separable prefixes weiter- or fort-. These can also be used as adverbs.

Encouraging or ordering someone to carry on doing something:

(Machen Sie) Weiter!./Weiter so!
 Carry on!/go on!

Asking someone (politely) to carry on:

Bitte lesen Sie weiter!
 Please carry on reading!

Asking someone formally:

Bitte fahren Sie in Ihrem Vortrag fort.
 Please continue with your lecture.

Continuing one's education:

Man sollte sich ständig weiterbilden/fortbilden.
 One should never stop furthering one's education.

(b) Carrying on an activity can be further emphasized by inserting immer:

Er spielte immer weiter.
 He played on and on.

Gehen Sie immer geradeaus.
 Carry on straight ahead.

See 48 (pp. 125–8) for comparison of adjectives. See also 76.10a (p. 266), on 'Repeating actions and processes', for further uses of immer and wieder.

(c) To indicate that someone is in the process of doing something, use gerade 'just' or gerade dabei sein, etw. zu tun 'to be in the process of doing something' (see 34.5b):

Die Aufnahmen laufen gerade.
 The recording is in progress.

Er ist gerade dabei, den Vertrag zu unterzeichnen.
He is just signing the contract now.

See 8.7 (p. 13) for infinitive clauses and 36.2 (p. 84) for inseparable verbs.

(d) To refer to something done regularly and at a steady pace in order to continue a project, use the adverb stetig 'continuously':

Die Wissenschaftlerin sammelte ihre Daten stetig.
The scientist collected her data continuously.

Otherwise use 'ständig':

Als er sechs war, wuchs er ständig.
When he was six he was growing all the time.

Das Ozonloch wird ständig größer.
The hole in the ozone layer is getting bigger and bigger.

76.5

Next step in a process

(a) The next step in a process is introduced by the adverbs anschließend and dann or the verb folgen.

erst 'first'
anschließend 'afterwards/following' dann 'then/after that'
jmdm./etw. (= dat.) folgen 'to follow sb./sth.'
auf etw. (= acc.) folgen 'to follow sth.'

Anschließend an den Vortrag möchten wir Sie um Diskussionsbeiträge bitten.

Following the lecture we would like to ask you for your contributions to the discussion.

Dann counts as the first idea and is followed by a verb. However, to ensure good style it should be used as infrequently as possible. It simply links a list of actions:

Erst frühstücke ich, dann putze ich meine Zähne, dann . . .
First I have breakfast, then I clean my teeth, then . . .

Auf sieben magere Jahre folgen sieben fette.
Seven lean years are followed by seven plentiful years.

(b) Taking turns is expressed by an der Reihe sein/an die Reihe kommen and sich (= acc.) abwechseln

Du bist noch nicht an der Reihe.
It's not your turn yet.

See 38.1 (p. 90) for prepositional verbs with the dative.

Jetzt bin ich aber dran!
Now it's my turn!

Der nächste Spieler kommt an die Reihe.

The next player has his/her turn.

Wir wechseln uns beim Fahren ab: Du fährst bis Hamburg, dann fahre ich.

We'll take turns with the driving: you drive to Hamburg and then I'll drive.

- (c) Giving turns is expressed by an die Reihe/dran*nehmen or by auf*rufen:

Schwester, Sie können jetzt den nächsten Patienten drannehmen/aufrufen.

Nurse, you can now take/call up the next patient.

See 38.1 (p. 90) for prepositional verbs with the accusative.

76.6

Simultaneity

If several processes occur concurrently, the following expressions can be used:

- (a) In doing something, something else happens:

bei/dabei 'in doing so'

Beim Messen/Dabei* muss man darauf achten, dass das Gerät nicht beschädigt wird.

When taking measurements/In doing so, one has to be careful not to damage the instrument.

Versuchen Sie, die Flüssigkeit in die Flasche zu füllen, ohne dabei etwas zu verschütten.

Try to put the liquid into the bottle without spilling any.

- (b) Achieving something by doing something else:

indem 'while/by doing so'

See 8.3 (p. 11) for subordinating conjunctions.

Butter wird gemacht, indem man die Sahne so lange schlägt, bis sie dick ist.

Butter is made by beating the cream until it is thick.

Du kannst ihm eine Freude bereiten, indem du ihn mal im Altersheim besuchst.

You can cheer him up by visiting him in the old people's home.

- (c) Under certain (weather/mood, etc.) conditions:

bei (+ dat.) 'with/in/during'

Bei gutem Wetter* können wir an dem Zaun weiterarbeiten.

Weather permitting, we can continue working on the fence.

Das kann ich beim besten Willen nicht verantworten.
With the best will in the world I cannot accept responsibility for this.

Er ist bei Nacht und Nebel gegen einen Baum gefahren.
He crashed into a tree at night and in fog/in the dead of night.

NOTE am hellichten Tage 'in broad daylight'

See also 69.2d (p. 213) for given conditions.

76.7 Expressing speed

(a) Speed in general is -e Geschwindigkeit:

Geschwindigkeit ist die zurückgelegte Strecke pro Zeit.
Speed is the distance covered in a certain time.

Eine Geschwindigkeitsbegrenzung von 130km/h sollte eingeführt werden.

A speed limit of 130km/h should be introduced.

(b) Doing something as quickly as possible

Verarbeiten Sie das Fleisch so schnell es geht.
Process the meat as quickly as possible.

Das Gebäude muss so schnell wie möglich gedeckt werden.
The building must be roofed as quickly as possible.

(c) Immediacy

sofort/umgehend 'straight away'

Bitte fahren Sie sofort in die Ulmenstraße. Da ist ein Unfall.
Please drive to Elm Street straight away. There's been an accident there.

so bald wie möglich 'as soon as possible'

Bitte antworten Sie so bald wie möglich.
Please answer as soon as possible.

(d) Slowness

langsam 'slow'
mit Verzögerung 'with delay/time-lag' zögernd/zögerlich 'hesitant/hesitating'

Seine Genesung von der Grippe macht nur langsam(e) Fortschritte.
His recovery from the flu is only very slow (lit. is only making slow progress).

Über Satellitentelefon hört man seinen Partner mit einer gewissen Verzögerung.

When you use satellite telephone there is a bit of a delay before you hear the other person.

Er antwortete nur zögernd/zögerlich.

He answered only hesitantly.

76.8

Denoting alterations and change

(a) Alterations can be described by using the prefix ver- in combination with a comparative adjective, e.g. besser, schöner.

▶ See 36.2 (p. 84) and 57.2 (p. 143) for word formation and 75.3e (p. 243) for alterations.

verbessern 'to improve'
 -e Verbesserung 'improvement' verschönern 'to beautify'
 -e Verschönerung 'improvement/beautification'
 vergrößern 'to enlarge'
 -e Vergrößerung 'enlargement'
 verkleinern 'to reduce' (in size)
 -e Verkleinerung 'diminution/reduction' verlängern 'to extend/to lengthen'
 -e Verlängerung 'extension' (in time, etc.) (um)ändern 'to alter'
 -e Änderung 'alteration'

These verbs of alteration can either be used reflexively or else they can take an object.

▶ See 37 (pp. 87–90) for reflexive verbs.

Ihre Deutschkenntnisse haben sich/Das Wetter hat sich verschlechtert.

Her German/The weather has deteriorated.

Ich habe mich in Mathematik verbessert.

I have improved in maths.

In manchen Autobetrieben hat man die Betriebschaft vergrößert.

The workforce has been increased in some car factories.

Die Schneiderin muss meinen Rock ändern. Er soll verlängert werden.

The dressmaker must alter my skirt. It is to be lengthened.

(b) (Radical) change

-r (Um)sturz 'radical/sudden change'
 um*schlagen 'to change'

Vom Wettersturz bekommen viele Leute Kopfschmerzen.

Many people get a headache from a sudden change in the weather.

Als die Polizei dazukam, schlug die Stimmung plötzlich um.
When the police arrived the mood suddenly changed.

(c) Turning into something else (gradual or sudden change so that a transformation results), is rendered by zu etw. werden:

Der Rhein wurde um ca 250 n. Chr. zur Grenze des Römischen Reiches.

In about 250 AD the Rhine became the boundary of the Roman empire.

Das Wasser wurde zu Wein.

Water turned to wine.

Selbst kleine Kinder können zu kleinen Teufeln werden.

Even small children can turn into little devils.

(d) ändern or verändern?

It is very difficult to give hard and fast rules about this to the language learner. There are some fixed idiomatic expressions which will always use ändern:

Da kann man nichts daran ändern.

It cannot be helped.

Auch die Gehaltserhöhung wird kaum etwas daran ändern, dass die Arbeit ihm zu langweilig ist.

Even the rise in salary is hardly going to change the fact that the work is too boring for him.

Wie soll man das ändern?

How is one supposed to change this?

Daran dürfte sich nichts mehr ändern.

This is unlikely to change any more.

In a number of collocations ändern and verändern are used nearly interchangeably. Here verändern may hint at a slightly more radical change.

Die Situation hat sich seit damals geändert/verändert.

Since then the situation has changed.

Wird sich die Lage in Afghanistan jemals ver/ändern?

Will the situation in Afghanistan ever change?

Der Fahrplan hat sich seit dem letzten Jahr ziemlich geändert/verändert.

The timetable has changed a lot since last year.

Seit der Einführung des Euro haben sich die Preise doch ziemlich stark geändert/verändert.

Since the introduction of the euro prices have changed a lot.

Das Naturschutzgesetz wurde erst kürzlich geändert/verändert.

The law for the protection of nature has only recently been changed.

ändern is the most likely verb in the following collocations:

die Absicht ändern 'to change one's intention'

eine Gewohnheit ändern 'to change a habit'

ein Verhalten ändern 'to change behaviour'

etw. an etw. ändern 'to change sth.'

An seinen abstehenden Ohren kann man heute nichts mehr ändern.
Nothing can be done about his protruding ears any more.

die Richtung ändern 'to change direction' seinen Charakter ändern 'to change one's character' die Anforderungen ändern 'to change the requirements'

verändern is the most likely verb in the following collocations:

sich verändern 'to change (referring to a person)' die Landschaft verändert sich 'the landscape changes' der Raum verändert sich 'space changes' sich durch Licht/Sonne/Kälte usw. verändern 'to change through light/sun/cold, etc.'
ein Rezept verändern 'to change a recipe (by adding or substituting something)' die Struktur verändern 'to change the structure'

Du hast dich aber gar nicht verändert, seit wir uns das letzte Mal gesehen haben.
You have not changed at all since we last saw each other.

(e) verschieden or unterschiedlich

Both verschieden and unterschiedlich are used to denote differences.

However, unterschiedlich emphasizes differences within a group of objects which are thought of as a group:

Hier habe ich 2kg Bananen. Die sind alle unterschiedlich groß.
Here I have 2kg of bananas. They are all of different sizes.

verschieden emphasizes the difference between different objects.

Wie viele verschiedene Farben hat ein Regenbogen?
How many different colours does a rainbow have?

There are instances where verschieden and unterschiedlich can be used interchangeably:

Studenten reagieren auf Stress ganz verschieden/unterschiedlich.
Students react to stress in all kinds of different ways.

Here, verschieden emphasizes the high number of reactions, whereas unterschiedlich describes how each student (within the group of students) reacted differently.

(f) anders, ander- anders and its declined form are used to differentiate one group of (similar) objects from another group:

Unsere Ferien waren bisher immer ziemlich gleich verlaufen, aber diesmal war alles anders.

Our holidays had always been similar but this time everything was different.

Ich sehe, Sie haben da blaue Schirme. Haben Sie auch noch andere?

I can see you have blue umbrellas. Do you have any others/any different ones?

Man sollte sich über das, was andere Leute sagen, nicht so aufregen.

One should not get upset about what other people say.

NOTE

May I have another glass of wine? Kann ich noch ein Glas Wein haben? (see 63.3c)

76.9

Denoting the end of a process

-s Ende 'end'

enden 'to end' (intransitive)

beenden 'to end' (transitive)

aus*gehen 'to end/come out'

-r Ausgang 'outcome'

schließlich 'in the end/finally' (see 121.3a)

Das Ende des Kriegs ist noch nicht abzusehen.

There is no end to the war in sight.

Der Ausgang des Versuches war anders als erwartet.

The outcome of the experiment was different from what had been expected.

Das wird böse ausgehen.

That will end badly.

Wie ist die Wahl ausgegangen?

What was the result of the election?

Er ist schließlich ausgezogen.

In the end he moved out.

(a) Breaking off/interrupting processes or relations

ab*brechen 'to break off' unterbrechen 'to interrupt' stören 'to disturb'

Die diplomatischen Beziehungen wurden abgebrochen.

Diplomatic relations were broken off.

Wir unterbrechen die Sendung mit einer Sondermeldung.

We interrupt this programme with a news flash.

- (b) Turning off machines, etc.

ab*stellen/aus*machen 'to turn off'

Bitte bei Brandgefahr den Motor abstellen.

Please switch off the engine when there is a danger of fire.

Hast du das Radio/das Bügeleisen ausgemacht?

Have you turned off the radio/the iron?

- (c) Bringing a process to an end ab*schließen 'to bring to an end/finish'

etw. beenden 'to end sth.'

-r Abschluss 'end/finish'

Die Bergungsarbeiten sind vorläufig abgeschlossen.

The rescue operations have been brought to an end for the time being.

Der Bewerber hat ein abgeschlossenes Hochschulstudium.

The applicant has a degree (lit. finished university studies).

Er musste seine Beamtenlaufbahn vorzeitig beenden.

He had to end his career as a civil servant prematurely.

Refer to a dictionary for compounds with Abschluss-.

- (d) Stopping a process by intervention an*halten 'to stop'

Der Polizist hält den Verkehr an, indem er den rechten Arm hebt.

The policeman stops the traffic by lifting his right arm.

- (e) Hindering a process behindern 'to hinder/impede'

jmdn. (bei etw.) auf*halten 'to hold up sb. (doing sth.)'

jmdn./etw. von etw. ab*halten 'to keep sb./sth. from doing sth.'

Die Baustelle behindert den Verkehrsfluss.

The construction site hampers the traffic flow.

Dieses ständige Fragen hält mich beim Arbeiten auf.

This constant questioning prevents me from getting on with my work.

Wir konnten ihn nur mit Mühe vom Springen abhalten.

We could only just (lit. with difficulty) prevent him from jumping.

- (f) Stopping of its own accord is conveyed by
- stehen*bleiben
- or
- auf*hören
- . Note that both are intransitive and that
- stehen*bleiben
- takes
- sein
- as its auxiliary:

Das Rad ist stehengeblieben.

The wheel has stopped (turning).

Der Regen hörte gegen 14.30 auf.

The rain stopped at about 2.30 pm.

(g) Stopping work for good: retirement

-r Ruhestand 'retirement' in den (Vor-)ruhestand versetzt werden 'to be given (early) retirement' in den (Vor-)ruhestand treten 'to retire (early)'

pensioniert werden 'to retire (on a pension)'

Rentner/-in werden 'to become a pensioner'

Er geht in den Ruhestand.

He is retiring.

Sie wurde in den Vorruhestand versetzt.

She was given early retirement.

Viele Lehrer möchten vorzeitig in den Ruhestand treten.

Many teachers would like early retirement.

Sein Großvater wurde mit 65 pensioniert.

His grandfather retired at 65.

Ab Januar wird Frau Debus Rentnerin.

From January Mrs Debus will be an old age pensioner.

See 23.1b (p. 37) for omission of the article.

76.10

Repeating actions and processes

wiederholen 'to repeat'

immer wieder 'again and again'

noch einmal 'once again'

-e Zugabe 'encore'

-r Refrain 'chorus'

(a) Doing things again

Bitte wiederholen Sie das Ganze langsam und deutlich.

Please repeat the whole thing slowly and clearly.

Der Kleine wollte immer wieder Karussell fahren.

The little boy wanted to go on the roundabout/merry-go-round again and again.

Spielen Sie den dritten Satz noch einmal bitte.

Please play the third movement (once) again.

- (b) Asking for an encore (e.g. at a concert)

Zugabe, Zugabe!
Encore!

- (c) Repeating verses, e.g. of songs

-r Refrain 'chorus' (of a song, etc.)

Der Refrain des Kirchenliedes ist ein fröhliches Halleluja.
The chorus of the hymn is a cheerful Hallelujah.

See 82 (p. 296) for cause and effect of actions and processes.

76.11

Describing processes or states in nature (scientific facts)

When emphasizing their status as timeless or 'eternal' truths, the present tense of the verb is used (see 34.2):

Öl schwimmt auf Wasser.
Oil floats/will float on water.

Wasser findet immer einen Weg.
Water finds its own way.

77

Avoiding describing the agent of processes and actions

See 40 (pp. 102–4) and 76 (pp. 252–67) for actions and processes.

77.1

In descriptions of processes the agent of the action need not necessarily be mentioned. For this, the passive is commonly used.

See 40.2b (p. 103) for the distinction between the process of an action and the resulting state.

For the use of von and durch to express agents of an action, see 40.3.

In addition to the passive there are several other ways of not mentioning the agent:

77.2

The agent of the action can be replaced by man.

See also 31.4 (p. 57) on personal pronouns.

English uses the passive:

Man hat mir den Mantel verspritzt.
My coat has been splashed.

Man erkennt die richtige Anwendung am Erfolg der Behandlung.
The correct application can be seen by the success of the treatment.

Feminists insist on replacing man with frau, or at least writing man/frau.

Jetzt kann man/frau wieder an dieser Küste baden.
Bathing is now possible again at this beach.

77.3

For the workings of nature and sensory perceptions, constructions with es can be used.

See 42.3g (p. 115) for the dummy subject es.

Es regnet.

It is raining.

An der Bergstraße blüht es ganz herrlich.

On the Bergstraße the blossom is quite beautiful.

Hier riecht es so gut nach warmem Brot.

There is such a lovely smell of warm bread here.

77.4

Indicating that something can be done, is expressed by:

(a) lässt sich (plus infinitive).

Ein deutlicher Unterschied ließ sich feststellen.

A distinct difference could be noticed/was noticeable.

Das lässt sich am besten damit erklären, dass das Wasser vorne eingedrungen war.

That can best be explained by the fact that the water had entered from the front.

Mit dem Betrieb von Windkraft lässt sich viel Geld verdienen.

A lot of money can be made from the operation of wind energy.

(b) the suffix -bar of the adjective (see 55.1a for word formation with -bar):

Das Verlängerungsteil ist abnehmbar.

The extension can be taken off/is removable/detachable.

77.5

If it is either possible or necessary for something to be done, ist zu (+ infinitive) 'can be/must be' (+ past participle) is used:

Die Mauer war vom Innern des Forums aus zu sehen/sichtbar.

The wall could be seen/was visible from the inside of the forum.

Die Korrespondenzen sind bis spätestens Freitag zu erledigen.

The post/letters have to be dealt with by Friday at the latest.

The exact English translation has to be inferred from the context and the use of adverbs or modal particles (see 117.1c for modal particles):

Die Handlung ist wohl zu rechtfertigen.

The action is probably justified./The action probably can be justified.

Ihre Entscheidung ist unbedingt zu rechtfertigen.

Her decision is definitely justified.

77.6

If neither the agent nor the object of the action is to be named, es wird (singular) together with the past participle is used. Here the focus is entirely on the action or process itself.

Compare the impersonal use of the passive (see 40.2c).

Gegenüber dem Bahnhof wird jetzt gebaut.

There is building going on across from the station.

In der Kneipe an der Ecke wird jeden Freitag getanzt.

There is dancing every Friday at the pub on the corner.

Vor dem Fest musste gekocht und gebacken werden.

Before the festival we had to cook and bake.

78

Describing origins and provenance

See 75.8c (p. 247) for describing what things are made of and 82.2 (p. 297) on 'Cause' for further vocabulary relating to origins.

78.1

Geographical origin

Geographical origin can be rendered by kommen aus, her *kommen aus/von or its related noun -e Herkunft.

(a) Asking where something is from Die Herkunft dieser Antiquität lässt sich nicht mehr feststellen.

The place of origin/provenance of this antique can no longer be ascertained.

Man kann nicht mehr feststellen, woher diese Vasen kommen.

We can no longer be sure where the vases came from.

Die Äpfel kommen aus Südafrika.

The apples come from South Africa.

(b) Asking about someone's place of origin

Woher kommen Sie?

Where do you come from?

(The question usually implies 'What is your country/town, etc. of origin?' unless there is reference to a specific place or time.)

Woher kommen Sie gerade?

Where have you (just) come from?

(c) Places where something started

-r Ausgangspunkt (e) 'starting point'

Exeter war Ausgangspunkt einer berühmten Entdeckungsreise.

Exeter was the starting point of a famous voyage of discovery.

(d) Direction something/someone is coming from aus Richtung 'from the direction of'

Der Zug aus Richtung Darmstadt hat heute zehn Minuten Verspätung.

The train from Darmstadt is ten minutes late today.

- (e) Things that originally came from or were situated elsewhere ursprünglich 'originally'

Das Sprachinstitut befand sich ursprünglich in einer alten Villa.

The language institute was originally housed in an old villa.

- (f) Tracing the origin back to somewhere can be expressed by a number of verbs with the prefix zurück- zurück*verfolgen 'to trace back to' zurück*gehen auf 'to go/date back to'

Der Grundplan für diese Kapelle lässt sich bis ins achte Jahrhundert zurückverfolgen.

The basic plan for this chapel can be traced back to the eighth century.

Diese Tradition geht auf heidnische Bräuche zurück.

This tradition dates back to heathen customs.

78.2

Chronological origin

Entstehung/entstehen

It is difficult to find a single translation for this verb. Possible translations include 'arise/come about/originate/be created': die Entstehung der Erde could therefore translate as: 'the origin/creation/of the earth/world':

Der Keil ist in der Steinzeit entstanden.

The arrow-head originated in the Stone Age.

Die Entstehung der Arten ist nach wie vor nicht ganz geklärt.

The origin of the species has still not been completely clarified/explained.

78.3

Origin by profession, social status and family

Profession and social status are often described as von Hause aus. It often implies an enduring trait in someone's character:

Der Bundespräsident ist von Hause aus Jurist.

The (German) President is a lawyer (by profession).

Sie stammt aus einer Medizinerfamilie.

She is from a medical family.

78.4

Origin by birth and descent

- (a) Von Geburt, von Geburt her/aus 'by birth'

Er ist von Geburt (aus/her) Schweizer./Er ist gebürtiger Schweizer.
He is Swiss by birth.

A more formal way of alluding to birth or origin is by seiner (etc.) Herkunft nach:

Sie ist ihrer Herkunft nach Weißrussin.
She is of Belorussian descent.

▶ See 23.1b (p. 37) for omission of the article.

(b) Genetic origin is referred to as

-r Ursprung/-e Abstammung 'origin' von etw. (= dat.) ab*stammen 'to be descended from'

Der Titel des Werkes heißt: 'Der Mensch von seinen Ursprüngen bis zur Gegenwart'.

The title of this work is: 'Man from his origins to the present day'.

Stammt der Mensch vom Affen ab?

Is man/Are human beings descended from the apes?

▶ See 28.2 (p. 49) for the declension of -r Affe.

(c) Descent is recorded in the family tree (-r Stammbaum) or a book that contains all official registrations, e.g. birth, marriage, death certificates of a family (-s Stammbuch der Familie).

(d) Ancestry

Specific ancestors are referred to as follows:

-e Urgroßeltern 'the great-grandparents'
-r Urahn(en)/-e Urahne(n) 'ancestor'
-r Vorfahr(en) '(non-specific) ancestor'

Die Vorfahren des Präsidenten kamen ursprünglich aus dem Süden.

The President's ancestors originally came from the South.

▶ See 28.2 (p. 49) on weak noun declension for -r Vorfahr and -r Präsident.

78.5

Foundation

Die NATO wurde 1949 von zwölf Staaten gegründet.

NATO was founded in 1949 by twelve states.

Hamburg und Bremen sind durch Kaiser Karl den Großen gegründet worden.

Hamburg and Bremen were founded by Charlemagne.

Heute ist es nicht mehr so kompliziert wie im 19. Jahrhundert, einen Hausstand zu gründen.

These days it is not as complicated as in the 19th century to set up house.

Where a foundation is of an intellectual nature, 'begründen' is used alongside 'gründen'.

Helene Lange war eine Mitbegründerin des deutschen Frauenvereins 1865.

Helene Lange was a co-founder of the German women's movement in 1865.

78.6

Origin of action

Initiatives and actions starting in a certain place or with a certain person are rendered by von . . . aus.

von (somewhere) aus

Die Phönizier gründeten vom Libanon aus Kolonien im westlichen Mittelmeer.

Starting from the Lebanon the Phoenicians founded colonies in the western Mediterranean.

Von diesem Büro aus leitet er das ganze Unternehmen.

He manages the entire enterprise from this office.

aus*gehen von

Die Initiative ging von einem Angestellten aus.

The initiative came from an employee.

See 28.5 (p. 50) for adjectival nouns.

78.7

Inheriting

etw. von jmdm. erben 'to inherit sth. from sb.'

-s Erbe/die Erbschaft 'inheritance/heritage'

-r Erbe/-e Erbin 'heir'

Er hat den Sekretär von seinem Onkel geerbt.

He inherited the bureau from his uncle.

Er hatte das väterliche Erbe angetreten, musste aber hohe Erbschaftssteuern zahlen.

He had come into his father's inheritance, but had to pay high inheritance tax/death duty.

Sie war die rechtmäßige/mutmaßliche Erbin des Verstorbenen.

She was the rightful/presumptive heir of the deceased.

78.8

Passing things on

jmdm. etw. vermachen 'to bequeath/to leave sth. to sb.'

-s Vermächtnis 'legacy'

hinterlassen 'to leave behind' (after death)
-s Geschenk (e) 'present/gift' überliefern 'to pass on/down'

Das Schriftstück war ihr vermacht worden.
 The document had been bequeathed to her.

▶ See 40.2a (p. 102) for the passive.

Er hinterließ seinen Enkeln ein großes Vermächtnis.
 He left a large legacy for his grandchildren.

▶ See 12.1 (p. 17) for word order of noun objects.

Der Ring war ein Geschenk zum zehnten Hochzeitstag.
 The ring was a gift for (her) tenth wedding anniversary.

Das Märchen wurde den Brüdern Grimm mündlich überliefert.
 The fairy-tale was passed (down) to the brothers Grimm orally.

78.9

Authorship

stammen von 'to stem/come from'
jmdm. etw. zu*schreiben 'to attribute sth. to sb.'
-r Urheber(-) 'author/creator/originator'
-s Urheberrecht(e)/-s Copyright 'copyright'

(a) Attributing something to an author

Dieser Aphorismus stammt von Lichtenberg.
 This aphorism comes from (Georg Christoph) Lichtenberg.

Das Gedicht wird dem schottischen Dichter Burns zugeschrieben.
 The poem is attributed to the Scottish poet Burns.

(b) Referring to an author as the originator and owner of copyright

Der Urheber besitzt das Copyright.
 The author owns the copyright.

Das Urheberrecht liegt beim Verlag.
 Copyright is with the publisher.

XII

Putting events into a wider context

79 Giving reasons and purpose

79.1 Giving reasons and explaining why in general terms

(a) For giving reasons and explaining why, the conjunctions denn, weil and da are used. They are essentially interchangeable.

NOTE denn is a co-ordinating conjunction (see 6.1), whereas weil and da are subordinating conjunctions (see 8.2–8.3).

denn 'for/because/since'
weil 'because'
da 'since/because'

Ich habe es gemacht, denn es war notwendig.
I did it because it was necessary.

Ich habe es gemacht, weil er es wollte.
I did it because he wanted it.

Wir haben es geschrieben, da es geschrieben werden musste.
We wrote it because it had to be written.

Weil/Da* es gesagt werden muss, sage ich es.
Since it has to be said I'll say it.

▶ See 8 (pp. 11–13) for subordinate clauses.

(b) The prepositions wegen and aufgrund are used to apportion blame or responsibility. Both take the genitive:

Wegen des schlechten Wetters* mussten die Ausgrabungsarbeiten unterbrochen werden.
The excavations had to be interrupted because of bad weather.

Aufgrund eines Todesfalles in der Familie* bleibt das Geschäft heute geschlossen.
The shop remains closed today because of a death in the family.

79.2

Giving detailed reasons

- (a) Explaining and emphasizing that there was a good reason deswegen, deshalb (. . . , weil . . .) 'for that reason/therefore/that's why' daher (. . . , dass . . .) 'therefore/that's why' also 'so/therefore'

nämlich 'namely/you see' infolgedessen 'consequently'
demzufolge 'accordingly'

Ich habe es nur deshalb gemacht, weil es notwendig war.
 The only reason I did it was because it was necessary.

Es ist deswegen misslungen, weil wir nicht das richtige Werkzeug hatten.
 It went wrong because we didn't have the right tool.

Gestern kam ich nicht zum Ausdrucken, deshalb muss ich es heute machen.
 Yesterday I didn't get round to printing, therefore I must do it today.

Er musste dringend weg. Deshalb/Also müsst ihr auf seine Kinder aufpassen.
 He had to go away urgently. That's why you have to look after his children.

Inflation kommt daher, dass die Leute zu viel Geld ausgeben.
 Inflation is a result of people spending too much money.

nämlich also expresses reason, but it is not usually translated. It adds the flavour of 'you see':

Du solltest ihm bei der Auswahl der Vorhangstoffe helfen. Er ist nämlich farbenblind.
 You should help him with the selection of curtain materials. He is colour-blind, you see.

See 117.1c (p. 418) for the modal particle nämlich.

- (b) Something was done in order to make something else possible damit 'so that'

um . . . zu 'in order to'

damit is often used with können:

Er empfiehlt ihr, ein neues Computerprogramm zu kaufen, damit sie ihre Abrechnung schneller machen kann.
 He advises her to buy a new computer program so that she can do her accounts more quickly.

See 8.2 (p. 11) for word order in subordinate clauses.

If the subject of both main and dependent clause is identical, um zu is preferred to damit.

Unlike in English, the um cannot be omitted. Um zu is followed by an infinitive at the end of the clause.

See 8.7 (p. 13) for infinitive clauses.

Arbeitet man, um zu leben, oder lebt man, um zu arbeiten?

Does one work in order to live, or (does one) live in order to work?

Was soll man bei einer Bruchlandung tun, um einen möglichen Brand zu überleben?

What should one do during a crash landing (in order) to survive a (possible) fire?

NOTE

Es ist zu schön, um wahr zu sein.

It is too good to be true.

If there is another zu in the previous clause, um zu usually means ‘too . . . to be . . .’

See also 82.1c (p. 297) for this use of zu.

79.3

Asking about reasons

warum? ‘why?’

wieso? ‘why?/how come?’

weshalb? ‘why?’

wozu? ‘to what purpose?/what . . . for?/why?’

aus welchem Grund? ‘for which reason?/why?’

– Warum hast du große Zähne! – Damit ich dich besser fressen kann.

– What big teeth you have! – All the better to eat you with.
(Little Red Riding Hood)

Wieso willst du nicht mitspielen?

How come you don’t want to play with us?

(Wieso, particularly the short question Wieso nicht ‘why not’, sometimes sounds impatient and challenging.)

Weshalb fahren Sie denn immer an den gleichen Ferienort?

Why do you always go to the same holiday resort?

Wozu bist du denn in die Stadt gefahren?

Why (lit. To what purpose) did you go into town then?

Wozu soll das gut sein?

What is the point of it?/What is it in aid of?

Aus welchem Grund haben die britischen Eisenbahnen denn so häufig Verspätung?

Why is it that British trains are so often late?

79.4

Naming the reason

-r Grund (Gründe) 'reason'

etw. mit etw. begründen 'to justify/give reason'

-e Begründung 'reason/justification'

-r Grund and derivatives are used to give a straightforward reason for doing something

Er hatte sie geheiratet aus dem einfachen Grunde, dass sie gute Beziehungen in der Wirtschaft hatte.

He had married her for the simple reason that she had good contacts/was well connected in the business world.

See 58.4 (p. 148) for the position of the past participle geheiratet here.

Er wollte sein Vorgehen damit begründen, dass er seinen Konkurrenten beseitigen musste.

He tried/wanted to justify his action by claiming he had to get rid of his competitor.

Mit welcher Begründung wollen Sie eigentlich diese Straße absperren?

What is your justification in wanting/On what grounds do you want to block off this road?

79.5

Explaining an action

-e Erklärung 'explanation'

erklären 'to explain' (giving reasons)

unerklärlich 'inexplicable'

sagen 'to say'

erläutern 'to explain' (how)

Ich bin ihm eine Erklärung schuldig.

I owe him an explanation.

See 12.3 (p. 17) for the order of noun and pronoun.

Das Presseamt möchte eine Erklärung abgeben.

The press office would like to make/release a statement.

Das Loch in der Wasserleitung erklärt, warum wir schon so lange diese Geräusche gehört haben.

The hole in the water pipe explains why we have been hearing these noises for such a long time.

See 9 (p. 14) for word order in indirect questions.

Es ist mir völlig unerklärlich, wieso es hier keine Steckdosen gibt.
I really can't see/it's a mystery to me why there are no (wall) sockets here.

Er hat mir genau erläutert, wie man Genmanipulationen an Tomaten durchführt.

He explained (to me) exactly how gene manipulations on tomatoes are carried out.

sagen can cover the meaning of both erklären and erläutern in everyday conversation.

Sag mir doch, warum du schon wieder zu spät kommst.
Tell me why you are late again.

79.6

Justifying an action

rechtfertigen 'to justify'
es ist (völlig) gerechtfertigt 'it is (quite) justifiable' es ist vertretbar 'it is tenable/defensible/justifiable' es ist zu verantworten 'it can be justified'
etw. vor jmdm. verantworten 'to answer to sb. for sth.'

Sie brauchen diese Handlung nur vor Gott und Ihrem Gewissen zu rechtfertigen.

You need to justify this action only before God and your conscience.

Es ist nicht zu verantworten, dass wir einen großen Teil des Etats für die Wartung der alten Geräte ausgeben.

We cannot justify spending a large part of the budget on the maintenance of the old equipment.

See also 79.4 (p. 277) on begründen mit.

Wenn den Kindern etwas passiert, müssen wir das vor ihren Eltern verantworten.

If something happens to the children we will have to answer to their parents (for it).

79.7

Taking on responsibility

etw. verantworten 'to answer for sth.'
sich (=acc.) verantworten 'to defend oneself/defend a course of action' verantwortlich sein 'to be responsible'
-e Verantwortung übernehmen 'to take over/on responsibility'
-e Führung/-s Amt übernehmen 'to take on the leadership/office'

Der Projektleiter ist für die Durchführung des gesamten Projekts allein verantwortlich.

The project leader is in sole charge of the entire project.

Dafür musst du dich vor der Standesorganisation verantworten.
You must defend/justify yourself (for this) before the professional association.

Herr Brandes hat dankenswerterweise das Amt des Kassierers übernommen.

We are grateful that Mr Brandes has taken over the position of treasurer.

79.8

Explaining the purpose (what for)

-r Zweck/-r Sinn 'purpose'
-s Mittel zum Zweck 'means to an end'
mit dem Zweck 'with the purpose'

Der Zweck heiligt die Mittel.
The end justifies the means.

Das ist nicht der Zweck der Übung.
This is not the point of the exercise.

Dieser Koffer erfüllt seinen Zweck.
This (suit)case serves its purpose.

Refer to a dictionary for further expressions with zweck-, e.g. zweckmäßig or zweckgebunden (zweckgebundene Gelder 'ear-marked money'), etc.

Der Sinn dieser Übung ist, dass Sie den Zusammenhang zwischen den Wörtern verstehen.

The point of this exercise is that you understand the connection/relationship between the words.

79.9

Explaining a particular use dienen zu 'to serve as sth.'

benutzen 'to use'
nützlich sein 'to be useful'
jmdn./etw. zu etw. brauchen 'to need sb./sth. for sth.'
etw. zu etw. gebrauchen 'to use sth. for sth.'

Die Zinsen von seinem Sparkonto dienen zu seinem Altersunterhalt.
The interest from his savings account serves as his old age pension.

Diese Allzwecktücher können Sie auch zum Fensterputzen benutzen.

You can also use these all-purpose cloths for window cleaning.

See 5.2b (p. 8) on word order.

Ich brauche schnell etwas zum Schreiben.
I need something to write with quickly.

79.10

Explaining intention

-e Absicht 'intention'
absichtlich 'intentionally' extra 'deliberately'
beabsichtigen, etw. zu tun 'to intend to do sth.'
etw. vor*haben 'to plan/intend to do sth.'
etw. tun wollen 'to want/intend to do sth.'

Dies geschah ausschließlich mit der Absicht, dass er hinausgeekelt werden sollte.

This happened solely so that he would be hounded out.

Er hat sie absichtlich übersehen.

He overlooked her intentionally/deliberately.

extra could be used instead of absichtlich, but it is informal:

Hast du das extra gemacht?

Did you do that deliberately?

Der Vorsitzende zog die Sitzung absichtlich in die Länge.

The chairperson deliberately prolonged the meeting.

79.11

Explaining that something happened unintentionally/by mistake

-s Versehen 'oversight'
aus Versehen/versehentlich 'by mistake' nicht absichtlich 'not intentionally' nicht extra 'not deliberately'
etw. übersehen 'to overlook sth.'
jmdm. ist ein Fehler unterlaufen 'sb. has made a mistake'

Ich habe diese Datei aus Versehen gelöscht.

I deleted this file by mistake/unintentionally.

Er hat versehentlich den falschen Mantel mitgenommen.

He took the wrong coat with him by mistake.

See 36 (pp. 81–7) for inseparable verbs.

Die Studenten hatten total übersehen, dass die Dozentin bereits im Seminarraum war.

The students had completely failed to notice that the tutor was already in the seminar room.

80

Providing spatial context

80.1

Asking 'where?'

See 7 (p. 12), 9 (p. 14) and 50.5 (p. 131) on interrogatives; 69 (pp. 211–15) and 71 (pp. 221–4) on existence and availability.

(a) For simply asking 'where?'

wo? 'where?'

Wo habe ich diese Datei gespeichert?

Where did I save this file?

(b) When asking for the specific location of one item out of a group of items, use welch- with the appropriate ending. (See 24.1b for the declension of welcher.)

– Welchen Computer soll ich reparieren?

– Den da drüben, bitte.

– Which computer am I to repair?

– The one over there, please.

Welch- can be used with a preceding preposition:

Über welche Themen wirst du im Examen geprüft?

Which topics will you be examined on?

Unter welchem Dateinamen hast du diesen Bericht abgelegt?

Which filename did you use for this report?

In welcher Mappe liegt der Bericht?

Which folder is the report in?

80.2

Expressing 'here' and 'there'

hier 'here'

da 'there' (sth. fairly close) dort 'there' (sth. further away)

NOTE

da sein is also used to denote presence (see 69.1).

To pinpoint a place, use:

an dieser Stelle 'at this spot'

an diesem Ort 'at this place'

an diesem Punkt 'at this point'

(genau) hier/da 'right here/there'

An dieser Stelle stand einmal eine Kapelle.

There used to be a chapel on this spot.

Bitte hier unterschreiben.
Please sign here.

80.3

Describing distances

- (a) Distances from 'A' to 'B' are conveyed by von (+ dat.) bis zu (+ dat.):

Von meinem Haus bis zum Marktplatz sind es ungefähr drei Kilometer.

From my house to the market square is about three kilometres.

- (b) Describing distance from a certain point

Wie weit ist es von Frankfurt bis Berlin Luftlinie?

How far is it as the crow flies from Frankfurt to Berlin?

- (c) Describing distance between two points

Zwischen Erde und Mond liegen etwa 390.000 km Entfernung.

There is a distance of about 243,000 miles between the earth and the moon.

Wie weit ist Potsdam von Berlin entfernt?

How far is it from Berlin to Potsdam?

80.4

Covering distances and areas

- (a) In order to express distance covered between two towns or countries, use von (+ dat.) nach (+ dat.):

Wie lange braucht man mit dem Auto von Heidelberg nach Dresden?

How long is it by car from Heidelberg to Dresden?

- (b) For distances between specific places (from 'X' to 'Y'), use von (+ dat.) (bis) zu (+ dat.):

Vom Bahnhof bis zum Hotel sind es nur wenige Minuten.

It only takes a few minutes from the station to the hotel.

- (c) A formal way to express 'to cover a distance' is eine Strecke zurück*legen:

Diese Strecke kann man kaum zu Fuß zurücklegen.

It is virtually impossible to cover this distance on foot.

- (d) For covering an area sich (= acc.) erstrecken über 'to extend over' sich (= acc.) aus*dehnen über 'to stretch across' über etw. (= acc.) ausbreiten 'to spread (over)' bedecken 'to cover'

flächendeckend 'covering the entire area'
ab*decken 'to cover'

Das Naturschutzgebiet erstreckt sich über mehrere tausend Quadratkilometer/dehnt sich über mehrere tausend Quadratkilometer aus.

The nature reserve extends over several thousand square kilometres.

Die Tollwut hat sich bis jetzt noch nicht weiter ausbreiten können.
Rabies hasn't so far been able to spread any further.

Das Staubecken bedeckt eine große Fläche, die früher Weideland war.

The reservoir covers a large area that used to be grazing land.

Über das Satellitennetz können die Nachrichten flächendeckend ausgestrahlt werden.

The news can be broadcast across the entire area via the satellite network.

ab*decken can be used to describe something abstract rather than physical:

Diese Theorie deckt aber nicht alle möglichen Fälle ab.

However, this theory doesn't cover all possible cases.

80.5

Direction

(a) To indicate coming 'from' somewhere, aus Richtung 'from (the direction)' is used, while 'in the direction of' is rendered by in Richtung:

Der Heißluftballon wird aus Richtung Süden/aus Richtung Bayern über den Berg fahren.

The hot-air balloon will travel from the south/from the direction of Bavaria across the mountain.

Fahren Sie in Richtung Messegelände.

Drive in the direction of the exhibition centre.

(b) Being able to see or reach something from somewhere is conveyed by von (+ dat.) aus zu sehen/zu erreichen sein:

Die Schweizer Alpen sind vom Südschwarzwald aus zu sehen.

The Swiss Alps can be seen from the southern Black Forest.

Vom Bahnhof aus gesehen liegt die Uni östlich.

Looking from the station, the university is to the east.

Von Ihrem Hotel aus ist das Stadtzentrum leicht zu Fuß zu erreichen.

From your hotel you can easily reach the city centre on foot.

(c) To carry on in the same direction, use (immer) geradeaus 'keep straight on':

Fahren Sie immer geradeaus bis zum Arbeiterdenkmal.

Keep driving straight on as far as the workers' memorial.

(d) To emphasize movement, use her-.

See 50.4 (p. 130), 80.7 (p. 284) and 81.5f (p. 289) for further uses of her-.

For going around a place, um (+ acc.) herum is used:

Die Sportler müssen eine Ehrenrunde um den ganzen Sportplatz herum drehen.

The athletes must run a lap of honour around the entire stadium/sports field.

For coming out of a place, aus (+ dat.) heraus or hinter (+ dat.) hervor is used:

Er kam hinter dem Vorhang hervor.
He came out from behind the curtain.

Die Maus kroch aus dem Loch heraus/hervor.
The mouse crept out of the hole.

80.6

Following and preceding someone/something

(a) In order to express that someone is following someone else, jmdm. folgen 'to follow sb.' or the prefixes nach- or hinterher- before verbs of movement are used. The person being followed is in the dative:

Ist es Ihnen auch unangenehm, wenn Ihnen nachts jemand nachgeht?

Do you also find it unpleasant when someone follows you at night?

Du findest unser Haus am einfachsten, wenn du mir einfach hinterherfährst.

It is easiest to find our house if you simply follow me (by car).

These expressions can also be used in an abstract sense:

Diese Sache müssen Sie verfolgen./Dieser Sache müssen Sie nachgehen.

You must follow up this matter.

(b) voraus- denotes going ahead of or preceding someone:

Da ich mich nicht in der Stadt auskannte, bat ich einen Taxifahrer, mir vorauszufahren.

Since I didn't know my way about town I asked a taxi-driver to drive ahead of me.

Die Nachricht wird ihr schon vorausgeeilt sein.
The news will have gone before her/preceded her.

Meine Bücher hatte ich schon vorausgeschickt.
I had sent my books on ahead (i.e. before I went myself).

80.7

The speaker's perspective

The prefixes her- and hin- indicate the speaker's perspective.

her*kommen is used to refer to someone coming towards the speaker, while hin*gehen refers to someone going away from the speaker towards someone or something else.

See also 50.4 (p. 130) for adverbs such as hierher and dorthin.

(a) Towards the speaker

Komm jetzt bitte (zu mir) herunter!
Please come down (to me) now.

Woher kommt denn dieser Wein?

Where does this wine come from?

- ▶ See 117.1c (p. 418) for the modal particle denn.

(b) Away from the speaker

Ich gehe jetzt zur Nachbarin hinüber.

I'm just going over to my neighbour.

Wo hast du das Buch hingelegt, das ich dir geliehen habe?

Where did you put the book that I lent you?

Schaffen Sie es bitte weg!

Please remove it!

- ▶ See 57.1 (p. 142).

(c) Both directions

- ▶ See 41 (pp. 105–7) for imperatives.

Geh jetzt hinauf und hol mir die schmutzige Wäsche herunter.

Go upstairs now and bring me down the dirty washing.

(d) Note, however, that gehen and bringen, unlike 'go' and 'bring', do not always imply that the perspective is centred on the speaker:

Ich bringe dich zum Bahnhof.

I'll take you to the station.

Ein Knopf vom Jackett ist abgegangen.

A button came off the jacket.

In these examples, the verbs assume a focal point other than the speaker's (see 33.5a and 33.5c, 33.6c).

80.8

Spatial sequences

(a) Actions which happen in spatial sequence can be expressed with erst 'first' and dann 'then':

Erst kommt man an dem neuen Supermarkt vorbei, dann stößt man auf das Freizeitzentrum.

First you pass the new supermarket, then you come to the leisure centre.

(b) Systematic sequence is often referred to by -e Reihe

-e Reihe 'row'

-e Reihenfolge 'sequence'

der Reihe nach 'one after the other'

Die Namen der Gewinner sind in alphabetischer Reihenfolge aufgeführt.

The names of the winners are listed in alphabetical order.

Ich gehe jetzt die Teilnehmerliste der Reihe nach durch.

I am going through the list of participants, one after the other.

- ▶ See also 76.5b (p. 258) for taking turns.

(c) To imply that something is right next to something without a gap in between, use anschließend an (+ acc.) 'adjacent to':

Anschließend an den Versorgungsraum finden wir die Empfangsräume der römischen Villa.

Next to the supplies room we find the reception rooms of the Roman villa.

- ▶ See 81.13b (p. 294) for temporal uses of anschließend.

81 Providing temporal context

- ▶ See 50.1 (p. 129).

81.1 Now

(a) The present moment in time is expressed im Moment/im Augenblick/momentan 'at the moment' gerade 'at the moment/just now/just then' jetzt/nun 'now'

bis jetzt/bisher 'until now/hitherto' gegenwärtig 'currently/at present' zur Zeit 'at present'
heute 'today'
dieses Jahr 'this year'
dieses Jahrzehnt 'this decade'

- ▶ For use of adverbs and adverbial phrases, see 5.2 (p. 8) and 50 (p. 129); for order of adverbs see 11.1–4 (pp. 16–17).

Wir haben momentan hier sehr viel zu tun.

We are very busy here at the moment.

Wo seid ihr gerade?

Where are you at the moment/just now?

- ▶ See 81.2 (p. 287) on another use of gerade.

Jetzt/Nun* geht es aufwärts mit der Wirtschaft.

The economy is picking up now.

(b) 'Until now' is rendered by bis jetzt/bisher:

Bis jetzt* gibt es keine Cholera in dem Lager.

Until now there has been no cholera in the camp.

- ▶ See 81.7 (p. 290) for ways to express 'not yet'; and 34.2d (p. 71) for this use of the present tense.

(c) More general terms for ‘currently/at present’ are gegenwärtig/zur Zeit (abbreviated to z.Zt.): as an adjective, gegenwärtig occurs in expressions such as -e gegenwärtige Finanzlage ‘the current financial situation’:

Der Bundeskanzler befindet sich zur Zeit/gegenwärtig in Washington.

The Federal Chancellor is currently in Washington.

Die gegenwärtige politische Lage in Israel ist äußerst kritisch.

The current political situation in Israel is extremely critical.

81.2

A few moments ago

gerade/eben/soeben used with either the simple past or the perfect (see 34.5–6 for tenses) implies that something has just happened:

Tut mir Leid, der Chef ist gerade aus dem Haus gegangen.

Sorry, the boss has just left the building.

Eben waren sie noch da; jetzt sind sie weg.

They were here a minute ago, now they’ve gone.

vorhin lies a little bit further back in time; it refers to the same afternoon, morning, etc., but other events may have happened in the meantime.

Vorhin habe ich noch daran gedacht; dann kam mir ein Anruf dazwischen.

I remembered it a little earlier, then a phone call intervened.

81.3

Recently

(a) For referring to recent events without specifically giving a date, the following can be used:

vor kurzem ‘a short time ago/the other day’ (implying days, rather than minutes or hours ago) kürzlich/neulich ‘recently’

Neulich stand in der Zeitung, dass sich Peter verlobt hat.

It was in the paper recently that Peter has got engaged.

(b) In order to refer to a specific point in the recent past, the following can be used:

letzten/vorigen Montag/Mittwoch ‘last Monday/Wednesday’

letzte/vorige Woche ‘last week’ vorletzten Dienstag ‘(the) Tuesday before last’

81.4

At a specified time in the past

(a) For a non-specific time in the past vor x Jahren 'x years ago/before' in den neunziger Jahren 'in the nineties'

See 47.1b (p. 123).

Vor zehn Jahren lebten sie noch in Berlin.
 Ten years ago they still lived in Berlin.

(b) For a specific time in the past

Dienstag vor einer Woche 'a week ago last Tuesday' letzten Freitagabend 'last Friday evening' in der Nacht zum Donnerstag 'on Wednesday night'

(Note here that German refers to the night preceding rather than to the following day.)

heute Nacht, if mentioned in the morning, however, refers to the previous night:

Wie hast du heute Nacht geschlafen?
 How did you sleep last night?

81.5

Events in the distant past

For adverb vs adjective, see 43.2 (p. 118) and 47.2 (p. 123).

damals 'at the time'
einst 'once'
damalig (adj.) 'then'
einstig (adj.) 'former' (formal) früher (adj.) 'former/earlier' früher (adv.) 'in the old days' einmal 'once'
es war einmal 'once upon a time'
eines Tages 'one day'
irgendwann 'at some (unknown) time' als ich klein war 'when I was little' es ist lange her 'it has been a long time'
alt 'old'
jung 'recent/young'

(a) When talking about events in the distant past, damals 'then' and einst 'one day/once' are used:

Damals gab es noch kein elektrisches Licht.
 Then/In those days there was no electric light.

Der damalige Bürgermeister von Berlin war W. Brandt.
 The mayor of Berlin at that time was W. Brandt.

Die Baracken dienten einmal zur Unterbringung von Flüchtlingen.
The huts once served as accommodation for refugees.

Die einmaligen Beziehungen zu den osteuropäischen Staaten waren durch den eisernen Vorhang abgebrochen worden.
The Iron Curtain had put an end to earlier relations with Eastern European states.

Note that einmalig tends to be more formal than früher (used as an adjective).

▶ See 43 (p. 118) for adjectives and 50 (pp. 129–32) for adverbs.

(b) Older people use früher 'in the old days/then' to refer to their own past:

Früher war der Main oft zugefroren, und wir konnten darauf Schlittschuh laufen.

The (river) Main used to get frozen over and we were able to ice skate on it.

(c) For a single occurrence, einmal 'once' is used, which is also found at the beginning of fairy-tales:

Es war einmal ein alter König.

There was once/Once upon a time there was an old king.

Da bin ich einmal allein im Wald spazierengegangen.

Once I went walking alone in the woods.

Eines Tages kam der Gerichtsvollzieher zu ihm.

One day the bailiff came to him.

▶ See 20.6 (p. 33) for this use of the genitive.

(d) At some (unknown) time

Irgendwann kam dann die Gemeindeschwester und schaute nach dem Neugeborenen.

Some time (we never knew when) the district nurse would come and look in on the new-born child.

Kannst du mir irgendwann den Koffer vom Speicher holen?

Could you get the suitcase down from the attic for me some time?

(e) 'When I was young'

Als ich noch klein war, wurden die Kinder viel strenger erzogen.

When I was little, children were brought up much more strictly.

(f) 'A long time ago'

Es ist eine Ewigkeit her/schon lange her, seit wir uns das letzte Mal getroffen haben.

It's been ages since we last met.

(g) When talking about history, jung and alt mean, respectively, chronologically more recent and chronologically more distant:

Die alten Funde stammen aus dem zweiten Jahrhundert n. Chr., die jüngeren aus dem vierten Jahrhundert.

The older finds are from the second century AD, the more recent ones from the fourth century.

81.6

No longer possible or out-of-date

See also 70.4e (p. 218) for things out-of-date and obsolete.

(a) For things that have ceased to apply or are no longer possible nicht mehr 'no longer'

längst nicht mehr 'not for a long time' schon lange nicht mehr 'not for a long time'

Seit seinem schweren Unfall darf er nicht mehr Rad fahren.
Since his bad accident he is no longer allowed to ride a bike.

Nach dem Kurs werden Sie keine Angst mehr vor dunklen Räumen haben.
After the course you will no longer be afraid of dark rooms.

Orchideen gibt es in dieser Wiese schon längst nicht mehr.
There haven't been orchids in this meadow for a long time.

Du hast schon lange nicht mehr mit mir Schach gespielt.
You haven't played chess with me for a long time.

(b) For something or somebody that is no longer up-to-date

Dieses Textverarbeitungsprogramm ist (längst) veraltet/überholt.
This word processing programme has been out-dated/obsolete (for a long time).

Er ist nicht mehr up to date.
He is no longer up-to-date/familiar with current affairs.

81.7

Yet to occur

See 34.6c (p. 72).

Der Film von der Hochzeit ist immer noch nicht entwickelt.
The film of the wedding still hasn't been developed.

Schreibt er immer noch an seinem Bericht?
Is he still writing his report?

Ist die Umgehungsstraße immer noch nicht fertig?
Is the by-pass still not ready/finished?

See also 70.5 (p. 220) for cancelled events.

81.8

Right away/very soon

sofort 'straight away/without delay' gleich 'in a minute'
bald 'soon'
von nun/jetzt an 'from now on'
sobald 'as soon as'

(a) Immediately, from now on sofort implies 'straight away/without delay':

Bitte kommen Sie sofort zum Chef!
 Please come to see the boss right away.

ab sofort denotes 'from this moment onwards':

Der Vertrag gilt ab sofort.
 The contract/treaty has immediate effect.

(b) gleich 'straight away/in a minute' leaves a few moments to finish another job first:

Ich komme gleich.
 I'll come straight away/be right there.

See 34.2c (p. 71).

(c) bald 'soon' reassures someone that something is going to happen, maybe later that day or in the next few days, depending on context:

Wann sind wir endlich da? Ganz bald.
 When will we be there? Very soon./Quite soon./Not long.

(d) von nun/jetzt an is a slightly pompous way of indicating that from now on things are going to be different:

Versprich mir, dass du von jetzt an nie wieder die Zunge herausstreckst.
 Promise me that you will never stick your tongue out again.

(e) As soon as something is done

Sobald* ich das Manuskript erhalten habe, werde ich es überarbeiten.
 As soon as I have received the manuscript I'll revise it.

81.9

Eventually

(a) In the near future

in Kürze 'shortly'
demnächst 'shortly'
in nächster Zeit 'in the very near future/shortly'

NOTE

kürzlich is used to mean 'recently/lately' (see 81.3a).

In Kürze/Demnächst wird in diesem Theater ein neues Musical von Lloyd Webber aufgeführt.

There will be a production of a new musical by Lloyd Webber in this theatre soon.

Wegen der Sparmaßnahmen wird es hier in nächster Zeit keine neuen Bücher geben.

Because of the economy measures there will be no new books here in the near future.

(b) For longer term planning mit der Zeit 'with time' irgendwann 'eventually'

allmählich 'gradually'

Mit der Zeit werden die Schmerzen vielleicht abklingen.
With time the pains may ease.

Vielleicht sollten wir irgendwann einmal eine Party veranstalten.
Maybe we should organize/arrange a party some time/eventually.

See 81.5d (p. 289) for irgendwann 'some time ago'.

Wir werden allmählich immer mehr Computerpapier benötigen.
We will gradually require more and more computer paper.

81.10

A specified time in the future

(a) The following are used to refer to a specific point in the future:

heute Mittag/Nachmittag/Abend 'this lunchtime/afternoon/evening' morgen 'tomorrow'
morgen früh/Abend 'tomorrow morning/evening' übermorgen/überübermorgen 'the day after tomorrow/in three days' time' diesen/nächsten Sonntag 'this (the following)/next Saturday' Montag in einer Woche 'a week on Monday' in der kommenden Woche 'next week'
wenn du groß/erwachsen/in der Schule bist 'when you are grown up/an adult/at school'

Übermorgen fangen die Sommerferien an.
The summer holidays start the day after tomorrow.

Nächsten Sonntag fahren wir in die Berge.
Next Sunday we'll take a drive into the mountains.

(b) To express a certain length of time until something is to happen, the following are used:

in acht Tagen 'in a week's time'
in vierzehn Tagen 'in two weeks' time'
in zwanzig Jahren 'in twenty years' time'

Die Handwerker werden in acht Tagen mit den Fenstern fertig sein.
The builders will have finished the windows in a week's time.

81.11

Expressing duration

Addition of the adverb or suffix -lang emphasizes the length of time.

lang 'long' (after time expressions) fünf Jahre lang 'for five years' stundenlang 'for hours'
jahrzehntelang 'for decades' eine Zeit lang 'for a while'
tagsüber 'during the day'
an Werktagen/werktags 'on working days' sonntags 'on Sundays'
an Feiertagen 'on public holidays'

Sie hatten fünf Jahre lang im Chor gesungen, bevor sie austraten.
They had sung in the choir for five years before they left it.

Stunden lang/Tagelang/Jahrelang habe ich auf ihn gewartet.
I've waited for him for hours/days/years.

Jahrzehntelang/Jahrhundertelang war dieses Land besetzt.
This country was occupied for decades/centuries.

Wir werden eine Zeit lang ohne Hausmeister auskommen müssen.
We'll have to manage without a caretaker/janitor for a while.

81.12

Expressing simultaneous events

gleichzeitig/zur gleichen Zeit 'at the same time/simultaneously' am gleichen/selben Tag wie (+ nom.) 'on the same day as'

Man kann doch nicht gleichzeitig Radio hören und Rechenaufgaben machen!

But surely you can't listen to the radio and do your maths homework at the same time!

Er ist am gleichen/selben Tag in die Schule gekommen wie ich.
He started school on the same day as me.

See 76.6 (p. 259) on 'Simultaneity'.

81.13

Before and after

(a) 'Before' is rendered by:

vor 'before'
vor dieser Zeit 'before this time'
vorher/bisher/bis jetzt 'until now'

Bitte nicht vor acht Uhr morgens anrufen.
Please do not phone before 8am.

Vor dem Schlafengehen* Zähne putzen!
Before going to bed clean your teeth!

Das haben wir aber bisher/bis jetzt anders gemacht!
But we did this differently up until now!

(b) 'After' is conveyed by:

nach (+ dat.) 'after'
anschließend an etw. (= acc.) 'following sth.'

Nach* sieben Uhr sind die meisten Leute zu Hause.
Most people are at home after 7(pm).

Nach der Schule* sollen gleich die Hausaufgaben gemacht werden.
Homework is supposed to be done straight after school.

Anschließend an den Empfang* gab es den lange erwarteten Vortrag.
Following the formal welcome the long awaited lecture started.

81.14

Frequency

(a) Doing things very frequently sehr oft 'often' öfters/oft 'often'

häufig 'frequently'

Die Windeln müssen häufig gewechselt werden.
The nappies/diapers have to be changed frequently.

(b) Doing things infrequently manchmal 'sometimes' gelegentlich 'occasionally'

ab und zu/ab und an 'infrequently' hin und wieder 'every now and again' selten 'seldom'
(fast) nie '(almost) never'

Wir gehen fast nie tanzen.
We hardly ever go dancing.

(c) Doing things regularly

regelmäßig 'regularly'
jede Stunde/jedes Jahr 'every hour/every year' einmal/zweimal die Woche 'once/twice a week' (informal) einmal/zweimal in der Woche 'once/twice a week' alle vierzehn Tage 'every fortnight' alle vier Wochen 'every four weeks'

 jeden zweiten Tag 'every other day'

Ich muss mir jeden zweiten Tag die Haare waschen.
 I have to wash my hair every other day.

Das Gerät sollte alle vier Wochen überprüft werden.
 The equipment ought to be checked every four weeks.

81.15

Punctuality and deadline

(a) Just at the right time is rendered by:

rechtzeitig 'at the right time' gerade zur rechten Zeit 'just in time' gerade noch 'just in time'
 in letzter Sekunde/Minute 'at the last minute' mit knapper Not 'in the nick of time'
 pünktlich 'in time'

Die Karte kam rechtzeitig zum Geburtstag an.
 The card arrived in time for the birthday.

Die Bewerbungsunterlagen wurden gerade noch vor Einsendeschluss eingereicht.
 The application forms were handed in just before the deadline.

Er hat ihn gerade noch retten können.
 He was able to save him just in time.

Wir waren gerade noch am Hafen angekommen, bevor das Schiff auslief.
 We arrived at the harbour just before the boat left.

Die Hilfe war in letzter Sekunde eingetroffen.
 Help had arrived at the last minute.

Sie erreichten das Ziel mit knapper Not. (informal)
 They reached the goal in the nick of time.

Der Zug nach Hamburg kam pünktlich.
 The train to Hamburg came on time.

(b) Not at the right time is rendered by:

zur falschen Zeit 'at the wrong time' zu spät/früh 'too late/early' verfrüht/verspätet '(too) early/late' sich (= acc.) verspäten 'to be late' Verspätung haben 'to be delayed/late'

etw. mit Verspätung tun 'to do sth. with delay' mit zwei Tagen Verspätung 'two days late'

Du hättest früher kommen sollen, jetzt ist es zu spät.
You should have come earlier. Now it is too late.

Der Flug aus Moskau hat zwei Stunden Verspätung.
The flight from Moscow is delayed by two hours.

Das Dokument hat uns zwei Tage zu spät erreicht.
The document reached us two days late.

Das Dokument wurde mit zwei Tagen Verspätung abgeliefert.
(formal)
The document was delivered two days late.

(c) Doing something by a certain time

Das Manuskript muss bis (zum) Jahresende abgegeben werden.
The manuscript must be handed in by the end of the year.

(d) Within a certain time

Die Wohnung muss innerhalb von 10 Tagen/innerhalb Jahresfrist geräumt werden.
The flat must be vacated within ten days/within a year.

Wir bitten um Ausgleich unserer Rechnung in 20 Tagen nach Rechnungserhalt.
We request settlement of our invoice within 20 days of receipt.

(e) Asking for an extension

Vielleicht sollten wir um eine Verlängerung/Gnadenfrist bitten.
Maybe we should ask for an extension/reprieve.

See 76.5 (p. 258) for temporal sequences.

82

Talking about cause and effect

82.1

Linking cause and effect

(a) 'If . . . then . . . '

Cause and effect can be expressed with the pair of conjunctions wenn and dann.

wenn is a subordinating conjunction (see 8.3), whereas dann keeps the verb as second idea (see 6.3):

Wenn man auf den Knopf drückt, dann spult die Kassette zurück.
If you press the button, the cassette rewinds.

wenn can be omitted and the subject and verb inverted. This results in a more idiomatic style (see 8.5 for the omission of wenn):

Drückt man auf den Knopf, dann spult die Kassette zurück.
If you press the button, the cassette rewinds.

In this case dann can be replaced with so:

Drückt man auf den anderen Knopf, so spult die Kassette vorwärts.
If you press the other button, the cassette fast forwards.

(b) 'The more, the better' je . . . , desto 'the . . . , the . . . ' (as in 'the more, the better', see 48.6e)

Je höher der Stromverbrauch, desto höher (ist) die Rechnung.
The higher the electricity consumption, the higher the bill.

See 48 (pp. 125–8) for comparison of adjectives and 51 (pp. 132–3) for comparison of adverbs.

(c) zu . . . sein, (um) zu . . . 'to be too . . . to do sth.'

Du bist jetzt zu groß, um im Sandkasten zu spielen.
You are too big now to play in the sand-pit.

(d) sobald 'the moment/as soon as'

Sobald der Kontakt unterbrochen wird, ertönt die Alarmanlage.
As soon as the contact is broken, the alarm system sounds.

For so dass 'so that', and so . . . , dass . . . 'so . . . that . . . ' see 83.2 (p. 301).

82.2

Cause

(a) General causes

-e Ursache 'cause' verursachen 'to cause' (a negative consequence) hervor*rufen 'to bring about'
-r Anlass 'occasion'
veranlassen 'to cause'
jmdm. Schwierigkeiten bereiten 'to cause sb. difficulties' aus*lösen 'to trigger (bad things)'

Die Luftverschmutzung wird als Ursache aller Übel angesehen.
Air pollution is seen as the root of all evil.

See 23.1 (p. 37) for omission of the definite article in German.

Der Unfall war durch fahrlässiges Handeln verursacht worden.
The accident had been caused by negligence.

Anlass der Unruhen war eine Preissteigerung.
The occasion/cause of the unrest/riots was an increase in prices.

Ein Attentat in Sarajewo löste den ersten Weltkrieg aus.
An assassination in Sarajevo caused/set off the First World War.

See also 110.10 (p. 389) for 'Passing on disease'.

(b) Causing danger

gefährden 'to endanger'
jmdn. in Gefahr bringen 'to get sb. into danger' gefährlich sein für 'to be dangerous for'

Die Gesundheitsminister warnen: Rauchen gefährdet die Gesundheit.

Health ministers warn: smoking endangers/(English: damages) health.
 (warning on cigarette packs)

(c) Encouraging

fördern 'to encourage/promote/foster' (not of children)
-e Förderung 'promotion/fostering'
jmdn. für etw. loben 'to praise sb. for sth.'

Gelegentliches Loben fördert den Leistungswillen.
 Occasional praise encourages the desire to do well.

Das Austauschprogramm dient der Förderung der englisch-deutschen Beziehungen. (formal)

The exchange programme serves to promote/foster Anglo-German relations.

Lob sie doch mal für ihre Arbeit!
 Do praise her for her work!

82.3

Effect

Effect in general

-e Wirkung 'effect'
wirken 'to work/have an effect' seine Wirkung (nicht) verfehlen '(not) to fail to have the desired effect' bewirken 'to cause/produce an effect'
-r Effekt 'effect'
-e Folge 'consequence'

(a) Having an effect

Der Beschwerdebrief hatte seine Wirkung nicht verfehlt.
 The letter of complaint did not fail to have the desired effect.

Nebenwirkungen sind keine bekannt.
 There are no known side effects.

Höhere Temperaturen bewirken ein schnelleres Wachsen der Bakterien.

Higher temperatures cause germs/bacteria to grow more quickly.

Das Medikament wirkt innerhalb von 20 Minuten gegen Kopfschmerzen.

The medicine is effective/works against headaches within 20 minutes.

(b) Special effects

wirkungsvoll 'effective'
-r Effekt 'effect'

Die Hintergrundbeleuchtung war besonders wirkungsvoll.

The background lighting/illumination was especially effective.

-r Effekt is used to designate well-known (scientific) effects:

-r Treibhauseffekt 'greenhouse effect'
-r Dopplereffekt 'Doppler effect'
-r Verfremdungseffekt 'alienation effect'

Brecht benutzte den Verfremdungseffekt, um seine Zuschauer zum Denken aufzurütteln.

Brecht used the alienation effect in order to rouse his audience and make them think.

For consequences, see 83.2 (p. 301).

82.4

Tracing events back to their causes

See also 76.1 (p. 252) on 'Basic words for actions and processes', and 79.1–4 (pp. 274–7) on reasons and purpose.

etw. auf jmdn./etw. zurück*führen 'to trace sth. back to sb.'

Der Absturz des Airbus wurde auf menschliches Versagen zurückgeführt.

The crash of the Airbus was traced back to/explained by human error.

82.5

Interdependence

es liegt an (+ dat.)/es liegt bei jmdm. 'it is up to sb.'
es hängt von etw. ab 'it depends on sth.'

Es liegt ganz an dir, ob du diese Verantwortung auf dich nehmen willst oder nicht.

It is entirely up to you whether you take on this responsibility or not.

Ich weiss noch nicht, ob wir am Familientreffen teilnehmen können. Es hängt davon ab, wie viel Zeit wir haben.

I don't know yet if we can take part in the family reunion. It depends how much time we have.

For further expressions see 78 (p. 269) on origins.

83

Drawing conclusions with reference to sources

See 89.1 (pp. 322–3) for expressing assumptions.

83.1

Concluding from evidence

(a) Evidence is rendered by nouns such as:

- r Fund 'finding'
- r Befund 'finding(s)/data'
- r Beweis 'proof'
- s Beweismaterial 'evidence'
- Daten (plural) 'data'
- Fakten (plural) 'facts'
- e Fundstelle/-r Fundort 'place of discovery'

An der Fundstelle wurde eine Untersuchung vorgenommen.
An investigation was carried out at the site (of the find).

Das Beweismaterial der Kriminalpolizei ist noch unvollständig.
The CID's evidence is still incomplete.

Die Daten/Fakten müssen überprüft werden.
The data/facts have to be double-checked.

Was war der Befund der (klinischen) Untersuchung?
What were the findings of the (clinical) examination?

Kein Befund./Ohne Befund.
(There are) no significant findings.

See also 110.8c (p. 388) for the use of Befund.

(b) Drawing conclusions from a source

- (aus etw.) einen Schluss ziehen 'to draw a conclusion (from sth.)'
- etw./ (aus/von) etw. entnehmen 'to infer sth. from sth.'
- etw. aus etw. ersehen 'to see/conclude sth. from sth.'
- aus etw. hervor*gehen 'to emerge from sth.'
- folglich 'consequently'

Anhand der gesammelten Daten kann man den Schluss ziehen, dass hier eine Siedlung gewesen sein muss.
From data collected one can conclude that there must have been a settlement here.

Ich habe (aus) den Unterlagen entnommen, wie viele Landarbeiter damals ausgewandert waren.
I have inferred from the documents how many agricultural workers emigrated at the time.

Aus den Anschuldigungen geht hervor, wie sehr sie ihrem Mann misstraut hat.

It emerges from the accusations how much she mistrusted her husband.

83.2

Talking about consequences

(a) Similar to the English 'so that', German uses 'so dass' for describing consequences:

Das Erdbeben hatte viele Leute obdachlos gemacht, so dass schnell Notunterkünfte gebaut werden mussten.

The earthquake had made many people homeless, so that emergency housing had to be built quickly.

In the example above, 'so dass' gives the consequences of the action in the main clause. However, if the so is inserted in front of the adjective or adverb of the main clause, the consequence is specific to the intensity/severity of the adjective or adverb. In spoken language, so + adjective/adverb is then stressed:

Die Nachfrage nach dem neuen Wagen war so stark, dass die Produktion nicht nachkam.

The demand for the new car was so strong that production could not keep pace.

Instead of so, derart, derartig or dermaßen can be used. These are somewhat stronger than so. They are normally used when the context is negative.

Die Mitarbeiter hatten derart/derartig/dermaßen viel Arbeit, dass sie ihren Urlaub stornieren mussten.

The employees had such a lot of work that they had to cancel their holidays.

Das Essen war dermaßen schlecht, dass die Gäste nicht zahlen wollten.

The food was so bad that the guests did not want to pay.

(b) Alternatively, expressions with folgen can be used. These tend to be used mostly in a formal context.

Die Krankheitssymptome haben sich immer noch nicht verändert. Folglich muss die Behandlung geändert werden.

The symptoms (of the illness) have not changed. Consequently the treatment needs to be changed.

Die Studentin hat ein ausgezeichnetes Examen gemacht.

Infolgedessen* hat sie gute Aussichten, ein Stipendium zu erhalten.

The student has achieved an excellent degree classification. She therefore stands a good chance of winning a scholarship.

Als Folge* des Attentates vom 11. September 2001 sind die Sicherheitsmaßnahmen an den Flughäfen verschärft worden.

As a consequence of the attack of 11 September 2001 security measures at airports have been increased.

In Folge der schlechten Halbjahresergebnisse wurden noch mehr Angestellte entlassen.

Following/as a consequence of the poor half-year results even more employees were made redundant.

Der Ausgang der nächsten Bundestagswahlen kann folgeschwer für die deutsche Wirtschaft sein.

The results of the next (German) elections may have serious consequences for the German economy.

Die Folgeerscheinungen des Industrieunfalls sind schwer abzuschätzen.

The consequences of the industrial accident are difficult to estimate.

Wenn Wasser gefriert und sich ausdehnt, hat das oft einen Rohrbruch zur Folge.

If water freezes and expands, the consequence is often a burst pipe.

daraus folgt is usually an expression reserved for logical deductions and gives the following statement an air of rationality:

Die Zinsen sind im letzten Jahr um zwei Prozentpunkte gestiegen. Daraus folgt, dass die Verbraucher weniger Geld für Luxusgüter in der Tasche haben.

The interest rates rose by two percentage points in the last year. Consequently the consumers have less money for luxury items in their pockets.

- (c) 'Konsequenzen auf etw. haben' to have consequences for sth.
'Konsequenterweise' as a consequence, consequently Sie waren ständig vom Unterricht abwesend. Das hat Konsequenzen auf Ihre Leistungen.

You have continuously missed classes. That will have consequences for your marks.

Als die Mitarbeiter ständig über trockene Luft im Büro klagten, wurde konsequenterweise Wasser bereitgestellt.

The employees constantly complained about dry air in the office. As a result water was provided for them.

- (d) damit 'therefore'

Fünf sind für den Vorschlag und drei dagegen. Damit ist er mehrheitlich angenommen.

Five are in favour of the suggestion and three against. It is therefore carried with a majority.

NOTE so dass refers to result, whereas damit (see 79.2b) refers to purpose.

(e) To explain a previous statement, use deshalb/daher/deswegen (or, more informally, darum), all meaning 'that's why/for that reason':

Er wollte seinen Bruder nicht belasten. Deshalb/Daher/Deswegen/Darum verweigerte er die Aussage.

He didn't want to incriminate his brother. That's why he refused to give a statement.

(f) To infer from a previous statement, also 'so/therefore' is inserted:

Sie haben also noch nie an einer Safari teilgenommen?

So you have never taken part in a safari?

Im Labor war er auch nicht zu finden, also suchten wir ihn in der Kantine.

He wasn't to be found in the lab either, so we looked for him in the canteen.

84

Referring to sources of information

84.1

Written/literary sources of information

In academic research, sources of information are referred to as -e Quelle (-n).

-e Quellenangabe (-n) 'reference'

-r Quellennachweis (-e) 'reference in footnote'

-s Quellenverzeichnis (-se) 'bibliography/list of works consulted/list of references/acknowledgements'

(a) When citing a source, nach or laut (+ dat.) is used:

Nach Goethe irrt der Mensch, solange er strebt.

According to Goethe, man errs as long as he strives.

Laut Schiller kämpfen selbst die Götter vergebens mit der Dummheit.

According to Schiller, the Gods themselves struggle in vain with stupidity.

Laut dem Verkehrsministerium ist die Zahl der Unfälle leicht gestiegen.

According to the Department of Transport, the number of accidents has slightly increased.

For further expressions with nach and laut see below.

(b) Referring to written sources

To give reference to any written source, stehen is used:

Steht das im Text?

Is that (written) in the text?

Das steht bei Karl Marx.

That is from Karl Marx.

Das steht im Grundgesetz.

That's in the Basic Law (i.e. German Constitution).

So steht es in der Bibel/in der Zeitung/im Lexikon.

That's what it says in the Bible/in the newspaper/in the encyclopaedia.

(c) For quoting statements verbatim (formal) lauten 'to read/say'

-r Wortlaut 'the exact wording'

Der genaue Text/Die Stelle lautet (wie folgt): „Am Anfang war das Wort.“

The exact text/the passage reads (as follows): 'In the beginning was the Word.'

See 59.6 (p. 155).

In dem Testament des Verstorbenen finden wir folgenden Wortlaut:

In the will of the deceased we find the following (wording):

See 28.5 (p. 50) for adjectival nouns.

(d) To introduce a quotation, use zitieren 'to quote' or -s Zitat 'quotation':

Zitat/Ich zitiere:

I quote:

or:

Ich zitiere nach Böll.

I quote Böll./To quote from Böll.

Wir zitieren aus der Textstelle.

We quote from the (place in the) text.

(e) The rendering of a lengthy excerpt in an oral presentation is introduced by:

(-r) Zitatanfang 'beginning of quote' and followed by:

(-s) Zitatende 'end of quote'

(f) For dictation purposes one can use:

Anführungsstriche unten/oben 'quotation marks at the bottom (which is the traditional place for initial quotation marks)/at the top (for the end)'

(g) All of the above are fairly formal and are used in academic contexts. It is, of course, also possible to indicate the source of the information very informally:

Der Chef hat gesagt/geschrieben, wir müssen länger arbeiten.

The boss has said/written that we have to work longer.

84.2

Invoking/calling on authority sich (= acc.) beziehen auf 'to refer to' bezugnehmend auf (+ acc.) 'with reference to' sich (= acc.) stützen auf 'to base oneself on' sich (= acc.) berufen auf 'to refer/appeal to'

Ich beziehe mich auf die Verfassung.

I refer to/base myself on the constitution.

Bezugnehmend auf Heidegger möchte ich Folgendes erwähnen:

With reference to Heidegger I would like to mention the following:

Mit dieser Annahme stützen wir uns auf die Untersuchungen des Psychologischen Instituts.

We base this assumption on the investigations of the Institute of Psychology.

Die Finanzminister stützen sich auf die neuesten Wirtschaftsdaten.

The finance ministers base their thinking (etc.) on/are relying on the latest economic data.

Er hat sich nur auf das Buch seines Professors gestützt.

He supported what he said by referring only to his professor's book.

sich berufen has the sense of invoking great authority to strengthen one's own position:

Er berief sich ständig auf Konrad Adenauer.

He kept referring to/invoking Konrad Adenauer.

84.3

Enquiring about sources

In informal dialogue haben aus is used to convey a source of information:

Woher hast du denn diesen Ausspruch?

Where did you get that saying/remark from?

Den habe ich aus dem Spiegel.

I got it from the Spiegel.

See also 85 (p. 307) on reporting other people's words.

84.4

Reporting facts

For reporting facts, nach, laut and zufolge are used. They all translate as 'according to':

nach/laut (+ dat.) 'according to' nach Angaben von (+ dat.)/nach Angaben (+ gen.) 'according to data from' (formal) (+ dat.) zufolge 'according to/following (evidence)' (formal)

Nach Angaben vom deutschen Wetterdienst/Nach Angaben des deutschen Wetterdienstes soll es heute kalt werden. (formal)

According to information from the German weather service, it is supposed to get cold today.

Laut Fahrplan müsste der Bus eigentlich gleich kommen.

According to the timetable, the bus should be here/be coming quite soon.

Augenzeugenberichten zufolge soll der Täter über die Mauer geflohen sein. (formal)

According to eye witness reports, the culprit/perpetrator (is supposed to have) fled over the wall.

▶ See 35.6b (p. 78) for the use of sollen.

Ihrem Bericht zufolge hätte dieses Gespräch gar nicht stattgefunden.

According to her report, the conversation didn't take place at all.

zufolge is preceded by the dative.

84.5

Writing footnotes

-e Fußnote 'footnote'

-e Anmerkung 'remark'

(a) For conventions on academic referencing see:

Fred Becker, Anleitung zum wissenschaftlichen Arbeiten, Wegweiser zum Anfertigen von Haus- und Diplomarbeiten (Bergisch Gladbach/Köln, 1990).

or for UK:

Joseph Gibaldi and Walter Achtert, MLA Style Sheet. Handbook for Writers of Research Papers (known as MLA Manual) (MLA, New York, 1988, 3rd edition). ISBN 0873523792.

for USA:

Chicago Manual of Style (University of Chicago Press, London, 1993, 14th edition). ISBN 0226103897.

(b) Selection of useful abbreviations

a.a.O.	am angegebenen Ort	'in the place cited'	'loc. cit./op. cit.'
Anm.	Anmerkung	'note/footnote/annotation'
Bd./Bde.	Band/Bände	'volume/volumes'	'vol./vols'
ebd.	ebenda	'in the same place'	'ibid.'
f./ff.	und die folgende(n)	'and the following	'f./ff.'
	Seite/Seiten	page/pages'
Hrsg.	Herausgeber	'editor(s)'	'ed./eds'
o.g.	oben genannt	'mentioned above'
s.	siehe	'see'	'see/cf.'
s.a.	siehe auch	'see also'
s.o./s.u.	siehe oben/siehe unten	'see above/see below'
u.a.	und andere	'and others'	'et al.'
Verf.	Verfasser	'author'
vgl.	vergleiche	'compare'	'comp./cf.'

85

Reporting other people's words and claims

For reported speech the subjunctive is usually used (see 39 for Subjunctives I and II). In what follows 'speaker' denotes the user of both spoken and written language.

Er sagt, er habe kein Geld/er habe angerufen.
He says he has no money/he phoned.

See 39.4a (p. 97).

85.1

Questioning the truth of what someone said

There are several ways of implying that the speaker doubts the truth of what has been said:

gesehen haben wollen 'to claim to have seen' angeblich 'supposedly'
behaupten 'to claim'

(a) wollen

See 35.6b (p. 78) for this special use of wollen.

Der Alte will das Opfer zum letzten Mal gesehen haben.
The old man claims to have seen the victim for the last time.

(b) angeblich 'supposedly' adds a note of disbelief:

Der Angriff auf die Demonstranten war angeblich von der Polizei ausgegangen.
The attack on the demonstrators was supposedly initiated by the police.

(c) behaupten can imply the speaker is not telling the truth:

Er behauptet, nichts (Alkoholisches) getrunken zu haben.
He claims to have drunk nothing (alcoholic).

(d) In order to imply severe doubts about the truth of what has been said, Subjunctive II may be employed:

Er sagt, er hätte kein Geld/angerufen.
He says he has no money/he called (but I don't believe it).

See 39.6b (p. 100) for this use of the Subjunctive II.

85.2

Reaffirming the truth of what someone has said

tatsächlich 'indeed' wirklich 'really'
eigentlich/in der Tat 'actually/really' (contrary to expectations)

(a) To imply that the speaker believes what he or she has heard, tatsächlich 'indeed' or wirklich 'really' is used:

Es ist kaum zu glauben, aber das neue Ausstellungsgebäude soll tatsächlich sieben Millionen Euro gekostet haben.

It is hard to believe, but they say the new exhibition hall really did cost seven million euros.

Die Flüchtlinge waren wirklich/in der Tat mit dem Schlauchboot über die Grenze gekommen.

The refugees really had crossed the border/frontier in a rubber dinghy.

(b) To imply that something was the case contrary to expectations, eigentlich 'really' is used:

Eigentlich* war er der Besitzer der Bar, aber als die Polizei kam, wollte er das nicht zugeben.

He really was the owner of the bar, but when the police came he wouldn't admit it.

85.3

Passing on messages

See also 60.3 (p. 161).

(a) The passing on of verbal messages is conveyed by:

wieder*geben 'to convey/repeat'

etw. an jmdn. weiter*leiten 'to pass sth. on to sb.'

jmdm. etw. aus*richten 'to pass on a message/tell sb.'

Können Sie mir die genauen Worte wiedergeben, die der Anrufer benutzt hat?

Can you repeat the exact words that the caller used?

Ich habe Ihr Anliegen an den Personalchef weitergeleitet.

I have passed on your request to the Personnel Manager.

Ist irgendetwas für mich ausgerichtet worden?

Have any messages been left for me?

Kannst du ihr etwas ausrichten?

Can you give her a message?

(b) For recorded messages

Bitte hinterlassen Sie Ihre Nachricht auf dem Band.

Please leave your message on the tape.

See 61.7e (p. 171) for messages on telephone answering machines.

(c) For writing messages, notes and memos

Bitte notieren Sie sich diesen Termin.

Please make a note of this appointment.

Habt ihr bei der Exkursion auch genügend Notizen gemacht?

Did you take enough notes during the field trip?

85.4

Second- and third-hand knowledge

To report rumours, hearsay and general gossip, the following are used:

(a) In order to indicate that the speaker distances himself or herself from what he or she is reporting, sollen is employed (see 35.6b for this special use of the modal verb):

Der Abgeordnete soll schon vor der Trennung untreu gewesen sein.
The MP is said to have been unfaithful even before the separation.

(b) To report gossip

Es hat sich herumgesprochen, wie schnell die Firma Pleite gemacht hat.
Word has spread about how quickly the company went bust.

(c) For rumours

Ich halte die Sache mit der Brandstiftung für ein Gerücht.
I consider this thing about the arson attack to be a rumour.

(d) Reporting things from hearsay

Das weiss ich nur vom Hörensagen.
I only know this from hearsay.

85.5

Not naming sources

In order to avoid naming the person one has information from, the following are used:

sich (= dat.) etw. sagen/raten lassen 'to have sb. tell/advise one (of) sth.'
sich (= acc.) (in etw.) beraten lassen 'to seek advice on sth.'
sich (etw./zu etw.) raten lassen 'to seek advice on sth.'

Ich habe mir sagen lassen, dass die Hormontherapie doch unbekannte Nebenwirkungen haben könnte.
I have heard that hormone therapy could have unknown side effects after all.

Wir haben uns ärztlich/juristisch beraten lassen.
We have sought medical/legal advice.

See also 84 (p. 303) on sources of information; for lassen see also 35.6 (p. 77) and 77.4 (p. 268).

86 Expressing necessity

86.1

Commands, instructions and public notices

Instructions and notices are usually phrased in a neutral and impersonal style. They can occasionally sound off-putting and hence most of the constructions to be discussed in this section are for understanding rather than speaking. They are mostly found in written form, e.g. on noticeboards or in written communication from the authorities.

See also 92 (p. 333) and 99 (p. 358).

- (a) Personal instructions tend to be given in the imperative (see 41):

Nehmen Sie die Tabletten dreimal täglich.
Take the tablets three times a day.

- (b) General instructions and formal public notices often use impersonal infinitive constructions (see 33.7 for parts of the verb):

Hier nicht parken.
Do not park here./No parking.

See 33.1c (p. 59).

20 Minuten bei mittlerer Hitze backen.
Bake in a medium oven for 20 minutes.

Skier nur im Skiraum abstellen.
Skis must only be kept in the ski room.

A number of these instructions also use a participle:

Parken verboten.
No parking./Parking prohibited.

Zutritt nicht gestattet.
Access not permitted./No access.

- (c) Instructions which demand some form of action frequently use ist (etc.) + infinitive with zu:

Die Fahrkarten sind unaufgefordert vorzuzeigen.
All tickets must be shown (without being demanded). (on a train or bus)

Der Anspruch auf Arbeitslosenunterstützung ist nachzuweisen.
The right to unemployment benefit must be demonstrated.

- (d) Instructions which are issued emphatically can also be expressed by means of the passive. Such instructions are likely to be used by someone in a position of authority.

Hier wird nicht geschlafen!
No sleeping allowed here!

With the emphasis on wird, this can sound much more forceful and unforgiving than the equivalent imperative construction (see 41 for imperatives). It indicates a general restriction for everyone.

- (e) Commands and instructions can be expressed more politely by using the modal verbs dürfen, sollen and müssen (see 35.2, 35.6):

Use the modal verb + infinitive in the active:

Hier darf man nicht parken.
You must not park here.

Der Brief soll heute noch weggehen.
The letter is to go off today.

Or use the passive with a modal verb (see 40 for the passive). This tends to sound more formal:

Hier darf nicht geraucht werden. (Hier darf man nicht rauchen.)
Smoking is not allowed here.

Die Papiere müssen an der Grenze vorgezeigt werden. (Man muss die Papiere an der Grenze vorzeigen.)
Documents must be shown at the border.

Der Kuchen muss bei 200 Grad gebacken werden. (Man muss den Kuchen bei 200 Grad backen.)
The cake has to be baked at 200 degrees.

86.2

Expressing and enquiring about obligation

(a) The most straightforward way of expressing obligation is to use müssen and sollen together with a full verb (see 35 for modal verbs):

Du musst heute noch den Brief fertigschreiben.
You still have to finish the letter today.

Soll ich diesen Bericht heute noch fertigmachen?
Shall I finish this report today?

Du sollst deinen Nächsten lieben wie dich selbst.
Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself. (Matthew 23.39)

Müssen as used in the first example expresses an obligation which has to be met. Sollen in the second example leaves room for a different course of action; the speaker could still decide not to do it. In the third example, sollen has a moral implication. It only acquires this meaning in a formal context, especially in the Bible.

(b) To express fulfilment of duty, use the following expressions:

-e Pflicht 'obligation' Pflichten haben 'to have obligations' die Pflicht haben, etwas zu tun 'to have the obligation to do sth.'
meine (etc.) Pflicht sein, etwas zu tun 'to be my (etc.) duty to do sth.'
seine (etc.) Pflichten (+ adv.) erfüllen 'to fulfil one's duties'
-e Verpflichtung 'obligation/(professional) engagement/commitment'

Eltern haben viele Pflichten.
Parents have a lot of duties.

Ich habe die Pflicht, Sie darüber zu informieren.
I have the duty to inform you about this.

Es ist meine Pflicht, Sie zu warnen.
It is my duty to warn you.

Es ist unsere traurige Pflicht, den Tod unseres Mitarbeiters, Karl Otto, anzuzeigen.
It is our sad duty to announce the death of our colleague, Karl Otto.

See also 65.3 (p. 194) for 'Bereavement'.

Er erfüllte immer treu seine Pflichten.
He always carried out his duties loyally.

Verpflichtung also means 'duty' but in the sense of 'committing oneself to sth.'. Eine Verpflichtung is not as unavoidable as eine Pflicht. In elevated style it is often found with the verb nach*kommen (+ dat.) 'to fulfil':

Wegen Krankheit ist er leider verhindert, seinen Verpflichtungen nachzukommen.

Because of illness he is unfortunately unable to honour his commitments.

Die Charta von Helsinki beinhaltet die Verpflichtung zur Achtung der Menschenwürde.

The Helsinki Charter contains a commitment to respect the dignity of man.

(c) When somebody is relieved of their duties, use von seinen (etc.) Pflichten entbunden werden:

Alle leitenden Angestellten der Werft wurden zum 1. Dezember von ihren Pflichten entbunden. (formal)

All the shipyard managers were relieved of their duties from 1 December.

(d) The verb derived from Pflicht is verpflichten 'to oblige sb./place sb. under an obligation'. There are a number of structures and also fixed idiomatic expressions which use verpflichten in its participial form, i.e. verpflichtet (see 49):

sich verpflichtet fühlen, etw. zu tun 'to feel obliged to do sth.'
verpflichtet sein, etw. zu tun 'to be obliged to do sth.'
zu etw. verpflichtet sein 'to be obliged/committed to sth.'

Ich fühle mich verpflichtet, ihm zu helfen.
I feel obliged to help him.

Wir sind verpflichtet, Sie vor den Konsequenzen Ihrer Handlung zu warnen.

We are obliged to warn you of the consequences of your action.

In diesem Fall sind Sie nicht zum Handeln verpflichtet.
In this case you are not obliged to act.

NOTE

In the above three patterns verpflichtet may be replaced by sich gezwungen fühlen; zu etw. gezwungen sein; gezwungen sein, etw. zu tun. Gezwungen implies an obligation that cannot be refused.

(e) verpflichten can also be used as a full verb with personal endings. There are a number of different constructions:

etw./jmd. (=nom.) verpflichtet/zwingt jmdn. zu etw. 'sth/sb./forces sb. to (do) sth.'
sie (=nom.) verpflichtet sich (= reflexive, acc.) für etw./zu etw. 'she commits herself to sth.'
jmdn. zu etw. verpflichten

Die Lage verpflichtet/zwingt uns zum Handeln.

The situation forces us to act.

Sie verpflichtete sich, zwei Jahre als Entwicklungshelferin nach Lateinamerika zu gehen.

She signed up to go to Latin America for two years as a development aid worker.

Wir verpflichten uns für/auf zwei Jahre zur Bundeswehr.

We are signing on with the (German) army for two years.

Es gelang uns, den berühmten Musiker zu einem Konzert zu verpflichten.

We managed to book the famous musician for a concert.

(f) Different types of obligation

Liability is commonly expressed using haften für (+ acc.) 'to be liable for' and -e Haftung für etw./jmdn. 'liability for sth./sb.':

Eltern haften für ihre Kinder.

Parents are legally liable for their children.

Wir übernehmen keine Haftung für Feuerschäden.

We do not accept liability for fire damage.

There are many compound nouns based on -pflicht- and these are used in formal or official contexts, e.g. in a legal text. Where an adjective ending in -pflichtig exists, this is shown below:

In manchen Seminaren herrscht Anwesenheitspflicht/Präsenzpflcht.

Attendance is obligatory in some seminars.

Jeder Autofahrer muss mindestens eine Haftpflichtversicherung für seinen Wagen haben/haftpflichtversichert sein.

Every driver has to have third party insurance at least.

Widerrechtlich geparkte Fahrzeuge werden kostenpflichtig abgeschleppt.

Cars parked illegally will be towed away at the owner's expense.

Jeder Bürger in Deutschland unterliegt der Meldepflicht (= dat.)/ist meldepflichtig.

Every German citizen is obliged to register at a public registration office. (In Germany this is called Einwohnermeldeamt.)

Eltern sind schadenersatzpflichtig/müssen Schadenersatz leisten, wenn ihre Kinder etwas angestellt haben.

Parents are liable for damages if their children get into mischief.

Die Untersuchungsergebnisse unterliegen der Schweigepflicht (= dat.).
The results of the enquiry are subject to the rule of confidentiality.

Wir haben als Gewerkschaftsvertreter eine Solidaritätspflicht gegenüber den Streikenden.

As union representatives we have a duty to show solidarity with the people on strike.

Alle Instrumente sind auf dieser Reise versicherungspflichtig.

On this journey all instruments must be insured.

Zahlungspflicht besteht, wenn Sie die Ware länger als 14 Tage behalten./Sie sind zahlungspflichtig, wenn Sie die Ware länger als 14 Tage behalten.

You are liable for payment if you retain the goods longer than 14 days.

Zollpflichtige Waren sind anzumelden.

Goods subject to duty have to be declared.

(g) The perception of obligation may be stronger in one language than the other. The idea of being bound to something and being liable can be expressed in a number of ways:

binden, bindend, gebunden sein 'to bind, binding, be bound/be obliged'

sich binden 'to tie oneself (down)' ungebunden sein 'not to be bound/be free'

jmdm. verbunden sein 'to be obliged to sb.'

jmdn. in etw. ein*binden 'to commit sb. to sth.'

verbindlich, unverbindlich 'binding, not binding/without any obligation'

Der Vertrag ist bindend.

The contract is binding.

Das Team ist vertraglich an die Bedingungen gebunden.

The team is bound by contract to the conditions.

Viele Eltern möchten nicht, dass ihre Kinder sich zu früh binden.

Many parents don't want their children to tie themselves down (i.e. get married) too early.

Sie ist noch ungebunden.

She is not yet committed (meaning in most contexts: she is not married yet).

Wir sind Ihnen für Ihre Hilfe sehr verbunden.

We are much obliged to you for your help.

Soll man die ehemaligen Ostblockstaaten in das Westliche Bündnis einbinden?

Should one allow the former Eastern Bloc states to join (and be committed to) the Western Alliance?

Darf ich Ihnen ein unverbindliches Angebot machen?

May I make you an offer without any obligation on your part?

(h) Expressing legal or contractual obligation

All of the following are inherently formal:

-r Vertrag, vertrag(s)- 'contract, according to contract' vertraglich/laut Vertrag/vertragsgemäß 'according to account' gesetzlich 'by law/lawful/statutory' nach dem/laut Gesetz 'by law'
jmdm. Rechenschaft (über etw.) schuldig sein 'to be accountable to sb. (for sth.)'

Er ist vertraglich verpflichtet/gebunden, die Arbeit zu beenden.
 He is contractually obliged to complete the work.

Die Höhe der Steuern wird gesetzlich festgelegt.
 The level of taxes is set by law.

Nach dem Grundgesetz herrscht in der Bundesrepublik Pressefreiheit.
 According to the German Constitution there is freedom of the press in the Federal Republic.

Ich bin Ihnen über meine Freizeitaktivitäten überhaupt keine Rechenschaft schuldig.
 As far as my leisure activities are concerned, I am not accountable to you at all.

(i) Commitment of a less binding nature can be expressed by using fest*legen. Its literal meaning is 'to tie down' and it is used in two principal patterns:

sich (= acc.) auf etw. (= acc.) fest*legen/jmdn. auf etw. fest*legen 'to commit oneself/sb. to sth.'
etw. (= acc.) fest*legen 'to lay down/stipulate sth.'
jmdn. fest*nageln 'to commit sb. to sth./to pin sb. down' (colloquial)

Wir hatten uns darauf festgelegt, am Wochenende nach Paris zu fahren.
 We had committed ourselves to going to Paris at the weekend.

Der Chef legte seine Mitarbeiter auf diese Vorgehensweise fest.
 The boss committed his staff to this way of proceeding.

Sie legte fest, dass nur sechs Teilnehmer in einer Gruppe zusammen sein sollten.
 She stipulated that there should only be six participants in one group.

Es wurde ein Kostenbeitrag festgelegt.
 The contribution to the cost was determined.

The first three examples above place the emphasis on the doer, whereas in this last example, which employs the passive voice, the doer remains anonymous.

See 42.3g (p. 115) for the dummy subject es; for the passive voice, see 40 (p. 102).

Als er mich traf, hat er mich gleich festgenagelt, ihm bei seinem Umzug zu helfen.

When he met me he immediately made me (firmly) promise to help him move house.

Sie lässt sich nicht festnageln, ob sie nächstes Wochenende kommt.

She won't be pinned down as to whether she is coming next weekend.

86.3

Acting contrary to obligation

All of the following are inherently formal:

(s)eine Pflicht/Verpflichtung verletzen/vernachlässigen 'to neglect/act contrary to one's/a duty' pflichtvergessen sein 'to neglect one's duties'

gegen eine Pflicht verstoßen 'to fail to carry out a duty'

gegen ein Gesetz verstoßen 'to break/contravene a law'

Er vergisst seine (etc.) Pflichten/ist pflichtvergessen.

He forgets his duties.

Sie vernachlässigt/verletzt ihre Pflichten.

She neglects/acts contrary to her duties.

Ihre Handlung verstößt gegen Paragraph 221.

Your act contravenes paragraph 221.

Actions contrary to contracts, duties or laws can be described in the following way:

gesetzeswidrig	'contrary to (the) law/illegal'
vertragswidrig	'in breach of contract'
sittenwidrig	'against good manners/immoral'
vertragsbrüchig werden	'to default on one's contract'
der Vertragsbruch	'breach of contract'
einen Vertrag brechen	'to break a contract'
gegen einen Vertrag verstoßen	'to break/contravene a contract'

86.4

Absence of obligation nicht verpflichtet sein, etw. zu tun 'to not have to do sth.' (formal) nicht gezwungen sein, etw. zu tun 'to not be forced to do sth.'

etw. nicht zu tun brauchen 'not need to do sth.'

The expressions nicht verpflichtet sein, nicht gezwungen sein and words ending in -pflichtig tend to be rather formal:

Ich bin nicht verpflichtet, mir das anzuhören.

I don't have to listen to this.

Sie waren nicht gezwungen, mir zu helfen.

You were not forced to help me.

Diese Waren sind nicht zollpflichtig/zollfrei.
These goods are not dutiable/are exempt from duty.

Wie hoch ist der persönliche Steuerfreibetrag dieses Jahr?
What is the level of the personal tax allowance this year?

A common way of expressing that there is no obligation is to use nicht brauchen (see also 35.7):

Du brauchst den Artikel heute nicht mehr fertigzuschreiben.
You don't need to/don't have to finish the article today.

Ich brauche heute nicht länger im Büro zu bleiben.
Today I don't need to do overtime at the office.

Nicht müssen (see 35.6b and 35.7) is ambiguous, and depending on context can imply either the absence of obligation or an obligation in the negative. Which meaning is implied becomes clear from the context and, in the spoken language, from the tone of voice:

Du musst das Referat heute nicht mehr fertigzuschreiben.
You don't need to/don't have to finish the paper today.

Here, we are dealing with an absence of obligation.

Ihr müsst nicht immer zu spät kommen.
You mustn't always be late.

In this example a clear obligation is implied (compare: Ihr dürft nicht immer zu spät kommen), although it is expressed indirectly.

86.5

Freeing somebody from obligation

jmdn. von etw. frei*stellen 'to exempt sb. from sth./to second sb.'
jmdm. etw. (= acc.) erlassen 'to let sb. off sth./waive sth.'
jmdn. von etw. befreien 'to free sb. from sth.'

For military service and jobs:

Er wurde vom Militärdienst freigestellt.
He was exempted from military service.

For tasks, sins, debts where exceptional concessions are implied:

Sie haben mir die Hausaufgaben erlassen.
I was let off the homework.

Where a formal act by somebody in authority is required:

Die Schülerin war für Donnerstag vom Unterricht befreit.
The pupil was excused from school for Thursday.

87

Expressing ability to do something

See 74.5 (p. 234) on 'Capabilities and talents', 101.1 (p. 364) for wissen/kennen and 35 (p. 74) for modal verbs.

87.1

Physical and mental ability

- (a) These can both be expressed by using können and -s Können (see 35.1–6):

Er konnte schon mit sechs Jahren Flöte spielen.
He could already play the recorder when he was six.

Das große Können des Geigers beeindruckte die Zuhörer.
The violinist's great skill impressed the audience.

In some instances, können has no accompanying verb where it must take one in English:

Kannst du jetzt das Zehner Einmaleins?
Can you do the ten times table now?

Ich kann das Stück jetzt.
I can play the (musical) piece now.

Könnt ihr den Text alle?
Do you all know the text by heart?

Sie kann Spanisch.
She can speak Spanish.

- (b) Sensual ability is expressed using -s -vermögen

-s Sehvermögen/Hörvermögen/Sprechvermögen '(physical) ability to see/hear/speak'

- (c) Expressing stamina

In this context, -s -vermögen is occasionally used in a figurative sense:

-s Stehvermögen, Standvermögen 'staying power'

-s Durchhaltevermögen 'endurance'

Where means or power to bring something about rather than physical or mental ability are to be stressed, the following expressions can be used for precision:

Die Familie war nicht in der Lage, das Haus zu kaufen.
The family was not in a position to buy the house.

Er wäre imstande, so eine Dummheit zu begehen. (formal)
He would be capable of such a blunder.

Sie erklärten sich ausserstande, einen Kompromiss zu finden.
(formal)
They said that they were not in a position to find a compromise.

87.2

When the result of an effort is referred to, the verb schaffen (schaffte, geschafft) 'to get done' is used:

Die Läuferin schaffte einen neuen Weltrekord über 100 Meter.
The sprinter achieved a new world record over 100 metres.

Die Kinder konnten ihre Hausaufgaben kaum schaffen.
The children could hardly manage their homework.

Alternatively, etwas fertig*bringen and etwas gelingt jmdm. emphasize that something has been achieved against odds or expectations:

Die Vierjährige hatte es doch fertiggebracht, die ganze Tapete in ihrem Kinderzimmer bunt zu malen.

The four-year-old had managed to paint all the wallpaper in her room.

Es gelang uns, den Kaufpreis um 10% herunterzuhandeln.

We managed to negotiate the purchase price down by 10%.

87.3

Skills and ability

(a) Where skills which result from training are emphasized, fähig 'able' and its derivatives are employed:

Sie ist eine unserer fähigsten Mitarbeiterinnen.

She is one of our most capable employees.

Er war so schockiert, dass er unfähig war, etwas zu tun.

He was so shocked that he was incapable of doing anything.

(b) Fähigkeiten and Fertigkeiten are often mentioned together and it is difficult to distinguish between the two terms. Fertigkeiten may, depending on context, refer to manual skills, whereas Fähigkeiten can be of a more complex nature. Handwerkliche Fertigkeiten are the skills the craftsman (der Handwerker) needs to handle the tools. However, his Fähigkeiten consist in planning, carrying out, finishing and checking the job. A few compounds where the distinction is less clear cut are given below:

-e Schreibfertigkeit 'ability to produce a letter physically'

-e Schreibfähigkeit 'ability to think out a text and write it down'

Lesefertigkeiten 'basic reading skills': the operation of putting letters together and the ability to recognize a word and its sense

Lesefähigkeiten 'higher reading skills': the skill to differentiate the visual and acoustic shape of a letter; the ability to recognize the structure of a text and, for example, read it out loud in a meaningful way

88 Conveying doubt and certainty

88.1

Defining the degree of certainty

Adverbs can qualify the degree to which something is certain (here arranged in approximate order of increasing probability):

auf keinen Fall, in keinem Fall, keinesfalls, keineswegs 'no way, on no account' kommt nicht in Frage 'out of the question' kaum, unwahrscheinlich 'hardly, unlikely'

ungewiss 'uncertain'

unklar 'unclear'

eingemaßen wahrscheinlich 'quite possible'

(ziemlich) wahrscheinlich '(quite) probable' wahrscheinlich 'probable' fast sicher 'nearly certain' bestimmt 'certain'

 sicher, gewiss 'certain'
 klar 'clear'
 auf jeden Fall, in jedem Fall 'most certainly'

Accordingly, predictions can be made:

etw. mit ziemlicher Wahrscheinlichkeit an*nehmen 'to assume sth. with reasonable probability'
 etw. mit ziemlicher Sicherheit/ziemlich sicher wissen 'to know sth. with reasonable certainty'
 etw. mit Bestimmtheit/bestimmt wissen 'to know sth. for certain'

88.2

Disclaiming personal responsibility and authenticating information which is passed on

See 84 (p. 303) and 85 (p. 307) for further functions in this context.

(a) Personal responsibility can be disclaimed by using the subjunctive mood (see 39). Thus the newscaster will report:

Die Politikerin meinte, dass die Regierung die Steuern jetzt senken müsste.

The politician said that the government should lower taxes now.

(b) A further way of distancing oneself is to use the modal verb sollen (see 35.6b). Compare the following pairs of examples, those on the left expressing certainty, those on the right expressing doubt:

Er ist ein fanatischer Fußballfan. He is a football fanatic. Sie war eine berühmt-berüchtigte Frau. She was a notorious woman.	Er soll ein fanatischer Fußballfan sein. He is supposed to be a fanatical football fan. Sie soll eine berühmt-berüchtigte Frau gewesen sein. She is said to have been a notorious woman.
--	--

(c) Particularly when you want to repeat something that has been stated as a fact but for which there is no real proof, you may want to use the modal verb müssen (see 35.6b). The insertion of wohl 'probably' emphasizes that an assumed fact is being reported:

Dieser Historiker hat einen klaren Verstand. This historian has a clear mind. Die Königin war eine stolze Frau. The queen was a proud woman.	Nach dem, was man hört, muss dieser Historiker (wohl) einen klaren Verstand haben. Going by what one hears, this historian must have a clear mind. Nach Presseberichten muss die Königin eine stolze Frau gewesen sein. According to press reports the queen must have been a proud woman.
--	--

(d) Direct responsibility for information or opinions given can also be avoided by showing that one's knowledge is limited or by giving the source of the information. The indicative usually follows:

Soweit mir bekannt ist, wusste sie nichts von dem Plan.

As far as I am aware she didn't know anything about the plan.

Nach Augenzeugenberichten hat der Fahrer des Wagens die Ampel bei Rot überfahren.

According to eye witness accounts the driver of the car jumped the lights.

Den Berichten zufolge muss man sich auf einen längeren Eisenbahnstreik einrichten.

According to the reports people have to prepare themselves for quite a long railway strike.

Man sagt allgemein, dass es eine Krise in der Europapolitik gibt.

It is being said generally that there is a crisis in European politics.

Wir wissen aus sicherer Quelle, dass alle Passagiere die Notlandung unverletzt überstanden haben.

We know from reliable sources that all passengers have survived the emergency landing unhurt.

88.3

Expressing surprise at something improbable or unexpected

See also 114 (p. 409) for 'Expressing surprise'.

Formal expressions include:

Das kommt völlig überraschend für mich!

It comes as a total surprise to me!

Ich kann das kaum glauben!

I can hardly believe it!

Das ist doch einfach nicht zu fassen/zu glauben!

It is simply unbelievable!

More informally the following expressions are useful without causing offense:

Das gibt es doch nicht!/Das darf doch nicht wahr sein!

It cannot be true!/Oh no!

So etwas darf es doch einfach nicht geben!

Something like this is simply not supposed to happen!

Er hat sage und schreibe 500 Euro für vier Stunden Arbeit verlangt.

He charged, would you believe, 500 euros for four hours of work.

89

Expressing assumptions, discussing possibility, probability and conditions

See 35.8 (p. 80).

89.1

Simple assumptions can be introduced in a number of ways:

By using the modal verb müssen (35.6b)

Das muss wahr sein.

That must be true.

Er muss es gewusst haben.

He must have known it.

The following constructions can also be used:

Es könnte sein, dass er nichts über den Plan gewusst hat.

It could be that he didn't know anything about the plan.

Ich nehme an, dass er davon weiss.

I assume that he knows about it.

Es ist/wäre möglich, dass er nichts von der Affäre gewusst hat.

It is conceivable that he knew nothing of the affair.

See 8.4 (p. 12) for the conjunction dass.

These introductory clauses can be avoided by using the future or future perfect (see 34.3–4). There is no particular difference in stylistic level; the degree of certainty about the assumption made is introduced by inserting adverbs such as sicher 'certainly', wohl 'probably', möglicherweise 'possibly' or vielleicht 'perhaps':

Er wird vielleicht nichts über den Plan gewusst haben.

He may perhaps not have known about the plan.

See 39.1b (p. 93).

Ihr werdet wohl davon wissen.

You will probably know about it.

See 34.3 (p. 71).

Du wirst möglicherweise nichts von der Affäre gewusst haben.

You will possibly not have known anything about the affair.

The modal verbs mögen, dürfte and müsste (the last two are in the subjunctive, see 39.3d) can also be used in these senses:

Das mag die Antwort sein.

That may be the answer.

Das dürfte die Antwort sein.

That may (very) well be the answer.

Das müsste die Antwort sein.

That must/would have to be the answer.

A statement such as

Am Sonntag wird es ja wieder regnen.

On Sunday it is bound to rain again.

is an expression of resignation (emphasized by ja and wieder) – in the context here this means that the following Sunday is expected to be as rainy (and hence as boring and uneventful) as all the previous ones.

89.2

Assumptions in a scientific context are conveyed by Subjunctive I or II, depending on the construction.

See 39.4b (p. 97) for this use.

'A' sei die Länge einer Seite im Dreieck.

Let 'A' be the length of one side in a triangle.

Such a hypothesis, particularly where it is not strictly scientific, can also be introduced as follows:

Gesetzt den Fall, die Theorie stimmt/stimmte, dann würde sich die Erde jedes Jahrzehnt um ein paar Grad erwärmen.

Assuming the theory is correct, the earth would get a few degrees warmer every decade.

Angenommen, er hat alles gewusst, dann hätte er ihr Bescheid sagen müssen.

Assuming he knew everything he should have let her know.

The conclusion deduced from the assumption must be in the conditional. Instead of a conclusion there may be a question:

Angenommen, sie hat recht mit ihrer Behauptung, was würdest du ihr raten?

Assuming she is right in her assertion, what would you advise her to do?

89.3

Expressing a condition when it can and is likely to be fulfilled

See 39.8 (p. 101).

A condition which can be fulfilled is expressed by using a wenn clause. In English, such a condition could be introduced by either 'if' or 'when':

Wenn es regnet, gehen wir nicht in die Berge.

If it rains we won't go walking in the mountains.

Wenn sie den Manager ruft, kommt er sofort.

When she calls for the manager he comes immediately.

See also 82 (p. 296) for cause and effect.

Wenn can be avoided by beginning the subordinate clause with the verb and introducing a so at the beginning of the main clause. This results in a much more formal style which tends to be found in written German:

Regnet es, so gehen wir nicht in die Berge.

Ruft sie den Manager, so kommt er gleich.

See also 8.5 (p. 12) for this construction.

89.4

Making hypotheses

Hypotheses fall into two categories:

(a) about an event which may or may not take place, using Subjunctive II with present or future reference (see also 39.2–3):

Wenn du mich liebtest, würdest du mich heiraten.

If you loved me you would marry me.

Wenn er in der Stadt wäre, würde er uns besuchen.

If he was in town he would visit us.

Wäre er in der Stadt, so würde er uns besuchen.

It is probable that ‘du’ doesn’t love him and that ‘he’ is not in town, but in principle these conditions could be fulfilled or the event could still happen.

See 8.5 (p. 12) and 89.3 (p. 323) for the construction without wenn.

(b) about an event which can no longer take place, using the Subjunctive II in the past with past reference (see also 39.2–3):

Wenn du mich geliebt hättest, hättest du mich geheiratet.

Wenn du mich geliebt hättest, würdest du mich geheiratet haben.

If you had loved me you would have married me.

Wenn er in der Stadt gewesen wäre, hätte er uns besucht.

Wenn er in der Stadt gewesen wäre, würde er uns besucht haben.

If he had been in town he would have visited us.

Wäre er in der Stadt gewesen, so würde er uns besucht haben.

The conditions under which a certain (desired) event could have taken place (i.e. a wedding and a visit) were not fulfilled at the time and hence the event did not happen.

The verb of the wenn clause needs to be in the past tense of the second subjunctive. In the main clause there is a choice between either another second subjunctive in the past tense (e.g. hätte gemacht, wäre gewesen), or würde with the past participle of the main verb plus haben or sein.

See 8 (p. 11) for word order in subordinate clauses.

XIII

Transactions: getting things done

90 Attracting attention

▶ See also 61.1 (p. 166) on 'Making initial contact'.

90.1 Attracting attention in a dangerous situation

Hilfe!
Help!

Feuer!
Fire!

Vorsicht!
Be careful!

Hallo!
Hello!

(Hallo! is not necessarily understood as a request for rescue but as a casual greeting. Only when shouted out with a prolonged [a:] does it mean a call for help in dire circumstances.)

▶ See also 60.2a (p. 160).

Achtung!
Beware!/Watch out!

90.2 Attracting attention when a person is busy

Darf ich mal kurz stören. (polite)
May I interrupt you for a moment.

Entschuldigen Sie bitte. (polite)
Excuse me, please.

Hallo, Sie da!/He, Sie da! (rude)
Heh, you there!

Sie, hören Sie mal! (rude)
You, listen!

Requests for attention using the Subjunctive II are particularly polite though not deferential (see 39.2b):

Dürfte ich mal kurz stören.

If I might interrupt you for a moment.

Wenn Sie einen Moment Zeit für mich hätten.

If you could spare me a moment.

Wenn ich Sie mal gerade unterbrechen dürfte.

If I could just interrupt you for a moment.

Entschuldigen Sie, ich hätte eine Frage.

Excuse me, I'd like to ask a question.

90.3

Turning one's attention to somebody

(a) In order to help

Ja, bitte?

Yes? (How can I help you?)

Was kann ich für Sie tun?

What can I do for you?

Worum handelt es sich? (formal)

What is it about?

Worum geht es? (informal)

What is it about?

Worum geht's? (very informal)

What is it about?

Was gibt es? (can be impatient)

What is it?

Womit kann ich (Ihnen) dienen? (very formal, in a shop or an office)

How can I help/serve you?

Was darf's sein? (in a shop or restaurant)

What would you like?

Was möchten/wollen Sie? (can easily sound off-putting)

What do you want?

Was ist denn nun wieder los? (when you are annoyed about repeated disturbance)

What is wrong now?

(b) In order to send somebody away

Nicht jetzt, bitte.

Not now, please.

Bei mir sind Sie da falsch. (this can be indifferent or rude, depending on tone)

I am not the person you need to see (about the matter).

Ich bin (leider) nicht für Sie/dafür zuständig.
(I'm sorry but) I am not the person responsible (for you/for the matter).

90.4

Requesting patience

See also 103 (p. 368) and 81.8–11 (pp. 291–3) for expressions of time referring to future intentions.

(a) der Augenblick/der Moment 'moment' suggest a wait of a few minutes:

Einen Moment/Augenblick, bitte.

Just a moment, please.

Wenn Sie bitte einen Augenblick warten würden. (very polite)

If you wouldn't mind waiting for a moment, please.

Moment noch! (fairly informal)

Just another moment! I won't keep you much longer.

Bitte nehmen Sie im Wartezimmer Platz. (at the doctor's)

Please have a seat in the waiting room.

(b) Requesting more patience

-e Geduld, sich gedulden 'patience, be patient' (formal)

Darf ich noch um ein paar Minuten Geduld bitten.

May I ask you to be patient for just a few more minutes.

Sie müssen sich leider noch ein wenig gedulden.

You'll have to be patient a little longer, I am afraid.

Putting in leider 'unfortunately' makes the request for patience sound more polite:

Es dauert (leider) noch ungefähr eine Stunde.

It'll take about another hour(, I am afraid).

Ihr Wagen ist leider erst in etwa einer Stunde fertig.

Your car will not be ready for about an hour, I am afraid.

90.5

Non-verbal ways of attracting attention

(a) When you are about to propose a toast or make a speech before or after dinner it is common to clink a spoon against your glass, thus attracting everybody's attention.

(b) When you want to attract a waiter's/waitress's attention in a restaurant, lift your hand when the waiter/waitress next comes by your table. She or he will probably say Sofort 'I'll be right there' or Einen Moment, bitte 'Just a moment, please'.

(c) When you want to stop a bus at a request stop (-e Bedarfshaltestelle), lift your arm vertically and show your palm in the direction from which the bus is coming or simply wave.

91

Helping and advising

91.1

Asking for help

jmdm. helfen 'to help sb.'
 jmdm. bei/mit etw. helfen 'to help sb. with sth.'
 jmdm. helfen, etw. zu tun 'to help sb. to do sth.'
 -e Hilfe 'help'
Hilfe leisten 'to help' (formal style, see 91.5)

As in English, you can ask for help by using a modal verb in the indicative or, more politely, in the Subjunctive II (see 39.2b). Inserting bitte 'please' in a request is always a good idea:

Könn(t)en Sie mir bitte bei/mit diesem Problem helfen.
 Can/Could you please help me with this problem?

Würden Sie mir bitte helfen, den schweren Karton in meinen Wagen zu heben.
 Would you please help me to lift this heavy box into my car?

Darf/Dürfte ich Ihre Hilfe in Anspruch nehmen. (very formal)
 May/Might I make use of your help.

Wenn Sie einen Unfall sehen, müssen Sie Hilfe leisten.
 If you see an accident you must assist.

(b) To request a favour rather than help, use jmdm. einen Gefallen tun:

Kannst/Könntest du mir bitte einen Gefallen tun und heute einkaufen gehen.
 Can/Could you please do me a favour and do some shopping today.

(c) bitten 'to ask' can be used as a stylistically versatile introduction to requests:

(jmdn.) um etw. (= acc.) bitten 'to ask (sb.) for sth.'
 jmdn. bitten, etw. zu tun 'to ask sb. to do sth.'
 (jmdn.) um Hilfe (etc.) bitten 'to ask sb. for help (etc.)'

Darf ich um Ihren Beitrag bitten?
 May I ask for your contribution?

Darf ich Sie bitten, unsere Partei bei den nächsten Wahlen zu unterstützen?
 May I ask you to support our party in the next elections?

Darf/Dürfte ich Sie um Hilfe bitten?
 May/Might I ask you for help?

(d) Although requests using the Subjunctive II are already very polite and leave the addressee a sufficient amount of breathing space, you may feel you want to be even less direct. This can be done by introducing your request with a variety of würde constructions:

Würde es Ihnen etwas ausmachen, wenn ich heute erst später käme?
Would you mind if I came later today?

Würde es Ihnen etwas ausmachen, heute später zu kommen?
Would you mind coming a little later today?

Würden Sie bitte so freundlich sein und mir beim Ausfüllen dieses Formulars behilflich sein.

or

Würden Sie bitte so freundlich sein, mir beim Ausfüllen dieses Formulars zu helfen.

Would you be so kind as to help me fill in this form.

Würdest du bitte so nett sein und meine Mutter anrufen.
Would you please be so kind as to ring my mother.

91.2

Replying to a request for help

(a) As a positive reply to a direct request for help, you might say:

Ja, gerne.
Yes, with pleasure.

Ja, natürlich./Aber natürlich.
Yes, of course.

(Aber) selbstverständlich.
But of course.

Klar doch! (informal)
Of course.

Ja sofort.
Yes, right away.

Ja, ich komme gleich.
Yes, I'm just coming.

In reply to a request asking whether you would mind (doing) something, use:

Nein, das macht mir gar nichts/wirklich nichts aus.
No, I wouldn't mind at all.

Nein, das mache ich doch gern (für Sie/dich).
No, I'll gladly do it (for you).

Doch emphasizes gern here.

(b) As a negative reply to a direct request for help, you may say:

Nein, ich kann Ihnen leider nicht helfen.
No, unfortunately I cannot help you.

Nein, im Moment nicht.
No, not right now.

Es tut mir Leid, aber ich kann Ihnen da nicht helfen.
I am sorry, but I cannot help you there.

For this construction, see 19.7 (p. 29).

Leider weiss ich selbst nicht, wie man das Formular ausfüllt.
Unfortunately I don't know how to fill in the form myself.

Tut mir Leid, aber ich habe selbst keine Ahnung.
I am sorry, I haven't got a clue myself.

To give a negative reply to a request asking whether you would mind (doing) something, you might say:

Nein, das ist leider (heute) nicht möglich/Nein, das geht (heute) leider nicht.
No, it is unfortunately not possible (today).

Nein, das ist mir im Moment nicht recht.
No, it's a little inconvenient at the moment.

Nein, das passt mir heute nicht/schlecht.
No, it's inconvenient today (lit. suits me badly today).

NOTE

In German you need to be more direct than in English to be understood.

91.3

Offering advice

Advice and suggestions can be offered bluntly by using the indicative, or more sensitively by employing the suggestive mode of the Subjunctive II (see 39.2b). Alternatively, a rhetorical question may be used; this would be less formal.

Compare:

Wir raten Ihnen zu diesem Kauf.
We advise you to accept this deal.

Wir würden Ihnen zu diesem Kauf raten.
We would advise you to accept this deal.

Warum kaufen Sie nicht!?
Why don't you accept the deal!?

As it is polite not to force one's own views on a stranger or semi-stranger, a structure involving the Subjunctive II would normally be the most appropriate:

jmdm. raten 'to advise sb.'
(jmdm.) von etw. ab*raten 'to advise (sb.) against sth.'
(jmdm.) zu etw. zu*raten 'to advise (sb.) to do sth.'

Ich würde Ihnen raten, das Angebot anzunehmen.
I would advise you to accept the offer.

Wir würden (Ihnen) von diesem Angebot abraten.
We would advise (you) against this offer.

Unser Anwalt würde (Ihnen) nicht zu diesem Vorgehen zuraten.
Our solicitor would not advocate this procedure.

Further introductory phrases include:

In Ihrer Situation/In Ihrem Fall* würde ich erst mal abwarten.
In your situation/case I would wait and see.

Ich würde sagen, da muss man einen Fachmann fragen.
I would say you ought to ask an expert in this matter.

An Ihrer Stelle* würde ich jetzt kein großes Risiko eingehen.
If I were you I would not take any big risks now.

Wie wäre es, wenn Sie doch noch einmal mit Ihrer Chefin sprächen?
How about talking to your boss again?

Alternatively, start your question with a modal verb in the Subjunctive II (see 39.2b and 39.3d) and use nicht:

Sollten Sie nicht erstmal mit Ihrem Rechtsanwalt sprechen?
Shouldn't you talk to your solicitor first?

Könnten Sie nicht mit der Bahn fahren, wo Ihr Auto kaputt ist?
Couldn't you take the train as your car has broken down?

Dürfte das nicht etwas teuer sein?
Might that not be a little too expensive?

Müssten Sie da nicht erst eine staatliche Genehmigung haben?
Wouldn't you have to have/Shouldn't you have a state permit first?

Möchten Sie nicht doch lieber warten, bis Sie mit Ihrer Frau gesprochen haben?
Wouldn't you rather wait until you have talked to your wife?

91.4

Accepting help or advice

See 67.1–5 (pp. 201–6) on thanking for help and declining help as well as responding to thanks.

Comments on advice offered in approximate order from slight hesitation to enthusiastic approval:

Hm, das wäre vielleicht möglich.
Hm, that might be possible.

Ja, das könnte gehen.
Yes, that could work.

Danke, dass Sie mich darauf aufmerksam machen. Daran hatte ich noch gar nicht gedacht.

Thank you for drawing my attention to this. I hadn't thought of that at all.

Das ist eine gute/eine prima/keine schlechte Idee.

That is a good/an excellent/not a bad idea.

Ja, stimmt, da haben Sie völlig recht.

Yes, true, you are quite right there.

Mensch, dass ich darauf nicht selbst gekommen bin. Du liegst da genau richtig! (informal, between good friends)

(Oh) yes, I wonder why I didn't think of that myself. You are spot on there!

91.5

Different types of help and support

The English term 'help' and its partial synonyms 'aid' and 'support' have quite a wide range of German equivalents.

(a) Financial support

-e Arbeitslosenhilfe money received by people who no longer qualify for 'unemployment benefit' (-s Arbeitslosengeld)

-e Sozialhilfe 'income support'

Sozialhilfe beziehen 'to be on income support'

-e Hilfe, e-e Unterstützung beantragen 'to claim benefits'

-e Beihilfe financial contribution paid, for example, by the state on civil servants' health insurance

-e Starthilfe 'jump start/pump priming' (either of a car or a business venture)

-e Unterstützung, unterstützend 'support, supporting'

-e Arbeitslosenunterstützung 'unemployment benefits' (in general) unterstützende Maßnahmen treffen 'to take measures in order to support sth.'

-e Subvention 'subsidy'

jmdn./etw. subventionieren 'to subsidize sb. sth.'

Er bezieht jetzt schon seit drei Monaten Sozialhilfe.

He has been receiving income support for three months now.

Hast du schon Beihilfe für deine letzte Arztrechnung beantragt?

Have you already claimed for your last doctor's bill?

Die osteuropäischen Länder brauchen bei der Umstellung ihrer Wirtschaft Starthilfe vom Westen.

The countries of Eastern Europe need pump priming to reform their economies.

Wenn keine unterstützenden Maßnahmen für die Kohleindustrie getroffen werden, ist sie in Deutschland bald tot.

If no measures are taken to support the German coal industry it will soon be dead.

Sollte man die europäische Stahlindustrie mit Steuergeldern subventionieren?

Should one subsidize the European steel industry by means of taxpayers' money?

(b) Providing moral support

-r Beistand 'support'

jmdm. bei*stehen 'to support sb.'

Ich bin nur mitgekommen, um meinem Sohn moralischen Beistand zu leisten.

I've only come along to give my son moral support.

Danke allen, die mir nach meinem schweren Verlust so treu beigestanden haben.

Thank you to all those who have supported me so loyally after my tragic loss.

(c) Promoting or supporting somebody

-e Erste Hilfe 'First Aid'

jmdn./etw. fördern 'to promote/give special attention to sb./sth.'

-e Förderung 'promotion/support'

Förder- 'promoting'

fördernde Maßnahmen supportive measures designed to help a person, a region, a company, etc. which has difficulties coping or deserves encouragement synonyms: -e Förderungsmaßnahme, -e Fördermaßnahme (bureaucratic)

Jeder sollte wissen, wie man Erste Hilfe leistet.

Everybody should know how to administer First Aid.

In Deutschland muss man einen Verbandskasten im Wagen haben.

In Germany you have to have a First Aid kit in your car.

Eliteförderung ist für manche politischen Gruppen ein rotes Tuch.

Measures to further an elite are anathema to some political groups.

Das BaföG (Bundesausbildungsförderungsgesetz) sollte Chancengleichheit für alle Studierwilligen schaffen.

The BaföG (federal law guaranteeing aid to financially worse-off students) was intended to provide equal opportunities for all those who wanted to study.

Welche fördernden Maßnahmen sind in dieser Schule für lernschwache Kinder vorgesehen?

Which supporting measures are provided for children with learning difficulties in this school?

92

Asking for something to be done

92.1

Errands and similar activities

(a) Specific terms:

etw. besorgen 'to go on an errand (in order to get sth.)/to acquire sth.'
etw. erledigen 'to get sth. done (possibly on an errand)/carry out sth.'
eine Erledigung/Besorgung machen 'to go on an errand'

(bitte) helfen! 'please help!'(bitte) Türe schließen! 'please close the door'

General terms:

Tun, machen (and other verbs) 'to do'

Requests for errands are best made with a polite question using the subjunctive. Using the Subjunctive II of a modal or other verb is very polite (see 38.2b and 38.2d):

Würden Sie das bitte für mich tun/erledigen.

Would you please do this for me/attend to this for me.

Könnten Sie bitte die Post erledigen.

Could you please deal with the post.

Würden Sie mir bitte noch Schweizer Franken besorgen./Würden Sie bitte noch Schweizer Franken für mich besorgen.

Would you please also get me some Swiss francs.

Könnten Sie den Brief bitte noch heute für uns schreiben?

Could you please write the letter for us (as early as) today?

Using the infinitive of the verb is a more direct way of asking people (not) to do things. Depending on the context, the effect can be either very informal/intimate:

Jetzt Kaffee kochen, du!

Hey, now put the coffee on!

or formal and abrupt:

Jetzt nicht stören!

Don't disturb me now!

(Bitte) Diskette einlegen!

(Please) insert the disk!

See 33.1c (p. 59) and 86.1b (p. 310).

(b) Giving someone responsibility for doing something zuständig sein für etw. 'to be responsible for sth.'

zu*sehen, dass etw. geschieht 'to ensure that sth. gets done'

Herr Kleinschmidt, Sie sind heute für den Empfang der ausländischen Gäste zuständig.

Mr Kleinschmidt, you are responsible for welcoming the foreign guests today.

Er kann das nicht unterschreiben. Das liegt nicht in seinem Zuständigkeitsbereich/Kompetenzbereich.

He cannot sign this. It is not within his remit/authority.

Bitte sehen Sie zu, dass der Kostenvoranschlag bis morgen beim Kunden ist.

Please see to it that the estimate is with the client by tomorrow.

92.2

Emphasizing the importance of a task

Wir wären dankbar, wenn Sie sich den Fehler gleich ansehen könnten.

We would be grateful if you could look at the fault immediately.

Es ist für uns wichtig, dass dieser Auftrag noch heute ausgeliefert wird.

It is important for us that this order goes out today.

Der Kunde legt großen Wert darauf, dass wir die Anleitung in Deutsch, Englisch und Französisch liefern.

It is very important for the client that we deliver the manual in German, English and French.

Es ist unabdingbar/unerlässlich, dass die Qualität bei jedem Einzelstück überprüft wird.

It is essential that the quality of every single item gets checked.

92.3

Refusing something which you have no authority to grant

All of the following are fairly abrupt:

Das müssen Sie (selbst) wissen.

You should know (not me)./That is your concern, not mine.

Da musst du selbst zusehen.

You'll have to take care of that yourself.

Sehen Sie erstmal selbst zu, wie Sie zurecht kommen.

First see how you manage on your own.

Dafür sind wir hier nicht zuständig.

We don't deal with that here.

Die Entscheidung liegt nicht bei mir.

The decision is not up to me.

They can be toned down by introducing leider, doch and/or aber:

Das müssen Sie doch aber selbst wissen.

Da musst du leider selbst zusehen.

Sehen Sie aber doch erstmal selbst zu, wie Sie zurecht kommen.

Die Entscheidung liegt leider nicht bei mir.

92.4

Asking somebody else to do something

The most common way of saying that somebody else is charged with something is to use lassen as a modal verb:

See also 35 (p. 74) and 77.4a (p. 268) for other uses of lassen.

(a) Having something done to oneself:

Er lässt sich die Haare jede Woche schneiden.

He has his hair cut every week.

(b) Having something done by somebody else:

Sie ließ die ganze Geschichte von einem Journalisten ausarbeiten und veröffentlichen.

She had a journalist write up and publish the whole story.

(c) Ordering somebody else to do something:

Die Polizei ließ alle Papiere überprüfen.

The police had all documents checked.

(d) Letting somebody else do something (without interfering):

Wir ließen den neuen Chef mal machen.

We let the new boss get on with it (without giving him support).

A more bureaucratic way of asking somebody to do something is implied when using an*weisen 'to instruct':

Sie wies das Personal an, die Kunden freundlicher zu behandeln.

She instructed her personnel to treat the clients in a more friendly manner.

The verb instruieren for an*weisen does exist but is now rarely used. Rather more common would be Instruktionen geben/hinterlassen 'to give/leave instructions':

Ich hatte Instruktionen hinterlassen, dass das Essen um 1 Uhr fertig sein sollte.

I had left instructions that lunch was to be ready at 1 o'clock.

93

Expressing needs, wishes and desires

See 104 (p. 369) for expressing likes and preferences; 113 (p. 404) for conveying hopes, wishes and disappointment.

93.1

The obvious verbs to express needs and wishes are brauchen 'need', möchte 'would like (now)', mögen 'to like to (generally)' and sich (= dat.) wünschen 'to wish (for)'. Both möchte and mögen can be reinforced by using gern(e) 'a lot':

In Deutschland brauchen Sie im Winter Winterreifen.

In Germany you need winter tyres in winter.

Meine amerikanischen Freunde mögen am liebsten Jacobs Kaffee.

My American friends like Jacob's coffee best.

Jetzt möchte ich gerne eine Tasse Kaffee.
Now I'd love a cup of coffee.

See 104.2 (p. 370) for further examples with möchte and mag.

Zum Geburtstag wünsche ich mir eine Überraschung.
I'd like to have a surprise on my birthday.

Where one has a justified claim on something, use:

-r Anspruch 'claim'

einen Anspruch auf etw. (= acc.) haben 'to have a claim on sth.'

einen Anspruch auf etw. (= acc.) geltend machen 'to lay claim to (and get) sth.'

etw. beanspruchen 'to claim sth.'

Er hat dieses Jahr noch Anspruch auf zwei Wochen Urlaub.
He still has two weeks holiday left this year.

Die Nachbarn machten ihre Ansprüche auf Schadenersatz geltend.
The neighbours claimed damages.

Sie beanspruchte die Hälfte des Hauses.
She claimed half the house.

bedürfen 'need' takes the genitive. It tends to be found only in formal letters or reports as well as in the quality press:

Diese Gründe sind nicht stichhaltig. Sie bedürfen der näheren Erklärung.

These reasons are not valid. They need a more detailed explanation.

Es bedurfte aller Überredungskünste, um die Koalitionspartei zum Zustimmen zu bewegen.

It took all manner of persuasion to get the coalition party to agree.

93.2

Different types of need

See also 112.1 and 112.2 (p. 401) for 'Satisfying needs and demands'.

Common words include:

-bedürftig 'in need of sth.'

hilfsbedürftig 'in need of help' ruhebedürftig 'in need of rest/quiet' anlehnungsbedürftig 'in need of (sb.) to lean on' reparaturbedürftig 'in need of being repaired'

-r Bedarf an (+ dat.) 'need for'

-r tägliche Bedarf an Brot 'daily requirement for bread'

Lebensmittel (= plural) des täglichen Bedarfs 'staple foods'

Wir bekamen das Haus zu einem guten Preis, da es stark reparaturbedürftig war.

We got the house at a good price as it was badly in need of repair.

Kennen Sie Ihren täglichen Kalorienbedarf?

Do you know how many calories you need daily?

sein Bedürfnis verrichten 'to go to the toilet' is today only found in literary contexts. Where it occurs in spoken language, it is probably meant jokingly.

-r Anspruch 'claim'

Anspruch auf etw. (= acc.) erheben/haben 'to lay claim to sth.'

Anspruch auf jmdn. erheben/haben 'to lay claim to sb.'

-r Rechtsanspruch 'legal (right to) claim', legal entitlement

-r Unterhaltsanspruch 'legal right to maintenance' anspruchsvoll 'demanding' anspruchlos 'undemanding/modest'

-s Anspruchsdenken critical word in contemporary German referring to the younger generation's claim on rights and wealth without working hard for them

Ich erhebe Anspruch auf das gesamte Vermögen.

I lay claim to the entire assets.

Es gibt manchmal Kinder, die ihren Unterhaltsanspruch an die Eltern vor Gericht einklagen.

Sometimes there are children who take their parents to court over their right to maintenance.

Der Vortrag war geistig anspruchsvoll.

The talk was intellectually demanding.

93.3

Wishes and desires

See also 113.2 (p. 406) for wishes.

-r Wunsch 'wish'

-r Heiratswunsch 'desire to get married'

-r Kinderwunsch 'desires which children have' or 'wish of a couple to have children'

-s Wunschdenken 'wishful thinking'

-e Wunschvorstellung lit. 'wishful idea/dream' wunschlos glücklich lit. 'happy without any further needs/blissfully happy' wunschgemäß 'according to plan/wish'

wünschbar/wünschenswert 'desirable'

Viele Ehepaare können sich ihren Kinderwunsch nie erfüllen.

Many couples can never fulfil their desire to have children.

Bei der Partnersuche hat er eine ganz bestimmte Wunschvorstellung.

When looking for a partner he has a certain ideal in mind.

Eine schnelle Erholung der Wirtschaft ist jetzt wünschenswert.

A quick economic recovery is now desirable.

93.4

Enquiring after need

See also 113.1 (p. 404) for hopes and 90.3 (p. 326) on 'Turning one's attention to somebody'.

Note the following for polite inquiries where a positive answer is often expected:

Question	Reply
Darf ich euch heute Abend zum Essen einladen? (For this construction see 19.7.) May I invite you to dinner tonight?	Es tut uns Leid, aber heute passt es uns leider nicht. I'm sorry, unfortunately it isn't convenient tonight. Ja, gerne. Yes, thank you.
Möchten Sie noch ein Glas Wein? Would you like another glass of wine?	Ja, gern./Nein, danke. Yes, please (Thank you)./No, thank you.
Noch Käse? More cheese?	Danke, ich bin schon ganz satt. No, thank you, I am already quite full.

NOTE

Do not use voll instead of satt as that either means you have had too much to drink or implies that you didn't enjoy what you have been eating.

See 67.1–4b (pp. 201–5) for thanking somebody; 112.2 (p. 401) for satisfying needs and demands; 112.4 (p. 403) for saying that something is sufficient; and 112.5 (p. 403) for saying you have had enough to eat.

94

Expressing objections and complaints

94.1

Putting somebody right in a polite way

Germans may sound less apologetic than many British speakers when they put somebody right about something. Although they can therefore sound rude to the faint-hearted Briton abroad, this is merely a cultural phenomenon and not meant to give offence. If you have reason to complain, do so in a straightforward manner or you won't be understood.

The most common polite introduction is:

Entschuldigen Sie bitte, . . .
Excuse me . . .

This can be followed by:

. . . , aber ich sehe, dass hier etwas nicht stimmt.
. . . but I can see that something is not right here.

... , aber Sie müssten sich dies hier, glaube ich, nochmal ansehen.
 ... but I think you should have another look at this.

... , aber ich glaube, hier liegt ein Irrtum vor.
 ... but I think there is a mistake here.

... , aber hier ist Ihnen wohl ein Fehler unterlaufen.
 ... but I think you've made a mistake here.

In turn, you can then add:

Wenn Sie ... machen wollen/würden 'if you'd do ...'

Wenn Sie das bitte noch einmal überprüfen wollen.
 If you would please check this again.

Wenn Sie dies hier bitte noch einmal durchgehen würden.
 If you would please go through this again.

See also 63.4 (p. 185) on 'Dealing with problems'.

94.2

Making complaints

(a) If something is not right and you want to complain without giving offence, use das geht nicht 'it is not on':

Das geht doch nicht, dass Sie einfach vor meiner Garagenausfahrt parken.
 You can't just park in front of my drive (like that).

Was, du hast in der Klassenarbeit von deinem Nachbarn abgeschrieben? Das geht wirklich nicht!
 What, you copied from your neighbour in the test? That's simply not on!

(b) If something has not been satisfactory:

sich (bei jmdm.) (über etw./jmdn.) beschweren 'to complain (to sb.) (about sb./sth.)' sich (bei jmdm.) (über etw./jmdn.) beklagen 'to complain (to sb.) (about sb./sth.)'

-e Beschwerde '(official) complaint'

Beschwerde ein*legen 'to make a(n official) complaint'

(über etw. (= acc.)/jmdn.) klagen 'to complain (about sth./sb.)'

Note that klagen cannot take an accusative object.

(über etw./jmdn.) meckern 'to complain/moan (about sth./sb.)' (often used in situations when a complaint is felt to be unfair)

Er beschwerte/beklagte sich über den Krach im Hotel.
 He complained about the noise in the hotel.

Die Reisegruppe beschwerte/beklagte sich beim Reiseleiter, weil das Hotel nicht dem Standard entsprach, den sie erwartet hatte.
 The tourist group complained to the courier because the hotel was not up to the standard they had expected.

Wir haben Ihre Beschwerde vom 15. Juli erhalten.

We have received your complaint of 15th July.

Sie klagten, dass das Essen meistens kalt war.

They complained that the food was mostly cold.

Warum müsst Ihr eigentlich immer über das Essen meckern?

Why do you always have to go on/complain about the food?

(c) Complaining rudely (informal, potentially offensive)

The following expressions have a varying potential for offence, depending on the geographical region where they are used, the tone of voice and the speaker's general characteristics.

-e Sauerei lit. 'sth. of a sow' can refer to dirt or to treatment which is perceived to be unfair

-e Schweinerei lit. 'sth. of a pig' has the same meaning

-r Mist! 'damn!' means literally 'manure' and is not particularly offensive in public usage

Scheiße! 'shit!' on the other hand, is genuinely vulgar, though an extremely common expletive

Was ist denn das für eine Sauerei!

What a bloody mess!

Unerhörte Schweinerei!

It's a bloody disgrace!

So eine Scheisse!

Oh, shit!

Da haben Sie einen Riesenmist gebaut!

You have made a right ruddy mess of this.

Das ist doch eine bodenlose Frechheit!

What an incredible disgrace!/You've gone too far!

Das ist einfach unverschämt!

That is simply outrageous!

Unverschämtheit, Sie!

What an outrage!

(d) Taking a complaint to court or other official authorities

The formalities:

-e Anklage 'accusation'

jmdn. an*klagen 'to charge sb.'

jmdn. (bei Gericht) verklagen 'to press (legal) charges against sb.'

gegen jmdn. (eine) Anzeige erstatten 'to report sb.'

eine Klage ein*reichen 'to institute/start legal proceedings'

eine Klage vor(s) Gericht bringen 'to take a matter to court'

jmdn. vor(s) Gericht ziehen 'to take sb. to court'

einen Verteidiger bestellen 'to appoint a defence lawyer' eine Vorladung (vor Gericht) erhalten 'to receive a summons (to appear in court)'
 -e Verhandlung/ -r Prozess 'trial/hearing'
 Widerspruch (gegen etw.) ein*legen 'to protest (against sth.)' Berufung (gegen ein Urteil) ein*legen 'to appeal (against a verdict)' in die Berufung gehen 'to appeal' in die nächste Instanz gehen 'to appeal' durch die Instanzen gehen 'to go through the courts (of appeal)'

Die Nachbarn hatten bei Gericht eine Klage eingereicht, weil der Hund immer die ganze Nacht bellte.

The neighbours had started legal proceedings because the dog always barked all night long.

Die Eltern wollten eine offizielle Beschwerde beim Direktor einlegen, weil ihre Tochter in der Schule ungerecht behandelt worden war.

The parents wanted to lodge an official complaint with the head teacher as their daughter had been unfairly treated in school.

Sie legte bei der Zeitung Widerspruch gegen den Abdruck der privaten Bilder ein.

She protested/made an official complaint to the newspaper about the publication of the private photographs.

Der Anwalt des Angeklagten legte Berufung gegen das Urteil ein.

The defendant's solicitor appealed against the verdict.

More informal ways of talking about legal proceedings include:

Ich bringe Sie deswegen vors Gericht (formal)/vor den Kadi (informal).

I am going to take you to court for that.

Dafür mache ich Ihnen einen Prozess.

I'll take you to court for that.

Er hängte ihm einen Prozess an den Hals. (informal)

He took him to court. (lit. He hung a trial round his neck.)

Der Prozess war durch alle Instanzen gegangen, bevor sie schließlich vom Bundesverfassungsgericht Recht bekam.

The case had gone through all the appeals before it was finally decided in her favour by the Federal Constitutional Court.

The parties:

-r Angeklagte 'accused', 'defendant'

-r Kläger 'plaintiff' eine Aussage zu etw./über etw. (= acc.) machen 'to give evidence on sth.'

-e Aussage zu etw./über etw. verweigern 'to refuse to give evidence on sth.'

-e Anklage verlesen 'to read out the charges'

Anklage wegen (+ gen.) (gegen jmdn.) erheben 'to bring charges of . . . (against sb.)'

jmdn. zu etw. befragen 'to ask sb. about sth.'

Die Zeugen sollten Aussagen zum Tathergang machen.
The witnesses were supposed to give evidence about what happened.

Der Angeklagte verweigerte die Aussage.
The accused refused to give evidence.

Die Zeugen machten widersprüchliche Aussagen.
The witnesses gave contradictory evidence.

Der Staatsanwalt verlas die Anklage.
The prosecution read out the charge.

Die Staatsanwaltschaft erhob Anklage wegen Mordes.
The Crown Prosecution Service brought a charge of murder.

Die Verteidigung befragte die Zeugen zum Tathergang.
The defence counsel asked the witnesses about the events.

Diese Anwaltskanzlei übernimmt hauptsächlich Scheidungsfälle.
This solicitors' practice deals mainly with divorce cases.

Der Richter verkündete schließlich das Urteil.
The judge finally pronounced judgement.

The sentence:

jmdn. einer Tat schuldig sprechen 'to find sb. guilty of a crime' lebenslänglich/fünf Jahre bekommen 'to receive life/five years' das Urteil lautet auf (+ acc.) 'the sentence is for . . .'
auf Bewährung entlassen 'to suspend the sentence'

Die Geschworenen sprachen den Angeklagten (des Mordes) schuldig.
The jury found the accused guilty (of murder).

Der Angeklagte bekam lebenslänglich.
The accused received life.

Das Urteil lautete auf 2 Jahre Freiheitsentzug mit Bewährung.
She/he got a two-year suspended sentence.

Sie wurde auf Bewährung entlassen.
She was released on probation.

94.3

Demanding one's rights

-s Recht 'right'
sein Recht verlangen 'to demand one's rights' sein Recht bekommen 'to get justice' Recht haben 'to be right'
im Recht sein/im Unrecht sein 'to be right/wrong' rechtens sein 'to be legal'
auf etw. (= dat.) bestehen 'to insist on sth.'

Ich verlange mein Recht/mein Geld zurück.
I demand my rights/my money back.

Wenn ich mein Recht nicht sofort bekomme, gehe ich mit Ihnen vor Gericht.

If I don't get justice immediately I'll take you to court.

Natürlich hat sie wieder mal Recht gehabt.

Of course she was right again.

Das ist mein gutes Recht.

That's my right.

Ich bin im Recht und Sie sind im Unrecht.

I am right and you are wrong.

Das ist nicht rechtens, dass Sie uns ständig nachts mit Ihrer Musik belästigen.

You have no right to bother us continually with your music at night.

Er bestand auf seinem Recht, die Kinder regelmäßig zu sehen.

He insisted on his right to see the children regularly.

94.4

Different types of rights

(a) Speaking about rights in general terms sein Recht auf etw. (= acc.) aus*üben 'to exercise one's right to sth.'

ein Recht auf etw. (= acc.) haben 'to have a right to sth.'

ein Vorrecht genießen 'to enjoy a privilege'

Sein Wahlrecht sollte man unbedingt ausüben.

One should really exercise one's right to vote.

Ich habe auch ein Recht auf ein bisschen Freizeit.

I also have a right to some leisure time.

Wer Vorrechte genießt, hat oft auch viele Pflichten.

Those who enjoy privileges often also have many obligations.

(b) Human and civil rights and liberties

-e Menschenrechte (plural) 'human rights'

Bürgerrechte 'civil rights'

-s Recht auf freie Entfaltung der Persönlichkeit 'right to develop freely as a person' (i.e. choose work, place of residence . . .)

-s Asylrecht 'right of asylum'

-e Freiheit 'freedom'

-e Bewegungsfreiheit 'freedom to move/of movement'

-e Pressefreiheit 'freedom of the press'

-e Meinungsfreiheit 'freedom of speech'

-e akademische Freiheit 'academic freedom' (to teach, research and publish freely)

-e Versammlungsfreiheit 'freedom to gather' (as a group or party)

-e Religionsfreiheit 'freedom of religion'

(c) Parental rights

- s Elternrecht 'parental right'
- s Sorgerecht (für jmdn.) 'custody (of sb.)'
- r/-e Erziehungsberechtigte person responsible for bringing up a child and taking decisions on its behalf
- r Vormund 'legal guardian'
- e Vormundschaft 'guardianship'

94.5

Finding a solution

For opinion, agreement and disagreement, see 107–9 (pp. 373–80).

(a) Looking for a solution

- sich um etw. bemühen 'to make an effort to do sth.'
- etw. vor*schlagen 'to suggest sth.'
- nach etw. suchen 'to search for sth.'

Alle Delegierten bemühten sich um die Lösung des Konflikts.
All the delegates made an effort to solve the conflict.

Der französische Delegierte schlug eine Kompromisslösung vor.
The French delegate suggested a compromise solution.

Auf der Konferenz suchte man nach einer Einigung in der Frage der Urwaldnutzung.
At the conference an agreement was sought on the use of the tropical forest.

(b) Arriving at a solution

- zu einer Einigung über etw. (= acc.) kommen/gelangen 'to come to an agreement about sth.'
- sich auf etw. (= acc.) einigen 'to agree on sth.'
- etw. akzeptieren/an*nehmen 'to accept/adopt sth.'

Der Vorstand kam/gelang erst um Mitternacht zu einer Einigung.
The board only came to an agreement at midnight.

Man einigte sich darauf, den gegenwärtigen Vertrag zu verlängern.
Agreement was reached that the present treaty should be extended.

Der Vorschlag des Präsidenten wurde (einstimmig/mehrheitlich) angenommen.
The suggestion of the president was accepted (unanimously/by a majority).

Der Einigungsvorschlag wurde schließlich akzeptiert.
The agreement/compromise was finally accepted.

95

Giving and seeking promises and assurances

95.1

Assurance of services

An assurance of service will usually take place in a fairly formal setting. Short exchanges are given here to cover a variety of common situations:

(a) At a garage

selbstverständlich 'of course' das geht 'it's OK/that will work' ist (etc.) fertig 'is (etc.) ready' geht in Ordnung 'right you are'

Query	Reply
Ich möchte meinen Wagen nächsten Dienstag zum großen Kundendienst bringen. Geht das? I'd like to book my car in for a major service next Tuesday. Would that be OK? Wann kann ich den Wagen abholen?/Wann ist er fertig? When can I pick the car up?/When is it going to be ready?	Ja, selbstverständlich, das geht. Bringen Sie ihn gegen 8.30 Uhr. Yes, of course, that's OK. Bring it in about 8.30 am. Er ist gegen 16 Uhr fertig./Wir haben ihn gegen 16 Uhr für Sie bereit. It will be ready around 4 pm./We will have it ready for you around 4 pm.

▶ See 34.2 (p. 71) for use of the present tense.

(b) When ordering something from stock

▶ See 71 (p. 221) and 72 (p. 224) for availability and non-availability.

etw. vorrätig haben 'to have sth. in stock'
etw. bestellen 'to order sth.'
etw. für jmdn. zurück*legen 'to put sth. aside for sb.'
jmdm. etw. liefern 'to deliver sth. to sb.'
etw. liefern lassen 'to have sth. delivered'
etw. für jmdn. bereit*halten 'to have sth. ready for sb.'
jmdm. etw. zu*sichern 'to assure sb. of sth.'
jmdm. etw. zu*sagen 'to promise sth. to sb.'

Query	Reply
Haben Sie Modell 453 vorrätig?	Ja, das ist da./Nein, das müssten wir bestellen.
Have you got model 453 in stock?	Yes, we've got it./No, we'd have to order it.
Könnten Sie das für mich zurücklegen/bestellen/bis zum 15. liefern?	Selbstverständlich, wir halten es für Sie zum Abholen bereit./Wir rufen Sie an, sobald es eintrifft./Ja, wir können Ihnen das zusichern/zusagen.
Could you put it to one side for me/order it for me/deliver by the 15th?	Of course. We will have it ready for you to collect./ We will call you as soon as it arrives./Yes, we can assure you (of that).
Könnten Sie mir das nach Hause liefern?/Kann ich mir das liefern lassen?	Ja, selbstverständlich.
Can you deliver this to my home address?/Can I have this delivered?	Yes, of course.

(c) Warranties

Talking about guarantees:

-e Garantie, – e Garantiezeit 'warranty (period) Garantie auf etw. (= acc.) haben 'to have a warranty on sth.'
etw. gewährleisten 'to guarantee sth.'
Gewähr/Haftung für etw. übernehmen 'to guarantee sth./accept liability for sth.'

Wie lange läuft die Garantiezeit bei diesem Föhn?/Wie lange habe ich Garantie auf diesen Föhn?

How long is the warranty period on this hairdryer?

Sie haben ein Jahr Garantie auf alle Teile und zwei Jahre auf Wartung.

You have a one-year guarantee on parts and two years on labour.

Können Sie mir die höchste Qualität gewährleisten?

Can you guarantee me the highest quality?

Wir können keine Gewähr für dieses Produkt übernehmen.

We cannot accept liability for this product.

(d) Declining responsibility, withholding a guarantee (formal)

Die Angaben erfolgen ohne Gewähr.

No responsibility is accepted for the accuracy of this information.

Wir übernehmen keine Haftung.
No responsibility is accepted.

Die Garantie ist doch schon voriges Jahr abgelaufen.
The warranty period ran out last year.

95.2

Promises between people

For binding promises, such as those concerned with getting married, use the verb versprechen 'to promise' and its derivatives:

sich einander die Treue versprechen 'to promise to be faithful to each other' das Eheversprechen 'marriage vows'
-s Heiratsversprechen 'engagement' but: sich mit jmdm. verloben 'to get engaged to sb.'

Further promises can be made by using:

jmdm. etw. versprechen 'to promise sth. to sb.'
ein Versprechen (jmdm. gegenüber) ablegen 'to make a promise (to sb.)' jmdm. ein Versprechen geben/jmdm. sein (etc.) Ehrenwort geben 'to make sb. a promise/give sb. one's word of honour' jmdm. das Blaue vom Himmel versprechen 'to promise sb. the earth' (lit. 'the blue from the sky') sein (etc.) Versprechen halten/brechen 'to keep/break one's promise' versichern means 'to promise' in the sense of assuring, insuring or confirming:

(jmdm.) versichern, etw. zu tun 'to promise (sb.) that you will do sth.'
(jmdm.) etw. versichern 'to assure (sb.) of sth.'
etw. versichern 'to insure sth.'
eine Versicherung ab*schließen 'to get an insurance' eine Versicherung kündigen 'to cancel an insurance'

Er versicherte (ihr), pünktlich zu kommen.
He promised (her) to be on time.

Sie versicherte ihm, dass sie es ernst meinte.
She assured him that she was serious about it.

Sie versicherten ihnen ihre Unschuld.
They assured them of their innocence.

Ich habe gestern meinen neuen Wagen versichert.
I insured my new car yesterday.

Haben Sie schon eine Hausratsversicherung abgeschlossen?
Have you already got home contents insurance?

Hiermit möchte ich meine Gebäudeversicherung zum 1. März kündigen.

I hereby wish to cancel my building insurance as of 1 March.

(jmdm.) etw. beteuern means 'to promise (sb.) sth.' in the sense of 'to protest' where the sincerity of the assurance is in doubt

Er beteuerte ihr seine Unschuld.

He protested his innocence/promised her that he was innocent.

Alle Beteuerungen seines guten Willens halfen nichts.

All protestations of his good will were to no avail.

Sie beteuerte, ihn nie belogen zu haben.

She assured (him) that she had never lied to him.

Note the expression ein Geschäft mit Handschlag ab*machen 'to shake hands on a deal'.

96

Issuing, accepting and declining invitations and offers

96.1

Issuing invitations

See also 60.6 (p. 163) for 'Welcoming', 61 (p. 165) on 'Making introductions', 63 (pp. 180–5) 'Eating and drinking' and 66.7 (p. 199) 'Congratulating'.

(a) Inviting

More informal invitations are extended over the phone:

Wir wollten euch fragen, ob ihr nächsten Samstag zu einem Glas Wein zu uns kommen wollt.

We wanted to ask you whether you would like to join us for a glass of wine next Saturday.

Formal invitations may be printed or issued in a handwritten letter:

Hiermit möchten wir dich und deinen Mann zu Pauls fünfzigstem Geburtstag einladen.

We'd like to invite you and your husband to Paul's fiftieth birthday.

Wir würden uns freuen, wenn du und Hannelore zu Peters Taufe kämt.

We would be glad if you and Hannelore could come to Peter's christening.

Printed invitations often have the abbreviation u.A.w.g. printed in the left-hand bottom corner. Fully spelt out this is um Antwort wird gebeten 'RSVP' and requires a written reply.

(b) Occasions

If the invitation is zu einem Glas Wein 'for a glass of wine', it is more than likely that there will be other drinks and snacks, but your hosts won't serve dinner. This is a very common form of invitation in Germany.

zum Abendessen 'for dinner' means that there will be a meal, but not necessarily a hot one.

zum Kaffee 'for coffee' means that you should come between 3 and 4 o'clock in the afternoon. There will be coffee, tea and cakes. You will probably be expected to leave around 6 o'clock at the latest.

zum Geburtstag 'for a birthday' is probably a bigger occasion with food and drinks served.

zu einer Party 'for a party' is probably an occasion for the younger generation, including music and a larger number of guests but probably not much food.

zu einer Disco 'for a disco' is a party given by hosts as young as 10 or 11 years old, probably with quite a number of friends and including music.

For all other occasions of a more personal nature the invitation will give some indications of what to expect.

(c) Presents

Among student friends, simply bringing along a bottle to a party may be in order. For all other occasions you might bring a bottle – this needs to be wrapped. If bringing flowers, you should give them to the 'lady of the house', having first partially taken the paper off (but not the transparent foil!). Cards are not very common.

When presenting the present or flowers, you might say:

Hier ist eine Kleinigkeit für Sie.

Here is a little gift for you.

Darf ich dir/Ihnen diesen Strauß geben.

May I give you this bunch of flowers.

Hier ist etwas für die Kinder.

Here is something for the children.

Bitte schön!

Here you are.

Appreciative replies can be phrased in the following way:

Vielen Dank, aber das war doch wirklich nicht nötig.

Many thanks, but that was really not necessary.

Danke, das ist sehr nett von dir/Ihnen.

Thank you, that is very kind of you.

To which very polite people might reply:

Gern geschehen.

You are welcome.

Nichts zu danken!

Not at all.

See 67 (pp. 201–3) on giving and receiving thanks.

(d) At a dance

In the ballroom one could say:

Darf ich bitten.

lit. May I ask you (for a dance).

If you want to decline, you say:

Ich tanze leider nicht.

I am afraid I am not dancing.

If, as a woman, you don't take up the offer to dance or if you reject a date, the comment may be:

Sie hat mir einen Korb gegeben.

She has turned me down.

96.2

Making an offer

(a) To buy or sell something

Common ways of talking about offers include the verb an*bieten 'to offer' and its noun -s Angebot:

Wir können Ihnen diesen Gebrauchtwagen zu einem besonders günstigen Preis anbieten.

We can offer you this second-hand car at a particularly favourable price.

Können Sie uns Ihre Angebote zeigen?

Can you show us what you have on offer?

Wir möchten ein Angebot auf dieses Grundstück machen.

We would like to put in an offer on this plot of land.

Der potentielle Käufer bleibt bei seinem Angebot/erhöht sein Angebot/senkt sein Angebot.

The potential buyer is sticking to his offer/is increasing his offer/is reducing his offer.

Sie nahmen das Angebot von 500.000 Euro an/lehnten das Angebot ab.

They accepted the offer of 500 000 euros/rejected the offer.

(b) Special offers

-s Sonderangebot 'special offer'

-s Schnäppchen 'good buy/bargain (informal)'

Gurken sind heute im Sonderangebot.

Cucumbers are on special offer today.

Im Sommerschlussverkauf habe ich heute ein wirklich gutes Schnäppchen gemacht.

I got a really good bargain in the summer sales today.

(c) Offering to do something

In the form of a question:

Möchtest du, dass ich heute auf deine Tochter aufpasse?
Would you like me to babysit your daughter today?

Soll ich für dich einkaufen gehen?
Should I go shopping for you?

Kann ich dir etwas aus der Stadt mitbringen?
Can I get you something from town?

Was kann ich für Sie tun?
What can I do for you?

▶ See also 63.6d (p. 188) for offering to prepare food.

With an introduction:

Es macht mir wirklich nichts aus, für dich miteinzukaufen.
I really don't mind doing your shopping as well.

Melde dich/Lass es mich wissen, wenn ich dir irgendwie helfen kann.
Let me know if I can help you in any way.

Sagen Sie mir, was ich für Sie tun kann.
Tell me what I can do for you.

Ich helfe dir gerne, den Rasen zu mähen.
I am quite willing to help you mow the lawn.

▶ See 42.3f (p. 115) for verb completion by an infinitive clause with zu; see also 8.7 (p. 13) for word order.

96.3

Accepting and declining an invitation or offer

▶ See 111.2c (p. 395) for looking forward to something.

(a) Accepting

Informally:

Das ist nett von euch, wir kommen gern.
That is nice of you. We'd like to come.

More formally:

Wir nehmen Ihre freundliche Einladung zum Faschingsball gerne an.
We would like to accept your kind invitation to the carnival ball.

Ich komme gerne zu Peters Taufe.
I'd be glad to come to Peter's christening.

(b) Declining

▶ See also 67.5 (pp. 205–6) on 'Declining help and offers'.

Informally:

Leider geht es am nächsten Freitag nicht. Wir haben schon etwas vor.
Unfortunately we cannot make it next Friday. We've already got something else on.

More formally:

Wir können Ihre freundliche Einladung zur Jubiläumsfeier leider nicht annehmen, da wir an diesem Wochenende schon Gäste eingeladen haben.

We can unfortunately not accept your kind invitation to the anniversary celebration as we have already invited some guests for that weekend.

Danke, aber wir sind leider schon verabredet.

Thank you but we already have a previous engagement.

Ich komme gerne, aber mein Mann hat leider Dienst und kann daher nicht (mit)kommen.

I'd be glad to come but my husband is unfortunately on duty/at work and will therefore not be able to come (along).

Very formally:

Es tut uns Leid, Ihnen mitteilen zu müssen, dass wir Ihr Angebot nicht annehmen können.

We are sorry to have to tell you that we are unable to accept your offer.

Er hat das Angebot abgelehnt/ausgeschlagen.

He rejected the offer.

Wir haben Ihr Angebot reiflich erwogen, können Ihnen aber leider nicht zusagen.

We have seriously considered your offer but are unfortunately unable to accept it.

97

Seeking, granting and denying permission

97.1

Seeking permission

The most common way to seek permission is to use dürfen 'may'. As in English, this is often replaced by können 'can' in everyday conversation, even though strictly speaking this expresses ability rather than permission.

See 35 (pp. 74–81) for modal verbs and 39.2b (p. 94) for the use of the subjunctive to make requests for permission more polite.

Darf/Dürfte ich mal kurz telefonieren?

My I make a brief phone call?

See 35.1–6 (pp. 74–80).

Kann/Könnte ich vielleicht Ihr Fahrrad ausleihen?

Could I possibly borrow your bicycle?

Another way of asking for permission involves es geht lit. 'it goes, it is OK':

Geht es, dass/wenn ich heute länger wegbleibe?

Is it OK if I stay out a little longer today?

Ginge es, dass Sie mir die Zahlungsfrist um einen Monat verlängern?

Would it be possible for you to extend the repayment period by a month?

Informal replies are normally quite idiomatic:

Limited consent:

Na gut./Also gut.

Well, OK then.

Wenn es (denn) sein muss.

If it has to be.

Also, ich bin (nicht) dagegen.

Well, I am (not) against it.

Consent	Refusal
Ja, das geht. Yes, that's OK.	Nein, das geht nicht. No, that's not OK.
Ja, das geht auf jeden Fall. Yes, that's certainly OK.	Nein, das geht auf keinen Fall. No, that's certainly not OK.
Das passt mir (gut). That suits me (fine).	Das passt mir (gar) nicht. That doesn't suit me (at all).
Das ist mir (sehr) recht. That's (certainly) OK with me.	Das ist mir (gar) nicht recht. That's not (at all) OK with me.
Gut, einverstanden. OK, agreed.	Nein, das kommt überhaupt nicht in Frage. No, that is out of the question.
Ja, ich bin einverstanden damit. OK, I agree.	Nein, das geht wirklich nicht (an). No, that is really too much.

97.2

Granting and denying permission when an authority or somebody in a superior position is involved

(jmdm.) etw. genehmigen 'to permit sb. to do sth.'
jmdm. etw. erlauben 'to allow sb. to do sth.'
-e Erlaubnis 'permission'
verbieten 'to forbid'
-s Verbot 'ban/prohibition'
zu*lassen 'to allow (to happen)/register'

genehmigen and its derivatives imply permission or consent of an official nature

Der Direktor hat schließlich die Versetzung des Schülers genehmigt.

The headmaster finally permitted the pupil to move up to the next class.

Habt ihr schon die Baugenehmigung für euer Haus?

Have you already got planning (lit. building) permission for your house?

Erlauben and its noun -e Erlaubnis refer to permission given or denied to somebody by a person or institution in authority. The opposite of erlauben is verbieten, together with its noun -s Verbot:

Wenn ich abends ausgehen will, muss ich mir erst die Erlaubnis meiner Eltern holen.

When I want to go out in the evening I first need to get permission from my parents.

Wer hat ihm denn erlaubt, einfach aus der Schule wegzubleiben?

Who allowed him simply to stay away from school?

Es ist streng verboten, in den Klassenräumen zu rauchen.

It is strictly forbidden to smoke in the classrooms.

Meine Eltern haben es mir (= dat.) erlaubt/verboten, in diese Disco zu gehen.

My parents allowed/forbade me to go to this disco.

Sie haben ihm (= dat.) ihr Haus (= acc.) verboten.

They forbade him to enter their house.

zu*lassen has both a very restricted meaning of 'to register' and a more general meaning of 'to permit/let happen'. It is more often used with nicht and can imply intolerance:

Das Auto war nicht einmal zugelassen.

The car wasn't even registered.

Ich kann es nicht zulassen, dass so ein Lehrer meine Kinder unterrichtet.

I cannot allow a teacher like that to teach my children.

A number of near-synonymous expressions fall into the same category of formal permitting or empowering:

jmdn. zu etw. ermächtigen 'to empower sb. to do sth.'

jmdm. die Befugnis zu etw. geben 'to give sb. permission to do sth.'

jmdm. die Befugnis zu etw. entziehen 'to withdraw permission for sb. to do sth.'

jmdm. sein Einverständnis zu etw. geben 'to give one's approval/consent to sb. doing sth.'

jmdm. sein Einverständnis zu etw. verweigern 'to deny one's approval to sb. doing sth.'

(-e) Vollmacht über etw. (= acc.) erhalten 'to be granted authority to do sth./receive probate'

Du bist gar nicht dazu ermächtigt/bevollmächtigt, so eine Entscheidung zu treffen.

You haven't got the authority to take such a decision.

Ich gebe dir die Befugnis, den geheimen Raum zu betreten.

I'll give you permission to enter the secret room.

Er hat gar keine Befugnis, diesen Computer zu benutzen.
He does not have permission to use this computer.

Sie hat das ohne mein Einverständnis/mit meinem Einverständnis getan.
She did this without my approval/with my approval.

Zu diesem Vertrag verweigere ich mein Einverständnis.
I refuse to approve this treaty/contract.

Die Erben haben Vollmacht über die Geldangelegenheiten der Großmutter erhalten.
The heirs have been granted power of attorney for their grandmother's financial affairs.

98

Making, accepting and declining suggestions

There are three basic ways of expressing suggestions:

(a) jmdm. etw. *vor*schlagen* 'to suggest sth. to sb.'

-r Vorschlag 'suggestion'

Ich schlage vor, dass wir uns nächste Woche wieder treffen.
I suggest that we meet again next week.

Er schlug vor, den Plan anzunehmen.
He suggested that they adopt the plan.

See 42.3f (p. 115) for verb completion by infinitive clauses with zu; see also 8.7a (p. 13) for word order.

Darf ich mal einen Vorschlag machen?
May I make a suggestion?

Wie lautet Ihr Vorschlag denn?
And what is your suggestion?

Sie müssen Ihre Vorschläge bis zum Ende des Monats bei uns einreichen.
You have to submit your suggestions to us by the end of the month.

(b) Being for or against a suggestion

etw. (einstimmig) *an*nehmen/ab*lehnen* 'to accept/refuse sth. (unanimously)' für/gegen etw. sein 'to be for/against sth.'
sich für/gegen etw./jmdn. *aus*sprechen* 'to speak for/against sth./sb.'

Der Vorschlag des Vorsitzenden wurde einstimmig angenommen/abgelehnt.
The chairman's suggestion was unanimously accepted/rejected.

Die Mehrheit war für/gegen den Plan.

The majority was for/against the plan.

Nur eine Minderheit sprach sich für/gegen das Projekt aus.

Only a minority spoke in favour of/against the project.

(c) Making a suggestion

Wie wäre es, wenn . . . ? 'How about if . . . ?

Wie wäre es mit . . . ? 'How about . . . (+ noun)?'

These constructions require Subjunctive II or a conditional (which may make the suggestion sound a little more formal):

Wie wäre es, wenn wir erst einmal einen Spaziergang machten/machen würden?

How about if we went for a walk first?

Wie wäre es, wenn du schon heute zu uns *käme*st?

How about if you came to us today?

Wie wäre es jetzt mit einem Kaffee?

How about a coffee now?

Appropriate replies to such a suggestion are:

Das wäre eine gute Idee/wäre toll!

That would be a good idea/wonderful!

Ich glaube, das wäre nicht so sinnvoll/keine gute Idee.

I think that wouldn't be sensible/such a good idea.

(d) Suggestions in the form of a question using a modal verb:

Könnten wir nicht* schon morgen in die Ferien fahren?

Couldn't we go on holiday tomorrow?

Sollte er nicht* erst den Professor fragen?

Shouldn't he ask the professor first?

Müsste man nicht* mehr Geld mitnehmen?

Wouldn't one have to take more money?

(e) Suggestions using lassen

Lass mich* nochmal über dein Angebot schlafen, bevor ich mich entscheide.

Let me sleep on your offer (again) before I decide.

Lass uns* doch mal in die neue Boutique gehen.

Let us have a look at the new boutique.

For lassen see 35.2 (p. 75) and 35.6 (p. 77).

99

Issuing and responding to warnings

99.1

Public and semi-public warnings

(a) Weather warnings

-e Hochwasserwarnung 'flood warning'

-e Sturm-/Gewitterwarnung 'storm/thunderstorm warning'

-e Schlechtwetterwarnung 'severe weather warning'

jmdn. warnen, etw. nicht zu tun/jmdn. davor warnen, etw. zu tun 'to warn sb. not to do sth./against doing sth.'

In den Nachrichten wurde gerade eine Sturmwarnung gesendet/ durchgegeben.

A storm warning has just been broadcast on the news.

Der ADAC hat gerade bekannt gegeben, dass wir mit schlechtem Wetter rechnen müssen.

The ADAC (Allgemeiner Deutscher Automobil-Club, similar to the AA) has just announced that we have to reckon with bad weather.

Laut Wetterbericht sollen wir uns auf Hochwasser gefasst machen.

According to the weather forecast we should prepare ourselves for flooding.

Die Medien warnen vor den schlechten Straßenzuständen.

The media are warning of bad road conditions.

Wegen der Lawinengefahr werden alle Gäste gewarnt, nicht abseits der Pisten Ski zu fahren.

Wegen der Lawinengefahr werden alle Gäste davor gewarnt, abseits der Pisten Ski zu fahren.

Because of the danger of avalanches all guests are warned not to ski off piste.

See 42.3f (p. 115) for verb completion by infinitive clauses with zu; see also 8.7a (p. 13) for word order.

(b) Warnings and alarms in emergencies and wartime

Die Flutwarnung wurde sechs Stunden vor der Springflut durchgegeben.

The flood warning was broadcast six hours before the spring tide.

Heute Morgen gab es wieder einen Tieffliegeralarm.

There was another low-flying aircraft alarm this morning.

Die Bevölkerung war ständig in Alarmbereitschaft. (formal)

The population was continuously in a state of alert.

Sogar in London gibt es manchmal einen Bombenalarm.

Even in London there is occasionally a bomb scare.

In einem Notfall muss man die Polizei/die Feuerwehr alarmieren.
(formal)

In an emergency you must call/the police/the fire brigade.

Bei einem Unfall muss man, wenn möglich, die Warnblinkanlage einschalten.

In case of an accident you must, if possible, switch on hazard lights.

Wenn der Notdienst mit Blaulicht und Martinshorn kommt, muss man die Straße räumen.

When the emergency vehicle arrives with lights flashing and its siren sounding, you must get off the road.

(c) Warnings of further potentially unsafe conditions

jmdn. verwarnen 'to warn/caution sb.'

jmdn. ermahnen, etw. zu tun 'to urge sb. to do sth.' (formal)

-e Ermahnung 'exhortation' (formal) sei vorsichtig 'beware/be careful'

pass auf/aufgepasst 'beware/watch out' es besteht . . . Gefahr 'there is a danger of . . . '

es gibt Gefahren 'there are dangers'

Alle Autofahrer wurden von der Polizei gewarnt, nicht mit Alkohol im Blut zu fahren.

All motorists were warned by the police not to drink and drive.

Vor Taschendieben wird gewarnt! (formal)

Beware of pick-pockets.

Der Fußgänger wurde von der Polizei verwarnt, weil er bei Rot über die Straße gegangen war.

The pedestrian was given a warning by the police because he had crossed the road when the lights were on red.

Er kam mit einer Verwarnung wegdavon

He got off with a caution.

Sie ermahnte den Fahrer immer wieder, langsamer zu fahren, weil die Straßen vereist waren.

She urged the driver again and again to go more slowly, as the roads were icy.

See 42.3f (p. 115) for verb completion by infinitive clauses with zu; see also 8.7a (p. 13) for word order.

Vorsicht, Baustelle! Eltern haften für ihre Kinder.

Caution, construction site. Parents are legally liable for their children.

Vorsicht, bissiger Hund./Cave canem. (Latin)

Beware of the (lit. biting) dog.

For the case in these constructions, see 17.3 (p. 24).

Seid vorsichtig, es könnte glatt sein.
Be careful, it could be slippery/icy.

See 41.1 (pp. 105–6).

Achtung aufgepasst, da kommt ein Wagen!
Watch out, a car is coming.

Es besteht Explosionsgefahr/Feuergefahr.
There is a danger of explosion/fire.

Für kleine Kinder gibt es in der Küche viele Gefahren.
There are many dangers in the kitchen for small children.

(d) Warnings in games and at school

-e gelbe Karte 'yellow card/(soccer)'
-e rote Karte 'red card' (soccer; also used in a metaphorical sense) einen blauen Brief bekommen 'to receive a letter (in a blue envelope)' from school indicating to parents that their child is in danger of not moving up to the next grade/year; now also used in political contexts

(e) Reacting to warnings

eine Warnung befolgen 'to heed a warning' eine Warnung missachten/aus*schlagen 'to ignore a warning' eine Warnung (nicht) Ernst nehmen 'to (not) take a warning seriously' sich vor*sehen, etw. nicht zu tun 'to be careful not to do sth.'
auf etw. (= acc.)/jmdn. auf*passen 'to pay attention to sth./sb.' or 'look after sth./sb.'
auf etw. (= acc.) achten 'to pay attention to sth.'
etw. beachten 'to respect sth.'
sich (= acc.) vor etw. hüten/in Acht nehmen 'to beware of sth.'
auf etw. (= acc.) Acht haben/geben 'to pay attention to sth.'

Der Skifahrer hatte die Warnung nicht befolgt.
The skier had not heeded the warning.

In den Bergen sollte man Warnungen von Einheimischen ernst nehmen/nicht ausschlagen.
In the mountains one should take seriously/not ignore the locals' warnings.

Ich sah mich vor, nicht zu schnell zu fahren.
I took care not to drive too fast.

Sie passten auf die Kinder auf.
They looked after the children/paid attention to the children.

Ich kann mich jetzt nicht unterhalten, denn ich muss auf die Straße achten.
I cannot chat now because I have to concentrate on the road.

Die Familie beachtete die Sturmwarnung nicht.

The family didn't heed the storm warning.

Vor großen Hunden sollten sich besonders Kinder in Acht nehmen.

Children especially should beware of big dogs.

Beim Nähen musst du auf die Nadel Acht haben/Acht geben. Sonst kannst du dich in den Finger stechen.

When you sew you need to be careful with the needle. Otherwise you might prick your finger.

See 37 (pp. 87–8) for the use of reflexive verbs.

99.2

Threat-like warnings

wenn . . . nicht, (dann) . . . 'if . . . not, (then) . . . '

jmdn. warnen 'to warn sb.'

jmdm. drohen 'to threaten sb.'

eine Drohung wahr*machen 'to carry out a threat'

Wenn du das nicht bis nächste Woche kannst, bekommst du Probleme.

If you cannot do it by next week you will have problems.

Ich warne Sie, bringen Sie die Sache jetzt in Ordnung oder sie wird Folgen für Sie haben.

I warn you, deal with this matter now or it will have serious consequences for you.

Ihm drohte eine Haftstrafe.

He was in danger of receiving a prison sentence.

Er nahm die Drohung nicht ernst.

He didn't take the threat seriously.

Du willst es nicht anders. Ich muss meine Drohung wahr machen.

You leave me no choice. I shall just have to carry out my threat.

Jetzt gibt's aber Krach! / Jetzt schlägt's aber dreizehn! (very informal)

That's the limit! I won't put up with this any longer!

XIV

Conveying attitudes and mental states

100

Asserting and denying the truth of something

100.1

Commenting on the truthfulness of something

Das ist ganz/völlig richtig/falsch. 'That's entirely correct/completely wrong.'
Das stimmt (eigentlich)./Das stimmt (eigentlich) nicht (ganz). 'That is (in fact) correct./That isn't (really) (quite) correct.'
Das ist (wirklich)/(eigentlich) (nicht) wahr. 'That's (really)/(actually)(not) true.'
So ein (völliger) Unsinn/Blödsinn (very derogatory)/Schwachsinn! (probably insulting) '(That's) (total) nonsense/rubbish!'

A dictionary will provide further reference for expressions with:

wahr sein 'to be true'
-e Wahrheit/Unwahrheit 'truth/untruth' gelogen 'lied/a lie'
lügen 'to lie'
-e Lüge 'lie'

100.2

The most common way to express belief or disbelief involves jmdm. etw. glauben 'to believe (sb.) sth.', and an jmdn./etw. glauben 'to believe in sb./sth.'

See 12 (pp. 17–18) for the order of noun and pronoun objects; and 42.3a–b (pp. 109–12) for verb completion with one or two elements.

Ich glaube ihm seine Ausrede.
I believe (him) his pretext/excuse.

Wir glauben an Gott.
We believe in God.

Sie glaubt fest an sie.
She firmly believes in her.

Sie glaubt an seinen Erfolg.
She believes in his success.

Seine Erklärung war nicht sehr glaubwürdig/glaubhaft.
His explanation was not very credible.

Die Glaubwürdigkeit ihrer Geschichte wurde angezweifelt.
The credibility of her story was doubted.

-r Glaube refers to 'belief' in a general sense, whereas the much less common
-r Glauben is used particularly when referring to 'faith'. -r Unglaube means 'lack of faith'.

100.3

For saying that something is neither completely true nor untrue there are a number of idiomatic expressions:

Das war nur die halbe Wahrheit.
That was only half the truth.

Er verbreitete das Gerücht, dass sie heute käme.
He spread the rumour that she was to arrive today.

Diese Behauptung ist völlig an den Haaren herbeigezogen/aus der Luft gegriffen.
This claim is extremely far-fetched. (lit. This claim has been pulled by its hair/grasped from the air).

Die Antwort ist nur teilweise richtig.
The answer is only partially correct.

100.4

Declaring something solemnly

For promises between people see 95.2 (pp. 348–9).

etw. (be)schwören 'to swear sth.'
jmdn. beschwören, etw. zu tun 'to plead with sb. to do sth.'
sich (= dat) schwören, etw. zu tun 'to be resolved to do sth.'
einen Schwur leisten 'to swear an oath' einen Eid ab*legen 'to swear an oath'

Sie beschwor ihre Unschuld.
She swore she was innocent.

Sie beschwor ihn, die Sache ernst zu nehmen.
She pleaded with him to take the matter seriously.

Er schwor sich, diesen Fehler nicht noch einmal zu machen.
He swore/was resolved not to repeat this mistake.

Er leistete einen Schwur, nicht eher zu ruhen, bis er dem Geheimnis auf die Spur käme.
He vowed not to rest until he had unveiled the mystery.

Alle Angeklagten müssen vor Gericht einen Eid ablegen/leisten, die Wahrheit und nichts als die Wahrheit zu sagen.
All defendants have to swear an oath in court to tell the truth and nothing but the truth.

See 42.3f (p. 115) for verb completion by an infinitive clause with zu; see also 8.7a (p. 13) for word order.

101

Expressing knowledge

101.1

German has two verbs for 'to know': wissen (which usually refers to facts) and kennen (which refers to people and places). There are many derivatives which have precise meanings in German, but often have no exact equivalents in English (see also 87.1, p. 318).

(a) (er)kennen and wissen

jmdn./etw. kennen 'to know sb./sth.'

jmdn./etw. erkennen 'to recognize sb./sth.'

-e Erkenntnis 'finding/insight'

-e Kenntnis 'knowledge'

-r Kenntnisstand 'level of knowledge'

Er erkannte seinen Bruder nach den vielen Jahren kaum noch.

He hardly recognized his brother after all those years.

Sie musste erkennen/musste zu der Erkenntnis kommen, dass sie in diesem Fall nicht helfen konnte.

She had to realize/understand that she could not help in this case.

Und Er erkannte, dass es gut war.

And he saw that it was good. (Bible: Genesis)

Die Forschung bringt uns viele Erkenntnisse, die für die Bekämpfung von schweren Krankheiten nützlich sind.

Research produces many findings which are useful for fighting serious diseases.

Es ist gar keine so neue Erkenntnis, dass der Mensch für seine Umwelt mitverantwortlich ist.

It is not such a new finding/insight that man shares responsibility for his environment.

Die Kenntnis dieses Buches ist für die Prüfung unbedingt wichtig.

It is essential to know this book for the exam.

Sein Kenntnisstand entspricht dem eines Fünfjährigen.

His level of knowledge is equivalent to that of a five-year-old.

etw. wissen 'to know sth.'

von etw. wissen 'to know of/about sth.'

um etw. wissen 'to know about sth.'

das Wissen 'knowledge'

über etw. Bescheid wissen 'to know about sth.'

Kenntnisstand and Wissensstand are used interchangeably

Er musste doch wissen, dass sein Fahrstil gefährlich war.

He must have known (after all) that his driving was dangerous.

Die Parlamentarier wussten schon lange von der Affäre.

The members of parliament had known about the affair for a long time.

Wir wissen um deine Geldsorgen und möchten dir gerne helfen.

We know about your financial worries and would like to help you.

Trotz unseres großen medizinischen Wissens können wir immer noch nicht alle Krankheiten heilen.

Despite our vast knowledge of medicine we still cannot cure all diseases.

Der heutige Wissensstand wäre vor fünfzig Jahren undenkbar gewesen.

The present state of knowledge would have been unthinkable fifty years ago.

101.2

Talking about arts and sciences

(a) die Wissenschaften

-e Geisteswissenschaften (plural) 'humanities'

-r Geisteswissenschaftler, – e Geisteswissenschaftlerin 'person working in the field of the humanities/arts'

-e Gesellschaftswissenschaften (plural) 'social sciences'

-r Gesellschaftswissenschaftler, – e Gesellschaftswissenschaftlerin 'person working in the field of social sciences'

-e Naturwissenschaften (plural) '(natural) sciences'

-r Naturwissenschaftler, -e Naturwissenschaftlerin 'person working in the field of (natural) sciences'

(b) Care needs to be taken when using akademisch, der Akademiker, die Akademie:

Da Japan schon ein Patent für unser neues Motorenmodell hat, ist unsere Entwicklungsarbeit akademisch.

As Japan already has a patent for our latest engine model our development work has become academic (i.e. superfluous).

Das Diplom wurde ihr mit allen akademischen Würden verliehen.

The diploma was given to her with full academic ceremony.

In Deutschland gibt es seit Jahren eine hohe Akademikerarbeitslosigkeit.

In Germany there has been high graduate unemployment for years.

NOTE -e Akademie 'academy/ school/ college'. The Akademie der Wissenschaften is a German institution similar to the Royal Society (in the different academic disciplines), but a (Sommer)Akademie is a '(summer) conference/school'.

102

Remembering and forgetting

102.1

The verb erinnern 'remember' and its derivatives can be used in a number of ways:

etw. erinnern 'to remember sth.' (emphasizes the process of deliberately trying to recall sth.)

sich an etw./jmdn. erinnern 'to remember sth./sb.' (emphasizes that a certain piece of information comes to mind – this is the standard verb for 'to remember')

-e Erinnerung 'memory/memories'

Er erinnerte bestimmte Kindheitserlebnisse, die jetzt eine neue Bedeutung für ihn annahmen.

He recalled certain childhood events which were now taking on a new meaning for him.

Erinnerst du dich noch an den schönen Abend neulich im Löwen?

Do you remember the lovely evening we had in the Löwe (pub) recently?

Die Erinnerung an ihre Tage in Wien bedrückte sie.

Memories of her days in Vienna depressed her.

102.2

Commemoration

gedenken (gedachte, gedacht) (+ gen.) 'to remember respectfully'

etw./jmdn. ehren 'to honour sth./sb.'

1995 gedachten wir des Kriegsendes vor fünfzig Jahren.

In 1995 we commemorated the end of the war fifty years ago.

Wir ehren das Gedenken der Toten.

We honour the memory of the dead.

Other useful expressions are:

-e Gedenkfeier 'commemoration'

-e Gedenkminute 'minute's silence'

-e Gedenkstätte 'memorial'

-r Gedenktag 'commemoration day/day of remembrance'

-e Gedenktafel 'memorial plaque'

102.3

The (imaginary) place where memories are stored is das Gedächtnis 'memory':

(klar/deutlich) im Gedächtnis sein/haben 'to remember (clearly)'

etw. im Gedächtnis behalten 'to keep sth. in one's memory' sich etw. ins Gedächtnis zurückrufen 'to recall sth.'

etw. aus dem Gedächtnis verlieren 'to forget' (lit. 'to lose sth. out of one's memory') an Gedächtnisschwund leiden (often used jokingly among younger people) 'to suffer from memory loss'

Mir ist doch deutlich im Gedächtnis, dass wir uns heute treffen wollten.

I remember clearly that we wanted to meet today.

Legastheniker müssen sich Regeln, die die meisten instinktiv kennen, immer wieder aktiv ins Gedächtnis zurückrufen.

Dyslexic people need to actively recall rules which most others know instinctively.

Das war mir total (aus dem Gedächtnis) entfallen.

I had completely forgotten about it.

In connection with Gedächtnis, other expressions are also common:

jmdm. gegenwärtig sein 'to remember' (lit. 'to be present in one's memory')

etw. parat haben 'to remember off the cuff'/'have a piece of information to hand' in den Sinn kommen 'to remember' (lit. 'to come into one's mind')

etw. im Kopf haben/etw. behalten 'to remember sth. (and know by heart)

etw. auswendig wissen/können 'to remember sth./know sth. by heart' (without looking it up)

Die Reise war ihm noch ganz klar/gar nicht mehr gegenwärtig.

He still clearly remembered the journey/didn't remember the journey at all any more.

In ihrem Physikexamen hatte sie alle mathematischen Formeln parat.

In her physics exam she was able to remember all the mathematical formulas.

Ihm* war wieder in den Sinn gekommen (literary)/eingefallen (neutral), dass er heute Abend Besuch bekäme.

He remembered that he was going to have visitors this evening.

Hast du* Marias Telefonnummer im Kopf/behalten?/Kennst du Marias Telefonnummer auswendig?

Do you know Maria's telephone number (by heart/without looking it up)?

Stell dir vor, er weiß auswendig, wann seine Kollegen Geburtstag haben.

Imagine, he knows all his colleagues' birthdays by heart.

NOTE A computer's memory is -r Speicher.

102.4

Acquiring and forgetting knowledge and skills

Lernen, verlernen, vergessen

(a) lernen is used for the process of acquiring knowledge as well as for the result:

Lernst du schon eine Fremdsprache?

Do you already study a foreign language?

Haben Sie die Geheimnummer (auswendig) gelernt?

Have you learnt your PIN (by heart)?

(b) German makes a distinction between vergessen and verlernen lit. 'to de-learn'. Vergessen is used when one has forgotten information that has been learnt. Acquired behaviour, skills and attitudes cannot be forgotten in the same way, and verlernen is used in these instances:

Fahrrad fahren verlernt man nie.

You never forget how to ride a bicycle.

Distinguish -e Vergesslichkeit 'forgetfulness' and -e Vergessenheit 'oblivion', which is only used in a few set phrases:

Diese Episode der Geschichte fiel der Vergessenheit anheim/geriet in Vergessenheit.

This historical episode sank into oblivion.

103

Expressing future intentions

103.1

Future intentions can be expressed by werden (34.3–4, pp. 71–2) or a modal verb (möchte, wollen, see 35, pp. 74–80):

Wir möchten/wollen nächsten Sommer nach Italien fahren.

We'd like to/want to go to Italy next summer.

The future tense with werden often implies a particularly firm intention or even a threat:

Ich werde ihm zeigen, was wir leisten können.

I'll show him what we can achieve.

Er wird das nicht noch einmal machen.

He won't do that again.

Ich werde das Darlehen zurückzahlen.

I will repay the loan.

Ich werde vor dem Examen das Buch gelesen haben.

I will have read the book before the exam.

There are other verbal expressions implying intention. Where they are followed by a clause, an infinitive + zu construction is required (see 42.3f, p. 115):

etw. planen/vor*haben 'to plan/intend to'
 etw. im Auge haben 'to have one's eye on sth.'
 etw. (für . . .) ins Auge fassen 'to intend to do sth. (for . . .)' sich (= dat.) etw. vor*nehmen 'to have the intention of doing sth.'

Wir haben nächsten Sommer eine Reise vor.
Wir haben nächsten Sommer vor, eine Reise zu machen.
 We intend to go on a trip next summer.

Ich hatte mir vorgenommen, dort nie mehr hinzufahren.
 I had resolved never to go there again.

Für die kommenden Ferien haben wir noch nichts Bestimmtes ins Auge gefasst.
 We haven't made any concrete plans for the next vacation.

104

Expressing likes and dislikes: people, things and situations

104.1

Praise and criticism

See also 112 (pp. 401–4) for satisfaction and dissatisfaction.

In German, neither understatement nor exaggeration are taken as a serious comment and can at best disorientate. To some extent what is appropriate depends on the situation. For example, imagine you have just booked into a hotel, and reception has asked whether everything is OK:

(a) Satisfaction – expressions ranging from indifference to high praise:

Ja, danke. (Das Zimmer ist in Ordnung).
 Yes, thank you. (The room is fine.)

Ja prima. (Das Zimmer gefällt mir).
 Yes, very good. (I like the room.)

Danke, alles bestens. (This can occasionally sound a bit short.)
 Thank you, fine.

Danke, es ist sehr bequem.
 Thank you, it is very comfortable.

Danke, es ist wunderbar. Mir gefällt besonders die Aussicht.
 Thank you, it is wonderful. I particularly like the view.

(b) Dissatisfaction – expressions ranging from slight dismay to complete dissatisfaction and anger:

Es ist leider ein bisschen kalt/nicht ganz sauber . . .
 It is unfortunately a little cold/not quite clean . . .

Es lässt (doch) einiges zu wünschen übrig.
 It leaves something to be desired.

Es ist (einfach) unmöglich.

It is (simply) unacceptable.

So ein Zimmer können Sie unmöglich Gästen anbieten.

How can you possibly offer such a room to your guests?

So ein Lärm/Dreck . . . ist einfach unzumutbar.

Such noise/dirt . . . is completely unreasonable/just too much.

104.2

Expressions for likes and dislikes can be classified according to whether they are used only for people or for people and things.

(a) People and things

For the meaning of modal verbs, see 35.6 (p. 74).

With the accusative:

mögen (mag), mochte, gemocht 'to like' (see 35.1–6)

etw./jmdn. (sehr) gern mögen 'to like sth./sb. a lot (very much) etw./jmdn. nicht gern mögen 'to not like sth./sb.'

etw./jmdn. so gern mögen 'to like sth./sb. so much'

(nicht) gern(e) etw. tun 'to (not) like doing sth.'

Note mögen can be 'graded' in the positive and in the negative:

Positive	Negative
mögen gern(e) mögen sehr gern(e) mögen/besonders mögen	nicht so (gern(e)) mögen nicht (gern(e)) mögen gar nicht/überhaupt nicht (gern(e)) mögen

Sie mochte ihn, aber heiraten wollte sie ihn nicht.

She liked him but didn't want to marry him.

Ich mag Rosenkohl überhaupt nicht.

I don't like sprouts at all/hate sprouts.

Meine Schwester wäscht gar nicht gerne ab.

My sister hates doing the washing up.

Das habe ich nicht so gern, dass du in deinem Alter nach 10 Uhr abends nach Hause kommst.

I really don't like you coming home after 10 o'clock at your age.

Im Sommer fahren wir immer gerne ans Meer.

In summer we always like to go to the seaside.

With the nominative:

gefallen 'to please'

etw./jmd. gefällt jmdm. 'sb. likes sb./sth.' (but not for food and drink) etw./jmd. gefällt jmdm. gut 'sb. likes sb./sth. a lot'

etw./jmd. gefällt jmdm. sehr (gut) 'sb. likes sth./sb. a lot'

etw./jmd. gefällt jmdm. nicht 'sb. does not like/dislikes sth./sb.'

Die Frau gefällt mir!
I like that woman!

Die Musik heute Abend gefällt uns besonders gut.
We particularly like the music tonight.

For verbs taking the dative, see 19.7 (p. 29).

NOTE

Du gefällt mir nicht refers to someone's health and indicates that the speaker is concerned that you are looking ill. Similarly, deine heiße Stirne gefällt mir nicht is not a comment on your (lack of) beauty but implies that you may be running a temperature.

See 110.8e (p. 388) for temperature.

Gefallen is not used in connection with food.

(b) People only

jmdn. lieben 'to love sb.'

jmdn. hassen 'to hate sb.' (conveys a much stronger feeling in German than in English and is therefore to be used with discretion)

Werther liebte Charlotte, aber sie war schon verheiratet.
Werther loved Charlotte but she was already married.

Die Schweiz ist ein gutes Beispiel für ein Land, wo sich Völker verschiedenen Ursprungs nicht hassen.

Switzerland is a good example of a country where people of different origin do not hate each other.

Significantly there seem to be more expressions for dislike than for like:

jmdn. nicht (so gut) leiden können 'to not like sb./not be able to bear sb.'

jmdn. nicht ausstehen können 'to not be able to bear sb. at all' nichts für jmdn. übrig haben 'to not care for (i.e. about) sb.'

Für solche arroganten Verkäufer habe ich überhaupt nichts übrig.

I don't care at all for such arrogant salespeople.

Idiom: Du kannst mich gern haben.

Get lost.

105

Indicating preferences

105.1

There is a simple gradation pattern for stating degrees of preference:

Positive: gern – lieber – am liebsten (see 48 and 51)

Wir gehen gern in die Oper. Wir gehen lieber ins Konzert. Wir gehen am liebsten ins Schauspiel.	We like to go to the opera. We prefer to go to a concert. We most enjoy going to the theatre/a play.
--	--

Negative: nicht gern – weniger gern – am wenigsten gern/gar nicht gern/überhaupt nicht gern

Wir gehen nicht gern in die Oper. Wir gehen weniger gern ins Konzert. Wir gehen am wenigsten gern ins Schauspiel. Wir gehen gar nicht gern/überhaupt nicht gern ins Schauspiel.	We don't like going to the opera. We are less keen on going to concerts. We like going to the theatre least of all. We don't like going to the theatre at all.
--	---

105.2

Making comparisons

(a) Where two things are equally liked: genauso (+ adverb) . . . wie 'as . . . as'; nicht so (+ adverb) . . . wie 'not as . . . as' (see also 48.6a for the comparative)

Ich gehe genauso gerne ins Theater wie ins Konzert.
I like going to the theatre (just) as much as to a concert.

Mein Bruder trinkt Rotwein nicht so gern wie Weißwein.
My brother does not like red wine as much as white wine.

See 59.1c (p. 149) for upper and lower case spelling.

(b) Expressing a preference: comparative + als

Wir arbeiten lieber im Büro als auf der Baustelle.
We prefer working in the office to working on a construction site.

Sie trinkt lieber spanischen als portugiesischen Rotwein.
She prefers (drinking) Spanish red wine to Portuguese red wine.

Er hat seine Kinder lieber als seinen Hund.
He likes his children more than his dog.

See 48.6a (p. 127) for the case after als.

(c) The prefix vor- can often express a preference:

eine Vorliebe für etw./jmdn. haben 'to have a preference (taste) for sth./sb.'
mit Vorliebe etw. tun 'to particularly like doing sth.'
etw./jmdm. den Vorzug vor etw./jmdm. geben 'to prefer sth./sb. to sth./sb.'
(formal)

etw./jmdn. bevorzugen 'to prefer sth./sb.' (may imply unfair preference) es vor*ziehen, etw. zu tun 'to prefer doing sth.'

jmdn./etw. jmdm./etw. vor*ziehen (formal, mostly written language) 'to prefer sb./sth. to sb./sth.'

bevorzugt behandelt werden 'to be given preferential treatment'

Er hörte mit Vorliebe nachts Musik, wenn alle anderen Hausbewohner schlafen wollten. (formal)

He particularly liked to listen to music at night, when all the other tenants wanted to sleep.

Bei Stellenanzeigen ist wird oft immer noch gesagt, dass jüngere Bewerber bevorzugt werden.

Many job adverts still make it clear that younger applicants stand a better chance.

Er zog den alten Shakespeare dem Romantiker Wordsworth vor.

He preferred the old Shakespeare to the Romantic Wordsworth.

Wir ziehen unser altes kleines Haus dem großen neuen vor.

We prefer our small old house to the big new one.

Sie zogen es vor, kein Risiko einzugehen.

They preferred not to take any risk.

Käufer, die bar bezahlen können, werden bevorzugt behandelt.

Customers able to pay in cash are being given preferential treatment.

106

Expressing indifference

German is not rich in expressions of indifference:

Das ist mir (völlig) gleich/egal/wurst (informal)/scheißegal (rude).

It's all the same to me./I couldn't care less./I couldn't give a damn.

Das schert mich nicht/einen Teufel (rude).

That doesn't concern/bother me at all.

Um solche Gerüchte schere ich mich nicht.

I don't bother listening to such rumours.

Das interessiert mich nicht die Bohne.

I couldn't give a damn.

If you want to leave the decision to someone else or have to concede victory to someone else, you might also say:

Ganz wie du meinst/Sie meinen.

Just as you think.

Das überlasse ich dir/Ihnen.

I'll leave that to you (to decide).

Machen Sie das, wie Sie wollen (potentially impatient).

Do as you please.

Machen Sie, was Sie wollen.

Do as you please.

Voicing opinion

The most common words and constructions involve the verb meinen 'to think':

Ich meine, das sollten wir machen.

I think we should do it.

Welcher (= gen.) Meinung sind Sie?/Was meinen Sie dazu?

What is your opinion?/What do you think about that?

Wessen Meinung sind Sie?

Of whose opinion are you?/Who do you agree with?

For expressions taking the genitive case see 20 (pp. 31–3), particularly 20.5.

A number of verbs can be used with -e Meinung (see also the following section).

Meinung can be replaced by -e Ansicht 'view', often by -e Position 'position' as well as by -r Standpunkt 'point of view'.

(s)eine Meinung/Ansicht/Position vertreten 'to be of an opinion/to hold/defend a view/position'

(s)eine Meinung/Ansicht/Position verfechten/verteidigen 'to defend one's/an opinion/view/position'

(s)eine Meinung/Ansicht zum Ausdruck bringen 'to express one's/an opinion/view'

(s)einer Meinung/Ansicht (= dat.) Ausdruck verleihen 'to express one's/an opinion' bei (s)einer Meinung/Ansicht/Position bleiben (also auf etw. (= dat.) beharren) 'to stick to one's guns'

(s)eine Meinung/Position ändern 'to change one's/an opinion/position'

(fest) hinter einer Meinung/Ansicht stehen 'to back (firmly) an opinion/view' zu einer Meinung/Ansicht stehen 'to support an opinion/to defend an opinion/view' seine eigene Meinung/eigenen Ansichten (in einer Sache) haben 'to have one's own opinion/views (in a matter)' eine vorgefasste Meinung gegenüber etw./jmdn. haben 'to be prejudiced against sth./sb.' (lit. 'to have the firm opinion that') der festen Meinung/Überzeugung (= gen.) sein, dass . . . 'to be firmly convinced that . . .'

sich (= dat.) eine Meinung über etw. (= acc.) bilden 'to come to an opinion about sth./form a view on sth.'

Viele Politiker vertraten die Ansicht, dass Korruption von Ministern nur die Ausnahme sei.

Many politicians were of the view that ministerial corruption was exceptional (lit. the exception).

Rechtsextremisten haben eine vorgefasste Meinung gegenüber Ausländern.

Right-wing extremists are prejudiced against foreigners.

See 85.1 (p. 307) for the mood of verbs when expressing opinion rather than fact.

For compound words with Meinung-, consult your dictionary:

- e Meinungsverschiedenheit 'difference of opinion/argument'
- r Meinungskonflikt 'conflict of opinions'
- e Meinungsmache 'manipulation of (public) opinion', e.g. by the media or by political groups
- Eltern-, Lehrer-, Schülermeinung 'opinion of parents, teachers, pupils', etc.

Other verbs expressing opinion are finden 'to find', glauben 'to believe' and denken 'to think'. However, denken is far less frequently used than meinen and finden:

Ich glaube nicht, dass du in diesem Buch eine Antwort auf deine Frage findest.

I don't think you will find an answer to your question in this book.

Finden Sie auch, dass man etwas gegen die zunehmende Umweltverschmutzung tun muss?

Do you too think something must be done about the increasing environmental pollution?

Er dachte nicht, dass seine Abwesenheit solche Konsequenzen haben würde.

He didn't expect his absence to have such consequences.

Expressing firm convictions

Some believe that Meinung is an attitude based on emotions rather than reason. In order to stress conviction, halten von 'think of/have an opinion about' may be used:

Was halten Sie von der neuen Regierung? – Ich halte nicht viel von ihren wirtschaftlichen Plänen.

What do you think of the new government? – I don't think much of their economic plans.

-e Haltung 'attitude' or, alternatively, -e Einstellung 'view/attitude' refers to something deeper than Meinung or Ansicht:

Die Schule hat die Aufgabe, Schüler zu einer demokratischen Haltung zu erziehen.

It's the school's task to educate pupils to a democratic attitude.

Haltung can also refer to behaviour:

Während der Beerdigung haben die Familienangehörigen Haltung bewahrt.

During the funeral the family maintained their composure.

Compare also the participle eingestellt 'orientated/biased':

In den siebziger Jahren galt es als modern, links eingestellt zu sein.

In the seventies it was considered fashionable to be leftist.

-e Überzeugung 'conviction' / überzeugt 'convinced' can be an even more deeply rooted attitude, often founded on moral grounds:

Sie waren aus Überzeugung Christen./Sie waren überzeugte Christen.

They were devout Christians (lit. out of conviction).

Sie brachte ihren Standpunkt mit Überzeugung vor.
She presented her point of view with conviction.

109

Expressing agreement and disagreement

See also 119 (pp. 427–32) for 'Shaping the course of a conversation'.

109.1

Many constructions expressing agreement or disagreement centre around -e Meinung, -e Ansicht. -e Position 'position' is also possible in some combinations (as shown below):

(a) Agreement

für etw. sein 'to be for/in favour of sth.'

der gleichen/gleicher Meinung/Ansicht sein 'to be of the same opinion' sich (= acc.) einer Meinung/Ansicht/Position an*schließen 'to come to back an opinion/position' zu der Meinung von jmdm. stehen 'to support the opinion of sb.'

mit der Meinung/Ansicht/Position von jmdm. überein*stimmen 'to agree with the opinion/position of sb.'

mit jmdm. einer Meinung/Ansicht sein 'to agree with (the opinion of) sb./be of the same opinion as sb.'

sich einer Meinung anschließen 'to agree with sb.'

In der Frage der Kinderbetreuung war das Ehepaar der gleichen Ansicht.

As far as childcare was concerned the couple were in agreement.

Ich stimme mit deiner Meinung in der Frage der Rentenfinanzierung überein.

I agree with you on the issue of how to finance the pensions.

Die SPD hat sich in Umweltfragen dann doch der Meinung der Grünen angeschlossen.

Concerning environmental questions the SPD has come to agree with the Greens (Green Party).

(b) Disagreement

doch! 'not at all!/Yes, they are!', etc. (i.e. contradicting a negative) gegen etw. sein 'to be against sth.'

etw. ab*lehnen 'to refuse sth./be opposed to sth.'

anderer Meinung/anderer Ansicht/einer anderen Meinung/einer anderen Ansicht über etw. (= acc.)/in etw. sein 'to be of a different opinion about sth.'

unterschiedlicher/verschiedener Meinung/Ansicht über etw. (= acc.)/in etw. sein 'to be of a different opinion about sth.'

über etw. (= acc.) geteilter Meinung sein 'to have different opinions/be in two minds about sth.'

eine Meinungsverschiedenheit über etw. (= acc.) haben 'to be of a different opinion about sth./have a dispute about sth.'

Differenzen (plural) zwischen 'differences of opinion between'

A common way of indicating disagreement with what someone has said is doch, but it is only used to contradict an actual or implied negative (see 117.1). Doch can be the first word of the response, or it may be used later in the sentence:

Du hast wohl kein Geld. > Doch, ich habe zwanzig Euro./Ich habe doch zwanzig Euro.

But you haven't got any money > Yes, I have. I've got twenty euros.

Manche Eltern sind dagegen, ihre Kinder von fremden Leuten betreuen zu lassen.

Some parents are against having their children minded by strangers.

Wir lehnen solche Privilegien grundsätzlich ab.

We are fundamentally opposed to such privileges.

Use unterschiedlich or verschieden when at least two different opinions are being discussed; use ander- when a second opinion is being introduced (for the difference between verschieden, unterschiedlich and ander-, see also 76.8e-f).

Sie war für den Kauf des Hauses. Er war aber anderer Ansicht.

She was in favour of buying the house but he disagreed (i.e. was of a different opinion).

Premierminister und Schatzkanzler sind in finanzpolitischen Fragen oft verschiedener/unterschiedlicher Meinung.

The Prime Minister and the Chancellor often differ over questions of finance policy.

In finanzpolitischen Fragen gibt es oft Differenzen zwischen den beiden.

In matters of finance policy there are often differences between the two of them.

Ich bin geteilter Meinung darüber, ob wir mit den Kindern wirklich eine so große Reise machen sollten.

I am in two minds about whether we should really go on such a big trip with the children.

Wir waren geteilter Meinung über das Wahlergebnis.

We couldn't agree on the outcome of the election.

(c) Meinung, Ansicht and Position can be characterized further by the following verbs:

(stark/weit) divergieren 'to diverge (significantly) (from each other)' auseinander*gehen 'to diverge' auseinander*klaffen 'to diverge widely'

jmdn. mit etw. überzeugen 'to convince sb. because of sth.'
etw. richtig*stellen 'to correct sth.'

Während der Waffenstillstandsverhandlungen wurde klar, dass die Ansichten der beiden Verhandlungspartner stark (voneinander) divergierten.

During the cease-fire negotiations it became apparent that the views of the two sides diverged significantly.

Bei der Frage, ob Kinder schon mit vier Jahren in die Schule gehen sollten, gehen die Meinungen der Eltern total auseinander.

On the question of whether children should start school as early as age four, parents' opinions differ widely.

Er ist ziemlich unpopulär, überzeugt aber durch seine feste Haltung/ mit seiner festen Haltung.

He is rather unpopular but convinces people through his firm stance.

Lassen Sie mich die Ansicht, hier sei nur der Staat verantwortlich, mal richtigstellen.

Allow me to correct the opinion that only the state is responsible (in this matter).

(d) Meinung, Ansicht and Position can also be:

kontrovers 'controversial' unvertretbar 'indefensible' unhaltbar 'untenable'
klug 'intelligent/smart' überzeugend 'convincing' entscheidend 'decisive'

109.2

Constructions with einigen 'to come to an agreement' and -e Einigung 'agreement/ process of agreeing':

sich auf (eine Lösung) einigen 'to come to agree on (a solution)' Einigung (in einer Frage) erzielen 'to reach agreement (on a question)'
-r Einigungsprozess 'process of agreeing'; in German politics, process of unification

The participial form of stehen 'to stand' as well as the derived noun form -ständnis are often used figuratively and can have different meanings in conjunction with different prefixes:

mit etw. einverstanden sein 'to agree with/give one's consent' sein Einverständnis zu etw. geben 'to agree/consent (in a formal context, e.g. marriage) to sth.'
über eine Frage im Einverständnis sein 'to be agreed on a matter' jmdm. (widerwillig) etw. zu*gestehen 'to concede sth. (reluctantly) to sb.'

ein Zugeständnis machen 'to make a concession' jmdm. etw. ein*räumen 'to concede sth. to sb.'

Die Verhandlungspartner waren über das Problem der FCKW Emissionen im Einverständnis, wollten sich aber bei der Lösung gegenseitig keine Zugeständnisse einräumen.

The partners in the negotiations about CFC emissions were agreed on the problem but did not want to make any unilateral concessions.

109.3

There are many constructions involving the verb -stimmen and the noun -e Stimmung. They can occur with a number of prefixes, and the meaning is determined by the respective prefix.

für etw. stimmen 'to vote in favour of'

Die Mehrheit stimmte für eine Kabinettsumbildung.
The majority voted in favour of a cabinet reshuffle.

mit jmdm./etw. überein*stimmen 'to agree with sb./on sth.'
mit jmdm. in einer Sache überein*stimmen 'to agree with sb. on sth.'
Übereinstimmung erzielen 'to reach (an) agreement' zur Übereinstimmung bringen 'to bring to an agreement' (also in a mathematical sense)

In der Frage der Obdachlosen stimmen wir mit Ihnen überein.
We agree with you on the question of the homeless.

jmdm./einer Sache zu*stimmen 'to agree with sb./on a matter' einer Sache die Zustimmung verweigern 'to refuse to agree to sth.'
einer Sache die volle Zustimmung geben 'to agree totally on a matter' Zustimmung finden 'to meet with approval' nur teilweise Zustimmung finden 'to meet with partial approval'
Zustimmung zu einer Sache erhalten 'to receive/achieve approval in a matter'

Der Gesetzesvorschlag fand die volle Zustimmung der Abgeordneten.
The bill was approved by all the members of parliament.

über eine Sache ab*stimmen 'to take a vote on a matter' eine Sache zur Abstimmung bringen 'to put sth. to the vote'

Der Gesetzesvorschlag über die Mineralölsteuererhöhung sollte noch vor der Sommerpause zur Abstimmung gebracht werden.
The bill on the increase in fuel tax was to be put to the vote before the summer recess.

NOTE

über etw. (= acc.) überein*kommen 'come to an agreement about sth.', -s Abkommen 'agreement/treaty':

Man kam schließlich überein, sich noch einmal in der folgenden Woche zu treffen.

It was finally agreed they would meet again the following week.

109.4

Negating actions and objects

(a) with nicht

Actions are negated using nicht (for position of nicht see 13):

Sie kauft heute nicht ein.

She is not going shopping today.

Ich brauche davon nichts.

I don't need any of this.

(b) with kein

Objects are negated using kein and its declined forms (see 24.2):

Er hat keine Zeit für seine Frau.

He has no time for his wife.

Hast du denn kein Geld?

Do you not have any money?

(c) grading the negation

Negation can be graded by using fast nicht	hardly (at all)	fast kein	hardly any überhaupt nicht	not at all	überhaupt kein	none/not a single fast überhaupt nicht	hardly at all	fast überhaupt kein	hardly any nicht mehr	no more	kein . . . mehr	no . . . more überhaupt nicht	hardly at all	überhaupt kein	no . . . more/not a mehr	any more	mehr	single . . . any more gar nicht	not at all	gar kein	none/not a single

Die Gruppe hatte fast nicht geschlafen.

The group had hardly slept at all.

Am Monatsende haben Studenten oft überhaupt kein Geld mehr.

At the end of the month students often have no money left.

Kannst du dir das denn gar nicht vorstellen?

Can you not imagine this at all?

Manche Leute haben eben gar keine Geduld mit ihren Mitmenschen.

Some people simply have no patience whatsoever with their neighbours.

See also kein 22.3 (p. 37), 24.2 (p. 43); nicht 104.2 (p. 370), 70.1 (p. 215)

110

Talking about physical well being 110.1

Feeling and looking well

(a) Physical well being is usually expressed by means of fühlen or gehen. Fühlen is used reflexively: sich fühlen, the reflexive pronoun being in the accusative.

See 37 (pp. 87–90) for reflexive verbs; and 110.8a (pp. 387–8) for feeling unwell.

To express how well you are feeling, the following adverbs can be used:

gut 'well'
 prima 'splendid'
 bestens 'very well'
 gesund 'healthy'
 wohl/wohlauf 'well' pudelwohl (lit. 'as well as a poodle') 'feeling on the top of the world' ausgezeichnet 'splendid'

Bei diesem warmen Wetter fühle ich mich so richtig wohl.
 In this warm weather I feel really well.

In diesem gemütlichen Ferienhaus mit dem köstlichen Essen und netter Gesellschaft fühlten wir uns pudelwohl.
 We felt on the top of the world in this cosy holiday home with its splendid food and nice company.

Gemütlich, incidentally, is difficult to translate. It is inherent in the German mentality, and suggests a mixture of cosiness, informality and friendliness.

Another way to express well being is jmdm. geht es gut 'someone is well'.

See 110.2 (pp. 381–2) for gehen + dat.

Er fühlt sich ausgezeichnet, besser könnte es ihm gar nicht gehen.
 He feels great. He couldn't feel any better.

(b) Looking well

See 74.3 (pp. 231–2) for 'Physical appearance and looks'; and 110.8a (pp. 387–8) for looking unwell.

Du siehst gut/gesund/blühend aus.
 You look well/healthy/radiant.

110.2

Enquiring about someone's health and responding

To enquire after physical (and general) well being, the question Wie geht es Ihnen? 'How are you?' is used.

See 60.5 (pp. 162–3) for 'Enquiring about well being'.

This is usually meant as a real, not a rhetorical, question and requires a true answer.

The answer would also use, or at least imply, gehen with the dative:

Wie geht es Ihnen? – (Mir geht's) Gut, danke.

How are you? – Well, thank you.

To elaborate on this:

Mir geht es prima/recht gut/den Umständen entsprechend gut.

I feel great/quite well/well, under the circumstances.

Germans don't tend towards understatement as much as Anglo-Saxons. Therefore nicht schlecht literally implies 'not ill', etc., rather than 'really quite well'.

If concerned that someone might look unwell, ask:

Fehlt dir etwas?/Was fehlt dir denn?

Is anything wrong/the matter?

110.3

Talking about health

Health is referred to as:

-e Gesundheit 'health'

sich (= acc.) bester Gesundheit erfreuen 'to be in the best of health'

bei bester Gesundheit sein 'to be in the best of health' gesund sein 'to be healthy'

(a) Saying that someone/something is healthy

Er ist bei/Er erfreut sich bester Gesundheit.

He is in/enjoys the best of health.

Er ist gesund/kerngesund.

He is healthy/really healthy/fit as a fiddle.

Wandern an der frischen Luft soll besonders gesund sein.

Walking in the fresh air is supposed to be especially healthy.

(b) Wishing someone good health when he or she sneezes

Gesundheit!

Bless you! (lit. Good health!)

110.4

Healthy lifestyle

(a) Exercising and keeping fit sich (= acc.) (körperlich und geistig) fit halten 'to keep fit' (physically and mentally) fit sein 'to be fit'

Sport treiben 'to play sport' sich bewegen 'to exercise' (lit. 'move oneself')

regelmäßig 'regularly'

Mit seinen 45 Jahren ist er noch richtig fit.

At 45 he is still really fit.

Wir wollen regelmäßig schwimmen/joggen gehen.

We want to go swimming/jogging regularly.

(b) Keeping a balanced diet sich (= acc.) ernähren (lit. 'to nourish oneself') 'to eat'

(-e) Diät halten 'to be on/keep to a diet'

etw. zu sich nehmen 'to eat'

eine Kost zu sich nehmen 'to keep to a diet'

Man soll sich vernünftig/gut ernähren.

We should eat sensibly/well.

-e Diät traditionally means a medically prescribed special diet. The meaning of low-fat/low-calorie diet is more recent:

Sag bloß nicht, du musst schon wieder Diät halten/machen!

Don't say you are on a diet/following a diet again!

-e Kost is a more general term for 'diet':

Die Weltgesundheitsorganisation empfiehlt, dass wir eine ausgewogene/fettarme/kalorienarme/vitaminreiche/ballaststoffreiche Kost zu uns nehmen.

The World Health Organization recommends maintaining a balanced/low-fat/low-calorie/vitamin-rich/high-fibre diet.

(c) Gaining and losing weight

-s Gewicht 'weight'

ab*nehmen 'to lose weight'

zu*nehmen 'to gain weight'

Er hat trotz der vielen Medikamente sein Gewicht (niedrig) halten können.

Despite the numerous medicines he had to take he was able to keep his weight down.

Bis zu meinem Strandurlaub muss ich unbedingt zehn Pfund abnehmen.

I must definitely lose ten pounds before my beach holiday.

Sie dürfen auf keinen Fall mehr zunehmen.

You mustn't gain any more weight, whatever happens.

etw. (= dat.) vor*beugen 'to prevent sth.'

vorbeugende Maßnahmen treffen 'to take preventative measures' vor*sorgen 'to make provisions'

-e Vorsorge 'precaution/provision' sich vor etw. (= dat.) schützen 'to protect oneself from sth.'

(a) Taking precautions

Vorbeugen ist besser als heilen. (proverb)
 Prevention is better than cure.

Wenn man mit Feuer umgeht, sollte man immer vorbeugende Maßnahmen treffen.

You should always take precautionary measures when dealing/working with fire.

(b) Preventing disease

Die Krankenkassen empfehlen regelmäßige Vorsorgeuntersuchungen zur Früherkennung von Krebs.
 The health insurance companies recommend regular preventative check-ups for the early diagnosis of cancer.

Er soll einem Herzinfarkt vorbeugen, indem er täglich 75mg Aspirin nimmt.

He is supposed to prevent a heart attack by taking 75mg of aspirin a day.

(c) Protecting oneself

Es ist notwendig, dass man sich auch im Winter vor starkem Sonnenlicht schützt.

It is important to protect yourself from strong sunlight even in winter.

Diese Sonnenmilch hat einen Lichtschutzfaktor von 8.
 This suntan lotion is factor 8.

110.6

Habits

(a) Getting used to something sich (= acc.) an etw. (= acc.) gewöhnen 'to get used to sth.'

Wir müssen uns erst an die neue Umgebung gewöhnen.
 First of all we must get used to the new environment.

Die Augen müssen sich an die Dunkelheit gewöhnen.
 The eyes must adapt to the darkness.

(b) Giving up (bad) habits sich (= dat.) etw. ab*gewöhnen 'to kick the habit (of sth.)'

Er will sich das Rauchen abgewöhnen.
 He wants to stop smoking.

(c) Addictions

-e Sucht 'addiction'
 -e Nikotin-/Drogen-/Alkoholsucht 'nicotine/drug/alcohol addiction' die Anonymen Alkoholiker (plural) 'AA/Alcoholics Anonymous'
 -wütig/-süchtig '-aholic'
 arbeitswütig/arbeits-süchtig 'workaholic'

Mein Mitarbeiter is arbeitswütig.

My colleague is a workaholic.

(d) Starving/stuffing oneself

-e Magersucht 'anorexia' magersüchtig 'anorexic'
 -e Fresssucht '(morbid) craving for food/gluttony' ab*magern 'to become thin' ab*specken 'to slim down'

Die Schulleitung will etwas gegen Magersucht unternehmen.

The school management is trying to do something about anorexia.

Sie sieht total abgemagert aus.

She looks really emaciated.

Vor der Operation muss er erst einmal abspecken. (informal)

He must slim down before the operation.

110.7

Relaxation and stress

(a) Resting and getting sufficient sleep sich (= acc.) aus*ruhen 'to rest' sich (= acc.) entspannen 'to relax/unwind' relaxieren/relaxen 'to relax' schlafen 'to sleep'

 sich (= acc.) aus*schlafen 'to have a lie-in/to sleep until you wake naturally'
 etw. (= acc.) aus*schlafen 'to sleep sth. off'

Nach einem heißen Bad sollten Sie sich richtig ausruhen.

After a hot bath you should have a proper rest.

Es ist sehr wichtig, dass die Frau sich während der Schwangerschaft entspannt.

It is very important that a woman relaxes during pregnancy.

Im Urlaub möchte er nur in der Sonne liegen und relaxieren/relaxen.

In the holidays he only wants to lie in the sun and relax.

Ich möchte mich mal wieder so richtig lange ausschlafen.

I would love to have a really good lie-in again some time.

Er musste seinen Rausch erst ausschlafen.

He had to sleep it off (i.e. the drink).

Getting things off your chest:

Sie fühlte sich erleichtert, nachdem sie sich mit ihrem Hausarzt über das Problem ausgesprochen hatte.

She felt relieved after she had talked frankly with her GP about the problem.

Feeling (psychologically) balanced:

Trotz der vielen Sorgen scheint er doch recht ausgeglichen.

Despite his many worries he does seem to be quite well balanced.

Selbst die ernstesten Erwachsenen können manchmal ziemlich ausgelassen sein.

Even the most serious adults can sometimes be rather boisterous/high-spirited.

Recovering from something:

Er brauchte lange, bis er sich von dem anstrengenden Semester/der Virusinfektion erholt hatte.

It took him a long time to recover from the exhausting term/the viral infection.

(b) Stress

nicht ein*schlafen können 'not to be able to fall asleep' nicht durch*schlafen können 'not to be able to sleep through the night'

gereizt sein 'to be irritated' aufgeregt sein 'to be excited'

etw. nervt jmdn. 'sth. irritates sb.'

stressig sein 'to be stressful'

jmdm. auf die Nerven gehen 'to get on sb.'s nerves'

Es wundert mich nicht, dass Sie bei Ihren Sorgen nicht einschlafen können.

I am not surprised you can't go to sleep with all your worries.

Während der Zeit, als sein Haus gebaut wurde, war er besonders gereizt/aufgeregt.

During the time when his house was being built he was particularly irritable/excited.

Der ständige Lärm hatte ihn total genervt/war ihm sehr auf die Nerven gegangen.

The constant noise had been completely wearing on his nerves/had got on his nerves.

Sie findet die Situation am Arbeitsplatz äußerst stressig.

She finds the situation at work terribly stressful.

110.8

Ill health

-e Krankheit 'illness'

krank sein 'to be ill'

krank werden 'to become ill'

sich eine Krankheit zuziehen 'come down with a disease' (formal) es geht jmdm. schlecht 'sb. is unwell'

an etw. (= dat.) erkranken 'to fall ill with sth.'

sich (= acc.) erkälten 'to catch cold'

-r Befund/-e Diagnose 'diagnosis' eine Diagnose stellen 'to diagnose' leiden an (+ dat.) 'to suffer from'

seekrank sein 'to be seasick' sich (= acc.) mit etw. quälen 'to struggle with/be plagued by sth.'

(-s) Fieber haben 'to run a temperature'

(a) Feeling unwell

There are several expressions indicating ill health that use the dative of disadvantage (see 19.3) with an optional es and a form of sein.

Feeling sick:

Es ist mir nicht gut./Mir ist (es) nicht gut.

I am not well.

Ihm ist schlecht/übel.

He is sick. (meaning he is about to vomit)

Feeling cold:

Ist dir kalt/heiß?

Are you cold/hot?

(The above could just refer to the air temperature but quite often means body temperature.)

Feeling dizzy:

Mir schwindelt.

I am dizzy.

Looking unwell:

Du siehst schlecht aus. Bist du krank?

You look unwell. Are you ill?

(b) Falling ill

Er ist an Gelbsucht/Hepatitis/einer Halsentzündung erkrankt.

He has fallen ill/come down with jaundice/hepatitis/a throat infection.

Zieh dich warm an, damit du dich nicht erkältest.

Dress warm so that you don't catch cold.

Als wir in Afrika waren, haben wir uns eine Leberinfektion zugezogen.

When we were in Africa we caught a liver infection.

- (c) Medical results are referred to as -r Befund (e):

Der medizinische Befund im Urin ist negativ.

The urine results are negative.

Die Leber des Patienten war ohne Befund.

The liver of the patient was clear.

- (d) Suffering is rendered by leiden and sich quälen:

Der Patient leidet an Herzrhythmusstörungen.

The patient is suffering from palpitations.

Sie quält sich schon seit Jahren mit ihrem Rheumatismus.

She has been struggling with/suffering from rheumatism for years.

- (e) Running a temperature

Temperature in German-speaking countries is measured in degrees Celsius: Grad Celsius. Normal body temperature would be about 37°C (98.4°F); 39°C (102°F) would be considered hohes Fieber, a 'high temperature':

Nach der Impfung hatte der Kleine hohes Fieber.

After the inoculation the little boy had a high temperature.

110.9

Death

-r Tod 'death'

-e Todesursache 'cause of death'

tot sein 'to be dead'

sterben 'to die'

verunglücken 'to have an accident' tödlich verunglücken 'to be killed in an accident'

ums Leben kommen 'to die'

um*kommen 'to die'

- (a) Dying

Dying of something is rendered by sterben an (+ dat.):

Das Unfallopfer war an den Folgen seiner Verletzungen gestorben.

The accident victim had died as a result of his injuries.

Die Skifahrer waren bei einem Lawinenunglück ums Leben gekommen.

The skiers were killed by an avalanche.

Der Popstar ist am Nachmittag tödlich verunglückt.

The pop star was killed in an accident in the afternoon.

(b) Dead

Er wurde noch am Unfallort für tot erklärt.

He was pronounced dead at the scene of the accident.

(c) Fatal consequences

Sie hat tödliches Gift geschluckt.

She has swallowed deadly poison.

Er war bei der Schlägerei tödlich verwundet worden.

He had been fatally injured during the fight/punch-up.

See 65.3a (p. 194) for expressing sympathy.

110.10

Passing on disease sich (= acc.) bei jmdm. an*stecken 'to catch (a disease) from sb.'

jmdn. an*stecken 'to infect someone' sich bei jmdm. mit etw. an*stecken 'to catch sth. from sb.'

ansteckend 'contagious'

übertragen 'to transmit'

sich (= acc.) mit/an (+ dat.) etw. infizieren 'to infect oneself with sth.'

verunreinigen 'to contaminate/pollute' hervor*rufen 'to cause/bring about'

(a) Catching a disease

Er hatte sich bei seinem Klassenkameraden mit den Masern angesteckt.

He had caught measles from his classmate.

Sie hatte sich an einer Spritze infiziert.

She had infected herself with a syringe.

(b) Transmitting a disease

Eine Infektionskrankheit kann durch die Luft oder durch Wassertröpfchen übertragen werden.

An infectious disease can be transmitted via the air or water droplets.

Eine ansteckende Krankheit wird durch Körperkontakt übertragen.

A contagious disease is transmitted by bodily contact.

Halte die Hand vor den Mund, wenn du hustest, damit du niemanden ansteckst.

Cover your mouth when you cough so that you don't infect anybody.

(c) Contamination

Der Durchfall war durch das verunreinigte Wasser hervorgerufen worden.

The diarrhoea had been caused by the contaminated water.

110.11

Pain

... tut mir weh 'my ... hurts' (informal) (see 37.4)

Schmerzen haben 'to have pains'

-s -weh '-ache'

sich (= dat.) (an etw. (= dat.)) weh*tun 'to hurt oneself (on sth.)'

-s Leid(en) 'suffering'

leiden an (+ dat.) 'to suffer from'

Schmerzen lindern 'to alleviate/relieve pain'

-e Linderung 'alleviation/relief'

(a) The main way of referring to pain is by using Schmerzen haben 'to have pain' (lit. 'pains').

To indicate the exact place of pain, say:

Ich habe Schmerzen am Rücken/an der Hand/im Unterleib.

I have a pain in my back/on my hand/in my lower abdomen.

Schmerzen (always plural) is usually the last component in a compound, following the part of the body that is causing pain.

See 54.2 (pp. 136–7) for the formation of compounds.

Ich habe Magenschmerzen/Kopfschmerzen/Zahnschmerzen.

I have stomach pains/a headache/toothache.

(b) In informal speech, Schmerzen is often replaced by (sich) weh*tun or by -s Weh 'ache', which is used in the singular:

Ach, mein Arm tut mir weh.

Oh, my arm hurts.

Mutti, ich habe Bauchweh.

Mummy, I have a tummy ache.

Vati, ich habe mir am Zaun wehgetan.

Daddy, I've hurt myself on the fence.

(c) Suffering

Er litt an einer schweren Lungenentzündung.

He suffered from severe pneumonia.

See 23.2a (p. 39) for the use of the German article. See also 110.8d (p. 388) on the use of leiden.

(d) Alleviating pain

Zur Linderung des Juckreizes wird ein Kamillenbad empfohlen.

A camomile bath is recommended to alleviate the itching.

110.12

Doctors, treatment and medication

(a) Doctors

A medical doctor is usually referred to as -r Arzt, a female doctor is -e Ärztin.

In informal speech -r Doktor is also used. A patient would address his doctor as Herr/Frau Doktor or the professor in a hospital as Herr/Frau Professor (normally without a surname).

Patients are normally registered with their 'general practitioner' (-r Hausarzt/praktische Arzt), although they could, theoretically, choose a new doctor every three months by taking their 'health insurance card' (Versichertenkarte) to someone else. This card could also be taken directly to a 'specialist' (Facharzt), but the 'patient', -r Patient (-en), would be better advised to get a 'transfer note' (-e Überweisung) from his/her doctor and take it to the recommended consultant.

Consultants usually work in their own practices and one would arrange for 'an appointment' (-r Termin) directly with his/her 'secretary' (-e Sekretärin) or 'doctor's receptionist and nurse' (-e Arzthelferin).

The official titles for consultants are:

-r Facharzt für Allgemeinmedizin 'specialist for general medicine/GP' Facharzt für Kinder-/Frauen-/Nerven-/Lungenheilkunde 'specialist for paediatrics/gynaecology/neurology/lung diseases'

NOTE -r Kassenarzt 'doctor who treats members of health insurance schemes'.

(For further specialist areas refer to a dictionary.)

In informal speech, compounds are preferred:

-e Kinderärztin 'paediatrician'
-e Frauenärztin/Gynäkologin 'gynaecologist'
-e Nervenärztin/Neurologin 'neurologist'

Other medical staff include:

-e Krankenschwester/der Krankenpfleger 'nurse'
-e Stationsschwester 'ward sister'
-e Gemeindeschwester 'district nurse'
-r Sanitäter (-) 'first-aid attendant'
-e medizinisch-technische Assistentin (MTA) 'medical laboratory assistant'
-r Heilpraktiker 'practitioner of complementary medicine'

(b) Treatment

jmdn./etw. heilen 'to heal sb./sth.' (un)heilbar '(in)curable'
jmdn./etw. behandeln 'to treat sb./sth.'

-e Behandlung(en) 'treatment' sich (= acc.) behandeln lassen 'to be treated'
 -e Heilung 'healing/cure'
 -s Heilverfahren 'course of treatment'
 -e Heilkunde 'medicine'

Krebs ist oft heilbar, solange er frühzeitig erkannt wird.
 Cancer is often curable, as long as it is diagnosed early.

Er ist seit drei Jahren bei einem Psychiater in Behandlung.
 He has been treated by a psychiatrist for three years.

Sie lässt sich lieber von einer Frau behandeln.
 She prefers to be treated by a woman.

(c) Medical investigation

-e Untersuchung durch*führen 'to do an investigation/a medical' jmdn. untersuchen 'to examine'
sich (= acc.) untersuchen lassen 'to (let oneself) be examined' sich (= acc.) röntgen lassen 'to have an X-ray' ärztlich 'medical/by the doctor'

Vor der Weltreise müssen wir uns noch ärztlich untersuchen lassen.
 Before the round-the-world trip we have to undergo a medical examination.

Die Infusion darf nur unter ärztlicher Aufsicht gegeben werden.
 The infusion may only be given with medical supervision/in the presence of a doctor.

(d) Medication

-e Medizin/-s Medikament 'medicine'
 -e Pille 'pill' in general but: die Pille (= Antibabypille) 'the (contraceptive) pill'
etw. zu etw. brauchen 'to need sth. for sb.'
 -s Heilmittel(-) gegen 'remedy for'
 -s Schmerzmittel 'painkiller'
 -s Rezept 'prescription' verschreiben 'to prescribe'
 -e Dosis (Dosen) 'dose'

Baldrian ist ein gutes (Heil-)mittel gegen Stress.
 Valerian is a good remedy for stress.

Ich brauche etwas zur Beruhigung.
 I need something to calm (my nerves).

Prophylaktisches Aspirin wird in sehr kleinen Dosen/Mengen eingenommen.
 Prophylactic aspirin is taken in very small doses/amounts.

To get a prescription:

Der Arzt hat Antibiotika verordnet.

The doctor prescribed antibiotics.

In Deutschland kann man Antibiotika nicht in der Apotheke kaufen, sondern man muss sie sich vom Arzt verschreiben lassen.

In Germany you cannot buy antibiotics in a pharmacy. You have to go to the doctor's to get a prescription.

Dieses Medikament ist rezeptpflichtig.

This medicine is available only on prescription.

Medically tested medication:

Diese Salbe wurde medizinisch geprüft.

This ointment has been medically tested.

(e) Operations

jmdn. an etw. (= dat.) operieren 'to operate on sb.'s sth.'

Meine Nachbarin wird morgen an der Galle operiert.

My neighbour is having an operation on her gall-bladder tomorrow.

See 66.2a (p. 197) for expressing good wishes for health and speedy recovery.

111

Expressing happiness, fear and sadness

111.1

Describing mood in general

-e Stimmung/Laune 'mood'

guter/schlechter Laune sein 'to be in a good/bad mood'

gut gelaunt sein 'to be in a good mood'

Heute war mein Fahrlehrer besonders gut gelaunt.

My driving instructor was in a particularly good mood today.

-e Laune (n) also means mood, but has a slightly negative connotation:

Er hat seine Launen.

He has his moods.

Er ist meistens recht launisch.

He is quite bad tempered most of the time.

The idiomatic expression vor lauter indicates that someone does something 'for sheer . . . ' vor lauter Freude/Ärger/Schreck 'for sheer joy/out of sheer annoyance/fright':

Die Kellnerin ließ vor lauter Schreck die Weingläser fallen.

The waitress dropped the wine glasses out of sheer fright.

111.2

Positive moods: joy and happiness

Many expressions of positive mood are based on freuen and Freude:

sich (= acc.) freuen 'to be pleased'
-e Freude 'joy'
sich über etw. (= acc.) freuen 'to be glad/happy about sth.'
erfreulich 'pleasing/gratifying'
glücklich 'happy'
sich auf etw./jmdn. freuen 'to look forward to sb./sth.'
jmdm. eine Freude machen 'to bring joy to sb./make sb. happy' Freude an etw. (= dat.) haben 'to enjoy/get pleasure from/take pleasure in sth.'
-s Glück 'happiness/luck/fortune' zum Glück 'fortunately'
glücklicherweise 'fortunately/happily'
Glück haben 'to be lucky/fortunate'
Glück im Unglück haben 'to be lucky under the circumstances'
jmdm. den/die Daumen halten/drücken 'to keep one's fingers crossed for sb.'
 (colloquial)

(a) Being pleased

Es freut mich, dich wiederzusehen.

I am pleased to see you again.

Wir würden uns ganz besonders über Ihren Besuch freuen.

We would be very pleased if you came to visit (us).

Sie freute sich darüber, ein Schnäppchen gemacht zu haben.
 (informal)

She was pleased to have got a bargain.

Der Sieg seiner Mannschaft war besonders für den Trainer erfreulich.

The team's victory was especially pleasing for their manager.

(b) Being happy and showing joy

Sie war so glücklich wie noch nie.

She was happier than she had ever been.

Der Teenager war im siebten Himmel.

The teenager was on cloud nine.

Als sie das gute Zeugnis bekam, ist sie vor Freude in die Luft gesprungen.

When she received her good report she jumped for joy.

Sie ist ihm vor reiner Freude um den Hals gefallen.

She embraced him with sheer joy.

Er hat einen Freudenschrei ausgestoßen.

He gave a shout of joy.

The happy ending of a fairy-tale is rendered as follows:

Sie lebten glücklich und zufrieden bis ans Ende ihrer Tage.
They lived happily ever after.

(c) Looking forward to something

Ich freue mich auf meine Geburtstagsparty.
I am looking forward to my birthday party.

Er freut sich darauf, mit ihr auszugehen.
He is looking forward to going out with her.

▶ See 42.3e (p. 114) for completion by a clause.

(d) Pleasing someone

Ich würde euch gerne eine Freude zum Hochzeitstag machen.
I would like to treat you for your wedding anniversary.

(e) Enjoying something

Die beiden haben große Freude an ihrem Garten.
The two of them get a lot of pleasure out of their garden.

(f) Being lucky

Glück can mean both 'happiness' and 'luck' in English. Its exact meaning has to be gleaned from context. When used with a form of haben, Glück means 'to be lucky':

Mit dem guten Wetter haben wir wirklich Glück gehabt.
We were really lucky with the (good) weather.

Unser Auto war total ausgeraubt worden. Zum Glück hatten die Kinder noch etwas Geld dabei.
Our car had been completely cleaned out./Everything had been taken/stolen from our car. Fortunately the children had some money with them.

Der hintere Wagen war auf unseren draufgefahren. Glücklicherweise ist uns nichts passiert.
The car behind ran into ours. Fortunately we were all right (lit. nothing (bad) happened to us).

▶ See 76.1g (p. 254) for passieren.

Hoping for luck:

Drücke mir den Daumen*, wenn ich meine Fahrprüfung mache.
Keep your fingers crossed for me when I take my driving test.

111.3

Negative moods

(a) Negative moods can be expressed in terms of positive ones by negating them:

Positive	Negative
-e Freude 'joy' freudig 'joyful' Glück haben 'to be lucky' über etw. (= acc.) froh sein 'to be happy about sth.'	-s Leid 'sorrow' freudlos 'without pleasure' Pech haben 'to be unlucky' über etw. (= acc.) traurig sein 'to be sad about sth.' über etw. (= acc.) deprimiert sein 'to be down about sth./be depressed/feel down'

(b) Sadness

über etw. (= acc.) traurig sein 'to be sad about sth.'
über etw. (= acc.) betrübt sein 'to be grieved/sorrowful about sth.'
über etw. (= acc.) weinen 'to cry about sth.'

Sie war in tiefster Seele betrübt über die Scheidung ihrer Enkelin.
 She was deeply grieved about the divorce of her granddaughter.

Er weinte, als sein Hund starb.
 He cried when his dog died.

(c) Yearning

Sehnsucht (f.) nach jmdm./etw. haben 'to have a yearning/longing for sb./sth.'
Heimweh nach etw. haben 'to be homesick for sth.'
Fernweh haben/vom Fernweh gepackt werden 'to feel wanderlust/yearning to wander'
Lust auf etw. (= acc.) haben 'to fancy sth.' (colloquial, informal)

Als er in Amerika war, hatte er solche Sehnsucht nach deutschem Brot.

When he was in America he had such a yearning for German bread.

Hat dich das Fernweh wieder gepackt?

Have you been caught by the wander bug again?

Manche Schüler haben auf einer Schulfahrt schon in der ersten Nacht Heimweh nach Hause.

Some pupils are already homesick on the very first night of their school trip.

Ich habe Lust auf ein Stück Kuchen/auf Volleyball.

I fancy a piece of cake/playing volleyball.

(d) Suffering

leiden an/unter (+ dat.) 'to suffer from/under'

Er hatte sehr unter seinem strengen Vater gelitten.
He had suffered greatly under his strict father.

See 110.8 (p. 387) for suffering from a medical condition.

Gerade ältere Männer leiden häufig an mangelndem Selbstbewußtsein.
Older men especially often suffer from a lack of self-confidence.

(e) Feeling down or depressed deprimiert sein 'to be depressed' sich (= acc.) überflüssig fühlen 'to feel superfluous' sich (= dat.) wie ein Versager vor*kommen 'to feel a failure' keinen Sinn mehr im Leben sehen 'to see no more sense/point in life' keinen Lebenssinn/Lebensinhalt mehr haben 'to have no more meaning in life/raison d'être'

sich (= acc.) einsam fühlen 'to feel lonely' ein trostloses Dasein führen 'to lead a wretched/bleak existence'

Sie hat immer wieder einmal Depressionen.
She does suffer from depression every now and again.

Er hat sich als Arbeitsloser überflüssig gefühlt.
He felt superfluous as an unemployed person.

Viele Menschen führen im Altersheim ein trostloses Dasein.
Many people lead a bleak existence in an old people's home.

(f) Sorrow

-r Kummer 'grief/sorrow'
jmdm. Kummer machen/bereiten 'to cause sb. grief/sorrow'

Das Schicksal ihrer einzigen Tochter bereitete ihr großen Kummer.
The fate of her only daughter caused her much grief.

Vor Kummer konnte sie kaum denken.
She could hardly think with all her sorrow.

(g) Worry

-e Sorge 'worry' sich (= dat.) um etw. (= acc.) Sorgen machen 'to worry about sth./sb.'
sich (= dat.) Sorgen machen wegen (+ gen.)/um (+ acc.) 'to worry because of' sich (= dat.) um etw. (= acc.) Gedanken machen 'to worry about sth.'
sich (= acc.) um etw./jmdn. sorgen 'to worry about sth./sb.'
etw. macht jmdm. zu schaffen 'sth. worries sb.'
jmdm. am Herzen liegen 'to be important to sb.' (lit. 'to lie close to sb.'s heart')
jmdm. schwer auf der Seele/dem Gewissen liegen 'to weigh heavily on sb.'s mind/conscience'

Er machte sich Sorgen um seine Frau, die bei Nacht und Nebel alleine unterwegs war.

He was worried about his wife, who was out on her own at night/in the dark.

Wir machen uns große Sorgen wegen unserer unbezahlten Rechnungen.

We are very worried about our unpaid bills.

Der Schulwechsel macht vielen Kindern zu schaffen.

Many children are worried about changing school.

Wir machen uns Gedanken/Sorgen über das Drogenproblem an der Schule.

We are worried about the drugs problem at the school.

Ich Sorge mich um deine Gesundheit.

I worry about your health.

Es lag ihm sehr am Herzen, dass seine Eltern sich wieder versöhnten.

It was very important to him that his parents should become reconciled.

Der Streit in seiner Abteilung lag ihm schwer auf der Seele.

The argument in his department weighed on his mind.

(h) Fear

sich (= acc.) vor etw./jmdm. fürchten 'to be afraid of sth./sb.'

etw. (= acc.) befürchten 'to fear sth.'

Angst haben vor etw./jmdm. 'to be afraid of sth./sb.'

Being afraid of specific things:

Ich fürchtete mich vor einer Begegnung mit seiner Freundin.

I was afraid of a (chance) meeting with his girlfriend.

Sie fürchtet sich vor Spinnen/der Fahrprüfung.

She is afraid of spiders/the driving test.

Das schlechte Ergebnis war zu befürchten.

The bad result was to be expected/feared.

Er hatte Angst vor der Abschlussprüfung.

He was afraid of the final exam.

General feeling that cannot be pinpointed to a specific fear:

Er hat Angst, im Beruf zu versagen/vor der Zukunft.

He is afraid of failing in his profession/of the future.

(i) Frustration

-e Frustration 'frustration'

etw. frustrierend finden 'to find sth. frustrating' frustriert sein über (+ acc.) 'to be frustrated about'

auf etw. (= acc.) einen Frust haben (only in spoken language) 'to be frustrated about sth.'

Frustrationen, die nicht ausgedrückt werden, können leicht zu Aggressionen führen.

Frustrations that are not expressed can easily lead to aggression.

(j) Grief and mourning

-e Trauer 'sorrow/mourning'

um jmdn./etw. trauern 'to mourn for sb./sth.'

in stiller/tiefer Trauer '(much loved and) sadly missed'

jmdn. vermissen 'to miss sb.'

Sie trauerte um ihren verlorenen Sohn.

She grieved for her lost son.

Wir trauern um unsere Toten.

We mourn our dead.

Seit seinem Tode wird er schmerzlich vermisst.

He has been sadly/sorely missed since his death.

Ihr Witwer vermisst sie.

Her widower misses her.

Black is the colour for mourning in German-speaking countries and is still widely worn at a funeral (-e Beerdigung) or less commonly at a cremation (-e Feuerbestattung).

Widows, -e Witwe (n), of the older generation tend to wear dark colours for a suitable period of time, and obituary notices and responses to them usually carry a black edging.

See also 65.1–3 (pp. 191–5) for expressing commiseration, and 110.9 (p. 388) on death and dying.

(k) Shock and fright

jmdn. schockieren 'to shock sb.'

erschrecken (erschrickt, erschrak, erschrocken) (intransitive) 'to be shocked/frightened'

jmdn. erschrecken (erschreckte, erschreckt) (transitive) 'to frighten sb.'

Die traurige Nachricht hatte uns sehr schockiert.

The sad news shocked us very much.

Bei dem nächtlichen Schuss erschrak sie furchtbar.

She was terribly frightened by the shot in the night.

Der plötzliche Aufschrei hat sie erschreckt.

The sudden cry shocked/frightened her.

See 114.6 (p. 411) for more expressions of shock.

(l) Anger

wütend sein auf (+ acc.) 'to be angry/furious'

zornig sein auf (+ acc.) 'to be angry'

vor lauter Zorn 'in a fit of anger' sich (= acc.) über etw./jmdn. ärgern 'to be annoyed about sth./sb.'

über etw./jmdn. verärgert sein 'to be annoyed about sth./sb.'

Er war immer noch wütend auf den Dieb, der ihm sein Filofax gestohlen hatte.

He was still really angry with/furious with the thief who had stolen his Filofax.

Er ist zornig auf seinen Bruder, der ihn beim Lehrer verpetzt hat.

He is angry with his brother for telling on him to the teacher.

Sie ärgerte sich über die hohe Telefonrechnung.

She was annoyed about the high phone bill.

Sie waren sehr verärgert über die misslungene Darbietung.

They were very annoyed about the failed presentation.

Vor lauter Zorn warf sie ihm den Teller an den Kopf.

In a fit of anger she threw the plate at his head.

(m) Feeling insulted beleidigt 'insulted'

gekränkt 'hurt/insulted' jmdn. kränken 'to hurt sb.'

verletzt 'hurt/insulted'

Obwohl er versucht hatte, das Missverständnis zu beseitigen, war sie doch noch stark beleidigt.

Even though he had tried to clear up the misunderstanding, she was still very offended/insulted.

Dass du nicht gekommen bist, hat deine Mutter sehr gekränkt.

Your mother was very hurt that you didn't come.

(n) Saying that one has had enough die Nase voll haben 'to be fed up' (colloquial, informal) die Schnauze voll haben 'to be fed up' (very informal) es reicht/langt 'that's enough'

Jetzt habe ich aber die Nase voll!

Now I am really fed up.

Das reicht/fehlt mir gerade noch. (ironic)

That's all I need.

Jetzt langt/reicht es aber!

That's enough now!

111.4

Sharing feelings

Making people feel something:

jmdn. zum Lächeln/Lachen/Weinen/Verzweifeln bringen 'to make someone smile/laugh/cry/despair'

jmdn. auf*heitern 'to cheer sb. up'

Er kitzelte sie, um sie zum Lachen zu bringen.

He tickled her to make her laugh.

Wir erzählten uns Witze, um uns gegenseitig aufzuheitern.

We told each other jokes in order to cheer each other up.

112

Expressing satisfaction and dissatisfaction

112.1

Being satisfied and dissatisfied

The main word for expressing satisfaction is zufrieden 'satisfied' and its derivatives:

mit etw./jmdm. zufrieden sein 'to be satisfied with sth./sb.'

unzufrieden 'dissatisfied'

sich (= acc.) mit etw. zufrieden*geben 'to accept sth.'

-e Zufriedenheit 'satisfaction'

endlich! 'at last'

See also 104 (pp. 369–74) for more expressions of satisfaction.

Endlich! expresses frustration or annoyance when something has finally been put right (better late than never . . .)

Er ist mit seinem Leben völlig zufrieden.

He is completely satisfied with his life.

Die Sekretärin war mit ihrem Chef unzufrieden.

The secretary was dissatisfied with her boss.

Sie wollte sich nicht mit der Antwort zufrieden geben.

She would not accept the answer.

Er fand die schönste Befriedigung darin, seine Rosen für den Wettbewerb zu züchten.

He derived the greatest satisfaction from growing his roses for the competition.

Ja, endlich hab' ich mein Geld!

I finally have my money!

112.2

Satisfying needs and demands

(Ansprüche/Bedürfnisse) befriedigen 'to satisfy (demands/needs/expectations)'

-e Befriedigung 'satisfaction/gratification'

-e Befriedigung (von Bedürfnissen) 'satisfaction/gratification (of needs)'

-e Neugierde/-s Verlangen/Hunger/Durst stillen 'to satisfy a curiosity/a desire/hunger/thirst'

For word order here refer to 15 (p. 20).

Seine hohen Ansprüche an seine Mitarbeiter sind kaum zu befriedigen.

His high demands/expectations of his colleagues can hardly be satisfied.

Zur Befriedigung ihres Heißhunger wollte sie unbedingt den ganzen Kuchen essen.

To satisfy her ravenous hunger she was determined to eat the entire cake.

Zur Befriedigung deiner Neugier kannst du ja mein Tagebuch lesen.

To satisfy your curiosity you can always read my diary. (could be ironic)

Ihr großes Verlangen nach Sonnenuntergängen konnte an der Westküste gestillt werden.

She was able to satisfy her great desire for sunsets on the west coast.

See 112.5 (pp. 403–4) on stillen.

112.3

Satisfactory achievements

(a) Describing someone's achievements as satisfactory, use:

befriedigend 'satisfactory'
zur vollen Zufriedenheit (+ gen.) 'to the full satisfaction (of)' zufrieden stellend 'satisfactory'

On a scale from least to most satisfactory, the following adverbs are used with zufrieden sein mit:

einigermaßen 'somewhat' ziemlich 'rather'
recht 'quite/pretty'

Die Lehrerin ist mit seinem Fortschritt zufrieden.

The (female) teacher is satisfied with his progress.

Der Lehrling hatte seine Probezeit zur vollen Zufriedenheit seines Meisters abgeschlossen.

The apprentice had finished his probationary period to the full satisfaction of his boss/foreman.

(b) Achievements are expressed by:

-r Fortschritt 'progress'
-e Leistung 'achievement'
-s Ergebnis 'result'

Seine Leistungen waren stets befriedigend.

His performance was always satisfactory.

Das Ergebnis der Untersuchungen war zufrieden stellend.

The result of the investigations was satisfactory.

(c) Official grades at school are usually scaled as follows (from best to worst):

1 (eins)	sehr gut	'very good'
2 (zwei)	gut	'good'
3 (drei)	befriedigend	'satisfactory'
4 (vier)	ausreichend	'adequate'
5 (fünf)	mangelhaft	'defective/fail'
6 (sechs)	ungenügend	'unsatisfactory/fail'

In Mathematik hat er 'befriedigend' bekommen.

In maths he got a 'C'.

(d) The difference between Zufriedenheit and Befriedigung is that Zufriedenheit mit etw. usually implies satisfaction with the status quo, whereas Befriedigung von etw. means satisfaction of needs/desires:

Der Vorarbeiter ist mit seinem Lohn zufrieden.

The foreman is satisfied with his wages.

Sein Bedürfnis an Wärme und Liebe ist unbefriedigt.

His desire for warmth and love is unsatisfied/has been frustrated.

112.4

Saying that something is sufficient is expressed with (aus)reichen and genügen (often with the dative of the person concerned):

(aus*)reichen/genügen 'to suffice' genug/genügend 'enough/sufficient' nicht genug kriegen können 'to not be able to get enough/to be greedy' (colloquial) reichlich 'plentiful' ausreichend 'sufficient'

Die dünne Decke reicht/genügt mir völlig.

The thin blanket is quite sufficient for me.

Hast du genug/genügend Getränke für unsere Gäste eingekauft?

Have you bought enough/sufficient drink for our guests?

Wir konnten nicht genug von dem Sekt kriegen.

We couldn't get enough of the sparkling wine.

112.5

Saying one has had enough to eat

See 63 (pp. 180–8) for further expressions on food and drink.

Möchtest du noch etwas essen? – Nein danke, ich bin satt.

Would you like anything else to eat? – No thank you, I've had enough/I am full.

See also 67.5c (p. 206) and 93.4 (p. 339) for thanking in response to polite enquiries.

To eat/drink all one wants:

An dem köstlichen Salatbuffet kann man sich so richtig satt essen.

You can really eat all you want (your fill) at the delicious salad buffet.

To get enough:

Mit dem spärlichen Essen kann man nicht satt werden.

This meagre meal isn't enough (to fill you up).

See also 93.4 (p. 339) for the use of voll.

Having enough to drink:

gestillt is an alternative to satt, also meaning 'satisfied' with food or drink. It is derived from stillen, which primarily means 'to quench (a thirst)' and 'to breast-feed':

Auf der Wanderung konnte er seinen starken Durst am Brunnen stillen.

On the walk he was able to quench his thirst at the spring/well.

112.6

Coming to terms/putting up with things that are unsatisfactory sich (= acc.) damit ab*finden, dass 'to put up with the fact that/reluctantly acknowledge' sich (= acc.) mit etw. zufrieden geben 'to accept sth./go along with/acquiesce in sth.'

Er hat sich immer noch nicht damit abgefunden, dass seine Villa in Mecklenburg jetzt jemand anderem gehört.

He has still not come to terms with the fact that his villa in Mecklenburg now belongs to someone else.

Du musst dich mit dem geringen Taschengeld zufrieden geben; mehr gibt es nicht.

You'll have to make do with the small amount of pocket money you get; you are not getting any more.

113

Expressing hopes, wishes and disappointment

113.1

Hopes in general are conveyed by the following:

(a) Hoping for better things can be expressed in the following ways:

Lasst uns auf eine bessere Zukunft hoffen.

Let's hope for a better future.

Es besteht begründete Hoffnung, dass sich diese Vogelart wieder hier einnistet.

There is justification/good reason for hoping that this type of bird will nest here again.

(b) Hoping for a good outcome, that nothing bad has happened or is going to happen:

Hoffentlich* ist ihm nichts passiert/geschehen/zugestoßen.

Hopefully nothing (bad) has happened to him.

Note here that passieren, geschehen and zu*stoßen have a connotation of something bad happening.

See also 76.1g (p. 254).

Wenn das bloß/nur alles gut geht!
If only it/I do hope it all goes well!

(c) Hoping to overcome present difficulties etw./jmdn. überleben 'to survive sth./sb.'

etw. überstehen 'to overcome/get through sth.'
etw. aus*halten 'to stick/endure sth.'
etw. überwinden 'to overcome sth.'
etw. durch*halten 'to endure sth.'
zusammen*halten 'to stick together'
-s Durchhaltevermögen '(power of) endurance'
etw. schaffen 'to manage sth.'
über die Runden kommen 'to manage'
etw. gelingt jmdm. 'sth. can be managed by sb.'

See 36.2 (p. 84) for inseparable verbs.

Wir werden auch diesen Winter überleben/überstehen.
We will survive/get through this winter all right.

(Auch has a soothing effect. See 117.1c.)

Sie brauchen die Schmerzen nicht mehr lange auszuhalten.
You won't have to suffer/bear the pains much longer.

Wenn alle zusammenhalten, sind diese Schwierigkeiten zu überwinden.
If (we) all stick together, these difficulties can be overcome.

Das schaff ich/krieg ich schon hin!
I'll manage that.

Er wird auch mit dem geringeren Gehalt über die Runden kommen.
He will manage even on the lower salary.

Weißt du, ob es ihnen gelungen ist, den Keller frei von Wasser zu halten?
Do you know whether they managed to keep the cellar/basement free of water?

(d) Hoping against hope

Er darf jetzt auf keinen Fall die Hoffnung aufgeben.
He mustn't give up hope now, whatever happens.

(e) Being hopeful and excited

Seid ihr auch so gespannt darauf, wie der Wettbewerb ausgeht?
Are you as excited about the outcome of the competition as we are?

113.2

Wishes

The most common way to express wishes involves wünschen 'to wish' and its derivatives.

(a) Wishing for things sich (= dat.) etw. wünschen 'to wish for sth.'

jmdm. etw. wünschen 'to wish sb. sth.'

Ich wünschte, ich hätte mehr Zeit zum Klavierspielen.
 I wish I had more time for playing the piano.

▶ See 39.2–3 (pp. 93–7) for Subjunctive II.

Wilhelm wünscht sich einen großen Mercedes.
 William would like to get a big Mercedes.

Wishing something for someone else on a certain occasion:

Zum Geburtstag wünschen wir dir alles Gute, Gesundheit und Gottes Segen.
 For your birthday we wish you all the best, good health and God's blessing.

▶ See 66 (pp. 195–201) on 'Expressing good wishes'.

(b) Granting and denying wishes

jmdm. einen Wunsch erfüllen/versagen 'to grant/deny a wish to sb.'
ein Wunsch geht (nicht) in Erfüllung 'a wish is (not) fulfilled'

Wenn ich dir doch nur diesen Wunsch erfüllen könnte.
 If only I could make this wish come true for you.

Es wäre schön, wenn alle Wünsche in Erfüllung gehen könnten.
 It would be nice if all wishes could come true.

Ab und zu muss man den Kindern auch einen Wunsch versagen, sonst werden sie zu verwöhnt.
 Every now and again one should refuse/say no to children's wishes, or they'll be spoiled.

113.3

Disappointment

-e Enttäuschung 'disappointment'
jmdn. enttäuschen 'to disappoint sb.'
etw. enttäuscht jmdn. 'to be disappointed about sth.'
enttäuscht sein über etw. (= acc.) 'to be disappointed about sth.'
von jmdm./etw. enttäuscht werden 'be disappointed by sb./sth.'
verletzt sein 'to be hurt' leider 'unfortunately'

(a) These expressions can be modified by the use of adverbs/adjectives such as:

furchtbar 'frightfully' schrecklich 'terribly'
schwer 'badly'
tief/zutiefst 'profoundly/badly' leicht 'slightly'

Wenn du gemeint hast, ich könnte dir das Geld vorstrecken, muss ich dich leider enttäuschen.

If you thought that I could advance you the money, I regret to have to disappoint you.

Die Musik bei der Disco gestern hat mich echt enttäuscht.

I was really disappointed about the music at the disco yesterday.

Er wird über ihre Note in Kunst schwer enttäuscht sein.

He will be really disappointed about her grade in art.

Kinder werden von ihren Eltern manchmal enttäuscht.

Children are sometimes disappointed by their parents.

Das undankbare Verhalten ihres Sohnes hatte sie tief verletzt.

Her son's ungrateful behaviour had hurt her badly.

Verletzt sein expresses a much stronger feeling than enttäuscht.

(b) Failed hopes

Seine Hoffnungen auf einen neuen Lebensanfang hatten sich völlig zerschlagen.

His hopes for a new start in life had failed completely.

Seine Hoffnung, eine Frau zu finden, die mit ihm den Hof bewirtschaftet, ging nicht in Erfüllung.

His hope of finding a wife who would run the farm with him was not fulfilled.

(c) Disappointed expectations

Where there was a firm expectation that something was supposed to happen but did not, use a pluperfect construction with a modal verb (see 35.6b and 39.3d):

Die Freunde hätten den Saal nach der Party zusammen aufräumen sollen.

The friends should have tidied up the room together after the party.

Die Zuschauer hätten den Verletzten helfen müssen.

The spectators should have helped the injured.

Das hätte doch wirklich nicht sein müssen.

That should not have happened.

Hätte man denn keine Lösung finden können, der alle zustimmten?

Could one not have found a solution on which everybody agreed?

Wäre eine Verlängerung nicht besser gewesen?

Would an extension not have been better?

eigentlich can emphasize that something happened contrary to expectations:

Eigentlich* hätte das Experiment klappen müssen.

The experiment should really have worked.

Die Kinder hätten eigentlich vorne sitzen sollen.

The children should have sat/been able to sit at the front.

(d) Not having had a chance to do something (on a particular day)

Sie war einfach nicht dazu gekommen, einmal mit ihm zu tanzen.

She simply didn't get a chance to have a single dance with him.

Not to have the opportunity:

Wir werden leider keine Gelegenheit zu einem persönlichen Gespräch haben.

Unfortunately we will have no opportunity to talk in private.

Er hatte eben nicht die Chance gehabt, schon als Kind eine bessere Allgemeinbildung zu bekommen.

As a child he had simply not had the chance to get a better general education.

▶ See 117.1c (p. 418) for the modal particle eben.

(e) Disappointment at failing to do something (correctly) is often expressed through a verb with the prefix ver-:

▶ See 57.2 (p. 143) for word formation.

eine Gelegenheit/einen Bus verpassen/versäumen 'to miss an opportunity/a bus (by one's own neglect)' einen Namen/einen Jahrestag vergessen 'to forget a name/an anniversary' einen Verstorbenen/den Geliebten vermissen 'to miss a dead person/a loved one' einen Ring/den Weg verlieren 'to lose a ring/the way' ein Buch/eine wichtige Akte verlegen 'to mislay a book/an important document'

(etw./jmdn./mit etw./jmdm.) verwechseln 'to confuse (sth./sb. with sth./sb.)' sich verirren 'to lose one's way'

Sie bedauerte, dieses Andenken an ihre Patentante verloren zu haben.

She regretted having lost this souvenir/memento of her godmother.

Habt ihr uns auch wirklich nicht mit denen aus der anderen Gruppe verwechselt?

Are you sure you haven't confused us with (those from) the other groups?

114

Expressing surprise

114.1

Surprise in general

überraschen 'to surprise'

jmdn. überraschen 'to surprise sb.'

bei etw. überrascht werden 'to be surprised/caught doing sth.'

jmdn. bei etw. erwischen 'to catch sb. doing sth.' (usually sth. illicit) von etw./jmdm. überrascht werden/sein 'to be surprised by sth./sb.'

-e Überraschung(en) 'surprise'

See 36.2 (p. 84) for inseparable verbs.

(a) To be surprised

Die Kinder waren überrascht, wie groß der Spielplatz war.

The children were surprised how big the playground was.

See 40 (pp. 102–4) for the passive.

Wir wurden von dem plötzlichen Unwetter überrascht.

We were surprised by the sudden thunderstorm.

Der Einbrecher wurde beim Aufknacken des Safes überrascht.

The intruder was caught (while) cracking the safe.

Habe ich dich wieder dabei erwischt, wie du in meinen Notizen gelesen hast? (informal)

Have I caught you reading my notes again?

Alle Dorfbewohner wurden von der Flut überrascht.

All the villagers were surprised by the flood.

(b) Different sorts of surprise

-e Überraschung can be both positive and negative, and also lends itself to the formation of compounds:

-e schöne/böse Überraschung (erleben) '(to have) a nice/bad/nasty surprise'

-s Überraschungsgeschenk 'surprise gift'

-e Überraschungsparty 'surprise party'

Zu meiner großen Überraschung waren auch die Verwandten aus Übersee zu der Familienfeier gekommen.

To my great surprise even the relatives from overseas had come to the family celebration.

(c) When visiting someone it is nice to take them a little something as a surprise:

Ich habe Ihnen eine kleine Überraschung mitgebracht.

I've brought you a little something as a surprise.

114.2

Unforeseen events

To indicate that something was not foreseeable, one of the following expressions is used. These expressions are usually linked to the conditional.

See 39.7 (p. 100) for würde construction.

nicht ahnen 'to have no inkling' nicht vorher*sehen 'to not foresee' nicht vorhersehbar 'not foreseeable' nicht rechnen mit 'to not reckon with' unerwartet 'unexpected(ly)' erstaunlicherweise 'surprisingly'

(a) When there was no idea/inkling of what was going to happen

Wir konnten nicht ahnen, dass er sich das so zu Herzen nehmen würde.

We had no idea that he would take it to heart so much.

(b) If something was not foreseeable

Es war nicht vorherzusehen, wie schnell sich das Feuer ausbreiten würde.

One could not have foreseen how quickly the fire would spread.

For something that was not reckoned with:

Wir hatten zwar mit dem Abriss der Häuser an der Autobahn gerechnet, aber dann geschah es doch plötzlich und unerwartet.

We had indeed reckoned with/expected the demolition of the houses next to the motorway, but then it happened so suddenly and unexpectedly.

(c) Unexpected events

Dem Patienten geht es unerwartet gut.

The patient is surprisingly (lit. unexpectedly) well.

Die Aktien waren überraschend gestiegen.

The shares had risen unexpectedly.

Die Nachricht von seiner Beförderung kam überraschend.

The news of his promotion came as a surprise.

114.3

Hardly believing the news

Expressing pleasant or unpleasant surprise:

Er konnte kaum glauben, dass er das große Los gewonnen hatte.

He could hardly believe that he had won the jackpot.

Der Krankenwagen kam unglaublich schnell zum Unfallort.

The ambulance got to the scene of the accident incredibly quickly.

Es ist nicht zu fassen, wie schrecklich abgemagert die Flüchtlinge sind.

It is unbelievable how terribly emaciated the refugees are.

114.4

Astonishment and awe

staunen 'to be astonished', and jmdn. erstaunen 'to astonish sb.', convey astonishment or even awe about something great or miraculous:

Es hat mich erstaunt, dass am Feiertag so wenig Leute im Museum waren.

I was surprised to see so few people in the museum on a public holiday.

Über die sieben Weltwunder wird immer wieder gestaunt.

The seven wonders of the world never cease to amaze people.

Seine Erfindung hatte das Staunen der Nachwelt erregt.

His invention had astonished (lit. excited the astonishment of) future generations.

114.5

Incomprehension

(a) sich (= acc.) über etw. (= acc.) wundern 'to be surprised about something' is also used for total incomprehension, for something that cannot be understood:

Er wunderte sich über ihr eigenartiges Verhalten.

He could not understand her strange behaviour.

(b) Where an interrogative clause follows, ich frage mich is used:

Ich frage mich, ob /warum hier eine Radarfalle ist.

I wonder whether/why there is a speed trap here.

(c) verwundert sein denotes an even more confused state of surprise:

Wir waren völlig verwundert, wie sehr sie sich zu ihrem Vorteil verändert hatte.

We were completely surprised by how much she had changed for the better.

114.6

Shock and dismay

To express shock at an event:

Die Gemeinde war über die Zahl der Kircheng Austritte schockiert.

The parishioners were shocked at the number of people leaving the church.

Die Wanderer waren über das Waldsterben sehr bestürzt.

The walkers were most alarmed about the forest dying.

See 111.3k (p. 399) for more expressions of shock and fright.

114.7 Irony

In order to be ironic about a real mess caused by some sort of disaster, schöne Bescherung (lit: 'giving of Christmas presents') 'that's just great' is used:

Der Keller steht ein Meter unter Wasser; das ist vielleicht eine schöne Bescherung.

The cellar is under a metre of water; that's just great.

115 Expressing enjoyment and pleasure115.1 Expressions of enjoyment and pleasure in general are derived from the following:

- r Spaß 'fun'
- s Vergnügen 'pleasure'
- r Genuss 'enjoyment'
- e Freude 'joy/fun'
- e Lust 'fun'

115.2 Giving pleasure

jmdm. Spaß machen 'to give sb. pleasure' es macht jmdm. Spaß, etw. zu tun 'sb. enjoys doing sth.'
erfreulich 'pleasing/gratifying'
über etw. (= acc.) entzückt sein 'to be delighted at/about sth.'

Das neue Schweizer Taschenmesser hatte ihm wirklich Spaß gemacht.

The new Swiss Army knife/penknife had really given him pleasure.

Es macht ihm großen Spaß, im Regen barfuß über die Wiese zu laufen.

It gives him great pleasure to run/He gets great pleasure from running barefoot across the meadow in the rain.

Die Königin war entzückt über die erfreuliche Nachricht.

The queen was delighted by the good news.

115.3 Enjoying oneself sich (= acc.) bei etw. vergnügen 'to enjoy oneself doing sth.'

vergnüglich 'amusing/entertaining'
etw. (in vollen Zügen) genießen 'to enjoy' sth. (to the full) Spaß/Freude machen 'to be fun'

Er wollte sich beim Discotanzten vergnügen.

He wanted to have a good time disco dancing.

Wir wollen uns einen vergnüglichen Abend auf der Alpenhütte machen.

We want to have a fun evening at the alpine cabin.

Sie hatte den Aufenthalt in den Bergen in vollen Zügen genossen.

She had enjoyed the stay in the mountains to the full.

Macht dir deine neue Stelle Freude?

Do you enjoy your new job?

Places where one might enjoy oneself are often expressed using compounds of vergnügen:

-r Vergnügungspark 'amusement park'

-s Vergnügungsviertel 'pleasure district/entertainment area of a town/red light district'

-s Vergnügungslokal 'night bar/bar providing entertainment'

See 111.2c (p. 395) for looking forward to something.

115.4

Enjoying the taste of things

See also 63.6 (p. 187) and 63.4 (p. 185) on food and drink.

schmecken 'to taste (nice)'

jmdm. schmeckt etw. (= nom.) 'sb. (= dat.) is enjoying sth. (= nom.)'

genüsslich 'with relish'

Wie hat Ihnen der Rotwein geschmeckt?

How did you like/did you enjoy the red wine?

Die vornehme alte Dame konnte so ganz genüsslich aus der Meißner Tasse ihren Kaffee trinken.

The elegant old lady really relished drinking her coffee out of a Meissen cup.

115.5

Being cheerful and having pleasant feelings

Er ist ein besonders lustiger Spielkamerad.

He is an especially amusing/funny/cheerful playmate.

Auf seinen Kellerpartys war es immer sehr lustig.

We always had a lot of fun at his basement parties.

Bei euch scheint es sehr lustig zuzugehen.

You seem to be having a lot of fun/really enjoying yourselves.

Dr. Hoffmann hatte sich durch die Einnahme von LSD in einen anfänglich angenehmen Zustand versetzt. (formal)

Dr Hoffmann had at first made himself feel quite pleasant by taking LSD.

Mir gefällt die angenehme Atmosphäre in einem englischen Pub.

I like the pleasant atmosphere in an English pub.

115.6

Doing things for fun/pleasure is rendered by (so) zum Vergnügen/zum Spaß:

Ich möchte nur einmal so zum Vergnügen/zum Spaß mit der Straßenbahn fahren.

I would like to go by tram just once for the fun of it.

Bergsteigen macht richtig Spaß.

Climbing mountains is really fun.

115.7

Feeling like doing something/fancying something is expressed by Lust haben:

Lust haben, etw. zu tun 'to feel like doing sth.'

Lust haben auf (+ acc.) 'to fancy sth.' (often associated with food) wanderlustig 'keen on hiking'

Hast du Lust, mit ins Schwimmbad zu gehen?

Do you feel like coming to the swimming-pool?

Ich habe nicht die geringste Lust dazu, den ganzen Tag lang aufzuräumen.

I don't feel in the slightest like tidying up all day long.

Ich hätte große Lust auf eine Grillplatte.

I would really like/I really fancy a mixed grill.

Die Urlauber im Gebirge sind besonders wanderlustig.

Holiday-makers in the mountains are especially keen on hiking.

115.8

Treating oneself to something sich (= dat.) etw. gönnen 'to indulge in sth./to allow oneself sth.'

sich (= dat.) etw. leisten können 'to afford sth.'

sich (= acc.) verwöhnen lassen 'to let oneself be spoiled'

jmdm. etw. gönnen 'not to begrudge sb. sth.'

Nach all den Jahren, in denen sie so sparen musste, sollte sie sich endlich einmal einen richtigen Urlaub gönnen.

After all the years in which she had to save so much, she should finally treat herself to a proper holiday.

Ich kann mir jetzt einen großen Wagen leisten.

I can afford a big car now.

Auf der Schönheitsfarm können Sie sich so richtig verwöhnen lassen.

At the health farm you can really let yourself be spoiled.

Not begrudging something to someone:

Ich gönne ihm das prächtige Haus.

I don't begrudge him the splendid house.

115.9

Joking

(einen) Spaß machen 'to joke'

einen Witz machen/erzählen 'to make/tell a joke'

einen guten Witz machen/reißen 'to make/crack a good joke'

eine witzige Bemerkung machen 'to make a funny remark'

jmdn. auf den Arm nehmen 'to pull sb.'s leg'

Er macht gerne Spaß.

He likes to joke.

Machst du Spaß, oder ist es dir Ernst?

Are you joking or are you serious?

Sie hat wieder einmal eine witzige Bemerkung gemacht.

She's made a funny remark again.

Das hat er nicht so gemeint. Er hat dich nur auf den Arm genommen.

He didn't mean it. He was just pulling your leg.

XV

Communication strategies

116 Using fillers

116.1 Fillers are words or sounds which can be inserted in pauses while the speaker is thinking of what to say next. They have little or no meaning of their own. In German, common 'fillers' include the following:

äähm, hmm, nun, und, ja, eben, also, tja, na ja 'now then' eigentlich 'actually'
sozusagen 'so to speak'
wissen Sie/weißt du 'you know'
sehen Sie/siehst du 'you see'

Das war . . . äähm . . . vor vielen Jahren und . . . wissen Sie . . . ich habe einiges vergessen, und, ja, nun, mein Vater hatte damals eine Stelle bei Siemens, das war . . . also . . . in Erlangen, sehen Sie, . . .

That was . . . umm . . . a long time ago and . . . you know . . . I can't remember everything, and, well, now, my father had a job at Siemens at the time, that was . . . errr . . . in Erlangen, you see, . . .

116.2 When searching for the right word, the following can be used:

Wie ist . . . noch? 'What is . . . again?'
Wie heißt es noch? 'What is the word again?'
Wie war das noch? 'What was it again?'
nicht finden 'can't find'
mir fällt es nicht (mehr) ein 'it won't come to me'
Ich komme nicht darauf 'I can't think of it'

Wie ist das Wort noch?/Wie heißt es noch?
What's the word again?

Ich finde das Wort nicht.
I can't find the word.

Ach, das Wort fällt mir nicht (mehr) ein.
Oh, the word won't come to me.

This could be followed by Moment noch or Augenblick noch 'just a moment', to signal that the speaker is asking for a little time to think of the word.

See also 118 (pp. 425–7) on asking for linguistic cues.

116.3

The following may be useful when pointing to something or describing something for which the speaker does not know the exact word:

so ein Ding 'like that'
so aus*sehen 'to look like that'
so machen 'to go like that'
aus*sehen wie 'to look like' klingen wie/sich (= acc.) anhören wie 'sound like'

(a) General words can be used such as das Ding 'thing', die Sache (which usually refers to a situation or a state of affairs) and der Ort 'place'. The meaning of 'like this/like that' is conveyed in German by so when one can imitate the thing or point to something by way of explanation.

See 74 (pp. 231–40) on 'Describing people' and 75 (pp. 241–52) on 'Describing objects'.

Das war so ein Ding.
 It was (a thing) like this (like that).

NOTE

Das ist so eine Sache as an expression on its own usually means 'It's a bit tricky/it's a complicated state of affairs'.

(b) When describing or imitating the way something looks, so aus*sehen can be used:

Es sieht so aus.
 It looks like this.

(c) When describing the way something moves or sounds, so machen can be used:

Es macht so.
 It goes like this/does this.

Es machte 'brr brr'
 It went 'brr brr'.

Er machte so (mit der Hand).
 He went like this (with his hand).

116.4

When the speaker is able to compare the thing to something for which he or she knows the word, wie is used instead of so:

Es sieht aus wie eine kleine Gitarre.
 It looks like a small guitar.

Alternatively, a relative clause may be used:

Das ist das Ding, das man mit einem Hammer schlägt.
 It's the thing you hit with a hammer.

See 8 (pp. 11–13) on subordinate clauses.

117

Keeping the channel open

117.1

Even when someone carries a conversation for a fairly long time, he or she does not speak in a monologue (see 121). There are a number of words and phrases a speaker can use in a conversation to 'keep the channel open': acknowledging the presence of the listener; checking that the listener is following what is being said; and involving the listener in what is being said. Many of the German expressions used for this purpose do not have straightforward equivalents in English.

nicht wahr? nicht? gell? was? oder? 'isn't it? aren't they?' (etc.) ja, eben, gerade, nun, nämlich 'you see'
sehen Sie? siehst du? (you) see'
verstehen Sie? verstehst du? '(you) understand?'
doch 'surely/after all' (rejecting an actual or anticipated resistance) freilich 'admittedly' (making some kind of concession) allerdings, immerhin can function like doch or like freilich

(a) The commonest of these is nicht wahr? 'isn't it/aren't they?', etc. This is often abbreviated to nicht? or (very informally) in northern Germany to ne? In southern Germany gell? is common. was? is also colloquial and informal:

Komisch, was?
 Strange, eh?

(b) The slightly more demanding oder? usually invites the listener in a fairly direct way to agree with what has just been said:

Das ist (doch) unverschämt, oder?
 That is disgraceful, don't you think?

Wissen Sie? (or weißt du?) said like a question is a fairly neutral way of including the listener in what is being said:

Sie hat das Examen bestanden, weißt du, und jetzt geht sie auf die Uni.
 She passed the exam, you know, and now she's going to university.

It can, however, be quite assertive and challenging, especially when said with a level intonation (i.e. without sounding overtly like a question):

Das ist unverschämt, wissen Sie!
 That is really disgraceful!

Other phrases used in this way include sehen Sie? or siehst du? '(do you) see?' and verstehen Sie? or verstehst du? '(do you) understand?'

(c) German has a lot of modal particles part of whose function is to 'keep the channel open' to the other person in the conversation. The most common ones are listed below alphabetically:

allerdings introduces a point which re-asserts the validity of an earlier point despite some argument to the contrary. It can thus be used to limit the validity of the speaker's (or the listener's) viewpoint:

Das ist allerdings wahr.

That's true, admittedly.

Ich muss allerdings zugeben, dass du Recht hast.

I have to admit, though, that you are right.

Du musst allerdings zugeben, dass ich Recht habe.

You have to admit, all the same, that I am right.

But it can also be used to counter an implied negative:

First speaker: Hast du vielleicht seine Telefonnummer?

You wouldn't have his telephone number by any chance?

Second speaker: Allerdings!

I certainly have!

auch can signal the speaker's sympathy for the position of the listener:

Das ist auch nicht dein Problem.

That's not your problem.

Du konntest es auch kaum selbst bezahlen.

You could scarcely be expected to pay for it yourself.

bloß implies that something is not very important. It can be used to agree with the listener's viewpoint or (with doch) to play down something which the listener thinks is important:

Das ist bloß eine Kleinigkeit.

That's not important.

Das ist doch bloß eine Kleinigkeit.

That's really not important.

denn signals some kind of shared relevance between the speaker and the listener. It can express surprise or add a note of informality:

Was kann ich denn sonst machen?

What else can I do, then?

Was ist denn das?

What's this, then?

Was machst du denn heute Abend?

So what are you doing this evening?

doch has two main uses, depending on whether it is stressed or unstressed. When unstressed, it adds an emphatic note to what one is saying:

Das ist doch ganz klar.

That is absolutely clear.

Ich weiß. Du hast es mir doch gesagt.

I know. You've already told me.

or it can express exasperation:

Das gibt es doch nicht!
I don't believe it!/You must be joking!

and in questions it can express hope for a positive response:

Du hast doch den Brief abgeschickt?
You did send the letter (didn't you?)

When stressed, doch can be used to reject an actual or implied negative (see 109.1b on expressing disagreement). With even greater emphasis, it can be used to confirm an unexpected turn of events, often with dann or together with noch (doch noch):

Trotz der Panne ist der Zug dann doch pünktlich angekommen.
Despite the breakdown the train still arrived on time.

eben usually highlights a potential problem which the speaker can reasonably expect the listener to understand and sympathize with:

Das ist es eben.
That's just it.

Das ist eben klar.
That is clear, after all (as everyone surely accepts).

freilich signals that the speaker acknowledges the force of some argument that detracts from the argument he or she is making:

Die Mitglieder dieser Regierung sind freilich keine Engel, aber sie tun ihr Bestes.
The members of this government are no angels, admittedly, but they are doing their best.

gerade highlights a particular point, draws the listener's attention to something, and gives it a particular prominence. In a conversation, this may imply that the speaker and the listener need to talk about this further. Eben can also be used in this way:

Das ist gerade das Problem.
Das ist eben das Problem.
That is exactly the problem (which you may not fully appreciate).

halt is used colloquially and generally invites the listener to agree that something is a fact and cannot easily be changed:

Es ist halt so. (informal)
That's (just) the way it is.

Heutzutage gibt es halt nur Staus.
These days there are only traffic jams.

immerhin functions very like allerdings (see above):

Wir haben das Spiel verloren. Immerhin hätte es schlimmer sein können.
We lost the game. It could have been worse, though.

Mein Deutsch war immer schwach. Ich war immerhin der Beste in der Klasse.

My German was always weak. I was the best in the class all the same.

ja usually implies that the speaker regards what he or she is saying as self-evident and does not expect the listener to disagree:

Das ist ja ganz klar.

That is absolutely clear (as everyone knows).

mal often implies that the speaker has a strong expectation that the listener ought to or will do what is asked. The effect can be informal and friendly, but it can also be demanding and manipulative. Generally, einmal is a slightly more formal version of mal:

Rechnen Sie mal nach!

Go on, add it up!

Könntest du mal für mich anrufen?

Could you phone for me (i.e. instead of me)?

Geben Sie mal zu, dass ich Recht habe!

Why don't you just admit that I'm right!

Lassen Sie mich einmal ausreden!

Just let me finish, will you?

Kommen Sie mal her!

Come here!

nämlich often signals that the speaker realizes that the listener needs to have something explained a little further. As well as having the sense of 'you see', it usually signals that the speaker is about to elaborate a point:

Du hast nämlich zwei Möglichkeiten: Entweder . . . oder . . .

So you have two possibilities. Either . . . or . . .

Es ist nämlich so: Ich habe diesen Monat fast kein Geld.

Well you see, it's like this: I have practically no money this month.

nun can be used like halt (see above). It can also be used to introduce an idea in such a way that the speaker acknowledges that the listener also has an interest in the matter:

Nun (ja)*, das ist eine wichtige Frage.

Das ist nun eine wichtige Frage.

Well yes, that is an important question.

schon has two main uses. When stressed, it can be used to reject an actual or implied negative. In this usage it is milder than the equivalent use of doch:

Hier dürfen Sie nicht parken! – Quatsch, hier darf man schon parken.

You can't park here! – Rubbish, of course you can park here.

Alternatively, it can signal consent or reassurance. In this case it is unstressed:

Keine Angst, es wird schon gut gehen.

Don't worry, it'll be all right.

Vati, kann ich mit Elli spielen? – Ja, meine Kleine, das darfst du schon.

Daddy, can I play with Elli? – Yes, little one, of course you can.

wohl 'probably' often signals a supposition or expectation on the part of the speaker. It has a wide range of uses, from signalling an awareness that there may be other views on the subject, to an intimidating challenge:

Entschuldigen Sie bitte die Störung. Sie haben wohl viele wichtige Sachen zu erledigen.

Please excuse the interruption. You've probably got a lot of important things to see to.

Sie haben wohl eine Erklärung?

I suppose you have an explanation?

See also 88.2c (p. 320) for wohl.

117.2

It is usual for the listener to give little verbal signals to show that he or she is following what the speaker is saying and is involved. In German this can be done using the following expressions. Some of them also express reservation or disagreement:

ja, ja/ja, mmm/so, so, ja
 ach 'oh'
 Sagen Sie bloß! 'You don't say' tatsächlich? wirklich? echt? 'really'
 (ganz) klar 'of course'
 OK alles klar! 'OK, no problem' eben!/genau! 'exactly'
 richtig! 'right'
 jawohl! 'yes, indeed'
 naja, aber . . . 'well OK, but . . .'
 naja, vielleicht . . . 'well, maybe' nein doch! 'certainly not'

(a) A fairly low level of interest, without particular involvement, can be conveyed with ja (or ja ja), mmm or so, said with a low and slightly falling intonation. Combinations of these are possible, e.g. so, ja.

(b) A greater degree of involvement can be signalled by producing the previous set of words with an appropriately emphatic manner, such as a high falling intonation. Alternatively, the use of ach! or tatsächlich! implies a degree of interest and possibly surprise at learning something. Other responses which could be appropriate here include Sagen Sie bloß! and Was Sie nicht sagen! 'you don't say!'

(c) To signal explicitly that he or she understands and/or agrees with the speaker, the listener can say alles klar! or OK! Combinations with the words listed above are also possible, e.g. so, ja, alles klar!

(d) Strong agreement can be indicated by saying genau! 'exactly', richtig! 'right', ja eben! 'exactly!' or jawohl! 'yes, indeed'. Alternatively, one can say:

(Das) stimmt (ja)!
That's right!

(e) Reservation can be indicated in a variety of ways. In approximate order of forcefulness: naja, aber . . . 'well OK, but . . .'; ja, das schon, aber . . . 'yes, of course, but . . .'; naja, vielleicht 'well, maybe'; wirklich? 'really?'; tatsächlich? 'really?' alternatively, one can say Meinst du (wirklich)? 'You really think so?' More abrupt responses include:

(Wohl) kaum!
Hardly!

Nein doch!
Certainly not!

Ach was!
Come off it!

See 109 (pp. 376–80) on expressing disagreement.

117.3

There are several ways in which the listener can show that he or she has not understood what has just been said:

Wie bitte? 'Could you please repeat that?'
Könnten sie bitte das noch mal wiederholen? 'Could you please repeat that?'
Was? 'What?'
etw. nicht mit*bekommen/nicht mit*kriegen 'to not get/understand sth.'
(etw.) kapieren 'to "twig" (sth.)' schalten, schnallen 'to catch on, "twig"'

(a) The most common and perfectly polite way to ask someone to repeat what they have just said is (Wie) bitte? The following may also be used:

Könnten Sie das bitte wiederholen?
Could you please repeat that?

Könnten Sie bitte (etwas) langsamer sprechen?
Could you please speak (a little) more slowly?

Was haben Sie gesagt?
What did you say?

Langsamer, bitte! (informal, potentially rude)
More slowly, please!

Noch einmal bitte! (informal, potentially rude)
Again, please.

The abbreviated form noch mal! is likely to be offensive unless said to a friend, and was? is either very informal or rude. These expressions can of course be accompanied by expressions like Es tut mir Leid 'I'm sorry' and Das habe ich nicht mitbekommen 'I didn't catch that'.

- (b) Alternatively nicht verstehen or nicht mit*bekommen can be used:

(Es tut mir Leid.) Das habe ich nicht verstanden.

(I am sorry.) I didn't understand that.

Das habe ich nicht (ganz) mitbekommen.

I didn't (quite) get that.

Nicht mit*bekommen can also imply that the listener did not properly hear what was said, e.g. because of intruding noise.

- (c) In colloquial German mit*kriegen is found for mit*bekommen; and schalten, schnallen and (etwas) kapieren are also used, with the meaning 'to twig':

Hast du das mitgekriegt?

Did you get that?

Ich kapiere (schalte) (schnalle) heute schlecht. (informal)

I'm a bit slow today.

Das habe ich nicht kapiert (nicht mitgekriegt). (informal)

I didn't get that/I didn't twig.

- (d) If the listener realizes that he or she has misunderstood something, he or she can signal this with Ach so! or Ach so, ja! 'I see!':

Er ist krank? Ach so! Das habe ich nicht gewusst (nicht mitbekommen).

He is ill? Oh I see! I didn't know that. (I didn't get that.)

117.4

There are a number of ways in which the listener can check that he or she has understood exactly what the other person means:

jmdn. oder etw. richtig verstehen 'to understand sb. or sth. correctly'

Wie meinen Sie das? 'What do you mean?'

Was wollen Sie damit sagen? 'What are you trying to say?'

These expressions can also be used to challenge or correct what someone has said. The more abrupt and challenging expressions for doing this are listed in points (d) and (e).

- (a) Using richtig verstehen

Habe ich Sie richtig verstanden?

Have I understood you correctly?

- (b) Using a construction with meinen 'to mean, intend'

Wie meinen Sie das (genau)?

What do you mean (exactly)?

Ich weiß nicht, was Sie (damit) meinen.

I don't know what you mean (by that).

- (c) Using a construction with wollen 'to intend'

Was wollen Sie damit sagen?

What are you trying to say?

A slightly more elaborate way of saying this is:

Worauf wollen Sie hinaus?

What is the point you are trying to make?

These are rather more challenging than Wie meinen Sie das?

(d) Where speaker A is implying something about speaker B which speaker B objects to because it is unfair or incorrect, speaker B can object by using the following:

jmdm. etw. (= acc.) unterstellen 'to imply (wrongly) sth. about sb.'
-e Unterstellung 'a false or unjustified implication'

Was unterstellen Sie mir?

What are you implying (wrongly) about me?

Was wollen Sie mir unterstellen?

What are you trying to imply about me?

Nein, das ist eine Unterstellung.

No, that's unjustified.

(e) A very forthright way of challenging what someone has said is:

Was soll denn das heißen? (with the stress on das)

What is that supposed to mean?

118

Asking for spoken linguistic cues

Common expressions include:

Wie heißt das auf Deutsch? 'How do you say that in German?'

Wie sagt man auf Deutsch: hard disk? Wie sagt man 'hard disk'/auf Deutsch?
 'How do you say "hard disk" in German?'

wiederholen 'to repeat'

langsamer sprechen 'to speak more slowly'

etw. anders sagen 'to say sth. differently'

Wie schreibt man das? 'How do you spell that?'

buchstabieren 'to spell'

A wie Anton? 'A for Anton?'

118.1

When lost for a word, the help of a German speaker can be sought by asking:

Wie heißt das auf Deutsch?

What is it called in German?

(Nun,) (Also,) wie sagt man (auf Deutsch) 'hard disk?'

(Now then), how do you say 'hard disk' in German?

118.2

Asking someone to reformulate what they have said to make it easier to understand can be done using anders sagen or anders formulieren (often with an introductory sentence like Das habe ich nicht verstanden):

Könnten Sie das bitte anders sagen/formulieren?
 Could you please say/formulate that in another way?

118.3

'Please spell!'

(a) There may be occasions (on the telephone, writing notes) when it is useful to ask for a word or name to be spelt out. To ask someone to do this, one of the following can be used:

Wie schreibt man das?
 How do you spell that?

Wie schreibt sich das?
 How is that spelt?

Könnten Sie (mir) das bitte buchstabieren?
 Could you please spell that (for me)?

(b) The letters of the alphabet are listed below with an approximate pronunciation in brackets (see also 1.4) and the identifying word which most Germans are likely to use. Note that wie is used to introduce the identifying word:

A [ah] wie Anton
 B [be:] wie Bertha
 C [tse:] wie Cäsar
 D [de:] wie Dora
 E [e:] wie Emil
 F [ef] wie Friedrich
 G [ge:] wie Gottfried
 H [ha:] wie Heinrich
 I [i:] wie Ida
 J [yot] wie Johann
 K [ka:] wie Kaufmann
 L [el] wie Ludwig
 M [em] wie Martha
 N [en] wie Nordpol
 O [o:] wie Otto
 P [pe:] wie Paula
 Q [ku:] wie quer
 R [air] wie Richard
 S [es] wie Siegfried
 T [te:] wie Theodor
 U [u:] wie Ulrich
 V [fau] wie Viktor
 W [ve:] wie Wilhelm
 X [iks] wie Xaver
 Y [ipsilon] wie Ypsilon
 Z [tset] wie Zeppelin

NOTE The letter B is called Eszett.

(c) Note that the following German letters can sound misleadingly like English letters:

[ah] is a German A (not an R)

[e:] is a German E (not an A)

[i:] is a German I (not an E)

(d) If one is in doubt about the exact letter, it can be solicited by asking ‘wie + identifying word?’ (or just wie? with a level intonation, which invites the other person to supply the identifying word):

Das habe ich nicht mitbekommen. Wie Richard?

I didn’t catch that. As in Richard (i.e. R)?

Nein, wie Anton!

No, as in Anton! (i.e. A)

Es tut mir Leid, das habe ich nicht mitbekommen. Wie . . . ?

I’m sorry, I didn’t catch that. As in . . . ?

Wie Heinrich.

As in Heinrich.

119

Shaping the course of a conversation

119.1

Developing the current topic

(a) A speaker can use a number of phrases to reiterate and explain what has just been said:

das heißt ‘that is to say’
mit anderen Worten ‘in other words’ anders gesagt ‘in other words’ nämlich ‘namely/that is to say’ oder besser ‘or more appropriately’

Er arbeitet jetzt unter Hochdruck. Das heißt, er spielt morgen bestimmt nicht Tennis.

He is working under enormous pressure at the moment. In other words, he certainly won’t be playing tennis tomorrow.

Sabine ist kein Einzelkind. Sie hat nämlich einen Bruder und eine Schwester.

Sabine is not an only child. You see, she has a brother and a sister.

Sie kann morgen nicht. Oder besser, sie will morgen nicht.

She can’t make it tomorrow. Or rather, she doesn’t want to.

(b) A speaker can use one of the following to expand on what s/he has been saying and to introduce a new point:

und zwar (see 119.5)

Mehr noch 'And that's not all'

Dazu gehört (auch) lit. 'to this belongs'

Dazu kann man sagen, dass . . . 'I can add that . . .'

außerdem, sonst, ansonsten 'otherwise'

In diesem Zusammenhang 'In this connection' (formal)

Hinzuzufügen wäre (noch), dass 'One could add that . . . ' (formal)

Darüber hinaus 'Over and beyond that/What is more' (formal)

Sie heiratet. Und zwar einen Australier. Mehr noch, sie wandert nach Australien aus!

She's getting married. To an Australian. And that's not all. She's emigrating to Australia!

Ja, es gab ein paar kleinere Probleme im ersten Jahr, aber ansonsten ist alles bestens gelaufen.

Yes, there were a few minor problems in the first year, but apart from that everything went smoothly.

Ich kann Ihnen ein Anfangsgehalt von 5.000 Euro im Monat versichern. Darüber hinaus besteht die Möglichkeit, dass Sie ab Januar im Ausland arbeiten könnten.

I can assure you of a starting salary of 5,000 euros a month. Also, there is the possibility that you could be working abroad from January.

119.2

Changing the topic

(a) übrigens 'by the way' and nebenbei (gesagt) 'incidentally' are useful for introducing a new direction into a conversation. So is the more direct Wissen Sie was? 'Do you know what?' A combination of these is possible:

. . . ja, ja. Übrigens, wissen Sie was? Mein Bruder kommt übermorgen.

. . . yes, yes. By the way, do you know what? My brother is coming the day after tomorrow.

Nebenbei (gesagt)*, wir haben eine Einladung bekommen.

Incidentally, we've had an invitation.

(b) Where a speaker does not want to talk about a particular topic any more, he or she can say so explicitly. The following expressions are arranged in approximate order of increasing explicitness:

(Aber) reden wir nicht mehr darüber!

(But) let's not talk about that any more.

Reden wir (aber) von etwas anderem!

(But) let's talk about something else.

Ich würde lieber über etwas anderes sprechen.

I would rather talk about something else.

Das hatten wir schon.

We've already covered that.

Ja, ja, das weiß ich (doch) (alles) schon!

Yes, yes, I know all that!

(Aber) ich bitte Sie!

Please, no more!

Das Thema ist geschlossen.

The topic is closed.

Strich darunter! (informal)

Matter closed!

119.3

Resisting a change of topic

Where a conversation partner is trying to change the topic or has changed the topic, this can be resisted or registered in the conversation in a number of ways:

(a) By trying to steer the conversation back to the desired topic, using one of the following:

(Aber) was wollte ich (gerade) sagen?

Now what was I going to say?

Aber wie ich (schon) gesagt habe, . . .

But as I was saying (before), . . .

(Aber) wie Sie schon/vor kurzem gesagt haben, . . .

(But) as you were saying before/just now, . . .

(b) By explicitly pointing out that the topic has been changed without one's agreement, using:

das Thema 'the topic'

beim Thema bleiben 'to keep to the point'

vom Thema ab*kommen 'to get off the point'

zum Thema zurück*kommen 'to get back to the point'

zum Thema (nicht) gehören lit. 'to (not) belong to the topic'

mit dem Thema nichts zu tun haben 'to have nothing to do with the topic'

(Aber) bleiben wir beim Thema.

(But) let's keep to the point.

(Aber) wir kommen vom Thema ab.

(But) we're getting off the topic.

Aber zurück zum Thema! Kommen wir aber zum Thema zurück!

But let's get back to the topic.

(Aber) das gehört nicht zum Thema.

(But) that's not what we're talking about.

(Aber) das hat mit dem Thema nichts zu tun.

(But) that's got nothing to do with it.

More impatiently, one could say:

Aber könnten wir jetzt mal endlich zum Thema zurückkommen!
But could we now please finally get back to what we were talking about?

119.4

Broadening the topic

The following are some of the ways in which the topic of a conversation can be broadened, moving from the particular to the general:

im Großen und Ganzen 'on the whole' (59.1d)

in der Regel 'as a rule'

im Allgemeinen 'in general' (59.1d) sonst 'otherwise/apart from that'

solche Dinge/solche Sachen 'such things'

solche Fragen 'such questions' (etc.)

(a) The expressions im Großen und Ganzen 'on the whole', im Allgemeinen 'in general', alles in allem 'all in all', in der Regel 'as a rule' are widely interchangeable:

Im Großen und Ganzen kann man sagen, dass die Frauen heutzutage bessere Berufschancen haben.

On the whole one can say that women have better career prospects today.

Wir sind diesen Monat überzogen, aber in der Regel haben wir genug Geld auf der Bank.

We are overdrawn this month but as a rule we have enough money in the bank.

(b) sonst and im Übrigen (formal) mean 'otherwise, apart from that':

Dieses Bild gefällt mir nicht, (aber) sonst finde ich die Ausstellung gut.

I don't like this picture, (but) otherwise I think the exhibition is good.

Sie hat eine leichte Erkältung? Wie geht es ihr sonst?

She has a slight cold? How is she otherwise?

Die Regierung hat einige Probleme in der Außenpolitik. Im Übrigen läuft alles bestens.

The government has a few problems in foreign affairs. Otherwise everything is going smoothly.

(c) With phrases using solch- or (formal) derartig- 'such a':

Solche (derartige) Dinge findet man überall . . .

You find that kind of thing everywhere . . .

Solche Leute findet man überall.

You find people like that everywhere.

119.5

Narrowing the topic

The following are some of the ways in which the topic of a conversation can be narrowed, moving from the general to the particular:

(ganz) besonders 'especially/in particular' insbesondere 'especially/in particular'
vor allem 'above all/especially'
und zwar/nämlich 'to be precise' (ganz) besonders 'particularly'

Aber was mich ganz besonders daran interessiert, ist . . .

But what particularly interests me about it is . . .

Insbesondere 'especially/in particular':

Die Elektronik, insbesondere die Computerindustrie, erfährt jetzt einen Boom.

Electronics, and in particular the computer industry, is experiencing a boom at the moment.

Vor allem 'above all/especially':

Mir gefällt das Haus, vor allem die Küche und das Wohnzimmer.

I like the house, especially the kitchen and the living room.

Und zwar and nämlich can be used to specify a point of detail:

Zwei Leute sind dagegen, und zwar der Robert und die Sabine.

Zwei Leute sind dagegen, nämlich der Robert und die Sabine.

Two people are against – Robert and Sabine.

Es gibt ein kleines Problem, und zwar ist der Wagen kaputt.

Es gibt ein kleines Problem. Der Wagen ist nämlich kaputt.

There is a little problem: the car has broken down.

119.6

Requesting more detail

There are several ways of asking for further information or more detail.

(a) By asking wo?, wer?, wann?, warum?, etc., often with genau 'exactly':

Wo wohnt er genau?

Where exactly does he live?

Wann fährt der Zug genau?

When exactly does the train leave?

Alternatively, eigentlich can be used instead of genau:

Was macht er eigentlich?

What does he do exactly?

(b) Using noch 'again' with die Frage, die Bitte or die Auskunft:

Ich habe (hätte) noch eine Frage (noch eine Bitte).

May I ask another question/make another request?

Ich möchte (brauche) noch eine Auskunft, bitte.

I would like (I need) some more information, please.

(c) When asking for more detailed information about something, the adjectives weiter and näher are often used:

Haben Sie weitere Informationen über das Hotel?

Have you got further information on the hotel?

Könnten Sie das Haus näher beschreiben?

Could you describe the house in more detail?

See also 51 (p. 132) on comparison of adverbs.

Näheres (über etwas) 'more exact information (about sth.)' is a very useful term for eliciting further information:

Könnten Sie mir Näheres darüber sagen?

Could you tell me more about that?

Ich möchte (gern) Näheres über diese Wohnung erfahren.

I would like to find out more about this apartment.

Alternatively die Einzelheiten 'details' can be used:

Könnten Sie mir noch ein paar Einzelheiten geben/erklären?

Could you give me/explain a few more details?

120

Turn-taking in conversations

120.1

Intonation

Generally a rising intonation implies that a speaker is intending to continue speaking (unless it is a direct question). A falling intonation implies that the speaker is anticipating the possibility that the other person will say something. In this section, [/] marks the point at which a rising intonation begins, and [\] marks the point at which a falling intonation begins. For example:

Wie viele Kinder haben Sie?

[\]Drei.

Wie viele Kinder haben Sie?

[/]Drei. Zwei Mädchen und einen [\]Jungen.

How many children do you have?

Three – two girls and a boy.

120.2

'Please don't interrupt me'

There are various ways in which a speaker can signal that he or she does not wish to be interrupted, even though he or she may have paused for a moment:

(a) By using rising intonation (see 120.1):

Ich bin nach [/]Hause gekommen . . . (und . . .)

I came home . . . (and . . .)

(b) By starting a sentence with a construction that points forward to a following clause for its completion (see 38.2 for clause links with da + preposition, and 42.3b for verb completion with two elements):

Das hat [/] damit zu tun . . . (dass sie nicht zu Hause war).
It has to do with the fact that (she was not at home).

[/] Damit hängt zusammen . . . (dass die Firma in Helsinki eine Filiale eröffnet).

Related to this is the fact (that the firm is opening a branch in Helsinki).

(c) Explicitly, by saying so, perhaps after someone else has started to speak. One of the following might be used:

Augenblick noch!

Moment noch!

Just a moment!

Eine Sekunde noch!

Just a second!

Kann (darf) ich noch etwas sagen?

Can I say something else?

Ich bin (noch) nicht fertig.

I am not finished (yet).

Ich bin gleich (bald) fertig.

I'm almost finished.

Darf ich noch ausreden?

May I finish?

Lassen Sie mich bitte ausreden!

Please let me finish!

120.3

'Please speak'

There are various ways in which a speaker can signal that he or she is prepared to be or expects to be interrupted, even though he or she may not have finished what he or she was saying:

(a) By using falling intonation (see 120.1):

Und dann bin ich nach [/]Hause gekommen und . . . [\\]ja

And then I came home and . . . yes?

(b) By explicitly telling the other person that he or she can take over the conversation at this point:

[\\]Bitte!

Mmm? Yes?!

A rising intonation here (e.g. [/] Bitte) could sound impatient or reluctant. Other possible expressions include:

Nein, Sie zuerst!

No, you first!

Bitte, nach Ihnen!

Please, go ahead, after you!

Of course, a direct question is usually an open invitation to respond:

Sie langweilen sich, nicht?

You are bored, aren't you?

Ich komme aus Berlin, und Sie?

I am from Berlin, and you?

Wann macht die Bank auf?

When does the bank open?

120.4

Interrupting someone

Breaking into a conversation when the speaker is not prepared or is not expecting to be interrupted needs to be done with some confidence. Amongst the more explicit techniques there are the following:

(a) Using the inseparable verb unterbrechen 'to interrupt', or the more informal ein*haken:

Darf ich (mal) (kurz) unterbrechen?

Can I (just) interrupt you (briefly)?

Darf ich einhaken?

Can I butt in?

(b) Using a similar construction with another verb:

Kann/Darf ich etwas sagen?

May I say something?

Kann/Darf ich (Sie) etwas fragen?

Can I ask you something?

Or, more impatiently:

Darf ich jetzt mal etwas sagen?

Can I just say something now?

All of the above tend to sound assertive and forthright when said with a falling intonation: unter[\]brechen, [\]sagen, [\]fragen. A rising intonation makes these interruptions seem more polite and tentative: unter[/]brechen, [/]sagen, [/]fragen.

(c) Other ways of interrupting, which do not draw attention to themselves as interruptions, include:

Ja, [/]wissen Sie, . . .

Ah, you know . . .

(Ja) dazu kann ich [/]sagen . . .

lit. To that I can say . . .

With a strong stress on da-, this claims a close relevance to what has just been said, and the rising intonation signals that the speaker wishes to continue:

[/] Dazu kann ich sagen, dass . . .

I can tell you that . . .

Alternatively, a more assertive intervention uses a falling intonation, inviting the other person to stop and listen:

(Ja) dazu kann ich etwas [\\]sagen.

Ah, I can tell you something on that score.

(d) Where the person interrupting wishes to challenge or amend what has just been said, the following might be used (in addition to those listed above):

Aber [/]wissen Sie . . .

But you know . . .

Das [/]stimmt zwar, aber . . .

That's right, but . . .

A direct contradiction of what has just been said can be achieved by using Nein! or (where one wishes to correct a negative assertion) Doch! (possibly together with schon):

First speaker:

Sie machen eigentlich keine Fehler.

You don't really make any mistakes.

Second speaker:

Doch, ich mache schon Fehler.

That's not so. I do make mistakes.

121

Delivering monologues (formal speaking)

See 58 (p. 146); see also 60.6c (p. 163) on 'Welcoming'; 66.5b (p. 198) on proposing a toast; 66.7–8 (pp. 199–201) on congratulating and celebrating; 67.1–2 (pp. 201–4) on expressing thanks.

Situations in which a person speaks on his or her own without interruption are usually formal or semi-formal occasions, e.g. giving a speech (eine Rede halten), a lecture (einen Vortrag halten), a report or 'paper' (ein Referat halten). Some of the vocabulary and structures given in this section are found only in such formal or semi-formal contexts, and are identified as 'formal'.

121.1

Formally introducing a speaker

The usual way to hand over formally to a speaker is jmdm. das Wort geben. Alternatively, das Wort haben can be used:

(Damit) gebe ich Ihnen, Herr Johnson, das Wort.

(And with that) I hand over to you, Mr Johnson.

Herr Johnson, Sie haben das Wort.

Mr Johnson, over to you.

121.2

Opening words

See 34.7d (p. 73).

(a) The first word may be an introductory 'filler' (see 116) such as also, nun, or even ja.

(b) In a speech this might be followed by Liebe Freunde! 'dear friends' or Meine (sehr geehrten) Damen und Herren! 'Ladies and gentlemen'. In a lecture or a report, some kind of introductory remark might follow, such as Thema dieses Vortrags (dieses Referats) ist (lautet) . . . 'the subject of this lecture (this paper) is . . .'

121.3

Closing words

(a) Once again, a simple 'filler' such as also, after a pause, could mark the beginning of the conclusion. It is also quite common to mark the final part of a monologue with schließlich:

Also, ich komme schließlich zu meinem letzten Punkt, . . .
Schließlich also komme ich zu meinem letzten Punkt, . . .
 Finally, then, I come to my last point, . . .

See also 76.9 (pp. 264–6).

A slightly more formal word is abschließend 'in conclusion':

Abschließend möchte ich sagen, dass . . .
 In conclusion I would like to say that . . .
Ich komme abschließend zu der Finanzfrage.
 I come finally to the financial question.

(b) More formal expressions meaning to summarize include zusammen*fassen, ein, Fazit ziehen, and Bilanz ziehen:

Ich möchte also jetzt zusammenfassen . . .
 So, I would now like to sum up . . .

See also 121.4 (p. 437).

(c) The speaker can signal that he or she is nearly finished speaking as follows:

Ich bin gleich am Ende/gleich fertig.
 I am almost finished.
Ich nähere mich dem Ende dieses Referats. (formal)
 I am drawing to a close (coming to the end) of this lecture, etc.

(d) In a formal situation it is customary to finish by thanking the audience for their attention. Possibilities, in rising order of formality, include:

Ich danke fürs Zuhören.
 Thanks for listening.
Ich danke Ihnen für Ihre Aufmerksamkeit.
 Thank you for your attention.

Ich möchte Ihnen für Ihre Aufmerksamkeit danken.
I would like to thank you for giving me your attention.

Using sich bei jmdm. für etwas bedanken gives this a slightly more formal ring, and danken can also be expanded by recht herzlich:

Ich möchte mich bei Ihnen für Ihre Aufmerksamkeit recht herzlich bedanken.

See 67.1–2 (pp. 201–4) on thanking somebody.

121.4

Giving an overview

(a) A person delivering a lecture or paper usually provides an outline of the whole (-e Gliederung) at the beginning. The following might be used to explain that a talk has three main parts:

Mein Vortrag befasst sich mit drei Fragen.
Mein Vortrag hat drei Teile.
Mein Vortrag hat drei Schwerpunkte.
Mein Vortrag ist in drei Teile unterteilt (gegliedert).

(b) There are various ways of talking about the order things will come in:

Zunächst 'first of all' could be followed by zweitens . . . , drittens, . . . viertens, . . . fünftens, etc. Other words for 'next' are dann and anschließend. 'Finally' is schließlich or zum Schluss. A combination of these is possible:

Zunächst gebe ich einen kurzen Überblick über die Situation in den beiden Firmen.
First, I will give a brief outline of the situation in both companies.

Anschließend werde ich die Logik einer Fusion untersuchen.
Following that I will examine the logic of a merger.

Drittens befasse ich mich mit der Haltung des ABC-Vorstands.
Third, I discuss the attitude of the ABC board.

Dann werden die strukturellen Vorteile einer Fusion erörtert.
Then the structural benefits of a merger will be discussed.

Und schließlich komme ich zu der Frage, ob das Hauptquartier der neuen Gruppe in Düsseldorf oder Leipzig sein soll.
And finally I come to the question of whether the headquarters of the new group should be in Düsseldorf or Leipzig.

A combination of these is possible:

Zunächst . . . , dann . . . , anschließend . . . , viertens . . . , und schließlich . . .
First . . . , then . . . , next . . . , fourthly . . . , and finally . . .

(c) Other ways of saying what will come first are Als Erstes, Gleich am Anfang and In dem ersten Teil. Any combination of the following will say that the first part of the talk discusses X:

Zunächst kommt X.

Als Erstes werde ich über X sprechen.

Gleich am Anfang werde ich X behandeln (erörtern).

Im ersten Teil wird X behandelt.

(d) When moving from one part of a talk to the next a speaker might say:

Das war also der erste Punkt. Ich komme (Wir kommen) jetzt zu dem zweiten Punkt, der Finanzfrage . . .

That was the first point, then. I come/we come now to the second point, the financial question . . .

See 21.1 (p. 33) on noun apposition.

Soviel (also) zu diesem Aspekt (zu dieser Frage), ich gehe jetzt zu dem nächsten (zweiten, dritten) Punkt über.

So much for that aspect (that question). I now come to the next (second third) point.

More formally:

Soweit zu dem ersten Teil. Ich wende mich jetzt dem zweiten Teil zu.

So much for the first part. I now turn to the second part.

Expressions which also explain the logical relation of the previous part to the next part include:

Während in dem letzten Teil (meines Referrats) X im Vordergrund stand, gehe ich jetzt auf Y ein.

Whereas the focus was on X in the last part (of my talk), I will now look at Y in some detail.

See 76.5 (p. 258) on expressing the next step in a process.

(e) Indicating that something will not be dealt with in a talk can be done as follows:

Aus Zeitgründen kann ich (leider) X hier nicht behandeln.

There is (unfortunately) not enough time for me to deal with X here.

Aus Zeitgründen kann (leider) X hier nicht behandelt werden.

There is (unfortunately) not enough time for X to be dealt with here.

X zu behandeln, würde über den Rahmen dieses Vortrags hinausführen.

To deal with X would exceed the remit of this talk.

X muss/musste (leider) (aus Zeitgründen) ausgeklammert werden.

(Unfortunately) since time is short X could not be included in the talk (lit. has to be (has had to be) excluded from the talk).

Another reason for excluding something is that it is not sufficiently relevant:

... weil X hier uns nur am Rande interessiert.

... because X is only of marginal interest here.

121.5

OHP and slide presentations

Talks with an overhead projector require the speaker to be able to refer to the material being shown. This may be a table (die Tabelle) or some kind of pictorial representation (die Abbildung, das Schaubild, die Graphik), which could be a diagram (das Diagramm) a matrix (die Matrix), a graph (die Kurve, die Graphik) or some kind of picture (das Bild). Common ways of referring to OHP material include:

die Abbildung macht deutlich, dass ... 'the illustration clearly shows that ...'
wie die Abbildung (etc.) zeigt 'as the picture (etc.) shows' sich (= dat.) etw. (= acc.) an*sehen/an*schauen 'to look at sth.'
etw. (= acc.) an etw. (= dat.) sehen 'to see sth. from sth.'
etw. (= acc.) (von) etw. entnehmen 'to deduce sth. from sth.'
aus etw. hervor*gehen 'to be evident from'

For example, all of the following could say that the visual aid shows a rise in the rate of inflation:

Die Abbildung/Das Schaubild macht die steigende Inflationsrate deutlich.

The diagram shows the rising rate of inflation clearly.

Die steigende Inflationsrate wird in dieser Abbildung (in diesem Schaubild) veranschaulicht.

The rising rate of inflation is shown in this diagram.

Wie die Abbildung (das Schaubild) zeigt, ist die Inflationsrate gestiegen.

As the diagram shows, the rate of inflation has risen.

Wie Sie der Abbildung (dem Schaubild) entnehmen können, ist die Inflationsrate gestiegen.

As you can see from the diagram, the rate of inflation has risen.

Wie aus der Abbildung (dem Schaubild) hervorgeht, ist die Inflationsrate gestiegen.

As is clear from the diagram, the rate of inflation has risen.

Wie Sie an der Abbildung (dem Schaubild) sehen, ist die Inflationsrate gestiegen.

As you can see from the diagram, the rate of inflation has risen.

Wenn wir uns die Abbildung (das Schaubild) anschauen, (dann) wird deutlich, dass (wie) die Inflationsrate gestiegen ist.

When we look at the diagram it becomes clear that (how) the rate of inflation has risen.

Index

NOTE

The references are to sections, not to pages

a 22

ab 19.4

abbreviations for literature references 84.5b;
abbreviated prepositional forms 18.3, 19.5, 42.3d

ability 87; mental 87.1; physical 87.1; power to bring sth. about 87.2; resulting from an effort 87.2; skills 87.3

absence 70; being missed and missing sth. 70.2; cancelled or failing to happen 70.5; lack and shortage 70.3

abstract nouns 23.2b

academic referencing 84.5

accent, see stress 4

accepting: an apology 68.3; help and advice 91.4; an invitation or offer 96.3; suggestions 98

accompanying sb. 69.5

accusative see cases 18; declension 22.2;
personal pronouns in the acc. 30.2;
prepositions taking the acc. 18.2; time expressions using the acc. 18.4; two-case prepositions 18.3; two acc. objects 18.8; weak masculine nouns 28.2

ach so 117.3

achievements 112.3

acquaintances 61.6

acronyms, gender of 26.2

action 76.1 see also processes: explaining an action 79.5; justifying an action 79.6;
origin of action 78.6

active voice/sentence 40.1

adjectival nouns see adjectival declension 28.5

adjectival phrases/extended adjectives 49, 58.1;
use for definitions 75.1

adjectives 43–48; attributive adjectives/adjectives in front of nouns 43.2; changes in adjectives 47.2; comparison of adjectives 48; declension 28.5; endings

28.5; extended adjectives/adjectival phrases 49, 58.1; interrogative adjective (welcher 44.2); mixed declension 45; adjectives used as nouns 28.5; possessive adjectives 30.3; predicative 43.1, 48.5; strong/zero declension 46; weak declension 44

adjectives with prepositions 47.4; with sein/ werden + dat. 19.9; with the gen. 20.3 adjective or adverb? 43.2a

adopting children 74.9e

adverb and adverbials 5.2, 50; characteristic endings 50.3; degree 50.1; expressions of measurement and value + acc. 18.6; adverbial expressions + gen. 20.6;
interrogative adverb 9; manner 50.1; place 50.1; time 50.1; time – manner – place rule/order 11.1–4

adverbial phrases 5.2, 50; used in functions
e.g. 81

advice: accepting 91.4; offering 91.3 after 81.13b

agents: avoiding description of 77 ago 81.2

agreeing with someone 109 agreement of noun and adjectives 43, 44

aid 91.5

Akademiker 101.2b

akademisch 101.2b

alle + der-declension 44.3

allerdings 117.1

alles 10.5; + der-declension 44.4; as relative pronoun 50.5a

alles, was 10.5

alphabet see letters and sounds 1; capital letters 59.1; consonants 3; diphthongs 2; vowels 1

als 8.3; (as a) 23.1c

als (when) 8.3; in comparisons (than) 8.7b, 48.6, 51.2, 81.5e

als (as) in apposition 21.6

als ob 8.3; and (Subjunctive II) 39.2

INDEX

- also 5.3, 79.2, 83.2f alterations 75.3e, 76.8 alternatives to the passive 40.4 am 19.5
 amount 75.5, 23.2f
an 18.3, 19.5
 ancestors 78.4
andern 76.8d
anders 76.8f anger 111.1 another 93.4
 any 22.3, 23.1, 24.2
 apologizing 68: accepting apology 68.3; expressing regret 68.2; seeking forgiveness 68.1
 apostrophes 59.5
 appearance: physical 74.3
 apposition 21; apposition in comparisons 21.6;
 in phrases denoting measurements and quantities 21.2–3; see also eating and drinking 63 appreciation see thanking area 80.4
 article: definite article 22.2; following als 23.1; forms 22; indefinite article 22.3; negative article (kein) 22.3, 23.1c, 24.2; use of article 23; when giving amount 23.2;
 when giving price 23.2; no article 23.1;
 see also 74.5a, 74.7 for talking about professions article with: abstract nouns 23.2b; countries, preceded by an adjective 23.2h;
 geographical names 23.2i; with infinitives used as nouns 23.2c; medical conditions 23.2k; names of famous people 23.2; nationalities 23.1; parts of the body 23.2e;
 with personal names 23.2g; professions
 23.1b; a qualifying adjective 23.2; religion
 23.1b; streets and buildings 23.2j as 48.6, 105.2
 asking for help 91.1; asking sb. else to do sth.
 92.4; asking for sth. to be done 92; errands 92.1
 asserting/assertions 35.6b, 85.1, 100 assuming/assumptions 34.3, 89; in a scientific context 89.2; expressing assumptions using dass 89.1
 assuring 95; assurance of services 95.1; guarantees 95.1
 astonishment 114.4
 attention 61.1; attracting attention 90;
 attracting attention in a dangerous situation 90.1; attracting attention when sb. is busy 90.2; non-verbal ways of attracting attention 90.5; politely requesting attention 90.2; turning one's attention to sb. 90.3
 attributive adjectives 43.2; changes in attributive or predicative adjectives 47.2 auch 117.1c
auf 18.3, 19.5
auf Wiedersehen/Wiederhören 62.1
aus 19.4
außer 19.4
 authorship 78.9
 auxiliary verbs 33.8, 35.3a, 40.2a; and perfect tenses (choice haben or sein) 33.8 availability 71, non-availability 72: availability through borrowing/rental 71.6; availability through purchase 71.5; being at hand 71.3; being temporarily unavailable 72.3; being within reach 71.3; finished consumables 72.2; getting sth. 71.4; items in stock 71.2; making or having sth. available 71.1; not being available for a caller 72.4; reaching for sth. 71.4
 awe 114.4

-bar 40.4c, 55.1
 before 81.13a
-r Befund 110.8c
bei 19.4
beide 24.2; + der-declension 44.2 beim 19.5, 114.1a belief 100.2; hardly believing the news 114.3
 bequeathing 78.8 bereavement 65.3, 111.3
bevor 8.3
 bill in restaurant 63.5 bis 8.3, 18.2
bitte 92, 117.3
bloß 117.1c body: parts of 23.2e, 37.4, 110.11 borrowing 71.6
brauchen 93.1, nicht brauchen 35.7, 86.4–5
bringen 33.5a, c, 33.6c, 80.7d business card 60.9 buying 71.5

 cancellation 70.5 capability 74.5
 capital letters 59.1

- cases: acc. 18; dat. 19; dat. of advantage 19.2; dat. of disadvantage 19.3; gen. 20; nom. 17; case of the relative pronoun 10.3; the case system 16–21
- cause 82; causing danger 82.2b; different effects 82.3; general causes 82.2a; having an effect 82.3; having consequences 82.3c; interdependence 82.5; linking cause and effect 82.1; tracing events back to their causes 82.4
- ceasing to exist 70.4
- celebrating 66.8
- certainty 88; degree of certainty 88.1; really did happen 35.8
- change 76.8d
- changed 76.8f
- changing data 75.9; situations 76.8d; the law 76.8d
- character of people 74.4
- claiming to do sth. 35.6, 85.1, 93.1
- clauses: main clauses 5–6; relative clauses 10; subordinate clause 5.2, 8.1, 8.5; after introductory words like ja 5.3
- closing words 121.3
- cold: I am cold 19.9, 42.3k
- collective nouns: gen. after collective nouns 20.2; with prefix ge- 25.5
- colloquial speech 58.2–4
- colons 59.5b
- comma before extended infinitive clauses 8.7; separating subordinate clauses 8.1; for separating dependent clauses 59.5; in numbers 59.5d
- commanding 86.1
- commands: word order 7; see imperative
- commemorating 102.2
- commiserating 65; bereavement 65.3
- commitment 86.2: being liable 86.2g–h; different types of obligation 86.2f; expressing and inquiring about obligation 86.2; of a less binding nature 86.2i
- communication strategies: fillers 116; keeping the channel open 117; linguistic cues 118; searching for the right word 116.2; trying to describe sth. 116.3–4; turn-taking 120
- comparative 48.1; forms 48.2, 48.4
- comparison of adjectives 48 (positive/comparative/superlative) 48.6, 51.2; comparing 105.2
- comparison of adverbs (positive/comparative/superlative) 51; for gern/lieber/am liebsten see also likes and dislikes 104.2 and indicating preferences 105
- complaining 94; complaining rudely 94.2c; criticising 104.1; demanding one's rights 94.3; making complaints 94.2; putting sb. right in a polite way 94.1; taking a complaint to court 94.2d
- completion of verbs 42; of an action 76.9c
- complimenting 64; responding to compliments 64.2
- compliments slip 60.9
- compound nouns 26.1; forming compound nouns 54.1–3
- concluding 83; consequences 83.2; from evidence 83.1
- conditionals 39.7c, 39.8
- conditional actions or states: expressing 39.2, 89; when it can and is likely to be fulfilled 89.3
- condolence 65.3a, b
- congratulation 66.7
- conjunctions: co-ordinating 6.1; subordinating 8.2–3
- consequence 82.4; of action 83.2
- consoling 65.2
- consonants 3
- consumption 71.8; of energy 75.5c
- contractions (abbreviated prepositional forms) 18.3, 19.4
- contradicting 109b, 117.1, 120.4 (see also disagreement); see also doch
- convictions 108
- co-ordinating conjunctions 6.1
- cost 75.8e
- could have/would have/should have done 35.8
- countries and the article 23.2d; article before 23.2
- court (taking a complaint to court) 94.2; see legal
- covering distance 80.4
- criticising 104.1
- da (since/because) 8.3, 79.1; (there) 80.2
- da + preposition (da- compounds) 32, 38.2, 50.5–6; dabei 76.6; 114.1a; daher 79.2, 83.2; damit 8.3, 79.2, 83.2
- Dank 20.7
- danke 63.3c; 67
- darum 50.6, 83.2
- das as definite article 22; as demonstrative 10.5

INDEX

- dass 8.2; omitted 8.4
daß (see spelling reform) 59 dating and meeting 74.10
 dative see cases 19; declensions 28.1, 44;
 declension weak masculine nouns 28.2;
 personal pronouns in the dat. 30.2;
 prepositions taking the dat. 19.4; two-case prepositions taking either acc. or dat. 18.3, 19.5; verbs taking the dat 19.6–8; with parts of the body 23.2e, 37.4, 110.11; in basic sentence patterns 42.3a–d and j–k deadline 81.15c
 Dear Mr/Mrs 60.7
 death 65.3a, b, 110.9
 declaring sth. solemnly 100.4
 declension of adjectives 28.5, der-declension 44; ein-declension 45; extended adjectival phrases 49; invariable endings 47.1; non-declinable adjectives 47.3; of nouns 28.1, 44, 45; parallel endings 46.6; of plurals 29;
 possessive adjectives 30.3; predicative 43.1, 48.5; weak declension 28.2; zero
 declension 46, 48.5
 declining help 67.5; declining an invitation or offer 96.3; declining permission 97.2; declining rejecting suggestions 98b definite article 22
 definitions 75.1
 demanding one's rights 94.3; satisfying demands 112.2
 demolished 70.4
 demonstrative das 10.5b, 31.2 demonstrative pronouns: see pronouns 10.5
demzufolge 79.2
denen 10.2, 80.7
denn 6.1, 79.1; as modal particle 117.1c denying permission 97.2; denying/rejecting an assertion 100.1–3 dependent clauses 8, 10
 depending 82.5
 depressed 111.3e
der-declension 44
der – das – die as definite article 22; as relative pronoun 10.2
deren 10.2
derjenige 24.1
derselbe 24.1
der words 24.1
 describing: actions and processes 76; distance 80.3; objects 75; origins and provenance 78; people 74; spatial context 80; of states
 75.4; time 81
deshalb 79.2, 83.2
 desires: different types of desires 93.2–3; inquiring after need 93.4
 desiring 93 see also needs, wishes: where one has a justified claim 93.1
dessen 10.2
desto 48.6e see also je destroyed 70.4
deswegen 79.2, 83.2e detail: requesting more detail 119.6 determination 34.4, 103
 determiners 24, 31
die 22, as relative pronoun 10.2
dieser 24.1, 31.1
 different 76.8e–f dimension 75.3
 diphthong 2
 direct and indirect objects: see acc.; see dat.; word order 12
 direct questions 7; see also talking and enquiring about existence 69.1a; seeking information 73.1–2, offering advice 91.3; asking about reason 79.3
 direct speech: use of colon 59.5b direction 78.1, 80.5: direction with motion verbs and the acc. 18.5
 disagreement 109.1b, d see also agreement disappointment 113.3: at failing to do sth.
 113.3e
 disbelief 100.2
 disclaiming personal responsibility 88.2 disease 110.10
 dislikes 58.2, 104; see also likes dissatisfaction 112; see also satisfaction distance 80.3–4; covering distance 80.4; describing distances 80.3; distance with motion verbs and the acc. 18.5 doch 91.2, 117.1c, 120.4d doctors 110.12 doesn't have to/need not 35.7, 86.4–5 doing without 70.4i
dort 80.2
 double infinitives 5.4
 double plural forms 29.9
 doubting 85.1, 88; defining the degree of certainty 88.1; owing to limited knowledge 88.2d drinking 63; see also eating, restaurant/café du 30.2, 60.1; see duzen dummy subject es 15.1, 42.3 duration 81.11
durch 18.2; in the passive voice 40.3

- dürfen (forms) 35.2, 39.3; meaning 35.6, 86.1; in polite questions and suggestions 91.3e; nicht dürfen 35.7, 89.1; permission 97
- dürfte 39.3
- duty 86.2b, c
- Dutzend 21.5
- duzen 25.6b, 60.1c
- eating 63; see also food and drink; eating out see restaurant/café; enjoying the taste 115.4; hunger and thirst 63.1; offering sb. to invite them for a meal/drink/ice cream in a restaurant 63.1b; saying one has had enough to eat 112.5
- eben 117.1c
- effect 82; causing danger 82.2b; different effects 82.3; general causes 82.2a; having an effect 82.3; having consequences 82.3c; linking cause and effect 82.1; tracing events back to their causes 82.4
- effort 87.3
- egal 106
- eigentlich 39.3d, 85.2b, 113.3c, 119.6a
- ein – ein – eine 22
- einer – eins – eine as pronouns 31.3
- ein words 24.2
- ein-declension 45.1
- ein paar + zero-declension 46.2
- einen 22.3, 31.4
- einige + zero-declension 46.3
- einiges 10.5; einiges, was 10.5
- empathy see sympathy
- emphasis and word order 15
- emphasizing the importance of a task 92.2
- encouraging 82.2c
- end of a process 76.9
- endlich 50.1, 112.1
- engagement 74.9e
- enjoyment 115
- enough 112.4–5
- entgegen 19.4
- entstehen 78.2
- enttäuschen 113.3
- er ending 47.1, 48.1, 48.6e, 51.1
- erkennen 101.1
- errands 77.5; 92.1
- es: as dummy subject 15.1, 42.3, 77.3; es as subject of verbs 19.7; es + passive 40.2c; es + verb + dat. 19.7; es wird + past participle 77.6
- es gen. ending 28.1e
- es geht (es ginge) 39.7b, 94.2, 97.1; es geht um 42.3h; wie geht's 60.5; see also gehen
- es gibt (es gäbe) 39.7b, 69.1–3
- es handelt sich um (+ acc.) 42.3h
- Eszett (ß) 59.3, 59.6d
- 'eternal' truths 34.2b, 76.11
- etliche + zero-declension 46.4
- etwas 10.5; + zero-declension 46.3
- events: before and after 81.13; frequency 81.14; simultaneous events 81.12; taking place 69.4
- eventually 81.9
- evidence 83.1
- existing 69; being consumed or exhausted 70.4f; being dismantled/demolished 70.4b; being out-dated/obsolete 70.4e; cancelled or failing to happen 70.5; having been abolished or eradicated 70.4c; having ceased to exist 70.4; having disappeared without a trace 70.4a; having gone away 70.4d; lack and shortage 70.3; negating existence 70.1; presence 69.1
- explaining: an action 79.5; events 76.1e; procedures 76.1f; processes 76.1b, c; purpose 79.8; reasons 79.1–2, 79.4; things 76.1a
- extended adjective constructions 49, 58.1
- extension of deadline 81.15e
- facts 34.2b, 76.11, 84.4, 69–78
- family 74.8, 78.3–4; ancestry 78.4d; relationships 74.9; status 74.9f
- fearing 111.3h
- feelings see also moods; feel like 115.7; frustration 111.3i; sharing feelings 111.4
- fehlen 63.4c, 70.2
- feminine 25
- fillers 116, 121.3
- final position 15.2
- finally (schließlich) 76.9, 121.3a
- finally (endlich) 50.1, 112.1
- finished consumables 72.2
- finite verb 5.1, 6.1
- first/initial position 15.1
- fitting and matching 75.3
- flexible word order 15, see also satisfying needs and demands 112.2
- folgende + zero declension 46.4
- folgendes 10.5
- folgich 83.2

INDEX

- following sth. or someone 80.6
- food and drink 63; see also eating, restaurant/caf ; expressing hunger and thirst 63.1; likes and dislikes 63.6b; ordering food and drink 63.3; proposing/inviting 63.1b; talking about food and drink 63.6; wishes 66.5
- footnotes 84.5
- foreigners 61.10
- forgetting 102
- forgiving 68.1
- formal style/speaking 58.1, 121; formal appreciation 67.2; formal letter 67.3; formal introductions 61.3, 61.11, 62.3
- fostering 74.9e
- founding 78.5
- fractions 75.6
- free: being free from sth. 70.4h; from obligation 86.5; to be used 71.7
- freilich 117.1c
- frequency 81.14
- frustration 111.3i
- f r 18.2; was f r ein 9, 24.2
- fun 115.6
- future tense (forms) 33.3; use of 34.3, 89.1; use of present tense for the future 34.2c; at a specified time in the future 81.10; eventually 81.9; very soon 81.8; yet to occur 81.7
- future perfect 33.3; use of the future perfect 34.4, 89.1
- gefallen 19.7; used in liking sb. 104.2a
- gehen forms 33.9, 76.1b, c, 80.7d, 33.5a, c, 33.6c; see also es geht
- gegen 18.2
- gegen ber 19.4
- gelingen 42.3h
- gell? 117.1
- gem   19.4
- gem tlich 110.1
- genauso . . . wie 105.2
- gender 25; see also nouns; gender variations 27; grammatical gender 25; natural gender 25
- genitive see cases 20; declension 22; declension of weak masculine nouns 28.2; and of mixed nouns 28.2b; prepositions taking the gen. 20.7; verbs taking the dat. 20.4; time expressions using the gen. 20.6a; geographical names: article of 23.2d, i
- gerade (gerade dabei sein, zu . . .) 76.4c, 81.1, 117.1c
- gern(e) 91.2, 93.1, 105.1; gern/lieber/am liebsten see also likes and dislikes 104.2 and indicating preferences 105
- gerund (nouns from infinitives) 28.6, 54.4
- getting sth. 71.4
- geworden see werden 33.7
- glossary see front of book
- good wishes 66; use of case in good wishes 18.7
- goodbye 62.1
- graphs 75.9
- greeting 60; initial greetings 60.2; letters see letters; personal greeting 60.3; postcard greetings 60.8; responding to greetings 60.4; welcoming 60.6
- greetings and the acc. 18.7
- grief and mourning 111.3b, f, j
- Gr  e 60, 18.7
- habe Subjunctive I form of haben 39.5
- haben + intransitive verbs 33.7, 33.8c, d
- haben 33.4, 33.7: subjunctive form 39.3, 39.5; with the participle 33.8
- habits 110.6
- halt (as modal particle) 117.1c
- happen 35.8, 37.5, 76.1g
- happiness 111; being happy and showing joy 111.2b; being lucky 111.2f; being pleased 111.2a; enjoying sth. 111.2e; looking forward to sth. 111.2c; pleasing someone 111.2d
- h tte gehabt 39.3
- h tte . . . m ssen/sollen/k nnen (etc.) 39.3
- h tte sein m ssen/sollen/k nnen (etc.) 35.8, 89.4b
- health: healthy lifestyle 110.4; ill health 110.8; passing on disease 110.10; prevention of disease and accidents 110.5; relaxation and stress 110.7; talking about health 110.3; wishes for good health 66.2
- hearsay 85.4
- hei en 33.9, 61, 61.5a, 73.2a, 78.4b; followed by nom 17.2; willkommen hei en 60.6; das hei t schon etwas 61.4; wie hei t es noch? 116.2
- hei : mir ist hei /kalt/warm 19.9, 43.2k
- helping: accepting help 91.4; asking for help 91.1; declining help 67.5; financial support 91.5; moral support 91.5; promoting or supporting sb. 91.5; replying to a request for help 91.2
- her 50.4, 80.7, 81.5f, 80.5d, 80.7

Index

- here 80.2 hier 80.2 hin 50.4, 80.7
hinter 18.3, 19.5 hoping 113.1
 how are you? 60.5
Hundert 21.5, 59.1d
 Hunger 63.1
 hypothesis: expressing 39.2, 89.2, 89.4
- identifying 73.1–3; capabilities 74.3; character 74.4; habits and tendencies 74.4; names 73.2a; nationality 73.2c; people 74; physical appearance 74.3; place and date of birth 73.2b; residence 73.2f; supplying personal details 73.2; talents 74.5
 if . . . then 82.1
ihr as pronoun (you) 30.2, 60.1, see also duzen; (to her) 30.2b; as possessive adjective 30.3 im 19.5
im Gegenteil 5.3
immerhin 117.1c
 imperatives 41, 86.1; forms 41.1–3, 99.1c; see also commands 7 imperfect tense see past tense or simple past tense; of mixed verbs 33.6; of separable and inseparable prefix verbs 36; of strong verbs 33.5; of weak verbs (regular) 33.9
 impersonal verbs 19.7, 37.5c, 42.3h impression 74.6 in 18.3, 19.5
indem 76.6b in stock 71.2
 incomprehension 114.5
 indefinite relative pronouns 10.6
 indifference 107
 indirect object 19.1
 indirect questions 9, 50.5; see also explaining an action 79.5; see incomprehension 114.5b, c indirect speech see reported speech 39.1–2, 39.6
 infinitive 5.1e, 5.2, 33.1; dependent on finite verb 5.4; double infinitive 5.4; extended infinitive clause 8.7; impersonal infinitive constructions 33.7, 86.1, 92, 99; infinitive clause 8.7; infinitive phrase 5.2, 42.3f; infinitives as nouns 28.6; position of 5.4; position of dependent infinitive 5.4, 8.7; triple infinitive 8.6; used as past participles 5.4
- infolgedessen 79.2
 informal style 58.2–4
 information: identifying and seeking 73.1–2
 inheriting 78.7–8
 initial/first position 5.2
 inseparable prefix 36.2
 inseparable verbs list 36.3d instructing 86.1
 insulting 111.3m intention 79.10: future intentions 103; lack of intention/by mistake 79.11 interrogative/question words 7.1, 50.5; adverb 9; pronouns 30.4; see incomprehension 114.5b, c interrupting 120.4; please don't interrupt 120.2
 intonation 120.1
 intransitive verb + haben 33.8c, d introducing a speaker 121.1; introducing sb. 61; formal introductions 61.3; informal introductions 61.5; initial contact 61.1; introducing oneself on the telephone 61.7; official introductions 61.4
 inviting sb.: accepting and declining an invitation 96.3; for a do 96.1; to come in 61.9a, b; to have refreshments 61.9d, 63.1b; to make him/herself at home 61.9d; to sit down 61.9c
- irgendein 24.2 irony 114.7
 irregular verbs list 33.7
 items in stock 71.2
- ja: word order following ja 5.3; modal particle 89.1, 117.1c je -er . . . umso . . . -er/desto . . . -er 48.6, 82.1 jemand 31.5
jener 24.1, 31.1 joking 115.9
 justifying an action 79.6
- kein 22.3, 23.1c, 24.2
kennen or wissen? 101.1a knowing 101; arts and sciences 101.2a, 102.4
können: forms 35.2, 39.3; for ability 87.1a; in polite questions and suggestions 91.3; meaning 35.6, 87.1 könnte 39.3, 91.3
- lacking 70.3
lassen/lässt 8.6; forms 35.2; meaning 35.1, 35.6, lässt sich 77, 92.4, 98c, 104.1b,

- 110.12b, c; lassen + sich + verb taking an acc. object 40.4b
- laut as preposition 9.4, 84.1a, 84.4
- leaving 62
- legal: legal changes 76.8d; legal declaration 100.4; legal obligation 86.2h; legal proceedings 94.2d, 94.3–4; see rights
- Leid tun 65.1, 19.7
- leider 92.3
- length of time and the acc. 18.4
- 'let it be so' 39.4b
- letters: beginning a letter 60.7; finishing a letter 62.3–4; formal opening 61.11; postcard greetings 60.8; referring back to previous correspondence 61.11; signing off 62.3; thanking formally 67.3; thanking in advance 62.3; see also alphabet
- liability 86.2e
- lich 40.4c, 55.1
- likes and dislikes of food 63.6b; compliments 64; of people 104.2, using gefallen 19.7, 104.2a–b; praising 104.1; things 104.2
- literary references (abbreviations) 84.5
- loan 71.6
- locating 69.3, 80.1–2; asking 'where' 80.1; covering areas 80.4; covering distances 80.4; describing distances 80.3; direction 80.5; following/preceding 80.6; 'here', 'there' 80.2; spatial sequences 80.8; speaker's perspective 80.7
- making an offer 96.2
- mal 75.3c, 117.1c
- man: declension of 31.4, 39.5, 40.4a, 77.2, 10.6
- manage to do sth. 87.3
- manche + zero declension 46.4
- mancher 24.1b, 44.2
- manches 10.5; manches, was 10.5
- manner 10.1
- marrying 74.9f
- masculine 25
- matching 75.3d
- measuring, measurements 18.6, 21.2, 25.6g, 75.3
- medical conditions 110, 23.2k; medical investigation 110.12c
- medication 110.12
- meeting 74.10
- mehrere + zero declension 46.4
- mein as possessive adjective 30.3
- meiner, meins 30.3, 43
- meinetwegen 30.2c
- e Meinung 107, 109.1
- memories 102.3
- messages: passing on messages 85.3
- Milliarde 21.5
- Million 21.5
- missing 70.2
- mit 19.4
- mit anderen Worten 5.3
- mixed nouns see weak nouns with 'ns' in the gen. singular 28.2b
- mixed verbs 33.6
- möchte, see mögen 35.2; forms 35.2, 35.1, 39; in polite questions and suggestions 91.3; in wishes 93.1
- modal particles 117.1
- modal verbs 35; brauchen 93.1 meaning 35.6; modal and infinitive 35.1; past participle 35.3; past tense 35.2; past tense in the subjunctive 39.3; special meaning of modal verbs in the subjunctive 39.3; in reported speech 39.5d; tense forms 35.2; subjunctive forms 35.8; used with passive 40.4d; used as principle verbs 35.5; word order 5.2e, 5.4, 8.6, 35.3
- mögen: forms 35.2; meaning 35.6, 89.1, 93.1, 104.2
- monologues 121; closing words 121.3; formally introducing a speaker 121.1; giving an overview 121.4; OHP and slide presentations 121.5; opening words 121.2; thanking the audience 121.3d
- moods 111; general 111.1; grief and mourning 111.3b, f, j; joy and happiness 111.2; negative moods 111.3; sadness 111.3; sorrow 111.3; yearning 111.3; see also subjunctive
- muss gewesen sein/muss gesagt haben 35.8
- müssen: forms 35.2; in assumptions 84.4; in obligations 86; in polite questions 91.4; in reported speech 84.4; meaning 35.6, 86.1–2, 89.1; nicht müssen 35.7, 86.4
- müsste/dürfte/sollte/möchte/wollte 39.3d, 89.1
- müsste eigentlich 113.3c
- must not 35.7, 86.1, 99
- na 5.3
- nach 19.4, 84.1, 84.4
- nachdem 8.3, 34.6, 34.8; + pluperfect 34.8; + perfect tense 34.6c
- Näheres 119.6c
- nämlich 79.2

Index

- naja 117.2, 117.1c
names: buildings 23.2j; countries 23.2d, g; famous people (and the article) 23.2g; personal (and the article) 23.g; streets 23.2
- nämlich 79.2, 117.1c, 119.1
nationality and the article 23.1b
- neben 18.3, 19.5
necessity 86; commands 86.1; instructions 77.5, 86.1; obligation 86.2; see also obligation; public notices 86.1
- need not 35.7, 86.4–5
needs 93; different types of need 93.2; enquiring after need 93.4; satisfying needs 112.2
- negation see kein, nein, nicht, nichts, niemand; negating objects and actions 109.4; negating occurrence 70.1; using un- 47.5; negative moods 111.3
- negative article see kein, negative prefix un- 47.5; negative moods 111.3
- nein 5.3
nennen + nom. 17.2
neuter 25.5–6
- nicht: position 13; before adverbs of manner
11; nicht as filler 117.1a; nicht so . . . wie 105.2; dislikes 104.2
- nicht mehr 81.6
nicht müssen 35.6b, 35.7, 86.4–5 nicht (zu) brauchen 35.7, 86.4–5 nicht . . . sondern 6.1, 13.3, 110.12d nicht wahr? 117.1
nichts 10.5; + zero declension 46.3 niemand 31.5
noch nicht 81.7
nominative case 17; functions using nom. case 61.5
non-declinable adjectives 47.3 non-verbal language: ways of attracting attention 90.5
- noun 25, 42; abstract nouns 23.2b; compound nouns 26; noun declensions 28; feminine nouns 25.3; formation of nouns 54; genders of nouns 25–7; masculine nouns 25.1; neuter nouns 25.5, 25.6; plurals 29; qualifying other nouns 21.2–5; strong declension of nouns 28.1; weak declension of nouns 28.2; word order of nouns 12.1
noun + verb (formal style) 58.1; nouns independent of verb 17.3
noun phrase 5.2, 42.3a–b; in apposition 21.2
- now 81.1
number 75; numbers in context 75.3; fractions 75.6; number + noun 21.5; ordinal (first, second, etc.) 59.6, 75.9; capital or small letter 59.1e; commas in numbers 59.5d; number and gender in pronouns 30.1;
singular or plural 29
- nun 5.3, 117.1c
- ob 8.3
obgleich 8.3
obituary notice 65.3c object: noun and pronoun 12; direct objects, see acc. 18; indirect object, see dat. 19;
dat. and acc. objects with reflexive verbs 37.3; order of objects 12 objecting 94; complaining rudely 94.2c; demanding one's rights 94.3 see also rights; making complaints 94.2; putting sb. right in a polite way 94.1; taking a complaint to court 94.2d objects 75; a state 75.4; alterations 75.3e;
definitions 75.1; describing a state 75.4; dimension 75.3; fitting and matching 75.3d; parameter 75.3; power/strength 75.3f; quality 75.8;
quantity 75.4; shape 75.2; size 75.3; weight 75.3
obligation 86.2; absence of 86.4; acting contrary to 86.3; different types 86.2; freeing sb. from 86.5; legal or contractual 86.2
- obwohl 8.3
occurring 69.2; negating occurrence 10.1
of 21.4
offering: accepting and declining advice 91.3, an offer 96.2–3
- ohne 18.2; ohne dass/ohne . . . zu 8.3
OHP and slide presentations 121.5
OK 117.2
omitting dass 8.4; the infinitive 35.5; letters 59.5c; wenn see wenn omitted opening words 121.2; open channel 117 opinion 107; see also agreement, convictions, disagreement, indifference
order of adverbials 11
ordering food and drink 63.3
origin 78; by birth 78.4; chronological 78.2;
of action 78.6
ought to (but doesn't) 35.6b, 39.3d, 113.3c out-of-date 70.4e, 81.6
overview 121.4

INDEX

- pain 110.11
- parameter 75.3
- participle 86.1; used as attributive adjective 49;
 see also present participle; past participle 33.1b, 35.3
- parts of the body 23.2e
- passing on disease 110.10; passing on messages 85.3; passing on things 78.8;
- passive + impersonal subject es 40.2c
- passive voice basics 40; in instructions 86.1d;
 passive with werden 40.2; von and durch
 40.3; passive with sein/statal passive 40.2b; with modals 40.4d
- passive voice alternatives 40.4;
- past participle 5.1, 5.2, 33.1, 49; of modal verbs
 35.3; position of 5.4
- past perfect tense 33.3
- past tense see also simple past; events in the past 81.2, 81.5; formation of past tense 33; no longer possible 81.6; use of past tense 34.5
- patience: requesting patience 90.4
- patterns 75.7; sentence patterns 42
- perceptions, sensory 77.3
- perfect tense: forms 33.3; choice of auxiliary (haben or sein) 33.8; use of the perfect
 34.6; word order 5.4
- permission 97; consent 97.1; seeking permission 97.1
- person (third person) 33.9
- personal details 61.10, 73.2 see also identifying:
 family relationships 74.9; professions 74.7;
 social relationships 74.8
- personal pronouns 30.2; order of personal pronouns 12.2
- perspective 80.7
- place/order of adverbs 11
- pleasure 115; being cheerful 115.5; doing things for fun 115.6; enjoying the taste 115.4; enjoying things 115.3; feeling like doing sth. 115.7; giving pleasure 115.2; having pleasant feelings 115.5; being pleased 111.29
- pluperfect tense 33.3, 34.8
- plurals 29
- point in time and the acc. 18.4
- polite questions and suggestions 91.3
- polite requests using subjunctive 39.2b; requesting attention 90.2; requesting more detail 119.6; replying to a request for help 91.2; requesting patience 90.4; using bitte 92
- possession using gen. 20.1
- possessive adjectives 30.3
- possessive pronouns 30
- possibility 89; really did happen 35.8
- praising 104.1
- preceding 80.6
- predicative adjectives 43.1, 48.5; versus attributive 43.2
- preferring 105; gradation pattern 105.1;
 making comparisons 105.2
- prefixes of adjectives 55.2; prefixes of nouns 54.1; prefixes of verbs 57
- prefixes: double prefix 36.2c; inseparable prefix 36.2; position of separable prefixes 5.5;
 separable prefix 36.1, 57.2; variable prefixes 36.3, 57.3
- prepositions: prepositions taking the acc. 18.2;
 prepositions taking the dat. 19.4; prepositions taking the dat. or the acc./
 two-case prepositions 18.3; prepositions taking the gen. 20.7; prepositions implying rest or movement at a place 19.5;
 da- and wo- compounds 32, 38.2, 50.5; prepositions after adjectives 47.4
- prepositional verbs 38; prepositional verb completion 38.2, 42
- prescription 110.12d
- presence 69.1
- present participle 33.1, 49
- present perfect tense: see perfect tense
- present tense: forms 33.3; use of present tense 34.2; use of present tense for 'eternal' truths 76.11; for future 34.2c
- presents 96.1c
- principal parts of verbs 33.9, 54.4
- probability 89; assumptions in a scientific context 89.2; conditions 89.3; hypothesis 89.4; simple assumptions 89.1; really did happen 35.8
- problems in restaurants 63.4; complaints see 94.2
- procedure 76.1
- processes 76; agent of process 77; continuation 76.4; end 76.9; hindering a process 76.9e;
 next step 76.5; repetition 76.10;
 simultaneity 76.6; starting a process 76.3
- production 76.1d
- profession and the article 23.1b, 74.7, 78.3
- promising 95; between people 95.2
- pronoun 5.2, 42; + ein-declension 45.2;
 indefinite relative pronoun 10.6;
 interrogative pronouns (wer, wessen) 30.4;

- personal pronoun system 30.2; position of reflexive pronoun 14; possessive pronouns 30.3; pronouns after prepositions 32; reflexive 37.2; relative pronoun 10.2–6; relative pronouns preceded by a preposition 10.3; use 30
- pronoun objects 12
- provenance 78; see also origin
- public notices 85.1, 86.1
- punctuality 81.15
- punctuation 59.5, 59.6
- purchase 71.5
- purpose 79.8
- quality 75.8
- quantity 75.5
- question words/interrogative 7.1, 50.5; adverb 9; pronouns 30.4, 50.5
- questions 7.1, 7.2; asking polite questions 39.2, 91.3; indirect questions 9; using questions to attract attention 90.3
- quoting 84.1c–g
- rate of inflation etc. 75.9
- reaching for sth. 71.4; non-availability 72
- reacting when spoken to 61.2
- reaffirming see reporting
- reasons 79; asking about reasons 79.3; explaining an action 79.5; explaining the purpose 79.8; giving reasons 79.1–2; justifying 79.6; naming the reason 79.4; taking on responsibility 79.7
- recently 81.3
- Rechtschreibreform 59
- recover 110.7
- references to written sources 84.1b, 84.2
- referring to author 78.9, authority 84.2
- reflexive object 37.1
- reflexive pronouns: forms 30.2b, 37.2; position of reflexive pronouns 14
- reflexive verbs 37, see also lässt sich 77, 92.4, 104.1b, 110.12b, c
- refusing sth. which you have no authority to grant 92.3
- regretting 68.2
- rejecting denying/rejecting an assertion 100.1–3; rejecting an invitation or offer 96.3; declining permission 97.2; declining/rejecting suggestions 98b
- relationships: family 74.9; social 74.8
- relative clauses 10; for identifying people 73.3
- relative pronouns 10.2–4
- religion and the article 23.1b
- remembering 102; commemorating 102.2; forgetting 102.3–4; memory 102.3
- renting 71.6
- repeating 76.10
- reported speech (Subjunctive I) 39.1, 4, 39.6
- reporting 39.4, 39.6, 84.4, 85: not naming sources 85.5; passing on messages 85.3; questioning the truth of what sb. has said 85.1; reaffirming the truth of what sb. has said 85.2; second- and third-hand knowledge 85.4
- request using the subjunctive 39.2b; requesting attention 90.2; requesting more detail 119.6; replying to a request for help 91.2; requesting patience 90.4; using bitte 92
- reservation 117.2e
- responsibility 79.7: disclaiming personal responsibility 88.2; giving someone responsibility 92.1; taking on responsibility 97.7
- restaurant/café: asking the waiter to help 63.3b; dealing with problems 63.4; finding a place to sit 63.2; getting the menu 63.3a; ordering food and drink 63.3; paying the bill 63.5
- retiring from work 76.9g
- right: to be right 91.4
- rights: demanding 94.3; different types of 94.4
- rise 75.9
- RSVP 96.1a
- rumours 85.4
- run out of sth. 72.2
- sadness 111.3
- sämtliche 24.2b, 76.11
- satisfaction 112; being satisfied/dissatisfied 112.1; putting up with things that aren't satisfactory 112.6; satisfactory achievements 112.3; satisfying needs and demands 112.2; saying one has had enough to eat 112.5; saying that sth. is sufficient 112.4
- schaffen as weak verb 87.3
- schmecken 19.7, 115.4
- schon 117.1
- school grades 112.3c
- scientific context: making an assumption 89.2; measurements 25.6g

INDEX

- scientific facts 34.2b, 76.11
- second- and third-hand knowledge 85.4
- second idea or position (of verb) 5.1–2
- sehen Sie? 117.1
- sei 39.4–6
- sein (to be) 33.7a; sein + nom. 17.2; sein + dat. 19.9; sein + gen. 20.5, used in functions 107; sein or haben with the past participle 33.8; subjunctive form 39.4–6
- sein as possessive adjective (his) 30.3
- seit 8.3, 19.4
- seitdem 8.3
- sensory perceptions 77.3
- sentence patterns 42
- separable and inseparable prefix verbs 36, 57
- sequence 80.8
- shape 75.2
- shock 111.3k, 114.6
- shortage 70.3
- should do (but doesn't) 35.6b, 39.3d, 113.3c
- should have/would have/could have done 35.8
- Sie 60.1
- siezen 60.1
- simple past tense: forms 33.3; use of the simple past 34.5; see also past tense
- simultaneity: of a process 76.6; of events 81.12
- size 75.3
- skills 87.4, 102.4
- smelling of 75.8d
- so 5.3
- so that (so dass/damit) 79.3e
- so . . . wie 48.6
- sobald 8.3, 59.4
- social status 78.3; relationships 74.8
- solange 8.3, 59.4
- solch 24.2
- solche + der-declension 44.2
- solcher 24.1
- sollen: forms 35.2; meaning 35.6, 86.1–2; in obligations 86; in polite questions 91.3; in reported speech 84.4, 85.4, 88.2
- sollte eigentlich 35.6b, 39.3d, 113.3c
- solution 94.5
- some 23.1e
- sondern see nicht . . . sondern
- sorry 19.7, 65, 91.2b, 93.4
- sources of information 84; authority 84.2; enquiring about sources 84.3; literary/written 84.1; not naming sources 85.5, 88.2
- speech/style: informal/colloquial 58.2–4; formal 121, 58.1; direct speech: use of colon 59.5b; see also reported speech
- speed 76.7
- spelling 118.3
- spelling reform 59
- splitting up words 59.2
- spoken cues 118.1, 118.2
- ß (Eszett) 59.3, 59.6d
- ss or ß 59.3b
- starting 76.3c
- statal passive (passive with sein) 40.2b
- state: condition 75.4
- statistics 75.9
- stative passive (passive with sein) 40.2b
- steht in/bei 84.1
- stem 33.5
- stock: in stock 71.2
- strength 75.3
- stress: pronunciation 4; stress in lifestyle 110.1; relaxation and stress 110.7
- strong verbs 33.5
- style: formal style 58.1, 121; informal style 58.2, 116.1
- subject 42d
- subjunctive 39; past tense of Subjunctive II 39.3; Subjunctive I (forms) 39.5, 92.1; Subjunctive II (forms) 39.1; use of subjunctive 39.1–2, 39.4, 89.2, 89.4, 90.2, 91.1, 91.3; for assumptions in scientific context 85
- subordinate clauses 8, 10
- subordinating conjunctions 8.2–3
- suffering 111.3
- sufficient 112.4
- suffixes of adjectives 55.1
- suffixes of nouns 54.3
- suggestions: giving, accepting, declining 98; making polite 39.2
- superlative 48
- support 91.5
- suppositions 89.1, 34.3–4
- surprise 88.3, 114; astonishment 114.4; improbable/unexpected 88.3; awe 114.4; hardly believing the news 114.3; in general 114.1; incomprehension 114.5; unforeseen events 114.2
- sympathizing 65.1
- taking leave 62; taking place 69.3; taking turns 76.5b
- tasting of 75.8d

Index

- tatsächlich 117.2
telephone 61.7; answering machine message 61.7 temperature of body 110.8e temporal context 81
tenses 33.1, 33.3; see also under individual tenses;
use of tenses 34
thanking 67; acknowledging thanks 67.4; formal appreciation 67.2; in a formal letter 67.3; in advance (in a letter) 62.3;
informally 67.1
the 22
there 80.2
therefore 83.2d–e thirst 63.1
time – manner – place 10.1
time 81; a few moments ago 81.2; at a specified time in the future 81.10; at a specified time in the past 81.4; eventually 81.9; in the distant past 81.5; now 81.1; recently 81.3; very soon 81.8; yet to occur 81.7
topic: broadening 119.4; changing 119.2; developing 119.1; narrowing 119.5;
resisting a change 119.3
transitive verbs 33.8a treating oneself to sth. 115.8; treating medical conditions 110.12
truth 100; commenting on truthfulness 100.1; neither true nor untrue 100.3; questioning the truth 85.1; ‘eternal’ truths 34.2b, 76.11 trying to describe sth. 116.3–4 two-case prepositions 18.3 über 18.3, 19.5

um 18.2
um . . . zu 8.3, 8.7, 79.2, 82.1
umlaut 1.5, 2.1; in plural formation 29.3, 29.5, 29.6
un- 47.5
‘uncountable’ nouns 46.5
understanding: asking for linguistic cues 118; checking understanding 117.4; not understood 117.3; please spell 118.3
understatement 64
unintentionally 79.11 units of packaging 75.5b unter 18.3, 19.5
unter uns gesagt 5.3
unterschiedlich 76.8e

value 75.8e variable prefix 36.3

verändern 76.8d
verbal prefix 36.1
verb: finite verb 5.1, 8.2; forms 33; impersonal verbs 19.7, 37.5c, 42.3h; irregular 33.2, 33.7; mixed 33.6; modal verbs see modal verbs; position of finite verb in relative clause 10.1; position of verb in indirect questions 9; prepositional verbs 38; principal parts of the verb 33.9; requiring the dat. 19.6, 19.7; verbs requiring the gen.
20, 20.5; separable and inseparable 36;
strong 33.2, 33.5; transitive 37.3; used with haben and/or sein 33.8; verbs requiring two acc. objects 18.3; weak 33.2, 33.4; completion 42
verb completion: by a clause 42.3, 98; with one element 42.3; with two elements 42.3
verb list: principal parts of the verb; 33.9; future 34.3; inseparable verbs 36.3d verbs of perception (hören, sehen, fühlen) 35.1, 35.3c
vermissen 70.2a
verpassen 70.2b
verschieden 76.8e
Versichertenkarte (used to be Krankenschein) 110.2
viel + zero-declension 46.3, 46.5
viele + zero-declension 46.4 vieles 10.5
Visitenkarte 60.9 vom 19.5
von 19.4, 40.3 (in the passive voice) vor 18.3, 19.5, 81.4a
vor*stellen 37.3b, 61
vowel: change in verbs 33.7, 33.9; internal boundary 4.4; vowel sounds 1; vowel stem in verbs 33.6; spelling of long and short vowels 59.3a

während 8.3
wann 7.1, 9
wäre 39.3
wäre gewesen 39.3
warning 99; public and semi-public warnings 99.1; threat-like warnings 99.2
warum 7.1, 79.3
was 7.1, 10.5
was für ein 9, 24.2, 73.2d was? 117.3
weak masculine nouns 28.2
weak verbs 33.4
weh tun 110.11

INDEX

- weight 75.3g; gaining and losing weight 110.4c weil 8.3, 79.1
weiter 76.4
welcher 24.1, 30.4b, 44.2
 welcoming sb. 60.6; official welcome 60.6c; to one's home 60.6a, b, d well being 110: addictions 110.6c; exercising 110.4a; feeling and looking well 110.1; gaining/losing weight 110.4c; giving up bad habits 110.6b; healthy lifestyle 110.4; ill health see health; inquiring about well being 60.5, 110.2; maintaining a balanced diet 110.4b; prevention of disease and accidents 110.5; relaxation/stress 110.7; starving/stuffing oneself 110.6d; talking about health 60.5, 110.3
wenige + zero-declension 46.3–5 weniges 10.5
wenn 8.3, 82.1, 89.3–4; wenn Sie . . . machen würden 94.1 wenn omitted 8.5, 39.7c, 39.8, 82.1a wer 7.1, 9, 30.4
werden 33.7, 33.9; conditional forms 39.7; used as full verb 33.7; used in passive voice 40.2, 86.1; position of 5.4; werden + nom. 17.2; werden and future perfect 34.4, 103; used for assumptions 89.1 werden passive with werden 40.2 weshalb 79.3
wessen 9, 30.4
 when (wann) 7, 9; (als/wenn) 8.3; when I was young 81.5e wider 18.2, 57.3
wie 7.1, 9, 116.4; (in comparisons: as) 8.7b wie bitte? 117.3
wie gesagt 5.3
wie in apposition 21.6
wie wäre es mit/wenn. . . ? 98
wieso 79.3
will gemacht haben 35.6b, 85.1
wirklich? 117.2
 wishes 66, 93, 113.2; different types of wishes 93.3; for a new home 66.4; for an examination 66.3; for celebrations 66.8; for good health 66.2; with food and drink 66.5; for the journey 62.2; yearning 111.3; good night 66.6
 wishes and the acc. 18.7
wissen 33.6, 33.7a, 101.1
wissen or kennen? 101.1
wo + preposition such as wodurch, womit, wovon 10.6; interrogative 50.5b wo 7.1, 9, 80.1
wohl 117.1c, 88.2c
wollen: forms 35.2; in reported speech 85.1 meaning 35.6, 85.1; wenn Sie . . . machen wollen 94.1
wollte eigentlich 39.3d
womit 7.1, 10.6, 50.5b
woraus 10.6, 50.5b
 word formation 52; adjectives 55; adverbs 56; nouns 54; verbs 53; using prefixes 57 word order: in general 5–13; and emphasis 15; in commands 7.3; in direct questions 7.1; final position 15.2; first position 15.1; flexible word order 15, see also satisfying needs and demands 112.2; in indirect questions 9; after introductory words like ja 5.3; with negation 13; normal word order 5, 6; of (direct and indirect) objects 12; with the passive 40.2c; with the present perfect 5.4; of pronouns 12.2; in relative clauses 10; second idea or element 5, 6; subordinate clauses 8; time – manner – place 11; with 'zu clauses' 8.7, 77.5; um . . . zu/ohne . . . zu 8.3
worden (past participle of werden, in the passive) 40.2 worin 10.6, 50.5b worrying 111.3
worüber 7.1, 10.6, 50.5
 would have/could have/should have 35.8 wovon 7.1, 10.6, 50.5b
wozu 79.3, 50.5b
würde (conditional form of werden) 39.7
würde + infinitive 39.7, 91.1 zero/strong declension 46 Zitat 84.1
zu as preposition 19.4; as 'too' 42.3j zu clauses: zu + infinitive 8.7, 77.5; um . . . zu/ohne . . . zu 8.3
zu*lassen 97.2
zum 19.5 zur 19.5
zwischen 18, 19.5